Government drops plasma therapy from Covid treatment guidelines

New Delhi: The government on Monday revised the clinical guidance for COVID-19 treatment, dropping the off-label use of convalescent plasma as it was found not beneficial in reducing the progression to severe disease or death. TN keeps off new edu policy meet

G. BABU JAYAKUMAR | DC
CHENNAI, MAY 17

Sending across a strong message to the Centre on Tamil Nadu's disillusionment over the New Education Policy (NEP) 2020, the DMK government did not let the education secretary attend a meeting called by Union education minister Ramesh Pokhriyal 'Nishank' on Monday. When the minister called for the online meeting to discuss the implementation of NEP, the DMK government wrote back saying that it would like its new minister for school education also to take part in the discussions as the state had certain reservations on the issue.

Since the Centre did not bother to reply to the e-mail, the education secretary kept off the virtual meeting at 11 am convened with three agendas - conducting online education in view of Covid-19, implementation of NEP and feasibility of holding class 12 examinations in the present situation.

Covid numbers fall below 3-lakh mark

VINEETA PANDEY | DC
NEW DELHI, MAY 17

The number of daily fresh Covid-19 cases in the country on Monday dropped below 3 lakh for the first time since April 21. Delhi recorded 4, 524 fresh cases and the city's case positivity rate dropped to 8.42 per cent. However, since testing is usually low on Sundays, the figures in the next couple of days will be important to watch.

The Centre of Monday said it has identified only 26 potential cases of bleeding and blood clotting in India due to the administration of the Covishield vaccine as Adverse Event Following Immunization (AEFI). In a report submitted to the ministry of health and family welfare, the National AEFI Committee has said that bleeding and clotting cases following the vaccine shots in India were minuscule and in line with the expected number of diagnoses of these conditions in the country.

The report comes after alerts were raised in some countries on post-vaccination "embolic and thrombotic events" on March 11, 2021, particularly with the Astra Zeneca-Oxford vaccine, Covishield, in India. Since the Covid-19 vac-

CBI arrests 2 WB ministers

■ MLA, leader also held on graft charge ■ Calcutta HC stays grant of bail

RAJIB CHOWDHURI | DC
KOLKATA, MAY 17

Within two weeks of obtaining West Bengal governor Jagdeep Dhankhar's "sanction for prosecution" of four former Trinamul Congress ministers, accused in the Narada sting operation, the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) on Monday arrested and chargesheeted the quartet after detaining them from their residences in Kolkata during a raid with the help of the Central paramilitary forces.

Of the arrested, Firhad Hakim is state transport minister while Subrata Mukherjee is the panchayat minister. Madan Mitra is the TMC MLA from Kamarhati and Sovan Chatterjee, who defected to the BJP from the TMC earlier, quit the saffron party ahead of this year's Assembly elections.

In the evening the Bankshall court, in a virtual hearing, granted bail to the accused after rejecting the CBI's plea for 14-day judicial custody on the grounds of their influential status and role in the case. Dissatisfied, the CBI later moved the Calcutta high court, which had actually ordered the probe, and asked the division bench of acting Chief Justice Rajesh Bindal for an immediate stay order on the day's proceedings in the case alleging the CM herself was present at CBI office and tried to influence the proceedings. It also sought the transfer of the case under Section 407 CrPC. ■ P4

Mamata storms CBI office in Kolkata as protests erupt

DC CORRESPONDENT
KOLKATA, MAY 17

A furious TMC supremo and West Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee on Monday stormed the CBI's anti-corruption branch office on the 14th floor of Nizam Palace on AJC Bose Road in south Kolkata and laid a six-hour-long siege there from around 11 am, immediately after the arrest of the four of her party leadwrs.

TMC councillor and lawyer Anindya Raut, who accompanied her, said:

"The CM demanded that the CBI officers arrest her too like they did to Firhad Hakim, Subrata Mukherjee, Madan Mitra and Sovan Chatterjee."

The arrest of these four by the CBI, close on the heels of the TMC coming to power for the third consecutive time in the state, triggered a volcano of protests in Kolkata and beyond. Violating the Covid-19 lockdown that got underway from May 16, ruling party workers came out on the roads and burst into anger. Some of them thronged to Nizam Palace and pelted stones at the Central forces deployed to guard the CBI personnel, while others demonstrated outside Raj Bhavan with their party flags.

A worried governor, in the eye of the storm now, tweeted: "Invited attention @MamataOfficial: On channels and in public domain I notice arson and pelting of stones at CBI office. Pathetic that Kolkata Police @KolkataPolice and West Bengal Police @WBPolice are just onlookers.

Mumbai, May 17: A very severe cyclonic storm with winds gusting up to 185 km per hour began making landfall on the Gujarat coast Monday night, after dumping heavy rains on Mumbai, forcing the evacuation of over 1.5 lakh people in Gujarat and leaving two barges with 410 people on board adrift in the Arabian Sea.

India backs Palestinian cause but wants early ceasefire

United Nations, May 17 Amid escalating tensions between Gaza and Israel, India has urged "both sides" to show extreme restraint and refrain from attempts to unilaterally change the status-quo, underlining that "immediate de-escalation" is the need of the hour.

The UN Security Council held an open meeting on the situation in the Middle East on Sunday, during which UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres termed the tensions as the "most serious escalation" in Gaza and Israel in years.

Describing the current hostilities as "utterly appalling", the UN chief asserted that "fighting must stop. It must stop immediately. Rockets and mortars on one side and aerial and artillery bombardments on the other must stop. I appeal to all parties to heed this call."

India's Permanent Representative to the UN T. S. Tirumurti said the continuing violence, which began in East Jerusalem a week back, is now threatening to spiral out of control. "The events of the last several days have resulted in a sharp deterioration of the security situation."

Mr Tirumurti reiterated India's strong support to the "just Palestinian cause" and its unwavering commitment to the two-state solution, while also stressing India's strong condemnation of all acts of violence, provocation, incitement and destruction. "Immediate de-escalation is the need of the hour, so as to arrest any further slide towards the brink. We urge both sides to show extreme restraint, desist from actions that exacerbate tensions, and refrain from attempts to unilaterally change the existing status-quo, including in East Jerusalem and its neighbourhood," he said. India voiced support for the diplomatic efforts of the Quartet and other members of the international community, the countries in the region in particular, to "calm" the situation and put an end to the ongoing violence and seek to achieve durable peace.

These incidents have once again underscored the need for immediate resumption of dialogue between Israel and Palestinian authorities. The absence of direct and meaningful negotiations between the parties is widening the trust deficit between the parties," Mr Tirumurti said, voicing concern that "this will only increase the chances for similar escalation in future." India believes that every effort should be made to create conducive conditions for resumption of talks between Israel and Palestine, he said.

During the two previously held Security Council closed meetings last week on the escalating tensions, India had expressed its deep concern over violence in Jerusalem. — PTI

Israel pounds tunnels, Hamas leaders' homes

Gaza City, May 17: The Israeli military unleashed a wave of heavy airstrikes on the Gaza Strip early on Monday, saying it destroyed 15 kilometers of militant tunnels and the homes of nine Hamas commanders, as international diplomats worked to end the weeklong war that has killed hundreds of people.

The latest attacks killed a top Gaza leader of the Islamic Jihad militant group whom the Israeli military blamed for some of the thousands of rocket attacks launched at Israel in recent days.

