Nivar passes over, leaves 1 lakh people in shelters

DC CORRESPONDENT
CHENNAI, NOV. 25

Torrential rains accompanied by gusty winds lashed several parts of Tamil Nadu and Puducherry on Wednesday, inundating many localities while over one lakh people were moved to shelters as Cyclone 'Nivar' intensified into a very severe cyclonic storm and made the landfall with the eye of the storm passing over Marakkaanm in the state close to Puducherry by about 11 pm.

The storm formed over southwest Bay of Bengal moved west northwards, intensified into a very severe cyclonic storm and lay about 160 km off Chennai and 85 km from Puducherry, the India Meteorological Department said. It was to cross the coast between Karaikal in Puducherry and Mamallapuram, about 60 km from here, with a wind speed of 120-130 kmph gusting to 145 kmph.

Ministers were camping in the districts to oversee relief operations and fishermen had been advised not to venture into the sea, he said.

Flood warnings had been issued to people living on the banks of Adyar river, 12 villages in Chengalpattu district and eight in Kanchipuram district due to the opening of the Chembarambakkam lake.

localities where people complained of snakes and venomous insects entering the houses. They were evacuated and lodged in relief camps by the authorities.

Also smaller lakes in places like Nandivaram, Mannivakkam, Manimangalam, Urupakkam and Guduvancherry also filled up due to the copious rains and water was released through the outlet canals.

Vignettes of the havoc wreaked by the continuous downpour in various parts of the city bombarded the people through social posts and WhatsApp forwards, increasing the fear of the rains. Intermittent power cuts too added to collective fear.

Some videos of heavy water logging in front of Olympia Tech Park or the winds bringing down the roof Dargah Hazrath Syed Moosa Sha Khaderi, the popular dargah on Anna Salai or the Parrys' Corner area going under a thick sheet of water, disrupting smooth flow of traffic were some of the images that created more panic to the people.

Unabated heavy rains, flooded roads and marooned neighbourhoods disrupted normal life in Chennai, keeping the people on tenterhooks all through Wednesday even as the authorities opened the gates of Chembarambakkam reservoir opened for the first time in five years as a precautionary measure. After its storage was just 20 per cent short of its capacity due to heavy rains ahead of an incoming cyclone, water release to the Adayar river that commenced with 1,000 cusecs was increased gradually, officials said. Another 2000 cusecs had also been released in the Adyar river, taking the total flow in the river to 6000 cusecs.

There was no need for the public to panic as Adyar river could hold 60,000 cusecs of water, Chief Minister Chief Minister Edappadi K. Palaniswami said. He inspected the Chembarambakkam reservoir before opening the sluices. About 200 camps have been established in the 200 wards in Chennai, he said.

In Chennai city, areas such as Egmore, Kilpauk, Vepery, Choolai, Chennai Central, Vadapalani, Choolaimedu, Velachery, Adyar, Adambakkam, Kotturpuram, Chitlapakkam and parts of Tambaram experienced water logging in arterial roads.

Normal life hit in flooded Chennai

CHENNAI, NOV. 25

After Cyclone Nivar intensified with heavy rain on Wednesday, the Greater Chennai Corporation (GCC) authorities shifted as many as 1,200 people to 25 relief camps as of 5 pm.

Incessant rainfall occurred throughout the day inundating all low-lying areas in the coastal areas in the city, derailing normal life. "150 more relief centres readied. The zones including 11, 12, 13 and 14 continue to be under watch," said Meghanath Reddy, deputy collector, GCC.

The rescue teams were on high alert after the shutters of Chembarambakkam reservoir were opened on Wednesday noon as a cautionary measure to prevent inundation, particularly on the upstream stretches. The public works department has announced that it will release 1,000 cusecs of water from the reservoir.

Following this, the GCC authorities asked people living near the banks of Adyar river especially in low-lying areas such as Kanu Nagar, Choolaipallam, Thideer Nagar, Amman Nagar, Burma Colony, Jafferkhanpet, Kotturpuram, and Chitra Nagar to move to the nearby relief camps.

A resident near Srinivasapuram said many people in the area went to the relief camps. The sea continues to be rough. What remains to be seen is whether boats would be swept away by high tides during the landfall of cyclone," said Kennit Raj, a local fisherman.

Chembarambakkam and the ghost of 2015

G. BABU JAYAKUMAR | DC
CHENNAI, NOV 25

Shivers went down the spines of many people in Chennai as news wafted in of the opening of the Chembarambakkam reservoir sluice gates on Wednesday as it evoked painful memories of the 2015 floods that were subsequently termed a 'man-made disaster' by the Comptroller and Auditor General of India.

It was on the night of December 1, 2015, that the Chembarambakkam reservoir was suddenly opened increasing the outflow from 12,000 cusecs to 20,960 cusecs, flooding housing colonies, office complexes, roads, paddy fields and every human habitation, when Chennai was sleeping.

As the downstream Adyar river was in spate water entered the city, leaving scores of people dead and devastating property worth several crores of rupees. Many hospitals were inundated, leading to generators conking out and causing premature death of patients.

There were perhaps not many in Chennai whose life was not affected by the incident that saw water level in housing colonies reaching up to the second floor, people going without electricity for days, lack of food, inability to draw money from banks, vehicles and household appliances damaged by the water gushing into homes.

Water rushed into several new television studios, damaging equipment and disrupting telecast services that kept even those people, who had power in their homes, in the dark about what was happening.

Vignettes of that five-year-old tragedy came rushing into the minds of the people as they heard a bout Chembarambakkam lake being opened again. Images of army helicopters hovering over the city to drop food packets or in search operations and even relief workers not being able to locate displaced people in need of food and other essentials returned like a flashback, causing panic. Through the water flowed out of Chembarambakkam for just two days, people reeled under its impact for months or years and for life. One example of the long term impact was car companies not taking vehicles for service for repairs for months as there was such a big loss.

The floods also turned out to be a great socio-economic leveler. Even the Meenambakkam airport was not spared. The second runway was completely submerged and the main runway also went under water, turning the airport unfit for operations for about five days.

So airport authorities were concerned when the Chembarambakkam was opened again due to the reservoir filling after five years. They feared a repeat of 2015 happening and the runaways getting submerged but were told that things had changed in the last five years. That the Adyar had been desilted and deepened to carry more water and that encroachments near the airport in places like Thiruvannamalai, Manapakkam and Manapakkam have been removed.

Though media reports did not remind people much of 2015, reminiscences of social media users made many shudder. Some of them referred to the Chief Minister Edappadi K Palaniswami visiting Chembarambakkam before the sluice gates were opened, wondering if he was not holding the PWD portfolio in 2015.

However, Palaniswami's remarks dispelled fears of another flood as water release would be increased step by step with the PWD monitoring it carefully. He also said that the Adyar river can now carry 60,000 cusecs of water and hence there was no need to fear a flood.

Chennai airport closed for 12 hours

SINDHIYA SAMUEL & P.A JEBARAJ | DC
CHENNAI, NOV 25

In the wake of cyclone Nivar's landfall, authorities ordered Chennai airport closed for 12 hours from 7 pm on Wednesday. Authorities said flights will not take off or land at the Chennai Airport until further notice. The decision was taken considering the safety of passengers and the severity of the approaching cyclone, the Airport Authority of India said on Wednesday.

As the amount of water released from Chembarambakkam increases to 3,000 cusecs, the water is expected to enter Chennai airport.

Due to the continuous rainfall and increasing amount of water flow from Chembarambakkam lake, the Chennai airport authorities has suspended operations from 7 pm on Wednesday to 7 am on Thursday. Earlier on Wednesday, the airport authorities announced cancellation of a total 24 flights, 12 arriving and 12 departing due to Cyclone Nivar. However, all the operations have been pulled in Chennai airport. The government has given alert to people living downstream in low-lying areas including Thirumudiyakkam, Thiruneeermalai, Manapakkam and banks of Adyar river to remain vigilant.