Israel has said it intends to press on for now with its attacks against Hamas, the militant group that rules Gaza, and the United States signalled it would not pressure the two sides for a cease-fire.

The overnight

airstrikes in Gaza on Monday hollowed out one floor of a multistory concrete building. A woman picked through clothing, rubble and splintered furniture in a room that had been destroyed.

Despite restrictions, crowd swells at Tambaram market

DC CORRESPONDENT
CHENNAI, MAY 17

Hundreds thronged the Tambaram market on Sunday despite the government's appeal to avoid crowding.

Police sources said, on Sunday morning, the Tambaram market saw a steady stream of shoppers. Vegetables, meat and fish shops in the market saw the most crowd on Sunday.

Initially, the flow of shoppers was minimal and there was discipline on their part to adhere to physical distancing. However, the situation became awry after 9 am, after the crowd swelled presumably due to panic buying.

While officials were seen advising the people to wear masks and maintain physical distancing, local residents were in no mood to listen. Most of the vendors and the people were seen wandering around the shops without properly wearing masks. Based on an alert by the public regarding the violations of Covid-19 restrictions in the market, M.L.A Raja rushed to the spot.

Based on the information, Tambaram municipality Commissioner Chitra also arrived at the spot. Tension simmered thereafter a minor clash broke out between the MLA and the officer, as the MLA raised concern over the commissioner's failure to manage the crowd at the market.

Later the police intervened and regulated the crowd by giving instructions and reminding everyone to maintain physical distancing. Public and the shopkeepers were advised to wear masks and maintain personal distance in the market. The police personnel had a tough time controlling the huge crowd that had gathered at all the shops.

Reprieve for woman candidate in TNPSC appointment

DC CORRESPONDENT
CHENNAI, MAY 17

A woman candidate, who applied to the post of assistant director in the social welfare and nutritious meal programme department and successfully completed her written examination but her candidature was rejected by the Tamil Nadu Public Service Commission on the ground that she failed to upload the documents for certificate verification within the stipulated period, got reprieve with the Madras high court directing the TNPSC to permit her to upload documents in their official portal and call for other selection process, if any, in case of any vacancy.

Allowing the petition filed by J.Jayashree, Justice S.Vaidyanathan gave the above directive and dismissed the petition filed by B.Poonguzhali, who was selected in the second list in the place of Jayashree.

The judge said, "In the result, a petition filed by Jayashree is allowed. The respondents (TNPSC) are directed to permit Jayashree to upload documents in their official portal and call for another selection process, if any, in case of any vacancy. In addition to uploading of documents in the website, Jayashree is also permitted to hand over the copies of documents to TNPSC, in the physical form. The very fact that Jayashree's name finds place in the 1st list itself is sufficient to infer that she is meritorious, as Poonguzhali has neither scored equal marks nor more marks than Jayashree, otherwise her name would have found place in the List-1 itself. Hence finding no merits in the case of Poonguzhali, the petition filed by her is dismissed".

3 KILLED IN COP-NAXAL ENCOUNTER

DC CORRESPONDENT
BHOPAL, MAY 17

Three people were killed in a gunbattle between security forces and Maoists in a forest in the borders of Bijapur and Sukma in south Bastar in Chhattisgarh on Monday.

Police were ascertaining if the three slain were civilians, caught in the crossfire between security forces and Naxals, or jan militia members (foot soldiers of Maoists).

"It was yet to be known if the deceased were Maoists or civilians", Bastar range inspector general of police Sunderraj P said.

He said Maoists opened fire on a police camp set up at Silger on the side of Sukma district on the inter-district border at around 12.30 pm, provoking the security forces to retaliate.

Local villagers have been staging protests against the establishment of a police camp in the area for the last several days.

Naxals, taking the cover of the protest, opened fire on the police camp, leading to the gun battle between them, he added.

Bodies of three people were recovered by police.

The encounter site is barely 10 km from the spot where Maoists ambushed a joint search party of security personnel killing 22 CRPF jawans on April 3.

COLLEGIUM FOR NAMING POLL OFFICERS SOUGHT

PARMOD KUMAR | DC
NEW DELHI, MAY 17

The Association of Democratic Reforms (ADR) on Monday moved the Supreme Court seeking setting up of an independent collegium for making appointments of the Election Commissioners to the Election Commission.

The petition by ADR says that present process of appointing the election commissioners by the Executive is incompatible with Article 324(2) of the Constitution.

Citing the views of the Constitution-makers, the petition says: "There is no doubt that in order to ensure the purity of election process, the responsibility to hold free and fair elections in the country should be entrusted to an independent body, which would be insulated from political and/or executive interference."

"The appointment of the members of the Election Commission on the 'pick-and-choose' of the Executive violates the very foundation for which it was created, thus making the Commission a branch of the Executive", says the petition by ADR.

The petition cited the recommendations of the Law Commission, the Second Administrative Reform Commission and Dinesh Goswami Committee's May 1990 report, all stressing on appointments on the vacant positions in the Election Commission by an independent collegium.

PVT HOSP 'HIDES' DEATHS, PROBE ORDERED

Dehradun, May 17: A private hospital in Haridwar allegedly withheld information about deaths of 65 Covid-19 patients from the health authorities for over a fortnight in violation of the norms, officials said on Monday.

Cabinet Minister and state government spokesman Subodh Uniyal said the matter is being probed and appropriate legal action will be taken against those responsible for the negligence.

Sixty-five Covid-19 patients died at Baba Barfani Hospital between April 25 and May 12 but the facility hid the figure from the State Covid Control Room here, officials said.

When the hospital management was threatened with action it disclosed the truth, state Covid Control Room officials said. However, the hospital management offered excuses like shortage of staff for not being able to provide the information on time, they said.

Hospitals across the state are supposed to inform the Covid Control Room within 24 hours about the death of patients suffering from the infection, Chief Operating Officer Abhishek Tripathi said on Monday. Health Secretary Amit Negi has written to all hospitals asking them to regularly provide figures to the state control room or face action.

PARAM BIR SINGH MOVES SC CHALLENGING MAHA INQUIRY

SHAHAB ANSARI | DC
MUMBAI, MAY 17

Former Mumbai police commissioner Param Bir Singh has approached the Supreme Court against the departmental inquiry initiated against him by the Maharashtra government. In his petition, Mr Singh has claimed that the inquiry is an attempt to frame him in false cases.

He has claimed that the inquiry officer is threatening him with false cases unless the complaint made by him against former Home Minister Anil Deshmukh is withdrawn. The state had directed Maharashtra DGP Sanjay Pandey to conduct a preliminary inquiry against Singh. The two enquiries were ordered on April 1 and April 20. Incidentally, Singh made similar allegations against Pandey that he was pressuring Singh to withdraw the complaints against Deshmukh.

Singh had also alleged that he had recorded the conversation between him and Pandey following which Pandey had recused himself from conducting a probe against Singh.

Later, the government again ordered fresh inquiries against Singh. Now the former Mumbai top cop has once again claimed that he has submitted before the CBI the transcripts showing alleged phone call conversations from the inquiry officer threatening him to withdraw his allegations against Deshmukh.

In his petition before the apex court, Singh has prayed that all the enquiries against him be transferred to another state. He has alleged that there is a threat of hosting multiple enquiries against him unless he withdraws the complaints against Deshmukh. Singh prayed for a direction to the CBI to act on his representation against the alleged threats made by the Maharashtra Government's inquiry officer.