It may be noted that In December 2015, Chennai airport was shut down completely due to the Chennai floods which waterlogged runways and taxiways. Flight operations were suspended for five days.

IMD also said that the cyclonic system is likely to maintain its intensity for about six hours after its landfall before weakening gradually. The IMD has forecast isolated extremely heavy rainfall over Ranipet, Tiruvannamalai, Tirupattur, Vellore districts of Tamilnadu and Chittoor, Kurnool, Prakasam; Cuddapah districts of Andhra Pradesh and adjoining southeast Telangana on November 26. The weather agency has also forecast heavy to very heavy rainfall at isolated places in the remaining districts of north interior Tamilnadu, south Andhra Pradesh and southeast Telangana.

Lankan boat intercepted, heroin worth ₹500 cr seized

THOOTHUKUDI, NOV. 25

The Indian Coast Guard personnel intercepted a Sri Lankan boat which illegally entered the Indian territorial waters near Thoothukudi and seized heroin worth Rs 500 crore from the boat. The Coast Guard patrolling team also arrested six Lankan nationals.

Acting on a tip-off about smuggling of drugs and arms to Sri Lanka through the Indian waters by an international drug-peddling gang, the Coast Guard launched an anti-smuggling operation involving four of its patrolling vessels and a Dornier aircraft in the Gulf of Mannar waters on November 17. The patrolling team also seized 100 kilogram of heroin in 99 packets hidden in an empty fuel tank and five 9mm pistols and a Thuraya satellite phone set, which is banned in India.

The interrogation of the arrested Lankan nationals by officials belonging to the Narcotics Control Bureau, RAW, IB, Q Branch and Coast Guard revealed that the drugs, meant to be smuggled to Australia, was from Karachi in Pakistan. The Indian waters near Thoothukudi close to Sri Lanka, however, was used by the smugglers to shift the drugs to the Sri Lankan boat, named Shenaya Duwa, owned by Negambo-based Alensu Kuttige Fernando in the mid sea from a Pakistani dhow. The seized drugs are worth around Rs 500 crore in the international market.

The arrested Lankan nationals will be brought to Thoothukudi by Wednesday night, following which they will be remanded in custody by producing them before the Ramanathapuram district chief judicial magistrate court.

HC seeks Aavin pensioners' nod for med insurance

DC CORRESPONDENT
CHENNAI, NOV. 25

In order to explore the feasibility and possibility of the medical insurance scheme, the Madras high court has directed the Tamil Nadu Co-operative Milk Producers Federation Ltd (TNCMPF) called Aavin, to issue a notice to all its former employees seeking their willingness to make a routine contribution every month from their pension. And on receipt of willingness from at least 60 percent of pensioners, Aavin can deliberate with the insurance company the possibility of envisaging a scheme for the benefit of pensioners.

Justice R.Suresh Kumar gave the directive while disposing of a petition filed by A. Mohanaragam, which sought a direction to the TNCMPF to consider his representation to have a common medical insurance scheme for all of its employees and pensioners.

Special government pleader Bala Ramesh submitted that considering the health insurance scheme being undertaken by Tamil Nadu for its employees as well as pensioners, in both the schemes, large number of government servants as well as pensioners have made contributions from their salary or pension every month. That was why both the schemes have become feasible and thereby implemented successfully in the state.

M. Silambarasan, counsel for the petitioner, submitted that several pensioners of the TNCMPF were willing to make a reasonable contribution every month from their pension to the TNCMPF towards the medical insurance scheme and it will not be a difficult task for the TNCMPF to envisage age a medical insurance scheme for the pensioners also.

The judge said unless majority of the pensioners like the petitioner come forward to make a contribution, the TNCMPF may not be in a position to have such a scheme as this kind of insurance scheme for the whole employees or pensioners of an organization has to be undertaken only with the help of the insurance companies, for which, first of all, the insurance company should come forward to have a contract with the employer as to the quantum of the contribution, number of member and minimum contribution and these modalities have to be worked out by the employer and the insurance company before which, the TNCMPF has to ensure that at least 60 percent of the employees have come forward to make contribution every month towards this insurance scheme.

Madras high court allows EWS certificate to poor medical student

J. STALIN | DC
CHENNAI, NOV. 25

An MBBS graduate belonging to a forward community got a relief from the Madras high court which directed the authorities to issue her a fresh economically weaker section (EWS) certificate immediately to enable her study for the post-graduate medical course.

R.S. Poorvi could not pursue her higher studies last year despite having a EWS certificate, which is valid for one year, as her mother passed away due to cancer. She was denied EWS certificate this time.

Justice Pushpa Sathyanarayana gave the directive while setting aside an order of the tahsildar, Egmore taluk, Chennai, rejecting her application for EWS certificate.

Justice Pushpa said the petitioner, who is competent, is financially weak. The policy of the government is to help such disadvantaged persons. That is the reason why reservation is applicable not only for backward classes, but also for financially backward people. Though the petitioner belongs to a forward community, she has to be given the certificate of economically weaker section, to enable her pursue her higher education, the judge added.

The judge said, "reservation in higher education has become a serious issue now. It has created differences among different sections of society. Knowledgeable and deserving students are not able to avail the opportunities in education. However, students who could not make it to the merit list but belong to the reserved category enjoy the opportunities. Due to this many students are unable to realise their dreams. Oppressed people should be given an opportunity for uplift, without any compromise in quality in higher education. Similarly, persons from the forward community, who are financially backward, should not be denied an opportunity on account of reservation, which is the object of introduction of EWS reservations. Persons like the petitioner, who have scored well in exams, get a feeling that they are not given the same treatment and criteria of selection though they belong to the EWS. As the petitioner is a meritorious candidate and also has established that her income is less than Rs 8 lakh, satisfying the criteria fixed for getting the EWS certificate, she should have been issued the certificate".

According to petitioner, after the completion of MBBS, she was appointed as a junior resident for one year from August 16, 2019 to August 15, 2020 with a basic pay of Rs 56,100 in ESIC Medical College and Hospital in Chennai. Her father has been working as an assistant to an advocate and did not have a regular income. Her younger sister was pursuing her education by availing a scholarship. She applied and got the EWS certificate for the year 2019-20 but could not participate in the entrance examination held in December 2019 as her mother passed away. As the said certificate was valid for one year, she had applied once again for the year 2021. However, the application was rejected on the ground that her family had an income of more than Rs 8 lakh. Therefore, she filed the present petition, she added.

The judge said the petitioner was working with ESIC Hospital from August 16, 2019 to August 15, 2020. As per the official memorandum, the income slab of Rs 8 lakh was for the financial year prior to the year of her application. The petitioner has applied for the certificate on August 18, 2020 and again on September 12, 2020. Therefore, the previous financial year from date of application would be April 2019 to March 2020. Admittedly the petitioner had joined the ESIC Hospital in August 2019 for a one-year tenure. Therefore, the cut-off month would be March 2020 for the previous financial year.

Computing the salary from August 2019 to March 2020, her gross income would be Rs 7, 37, 877, which was certainly less than Rs 8 lakh. Similarly, she had also filed the IT returns of her father for the assessment year 2020-21 which was "Nil". Admittedly, the petitioner's family does not own any agricultural land or a residential flat of 1,000 sq.ft and above or a residential plot of 100 or 200 yards and above. While so, the tahsildar has wrongly computed that the family income exceeds Rs 8 lakh and has rejected the application for EWS. Having issued a certificate for the previous year, the tahsildar ought to have verified any improvement in the income of the family afterwards to disentitle her for the certificate, the judge added.

REPUBLIC TV TO
AMEND THEIR PLEADC CORRESPONDENT
MUMBAI, NOV. 25

The Bombay High Court on Wednesday allowed ARG Outlier (parent company of Republic TV) to amend their plea to challenge the charge sheet filed by the Mumbai Police on Tuesday in an allegedly fake TRP scam uncovered by the Mumbai Police. The original plea only sought quashing of the First Information Report (FIR) against Republic and its employees including Editor-in-Chief Arnab Goswami and an order transferring the investigation proceedings from the Crime Branch Mumbai Police to the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI).