Singh was shifted from the post of Mumbai Police Commissioner to the Home Guards department on March 17 this year.

'Girlfriend' of MLA dies by suicide

BHOPAL, MAY 17

The "girlfriend" of senior Congress MLA and former minister Umang Singhar, the tribal face of the party in Madhya Pradesh, ended life by 'suicide' in his bungalow here, police said on Monday.

Thirty nine-year-old Sonia Bhardwaj, hailing from Ambala, was found hanging from the ceiling of a room in Mr Singhar's house on Sunday.

A purported suicide note 'recovered' by the police in the room read, "Tum gusse mein bahut tez ho. Ab sahan nahin

WB Speaker slams Governor, says MLA arrests are 'illegal'

Biman points out that the Assembly Speaker's chair was not vacant

RAJIB CHOWDHURI | DC
KOLKATA, MAY 17

Breaking his silence finally, West Bengal Assembly Speaker Biman Banerjee tore into Governor Jagdeep Dhankhar on Monday for "empowering" the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) with his "sanction for prosecution" in arresting the four former Trinamul Congress ministers of the Mamata Banerjee government in the high-profile Narada sting operation case.

He denounced the arrests as "illegal." Mr Banerjee, who is also a veteran lawyer, claimed, "The Calcutta High Court, since it is hearing the case, wanted to know from the CBI whether it obtained the sanction of prosecution from the Assembly Speaker. As the CBI did not submit any reply, we, on behalf of the Assembly, apprised the high court clearly through the state advocate general that neither the CBI prayed for our sanction for prosecution nor it sent us any communication on the matter."

He alleged, "I do not know under what circumstances, the CBI went to seek the Governor's permission especially when the Assembly Speaker's chair was not vacant. I was holding the chair then. But I was surprised to see the Governor still giving his sanction to the CBI. I do not know any law which allows the Governor to act when the Speaker's office is not vacant. I also do not know his purpose to give the sanction which I think was obtained in an illegal and undemocratic way totally. The arrests are thus illegal."

The Assembly Speaker added, "Therefore, how far the approval, using which the CBI made the arrests, is lawful is very much doubtful. If such a trend is followed, no one will have any legal entity or right in the state. Only the governor will exercise his power in every case."

Meanwhile, the BJP on Monday lashed out at TMC workers over their agitations across the state, following the arrest of party leaders in the Narada sting case, and said Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee and her supporters, instead of coming in the way of CBI probe, should opt for a legal remedy.

Taking to Twitter, BJP national general secretary Kailash Vijayvargiya claimed that Banerjee was creating hurdles for the

"CM of West Bengal @MamataOys..any official who is under oath to maintain law and order in the state is sadly indulging in threatening law enforcing agencies and creating hurdles for the CBI," the BJP's Bengal minder tweeted.

"This is very unfortunate for the people of Bengal," Vijayvargiya added.

BJP state president Dilip Ghosh, too, condemned the protest by TMC activists, and said the agitation, amid the Covid-19 lockdown, only goes on to show that they have no respect for the law of the land.

"Instead of demonstrating on the streets, the party should seek a legal remedy," Ghosh stated.

Slamming TMC activists who sought to know why BJP leaders Mukul Roy and Suwendu Adhikari were spared, as their names, too, had cropped up in the case, Ghosh asserted that they had "co-operated with the agency, unlike others who have been taken into custody".

It may be recalled that the sting operation was purportedly conducted by Mathew Samuel of Narada TV news channel in 2014 wherein people resembling TMC ministers, MPs and MLAs were allegedly seen receiving money from representatives of a fictitious company in lieu of favours.

The tapes were made public just before the 2016 assembly elections in West Bengal.

Both Roy and Adhikari were TMC members when the purported tapes had surfaced.

The Calcutta High Court had ordered a CBI probe into the sting operation in March 2017.

CBI ARRESTS TWO BENGAL MINISTERS

On Monday night, the high court stayed the lower court's grant of bail to the four accused and scheduled a hearing on Wednesday, May 19, till when the four would be kept in judicial custody at Presidency Jail. TMC MP and defence counsel Kalyan Banerjee said: "This procedure is unheard of. We did not get any notice or order from the high court. I also have no idea about it except hearing that an oral submission was made." The four heavyweight accused were cabinet colleagues of Ms Banerjee when they, along with seven more TMC leaders, including many MPs, and IPS officer S.M.H. Meerza were allegedly caught accepting around Rs 5 lakhs in cash each in a sting operation by journalist Mathew Samuel ahead of the 2016 Assembly elections.

While Mr Hakim was then the municipal affairs and urban development minister, Mr Mukherjee held the panchayat portfolio. Mr Mitra was state transport minister and Mr Chatterjee was state housing minister, apart from being Kolkata's mayor.

Questioning why no CBI action was taken against two other accused in the case -- Mukul Roy and Suwendu Adhikari -- who are now in the BJP, TMC spokesperson Kunal Ghosh claimed: "Protests are spontaneous because the arrests of the four are illegal and undemocratic. The BJP is misusing the governor and CBI to fulfil its grudge of poll debacle at the hands of our party and create a situation of unrest which will push the state towards President's Rule."

Mr Samuel also wondered why Mr Adhikari, who was seen accepting cash from him, had been spared. The CPI(M) and Congress too criticised the arrests amid the Covid-19 pandemic, but BJP spokesman Sayantan Basu said: "The CBI acted according to the law."

Later, TMC MP Abhishek Banerjee tweeted: "I urge everyone to abide by the law & refrain from any activity that violates lockdown norms for the sake of the larger interest of Bengal and its people. We have utmost faith in the judiciary & the battle will be fought legally."

CoWIN portal in Hindi, other languages from next week

New Delhi, May 17: The CoWIN portal will be made available in Hindi and 14 regional languages by next week, while 17 more laboratories will be added to the INSACOG network to monitor the variants of Covid-19, the health ministry said on Monday.

According to a statement by the ministry, these decisions were announced at the 26th meeting of the high-level Group of Ministers (GoM) on Covid-19, chaired by Health Minister Harsh Vardhan, on Monday.

Four districts of Kerala under triple lockdown

Thiruvananthapuram, May 17: The boundaries of four major districts in Kerala, which report the highest number of Covid-19 cases in the state, were sealed and restrictions were further intensified on Monday as a seven-day triple lockdown announced by the state government came into force there from midnight.

Majority of sub-roads were closed and police took control of the major roads in Thiruvananthapuram, Ernakulam, Thrissur and Malappuram districts as part of efforts to arrest the massive spread of the virus infection. Only essential services people and those travelling for meeting emergency needs were allowed to move out in all the four districts. Borders were under the strict surveillance of police who could be seen returning many people while trying to travel without any valid reason in many places. They also warned of stern legal action and seizure of vehicles against those violating triple lockdown norms. In the state capital, police cut down the number of entry points to the city to just six to force people to stay safe at homes and make them avoid unnecessary travels.

Despite strict instructions, the closing of roads, however, seemed to have caused long queues of vehicles in many places waiting for the police permission to proceed further.

Thiruvananthapuram city police Commissioner, Balram Kumar Upadhyay, said 100 bike patrolling teams have been deployed here to check quarantine violations.

The public could seek the support of getting essential articles like medicine in emergency situations, he added. Meanwhile, the district authorities have issued specific guidelines for each district under the triple lockdown.