On Wednesday, Republic TV counsellor Abad Ponda urged the court to amend the petition because a charge sheet has been filed in this case and he also wants to quash the charge sheet.

Subsequently, the Bombay High Court has refused to pass any orders to restrain reporting on ongoing Television Rating Points rigging scam. Court refusal has come when the Maharashtra government urged the Bombay High Court to issue orders directing news channels especially Republic TV from running a parallel investigation and trial into the scam.

A meeting convened by Mishra here on Wednesday decided to revise the draft bill increasing the jail term of the offenders from 5 years to 10 years.

The revised draft bill comes in the wake of Uttar Pradesh cabinet approving a draft ordinance to deal with religious conversion for the sake of marriage, providing a 10-year-jail term for the offenders, on Tuesday.

BHOPAL, NOV. 25

Three non-MLA ministers in the Shivraj cabinet who have lost the recent by-elections in their respective Assembly constituencies, have finally resigned.

While state women and child development minister Imarti Devi resigned on Wednesday, 2 other defeated ministers, Giriraj Dandotia and Anand Singh Kansana, resigned from the ministry over the last couple of days.

"I have tendered my resignation. It is up to Chief Minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan to accept or reject it", Devi who had made former chief minister Kamal Nath her sole target during her campaigning in the by-elections in her Assembly constituency of Dabra for calling her an 'item', told reporters on Wednesday.

Devi lost to her Congress rival Suresh Raj by over 7,000 votes. Devi had earlier sought to continue in the ministry till January 2 when her 6-month-period, a non-MLA minister is allowed to continue in ministry before being elected to the house, ended.

However, all the three defeated ministers were under pressure to resign from the ministry to enable the Chief Minister to expand his ministry as soon as possible.

"The CM may go for expansion of his ministry shortly following the development", a senior BJP leader said.

States can take call on lockdown, says MHA

New guidelines give states a free hand to curb Coronavirus

VINEETA PANDEY | DC
NEW DELHI, NOV. 25

With large parts of North and East India facing a third wave of Coronavirus, the central government on Wednesday issued new guidelines that suggest stringent measures for containment and prevention of the deadly virus along with stricter surveillance.

The guidelines issued by the Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA) which will be effective from December 1 and will remain in force till December 31, give a free hand to the states and UT to impose lockdowns and movement restrictions if needed to contain the spread of the virus. However, state/ UT governments cannot impose any local lockdown (at state/ district/ sub-division/city level), outside the containment zones, without the prior consultation with the Central government.

Also, there shall be no restriction on inter-state and intra-state movement of persons and goods including those for cross land-border trade under treaties with neighbouring countries.

No separate permission/ approval/ e-permit will be required for such movements.

India till Wednesday had over 92.22 lakh cases out of which 44,376 are new detections.

In a single day, 481 deaths have been reported taking the total fatalities to close to 1.35 lakh.

The MHA said that the main focus of the guidelines is "to consolidate the substantial gains that have been achieved against the spread of Covid-19 which is visible in the steady decline in the number of active cases in the country."

"Further, keeping in view the recent spike in new cases in few states/ UTs, ongoing festival season and onset of winter, it is emphasised that to fully overcome the pandemic, there is need to maintain caution and to strictly follow the prescribed containment strategy, focussed on surveillance, containment and strict observance of the guidelines/ SOPs issued by MHA and ministry of health and family welfare," officials said.

Local district, police and municipal authorities shall be responsible to ensure that the prescribed containment measures are strictly followed and states and UTs, based on their assessment of the situation, are free to impose local restrictions, with a view to contain the spread of Covid-19.

The list of containment zones will be notified on the websites by the respective district collectors and by the states/ UTs.

Within the demarcated containment zones, only essential activities shall be allowed and there shall be strict perimeter control to ensure that there is no movement of people in or out of these zones, except for medical emergencies and for maintaining supply of essential goods and services.

There shall be intensive house-to-house surveillance by surveillance teams and testing shall be carried out as per prescribed protocol.