While Thiruvananthapuram, Ernakulam, Thrissur and Malappuram districts would be under triple lockdown till May 23, the current lockdown would continue in other 10 districts, authorities added. As per the norms issued by the Thiruvananthapu-ram district administration, shops dealing with food, groceries, fruits and vegetables, dairy products, meat and fish, animal fodder, poultry and cattle feed, bakeries were opened Monday. They would be open on alternate days starting from Monday onwards and all shops would close, including for home delivery purposes by 2 pm. Banks, insurance and financial services will function with minimal staff on Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 10 am to 1 pm.

Cooperative Banks will remain open only on Monday and Thursday from 10 am to 1 pm. According to the guidelines, milk and newspaper distribution shall be completed before 8 am.

Fair price shops (Ration/PDS/Maveli/Supply co shops) and milk booths are permitted to function on all days till 5 pm while restaurants and hotels will be allowed to function from 7 am to 7.30 pm with home delivery services only. No dine-in and take-away/parcels shall be allowed in any restaurants or hotels, it said. Medical shops, petrol pumps, ATMs, shops selling life-saving equipment, hospitals and other clinical establishments shall be functioning on all days.

Authorities have advised the public to buy provisions and vegetables from shops near their houses and not to travel long distances for the purchase of provisions and vegetables.

Use every tool to overcome hesitancy on tests, vaccines

The second wave of Covid-19 is wreaking havoc in rural areas as well as our big cities, unlike the first one which had mainly hit urban dwellers. Reports coming from rural India are quite depressing as everything that plagues Indian villages plays a role in frustrating the attempts by health workers and local government representatives in getting people tested for the deadly virus. The people who live there have very little access to authentic information on what is happening all around them; they trust the quack more than the qualified physician; they are comfortable with him and his magic potions and home remedies much more than with evidence-based medicine and its elaborate protocols; they have very little health infrastructure to depend on; they fear the ways of officialdom — once their names appear on governmental records, they are done, they fear. So, they assume that if they test positive, they will be forcibly moved to government facilities, from which they are not sure when or if they will ever return. What will happen to their jobs, and who will take care of the rest of their family — these are the big questions on their minds. Why take risk when the quack can more than cure them?

There is very little point in blaming the villagers; there are urbanites who continue to believe that hot water, when gulped, will kill the virus on its way to the intestine. A pinch of turmeric powder mixed with milk is another panacea and the virus' nemesis, WhatsApp messages will tell you, and many people still believe it. There are those who earnestly believe that they can build immunity overnight and resist the onslaught of the microorganism; there are immunity boosters available in the market too. Vaccination is a waste, some of them feel, we would rather contract the disease and let the body manufacture its own antibodies, they would argue.

This is an area where the government must, and only the government can, intervene and set the record right. This message must pass down to every citizen that untested patients make themselves vulnerable, and that they will spread the infection among their near and dear ones if they delay getting tested or in getting vaccinated. The government needs to make sure that no one loses his/her job or is harassed at their workplace for undergoing the test or even for contracting the infection. It must be driven home that home remedies are okay as long as people follow the physician's advice. They must be told upfront that we as a nation do not have the infrastructure that can take care of everyone who falls sick, and that they risk losing their lives if they don't follow the scientific ways of keeping the virus at bay. The government must put every tool at its command and in the collective armoury of our society to defeat the virus. There is an urgent need to launch an information blitzkrieg on the pandemic aiming at emboldening the people to go in for testing and vaccination at the earliest. Every societal asset, be it governmental, media, religious, cultural, tribal, social or otherwise, must be tasked with taking the message to every home and get people out for testing and vaccination. Better be late than never.

Stop targeting critical voices

Are we intent on proving right the wag who said that we are a democracy until we begin to criticise Prime Minister Narendra Modi? In the national capital a rash of ordinary-looking posters appeared asking the PM: "Why did you send vaccines abroad, denying our own people?" The Delhi police, which comes under the Union home ministry, swung into action and rounded up a clutch of poor souls who make their living from climbing on poles to stick posters on rectangular frames, carpenters, three-wheeler auto drivers and cycle-rickshaw pullers.

It is possible to be supportive of India's vaccine diplomacy, and yet note that the police action in this case is a distinct mark of intolerance by the government of those who dare to ask the PM a question which is increasingly coming to the fore.

In hindsight, it appears that if the Modi government was alert to science and followed expert advice, it would not have prematurely declared victory over the Covid-19 pandemic and wound up the temporary facilities set up to treat millions of patients hit by the virus. If expert recommendations were heeded, it would have been realised by policymakers that India not only lacked oxygen, hospital beds and critical medicines, but also vaccines since advance bookings from manufacturers against payments hadn't been made.

Ergo, the rollout of vaccine diplomacy was premature. Today it seems more and more to have been a propaganda ploy to bring out the feel-good factor at home while earning goodwill abroad. In short, it was a political move, pure and simple, which left India defenceless. Its consequences are strewn everywhere for all to see and condemn. No wonder, there is talk now of ramping up the infrastructure of crematoriums, not just medical facilities.

If vaccine diplomacy has led to painful results, then the question posed in the poster must be answered by those in authority. Locking up those behind the poster, or wag fingers at Opposition leaders asking questions, besmirch the country even more. It must stop.

The so-called "positivity" and "constructive" approach by the government and its apologists appears cynical. If questions aren't raised, and we meekly submit to what we get as the natural law, God help our democracy, which is founded on the basic principle of accountable governance.

Positivity effect: Govt has to do things differently

Shashidhar Nanjundaiah

Confronted with an unprecedented international media focus and global criticism from several governments as well as global health experts, state governments, analysts, reputed medical journals, and the international and national media, the Central government and the ruling party's parent organisation, the RSS, have jointly begun a "positivity drive", in effect weaving a positive bias narrative both for itself and for the people at large. While one has the potential of a soothing impact on the audience, the other seeks to be politically self-serving. So have we indeed been communicating negativity in a crisis? Or have the Central government and the BJP been seeing it all wrong?

Earlier, in his monthly "Mann ki Baat" radio address, Prime Minister Narendra Modi said a powerful positivity message needs to go out. Soon afterwards, the Covid Response Team chipped in with a five-day lecture series called "Positivity Unlimited", starting May 11. The stated intent was to instil confidence in a society struck by hopelessness and despair. Speakers included spiritual leaders, artistes, writers, philanthropists and RSS leaders. Meanwhile, the BJP machinery was hard at work with characteristic gusto, producing and reproducing messages of how hard Mr Modi and the government machinery were working. On May 12, health minister Harsh Vardhan's address repeatedly included "santoshjanak baat hai, yeh khushi ki baat hai" (it is a matter of delight) and other positive connectors to the vaccination drives. The government's obsession with image management could fall on deaf ears as even its own ambassadors are finding it increasingly hard to put a positive spin. Positivity sounds a good thing. But has the government given positive developments to be articulated about? Given the overwhelming amount of heart-rending news, and news of the government's repeated attempts to thwart social media criticism, a positive perception is hard to justify.

Inconvenient truths

Rahul Gandhi has reacted to the positivity drive, calling it a "false assurance". The Congress has said positivity won't help people to breathe. Earlier, former Prime Minister Manmohan Singh wrote to Prime Minister Modi, listing five specific points on which the government could work. Rahul Gandhi, Mamata Banerjee, Arvind Kejriwal, Uddhav Thackeray and other leaders regularly tweet or talk critically of the government's handling. Expert after expert in television debates has been critiquing the government's handling of the situation. The media, which has finally reached the villages, routinely interviews ordinary citizens from a cross-section, most of whom place the blame on the government for the dire situation. All this has systematically been ridiculed by various ministers at the Centre, but in fact responsible criticism in general is also accompanied by recommendations, roadmaps and suggestions. In response, BJP chief J.P. Nadda shot off a strong repartee, telling Mrs Sonia Gandhi that she has been misleading people with negative messages. In his response to the former PM, the health minister's letter ridiculed the Congress.

To their credit, Mr Modi and others in the government have often tackled criticism with facts and numbers. To continued complaints from state governments about the acute shortage of oxygen, the government has been claiming the nation does not have a shortage — the bottleneck lies in logistics. More recently, Mr Modi pointed out that the supply of oxygen was now more than three times of what it was during the peak of the first wave of the Covid-19 pandemic. In September 2020, the number of infections stood at less than one lakh a day. This time, that number is in excess of four lakhs. According to the ICMR, while 41.5 per cent patients required oxygen last year, that figure for second wave patients is 54.5 per cent. So Mr Modi's statement is a fair identification of where the problem lies, but does not provide any solution. The government is, after all, responsible for logistics management too.

Unacceptable interpretation

Positivity studies indicate that based on their belief system, people with a positivity bias will tend to hold positive views, report positively using those views, and filter in positive information. One way that organisations and governments seek to achieve popularity is through positivity effect, nudging people to see a situation positively when the desired results aren't achieved, and obtaining a positive feedback. Positivity bias can shroud reality and create false euphoria, which dangerous in a pandemic situation.

Rather than viewing criticism negatively, this criticism-averse government can also help transform public perceptions by responding more positively. For example, a recent newspaper editorial pointed out that in contrast to last year's total lockdown, which had devastating impacts on the economy, this year's lockdown in several states had struck a balance between the management of health and economic activity. This should be relatively good news. But if the Centre reacts to it as a criticism of its decisions, it will be seen as protecting its narrow political image-mongering interests, not the larger national interest.

Similarly, it is unfair to expect the media to run only positive stories. This government already enjoys the backing of a largely pliant media: it is well-documented that a significant section of the Indian media over the past seven years has held a pro-government bias. Television channels are often eager to politicise issues. For example, on May 12, leaders of 12 Opposition parties wrote to the Prime Minister demanding immediate action, funds for oxygen and free vaccination. Some TV news channels were quick to focus on which Opposition parties had not signed that petition. When BJP MP Tejasvi Surya purportedly made a surprise visit to an agency running a hospital bed allotment scam in Bengaluru, it was initially well-received by the media — until a video surfaced which revealed he and his colleagues had turned it into a communally objectionable exercise. With all its failings, we can expect legitimate media platforms and fair-minded people to compulsively turn to a fairness-for-all approach.

Positivity studies on communications patterns show that people use more positive than negative language, both written and spoken. Given that, the government's expectation of what constitutes acceptable criticism is either unclear or unrealistic. Indeed, it is the government's interpretation of criticism that is negative. Well-meaning critiques should lend themselves to the positive inference that there is scope for improvement in implementing decisions, not as an indicator of an existential crisis. Above all, tackle the reality — and the perception and its articulation will take care of itself

REMDESIVIR SCARCITY

The antiviral drug Remdesivir has become a scarce commodity in view of the ferocity of the pandemic spread. Only those above 45 are given vaccine shots now and the roll-out for 18+ is yet to start. At this point in time there is a mad rush for Remdesivir. It was said that the Goodas Act will be framed against those hoarding the medicine. But things did not change. The drug continues to be sold in the black market for a premium. The state government decided to make available the drug through private hospitals. Gullible people are already being fleeced by the private medical facilities. We had to pay a higher price there for this injection too. The State government must cap the price for the sale of this drug and save the people from being charged more.

NEED NORMALITY

No dramatic event in recent history has affected us as profoundly and pervasively as Covid-19. It has turned the entire world topsy-turvy, thrown daily life out of gear, wreaked havoc on everyone's plans and left serious scars on financial markets and the economy the world over. The pandemic has affected our psyche in three ways: It has influenced how we think, how we relate to others, and what we value. There are many questions like how long will this pandemic last, what about our work and income, and most importantly, still how many more are going to die. The combination of incertitude and danger is a recipe for severe angst. The invisible enemy has put our freedom on hold and our conventional routines tossed aside in favour of social distancing. However, when normality eventually returns, people will naturally want to spend as much time as possible in physical contact with family, friends and loved ones.

REPEAL SEC.124 A

Apologies report, FIR against 17 for poster against PM. PM should be respected but when a few lose their kith and kin because they have been deprived of the vaccine, they become agitated and may criticise out of agony and sorrow. Even so, they should not have pasted wall posters demeaning PM's stature. They were fortunately not booked under 124 A as a YSRCP MP was hauled up in AP for lambasting his own CM. In fact the Cr. PC Sec.124 A became a bane of the public who criticise the powers that be and turned a boon for politicians. Mahatma Gandhi had said, 'Sec. 124 A is the relic of colonialism and should be repealed' and Pandit Nehru - 'it is obnoxious, the earlier it is removed the better for our democratic polity'. Yet successive governments have retained it and use it against their critics branding them as anti-nationals or conspirators who are destabilising their elected governments. PM Modi, who is large-hearted with a 56-inch chest, should allow criticism for the sake of betterment and repeal the noxious Sec.124 A.

Govt needed to have 'grip' over Covid: That is what PM lacks

He is a famous name in the history of warfare, but Field Marshal Bernard Law Montgomery does not have many battlefield victories to his name. In fact, his most famous engagement, called Operation Market Garden (after which the Hollywood movie A Bridge Too Far was made), was a disaster. But historians agree that Montgomery had something that all generals should have, and this is "grip". This is the faculty of being aware of the situation, being knowledgeable about what resources are at hand and what may be required in the future and being conscious of what events to anticipate.

These are not qualities which we associate with our Prime Minister. His interest is not in the details but in the broad scheme. In a famous interview just before the 2014 general election he said to the journalist Madhu Kishwar: "Even today if my officers show me some paper, I say: 'Tell me what's in it in two minutes. For me, two minutes is sufficient for a 10-page document. This skill is something I have developed.'"

But while he has no interest in the details, his preference is not to stand aloof from on-ground operations but to insert himself through the bold and imaginative stroke. For instance, the BBC reported at the end of March this year that before the lockdown last year not a single ministry was consulted about the consequences.

The BBC filed 240 right to information applications with various Indian government departments — health, finance, disaster management — to find out if and how much they were consulted ahead of the lockdown.

The responses revealed that no experts or government departments were consulted. The government refused to give the BBC a statement explaining why the concerned departments were not consulted ahead of time. A second example of the Prime Minister's style of functioning is the famous demonetisation exercise of November 2016. Here also only a handful of people knew that this was about to happen. As a parliamentary democracy, India follows the principle of collective responsibility. But even the Union Cabinet was not told till the day of the demonetisation — Tuesday, November 8, that India's ₹1,000 and ₹500 notes — 86 per cent of all currency by value — would be wiped out that evening. The government was not only unprepared for Prime Minister Modi's move; it was deliberately kept hidden from the government.