Listing of contacts shall be carried out in respect of all persons found positive, along with their tracking, identification, quarantine and follow up of contacts for 14 days (80 per cent of contacts to be traced in 72 hours).

Quick isolation of Covid-19 patients shall be ensured in treatment facilities/ home (subject to fulfilling the home isolation guidelines). Clinical interventions, as prescribed, shall be administered.

Surveillance for ILI/ SARI cases shall be carried out in health facilities or outreach mobile units or through fever clinics in buffer zones.

Awareness shall be created in communities on Covid-19 appropriate behaviour and local district, police and municipal authorities shall be responsible to ensure that the prescribed Containment measures are strictly followed and state/ UT governments shall ensure the accountability of the officers concerned in this regard.

In order to enforce the core requirement of wearing of face masks, states and UTs may consider administrative actions, including imposition of appropriate fines, on persons not wearing face masks in public and work spaces.

For observance of social distancing in crowded places, especially in markets, weekly bazaars and public transport, MoHFW will issue SOP, which shall be strictly enforced by the states and UTs.

All activities have been permitted outside containment zones though some have been permitted with certain restrictions.

These include international air travel of passengers, running of cinema halls and theatres with up to 50 per cent capacity, opening of swimming pools only for training of sports persons, exhibition halls only for business to business (B2B) purposes, social/ religious/ sports/ entertainment/ educational/ cultural/ religious gatherings, with up to a maximum of 50 per cent of the hall capacity, with a ceiling of 200 persons in closed spaces; and keeping of the size of the ground/ space in view, in open spaces.

However, based on their assessment of the situation, state/ UT governments may reduce the ceiling to 100 persons or less, in closed spaces.

states and UTs also need to enforce social distancing in offices.

In cities, where the weekly case positivity rate is in more than 10 per cent, states and UTs concerned shall consider implementing staggered office timings and other suitable measures, with a view to reduce the number of employees attending office at the same time, thereby ensuring social distancing.

KOLKATA, NOV. 25

Dubbing the BJP as a "garbage of lies" and "biggest curse to the nation", Trinamul Congress supremo and West Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee on Wednesday challenged the saffron party that she, even if arrested, would ensure her party's victory from jail in the Assembly elections.

"BJP is a garbage of lies. It is the biggest curse to the nation. Ahead of election, they threaten the TMC so that some of its leaders defect to them. They are asking all either to live in fear or stay in jail. If you (BJP) have the guts, arrest me and put me behind bars. Staying in jail, I will ensure our victory in Bengal. This is my challenge," Banerjee told a party rally in Bankura while kick-starting her poll campaign from the Jangalmahal district, visited by Union home minister Amit Shah earlier this month.

Mocking senior Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) leaders, visiting the state, as "Dilli Ka Laddu," she said, "They abuse TMC so much daily as if TMC has become their eyesore. In future, only TMC will remain in power, uprooting BJP, CPI(M) and Congress from the state."

The Trinamul Congress chief also belittled the Bharatiya Janata Party's success in the recently concluded Bihar Assembly elections.

SRINAGAR, NOV. 25

After two days of grilling by National Investigation Agency (NIA), People's Democratic Party (PDP) youth leader Waheed Ur Rehman Parra was on Wednesday formally arrested by the premier anti-terror agency for his alleged links with tainted J&K police officer Davinder Singh.

Singh who last served as Deputy Superintendent of Police at the Anti-Hijacking Squad at the Srinagar International Airport is facing charges under various anti terror laws for helping separatist militants back home. The case is being investigated by the NIA which had in July filed a chargesheet against him and five others for their alleged terror activities in the country.

A spokesman of the NIA said that Parra was arrested "in connection with the Naveed Babu Davinder Singh case for supporting Hizb-ul-Mujahideen in conspiracy with the other accused persons."

Reacting to Parra's arrest, PDP president and former chief minister Mehbooba Mufti tweeted "Waheed has no connection whatsoever with this man (Davinder Singh) & is being falsely charged. All just to blackmail & intimidate PDP & other mainstream political parties in J&K".