My point is not to say that this style is good or bad or whether it has advantages or disadvantages. The evidence is clear, and there is no point in discussing that here. The point is to examine whether it works in situations such as the one we find ourselves in. The problem of the Covid-19 pandemic cannot be approached through the single brilliant stroke. It needs the State to be aware of the situation, be knowledgeable about what resources are at hand and what may be required in future and being conscious of what events to anticipate. In a centralised system, where decision making is often the purview of a few people and sometimes that only of one man, this may be harder to do as we are now discovering.

The official position of our government in response to a shortage of vaccines and a shortage of oxygen and of ventilators is that nobody could have anticipated this. But the fact is that the rest of the world anticipated it. What we are receiving today as aid is not new material manufactured yesterday around the world. It is the surplus that was produced by many nations which had anticipated the crisis we are going through today. They dealt with it because of their preparedness and that is the reason this material became surplus. No nation keeps useless stocks of expensive things lying around in case India will urgently need them. The reason we don't have enough vaccines is that we did not order them at the right time because we didn't think we needed them. As the Prime Minister said to the World Economic Forum in late January: "India is among those countries which have succeeded in saving the lives of the maximum number of its citizens and the number of people infected with corona is rapidly decreasing." He added that "it would not be advisable to judge India's success with that of another country. In a country which is home to 18 per cent of the world population, that country has saved humanity from a big disaster by containing corona effectively".

We had decided based on the evidence we saw that India was unique and had overcome Covid-19. Other nations thought of the issue as a longer problem, and not limited to the first wave. They ordered the vaccines on time and received them. They let their scientists determine whether the battle against the pandemic was won instead of a divinely inspired leadership. Once the science revealed that only precaution, healthcare preparations and vaccination could stop the pandemic, that is where their execution capacities were deployed.

The question is why we did not anticipate a second wave or a wave of such destructive power. The answer is that if the leadership must take full control over situations, then it must have grip rather than genius strokes. There may theoretically be times when the latter style is advantageous, but this era is not among them.

FPIs net sellers by ₹2,256 crore Market cheers drop in daily Covid cases

RAVI RANJAN PRASAD MUMBAI, MAY 17

A sharp drop in daily Covid infections to below 3 lakh cases triggered broad-based rally in the market, with investors expecting a return to normalcy sooner than expected before.

The Sensex gained 848 points, or 1.74 per cent, and closed at 49,580 after a bullish start on the first day of a new week. BSE Mid-cap and Small-cap indices also gained over 1.6 per cent each.

The market capitalisation of all stocks traded on the BSE touched a new all time high of Rs 213.64 lakh crore as investors wealth soared by over Rs 3 lakh crore.

The Nifty-50 index too gained 245 points to close at 14,923.15.

The market seems poised to regain earlier highs with NSE's India VIX Index, indicator of market volatility, fell 3.27 per cent from 20.26 to the 19.60 levels. India VIX is at the lowest levels of 2021, as it recorded the lowest close of last 87 trading sessions since January 1, said analysts.

"The Nifty rebounded sharply as domestic coronavirus cases fell below the 3-lakh mark for the first time since mid-April. Extended lockdowns by majority states has helped in curbing the cases. Sentiments turned buoyant that soon restrictions/curbs would be eased once cases decline

Domestic institutions were net buyers of equities worth Rs 1,948.48 crore while foreign portfolio investors preferred to book profit and were net sellers of equities worth Rs 2,255.84 crore, as per the provisional data.

"Global cues were weak on the back of poor Chinese retail sales data and resurgence of Covid cases in some Asian countries. Gold scaled to three-month high as global inflation pressure rises," said Khemka.

Bank stocks led the rally on the bourses as the BSE Bankex closed 3.98 per cent up followed by Auto (1.90 per cent), Metal (1.93

Barring telecom, all other sectoral indices closed in the green. The market expects the indices to regain earlier highs with financials leading the gainers list.

"It looks like we are going to head higher from heron; because the authenticity of any move is measured by the quality of participation in it and today the banking space led from the front by giving a humongous intraday rally. Vaccine costs to strain already creaking state budgets

ANIRBAN NAG & VRISHTI BENIWAL MAY 17

The world's worst coronavirus outbreak is set to stretch the already strained budgets of Indian states, making it more costly to borrow just when they need the money to cushion their economies.

The country's 28 states will have to foot about $5 billion or more in vaccination costs after Prime Minister Narendra Modi's federal government suddenly made them responsible for inoculating most adults from May 1. Since they hadn't budgeted for the jobs or steps to tackle a second wave, their options to meet the additional expense are limited to cutting capital expenditures, selling public assets and boosting borrowing.

A simple calculation shows it will cost states Rs 35,400 crore ($4.8 billion) to give two vaccine shots to about 590 million Indians in the 18-to-44 age group, at a combined cost of Rs 600 per person. If vaccinations are extended to those under 18 years old, the expense could rise to 0.25 per cent of gross domestic product, or about $7 billion, according to Emkay Global Financial Services Ltd economist Madhavi Arora.

The additional burden couldn't have come at a worse time for states, which are facing higher yields on market borrowings this year amid the threat of widening fiscal deficits.

Failure by India's states

We will cut back on a bunch of spending that we don't think is essential during this time. We will try to raise new sources of funds. We will try to do some restructuring of the debt. We will look at asset sales" to raise and spend enough money risks holding back the recovery from a rare recession last year. That's because states account for 60 per cent of total government spending on asset creation and infrastructure building, which drive jobs creation and consumption.

— Palanivel Thiagarajan, Ffinance minister, Tamil Nadu

In addition, states are having difficulty attracting foreign investors despite paying yields that are typically higher than those on federal government debt. Global funds have used only 1.2 per cent of the Rs 67,600 crore investment limit available to them in notes issued by states as of May 10, down from 4.8 per cent two years ago, data from the Clearing Corp. of India Ltd show.

"Finances are bound to be affected," said T. S. Singh Deo, health and commercial tax minister of Chhattisgarh. "The axe will certainly fall on capital expenditure."

Modi's government has encouraged states to sell assets to fund spending plans in the current year. That's one way to bring down the debt burden, said Palanivel Thiagarajan, an ex-Wall Street banker and newly appointed finance minister of Tamil Nadu.

"Everything is on the table," he said. "We will cut back on a bunch of spending that we don't think is essential during this time. We will try to raise new sources of funds. We will try to do some restructuring of the debt. We will look at asset sales."

The pandemic has changed states' budgets significantly. The average gross deficit for states that presented their budgets before Covid was 2.4 per cent of output, while after the lockdown it stood at 4.6 per cent in the year ended in March, the Reserve Bank said.

Uttar Pradesh, India's most populous state, saw the gap widen to 4.17 per cent of the state's GDP in the year ended March 31, compared to the prescribed limit of 3 per cent. Bihar, among the nation's most impoverished states, estimated the gap at almost 7 per cent.

They may miss their goal of narrowing the budget gap this year. Although there's no national lockdown this time to stem the deadly second wave of the pandemic, several states have imposed local movement curbs that are hurting economic activity and revenue collection. That's nudging many economists to cut their double-digit growth forecasts for the current fiscal year.

There's "renewed uncertainty regarding the near-term economic outlook," said economists led by Aditi Nayar at Icaia Ltd. That "may modestly constrain the indirect tax collections of those particular states."

To bridge the gap, Rajasthan is planning to sell or lease out unused properties. Telangana is planning to sell land parcels to raise about Rs 14,500 crore, according to local media reports.

Still, there's no guarantee these deals will come through. Even the federal government has failed to achieve divestment targets for the past two years after failing to sell flag carrier Air India Ltd and Bharat Petroleum Corp, a state-owned oil refiner. Those sales have been carried forward to the current year.

Punjab plans to cut capital spending to boost health care expenditure, its finance minister Manpreet Singh Badal said. "States have to fend for themselves," he said. "Even though we increased our health budget by 18 per cent this year, I see my health budget going up further."

SHORT TAKES TUNISIA TROOPS KILL 5 SUSPECTED JIHADISTS

Tunis, May 17: Tunisian forces on Monday killed five suspected jihadists in an air and ground operation targeting a rugged mountain hideout of Islamist fighters, the interior ministry said.

The operation launched at dawn was still underway, the ministry said in a statement, adding authorities were working to verify the nationalities and affiliation of the "five terrorists" killed. The operation targeted a jihadist base on Mount Chaambi, near the border with Algeria.

Tunisia has seen a surge in radical Islam since veteran president Zine El Abidine Ben Ali was ousted in the country's 2011 revolution.

The army has been battling armed groups since 2012 in the country's central mountains.

They include fighters from Jund al-Khalifa, or "Soldiers of the Caliphate", linked to the Islamic State group.

SYNAGOGUE BLEACHER COLLAPSE: 2 DIE

Jerusalem, May 17: Israeli medics said at least two people were killed and more than 150 injured after a bleacher collapsed at an uncompleted West Bank synagogue on Sunday, the eve of a major Jewish holiday. The bleacher was packed with ultra-Orthodox worshippers and collapsed during prayers at the beginning of Shavuot. A spokesman for Magen David Adom told Channel 13 that paramedics had treated over 157 people for injuries and pronounced two dead, a man in his 50s and a 12-year-old boy.

Rescue workers were on the scene, treating the injured and taking people to the hospital.

The collapse comes weeks after 45 ultra-Orthodox Jews were killed in a stampede at a religious festival in northern Israel.

Amateur footage showed the collapse Sunday during evening prayers in Givat Ze'ev, just outside Jerusalem.

The ultra-Orthodox synagogue was packed with hundreds of people.

Israel: Gaza tunnels destroyed in strikes

The UN warns Gaza's sole power station is at risk of running out of fuel because of continued aggression

Gaza City, May 17: The Israeli military unleashed a wave of heavy airstrikes on the Gaza Strip early Monday, saying it destroyed 15 kilometres (nine miles) of militant tunnels and the homes of nine alleged Hamas commanders. Residents of Gaza awakened by the overnight barrage described it as the heaviest since the war began a week ago, and even more powerful than a wave of airstrikes in Gaza City the day before that left 42 dead and flattened three buildings. There was no immediate word on the casualties from the latest strikes. A three-storey building in Gaza City was heavily damaged, but residents said the military warned them 10 minutes before the strike and everyone cleared out.

They said many of the airstrikes hit nearby farmland. Gaza's mayor Yahya Sarraj told Al-Jazeera TV that the airstrikes had caused extensive damage to roads and other infrastructure. "If the aggression continues we expect conditions to become worse," he said. He also warned that the territory was running low on fuel and other spare parts. The UN has warned that Gaza's sole power station is at risk of running out of fuel. The territory already experiences daily power outages of 8-12 hours and tap water is undrinkable.

Cricket club saves Indian researchers

Beersheba (Israel), May 17: A cricket club in the southern Israeli city of Beersheba has come to the rescue of several Indian researchers at the Ben-Gurion University in the Negev southern region, who had been struggling for a proper shelter while being under a complete siege with rockets raining over the country's south during the past one week. The Beersheba Cricket Club building, a two-storey structure close to the University, which is actually a shelter house with an underground floor, opened its door for the local residents immediately after rockets launched by Palestinian militants started to fall on Israel's southern areas and also extended the kind gesture to Indian researchers at the University who were looking for proper protection during distressed times.

US asks Israel for proof of Gaza media building strike

Copenhagen, May 17: US Secretary of State Antony Blinken said Monday he has asked Israel for any evidence of Hamas operating in a Gaza building housing news bureaus that was destroyed by an Israeli airstrike over the weekend, but hasn't seen any. Blinken spoke at a news conference in Copenhagen, Denmark, as pressure is increasing on the Biden administration to ask for a ceasefire in the Israeli-Palestinian conflict.

Israel destroyed a building housing The Associated Press and Al Jazeera claimed that Hamas used the building for a military intelligence office. Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu has called the building a "perfectly legitimate target" and told CBS' "Face the Nation" on Sunday that Israel passes such evidence through intelligence channels.

"Shortly after the strike we did request additional details regarding the justification for it," Blinken said Monday.

He declined to discuss specific intelligence, saying he "will leave it to others to characterise if any information has been shared and our assessment that information." But he said, "I have not seen any information provided." Blinken's comments came after UN Security Council diplomats and Muslim foreign ministers convened emergency weekend meetings to demand a stop to civilian bloodshed as Israeli warplanes carried out the deadliest single attacks in nearly a week of Hamas rocket barrages and Israeli airstrikes.

President Joe Biden gave no signs of stepping up public pressure on Israel to agree to an immediate cease-fire despite calls from some Democrats for the Biden administration to get more involved.

Anti-Semitic slur: London increases police presence

London, May 17: More police will be deployed to the streets of Jewish areas in London, mayor Sadiq Khan said on Monday, after four people were arrested for allegedly shouting anti-Semitic abuse and threats during a pro-Palestinian protest. "There are a number of things we are doing to reassure Londoners, particularly those from Jewish communities," Khan told ITV, as he announced an "increased police presence". Officers investigating a video circulating on social media, which appeared to show anti-Semitic abuse being shouted from a car in north London on Sunday, made four arrests.

The car was travelling in a convoy of vehicles decorated with Palestinian flags, one of several protests held across Britain over the weekend in response the worst violence in years between Israel and Palestinian militants.

The men were detained on suspicion of racially aggravated public order offences.

"This behaviour was utterly shocking and will not be tolerated," said Superintendent Jo Edwards.

BACK ISRAEL CURBS, TURKEY URGES POPE

Ankara, May 17: Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan has asked Pope Francis to support sanctions against Israel, saying Palestinians will continue to be "massacred" as long as the international community does not punish Israel. During a telephone telephone call Monday with the Pope, he also said that "continued messages and reactions" from Francis in support of Palestinians would be of great importance for the "mobilisation of the Christian world and of the international community," said a statement from the Turkish presidential communications directorate.

AMID CLASH, ISRAEL BATS FOR TOURISM

Dubai, May 17: As violence flares within Israel and on a day in which Israeli airstrikes on Gaza City killed at least 42 people, it was business as usual for a senior Israeli tourism official in Dubai as she promoted the country as a must-see destination for Muslim visitors.

At Dubai's Arabian Travel Market on Sunday, billed as the first travel and tourism event to happen in person since the global coronavirus outbreak, a small Israeli booth — tucked behind Slovenia's — marketed the country as the "Land of Creation."