In another tweet, she said, "I can personally vouch for Waheed's integrity, honesty & character. It is up to the judiciary now to dispense justice & ensure @parawahid is released at the earliest".

She alleged that the reason behind Para's arrest apparently was his contesting the upcoming District Development Council (DDC) elections in J&K.

"No coincidence that he filed his nomination for DDC on 20th Nov & received NIA summons next day itself", Mufti said.

Parra had appeared before the NIA at its headquarters in New Delhi on Monday and Tuesday for questioning.

He had said on Monday evening that he was asked about his political career and PDP's soft politics during the questioning. An earlier report had said that Parra's name had surfaced during the NIA's probe into the Davinder Singh case but he had publicly expressed ignorance about the same.

Singh was arrested along with Syed Naveed Mushtaq alias Naveed Babu, one of the most wanted Hizb-ul-Mujahideen militants, and his associate Asif Ahmed Rather by the J&K police in southern Kulgam district on January 11 this year. Subsequently, Kashmiri lawyer Irfan Shafi Mir and Naveed Babu's brother Syed Irfan Ahmed were also taken into custody after accused of being the Hizb's Over Ground Workers (OWGs).

The police officer who was soon placed under suspension and the militant duo were travelling in a Hyundai i20 car along the highway connecting J&K's twin capitals — Srinagar and Jammu — and were reportedly on their way to Chandigarh.

The investigations done by the J&K police had reportedly revealed that Singh had accompanied militants or helped them in relocating to various parts of the country on different occasions in lieu of money and other considerations. However, the Centre later asked the NIA to probe the case.

Special Cell of Delhi Police which also probed the police officer's alleged terror links and subsequently filed a case in a Delhi court, told that Naveed Babu and others were planning to execute terror attacks in Delhi and other parts of the country.

SuMo sees Lalu bid

PATNA, NOV. 25

Senior BJP leader and former deputy Chief Minister Sushil Kumar Modi on Wednesday accused RJD chief Lalu Yadav of making strategies to topple the newly elected NDA government led by Nitish Kumar in Bihar.

In a tweet, he also released a mobile number alleging that Lalu Yadav used it to call NDA MLAs ahead of Bihar Assembly Speaker's election.

"Lalu Yadav has been making calls from Ranchi to NDA MLAs and promising ministerial berths. When I telephoned on the number, he picked the call. I asked him not to play dirty tricks as he will not succeed", BJP leader Sushil Kumar Modi said in a tweet.

Modi's sensational charge against the jailed RJD leader raised the political temperature in Bihar. While a section in the NDA demanded "a high-level probe" and action against Lalu Yadav, RJD leaders denied the allegation calling it "baseless".

BJP leaders also demanded shifting Lalu Yadav to Tihar Jail from Ranchi where he is in judicial custody after being convicted in the fodder scam case.

The RJD chief, who is serving his jail term after being sentenced by a special CBI court in several fodder scam cases is currently admitted to Rajendra Institute of Medical Sciences Ranchi. He has been shifted to the hospital director's official bungalow due to Coronavirus pandemic.

BJP MLA Lalan Paswan who had received the call from Lalu Yadav on Tuesday said that, "I felt he was calling to congratulate me for winning Assembly elections but I was shocked when he offered a ministerial berth and wanted my support to topple the government."

Patel could be creative in solving problems and was combative in defence of his party's interest

A trusted aide, but political force in his own right also

ANAND K. SAHAY

Ahmed Patel, who died at the relatively early age of 71 in the small hours of Wednesday, was much of the time a creative political force in his own right, although all his actions were in the name of Congress leader Sonia Gandhi, currently her party's interim president.

He was no apparatchik - an expression of Russian Communist Party lineage given a derogatory connotation in English usage to denote a faceless, nameless, mindless, party bureaucrat. Patel was none of those things, although in careless hands and in careless speech he has sometimes been spoken of in those inaccurate - and regrettable - terms.

He was instead an indispensable personal aide to the Congress president who could be creative in solving problems, unobtrusively combative in defence of his party's and leadership's interest, and was respected among politicians across the aisle though he held no high public office and was just one among many MPs.