Honda's Espargaro comes home 8th

Le Mans (France): Repsol Honda's Pol Espargaro encountered all conditions, while Marc Marquez returned to leading a Grand Prix but was ultimately left disappointed at the French MotoGP on Sunday. Australian rider Jack Miller of Ducati made a great start to overtake pole-sitter Fabio Quartararo and then held him off to win the race. Honda's Marquez who started sixth didn't finish the race, while Espargaro held on to his starting position of eighth. It was a dramatic first lap for Espargaro who threw himself into the heat of battle alongside Marquez and Takaaki Nakagami after a strong launch. Contact with Franco Morbidelli forced the Honda rider to drop back and out of the top five. Alex Marquez took top Honda honours for the LCR Honda Team in sixth.

ICC says fixing allegations 'implausible', concludes investigation

Dubai, May 17: The ICC on Monday dismissed claims made by news channel Al Jazeera that India's Test matches against England (2016) and Australia (2017) were fixed, saying the passages of play identified as fixed were entirely predictable, and therefore "implausible as a fix". Al Jazeera in a documentary — 'Cricket's Match Fixers' — released in 2018 had claimed that India's game against England in Chennai in 2016 and the one against Australia in 2017 in Ranchi were fixed. The International Cricket Council (ICC) also cleared five people — filmed by the channel — of any wrongdoing saying even as they behaved in a questionable manner but no credible evidence was available to charge them.

During the programme, an alleged bookie Aneel Munnawar was seen making claims about his dubious connections and history of fixing matches including two Tests involving Virat Kohli's Indian team.

The ICC had launched an investigation into the claims. "The programme alleged that two matches were fixed: India v England in Chennai in 2016 and India v Australia in Ranchi in 2017. To assess whether the passages of play highlighted in the programme were unusual in any way, the ICC engaged four independent betting and cricketing specialists to analyse the claims," the ICC said in a release after it concluded its investigation.

"All four concluded that the passages of play identified in the programme as being allegedly fixed were entirely predictable, and therefore implausible as a fix," the release added.

"No charges will be brought under the ICC Anti-Corruption Code," the ICC said. — PTI

'Sandpapergate' to be reopened

Melbourne, May 17: As Cricket Australia (CA) on Monday made it clear that it was open to a re-investigation into the 'Sandpapergate', former captain Michael Clarke said he won't be surprised if it comes to light that more players were aware of the ball-tampering plot in 2018. He also accused CA of sweeping the issue under the carpet.

"If you are playing sport at the highest level you know your tools that good it's not funny. Can you imagine that ball being thrown back to the bowler and the bowler not knowing about it? Please," Clarke told Sky Sports radio on Monday.

"I love how the articles in the paper are. It is such a big surprise that Cameron Bancroft has made a ... Actually, if you read his quotes, it is not what he did say as what he didn't say in regards to other people knowing about 'sandpapergate'," he said.

Following Bancroft's interview, Cricket Australia's integrity team has already approached the pacer for more information.

"What's the surprise? That more than three people knew? I don't think anybody who has played the game of cricket, or knows a little bit about cricket, would know that in a team like that, at the highest level, when the ball is such an important part of the game," Clarke said.

"That's why there's going to be finger-pointing until someone writes their book and tells the complete, honest truth."

Adam Gilchrist said CA did not carry out a thorough investigation into the 'sandpapergate' by refusing to go deeper into the problem. Gilchrist said CA, in the course of the whole episode, missed out on an opportunity to make a strong statement.

"There was an opportunity for CA if they were going to make such a strong statement they needed to do a more thorough investigation to work out where the root of the problem was," Gilchrist was quoted as saying on SEN Radio. — PTI

DORTMUND, WOLFSBURG BOOK BERTHS

Berlin, May 17: Borussia Dortmund and Wolfsburg clinched Champions League qualification, while Hamburger SV's hopes of rejoining the Bundesliga were put on hold for another year.

Dortmund won 3-1 at Mainz and Wolfsburg drew 2-2 at Leipzig to ensure both sides will finish among the top four to qualify for Europe's top club competition. Leipzig, who secured second place behind league champion Bayern Munich, were already assured of playing in the Champions League next season. Leipzig looked tired in their first game after losing the German Cup final to Dortmund on Thursday, but fought back with goals from Justin Kluijvert and a penalty from Sabitzer. — AP

GOD PUT HIS HAND ON MY HEAD: BECKER

London, May 17: Liverpool kept alive their dreams of qualifying for the Champions League in remarkable circumstances as goalkeeper Alisson scored a 95th-minute winner at West Bromwich Albion.

The emotional Brazilian, who lost his father in a drowning accident in February, dedicated the first goal of his senior career — a fine, glancing header — to his family as he said: "God put his hand on my head today".

Nadal the king of Rome, again

Rome, May 17: Rafael Nadal defeated world number one Novak Djokovic to win a 10th Italian Open title on Sunday.

Second seed Nadal won through 7-5, 1-6, 6-3 in 2hr 49min against the defending champion to match Djokovic's record of 36 Masters 1000 titles and lay down a key marker two weeks out from the defence of his Roland Garros crown.

"I really wanted this title. This had been one of the first important titles I won in my career. I'd won 10 in Monte Carlo, Barcelona and Roland Garros and really wanted this one too," said 34-year-old Nadal.

Djokovic and Nadal were facing each other for the 57th time, having last played in the 2020 French Open final which the Spaniard won easily in straight sets.

The pair have won 15 of the last 17 Rome titles between them, while Nadal leads their head-to-head in finals in the Italian capital 4-2.

Despite losing his opening service game Nadal broke back in the third game hitting twice as many winners as the Serb with 21 in the set.

A dip in form in the second set allowed Djokovic, 33, to break twice and get back into the game.

But Nadal got back on track in the third with Djokovic having played nearly five hours on court on Saturday between his rain-delayed quarter-finals and semi-final matches.

The Spaniard saved two break points on his serve in the fifth game and broke for love for 4-2.

Djokovic saved a first match point in the eighth game but Nadal made no mistake on his second chance in the following to seal his 88th career title after winning in Barcelona earlier this month.

OVER 80 PER CENT IN JAPAN OPPOSE OLYMPICS THIS YEAR

Tokyo, May 17: More than 80 per cent of Japanese polled oppose hosting the virus-postponed Olympics this year, a new survey showed on Monday, underlining public antipathy less than 10 weeks before the Tokyo Games.

The latest downbeat poll comes after Japan expanded a coronavirus state of emergency Friday as the nation battles a fourth wave of infections.

The surge in cases has put pressure on the country's healthcare system, with medical professionals repeatedly warning about shortages and burnout.

The weekend poll by the Asahi Shimbun daily found 43 per cent of respondents want the 2020 Games cancelled, with 40 per cent wanting a further postponement. Those figures are up from the 35 per cent who backed cancellation in a survey by the paper a month ago and the 34 per cent who wanted a further delay.

"I am one of those in the 80 per cent. I think the Olympics should be postponed. Is it that difficult to postpone it?" passer-by Sumiko Usui, 74, said. — AFP

Azhar bats for ousted Raman

New Delhi, May 17: Former India captain Mohammad Azharuddin on Sunday threw his weight behind WV Raman, saying there are very few sharper brains around in cricket than the recently-removed women's national team coach.

In a surprising move last week, former spinner Ramesh Powar replaced Raman as the Indian women's cricket team's head coach.

While the move surprised many, Azharuddin too fully backed his former India teammate Raman, who has represented the country under the stylish Hyderabad's captaincy.