Last year Patel camped in Mumbai to ensure that the Congress became a part of the three-party ruling coalition headed by Shiv Sena leader Udhav Thackeray to displace the inclusion was on terms that were acceptable to the top Congress leadership since the Sena had been seen as a communal party and Rahul Gandhi appeared to have reservations that were being sought to be exploited by the NCP. The Congress being inserted into the ruling scheme was achieved through skilful negotiations conducted by Patel. The soldier faces a total of 17 charges and will be tried in a court martial. The military is releasing few other details about the case ahead of the trial, and the soldier's name is being kept secret by court order. The soldier was based at the Linton Military Camp with about 2,000 people near the city of Palmerston North. The website Newsroom said the soldier was first arrested in December and has close ties to far-right extremist groups.

CAR HITS GATE OUTSIDE MERKEL GERMAN OFFICE

Berlin, Nov. 25: A car crashed into the front gate of the building housing German Chancellor Angela Merkel's offices on Wednesday morning, but appeared to have caused little damage, Berlin police said.

Officers were on the scene investigating the crash at the German chancellery, police spokesman Hartmut Peath said, but there were no immediate details about injuries or arrests. Rescue crews on the scene confirmed the man driving the car was being treated in an ambulance that remained in front of the chancellery.

The car, a Volkswagen sedan, had the slogan "You damned murderers of children and old people" scrawled in white paint on one side.

On the other it said "stop the globalisation policies."

It had licence plates from the North Rhine-Westphalia area of Lippe and was driven away by the Berlin fire department showing little sign of damage beyond a few scratches.

The metal gate to the chancellery appeared slightly bent.

The chancellery sits in downtown Berlin next to the Swiss Embassy and across from the capital's parliamentary offices.

BOAT OVERTURNS NEAR SPAIN, 7 MIGRANTS DIE

Madrid, Nov. 25: At least seven people died after a migrant boat carrying more than 30 people hit rocks close to a small port on the Canary Island of Lanzarote, Spanish rescue services said Wednesday. The boat was one of 12 intercepted in the islands' waters overnight.

Some 300 people were rescued in the other boats but one died later. The Canary Islands emergency service said the Lanzarote boat crashed into pier rocks and overturned in the Orzola area on the north of the island late Tuesday. Video images showed rescue workers pulling young men in T-shirts from the water in the dark and other migrants sitting on the rocks. The emergency service said seven bodies from the boat were found overnight.

It said search operations are continuing. In the other incidents, the national rescue service and Civil Guard rescued some 300 people, including women and children, arriving in 11 boats. One person died. The services said many of the migrants were from north-west African countries.

First Coronavirus vaccinations possible by Christmas, says EU

Brussels, Nov. 25: A top European Union official said Wednesday that the first citizens in the 27 nation bloc could be vaccinated against the Coronavirus by Christmas, but she warned that member countries must urgently prepare their logistical chains for the rollout of hundreds of millions of doses of the vaccines.

Claiming that "there's finally light at the end of the tunnel," European Commission President Ursula von der Leyen told EU lawmakers that "the first European citizens might already be vaccinated before the end of December." The commission, the EU's executive arm, has agreements with six potential vaccine suppliers and is working on a seventh contract.

The deals allow it to purchase over 800 million doses, more than the population of the bloc, which stands at around 460 million people.

On Tuesday, Brussels said it would sign a contract for up to 160 million doses of the experimental Coronavirus vaccine developed by Moderna, which the company says appears to be 94.5 per cent effective, according to its preliminary data.

But von der Leyen said that while vaccines are important, "what counts are vaccinations."

"Member states must get ready now. We're talking about millions of syringes, we're talking about cold chains, we're talking about organising vaccination centres, we're talking about trained personnel that is there. You name it. All this has to be prepared," she warned.

Email row: Sanford Health CEO ousted

Sioux Falls (US), Nov. 25: The head of one of the largest regional health systems in the Midwest has been replaced, less than a week after telling employees that he had recovered from Covid-19 and was not wearing a mask around the office.

Sanford Health said in a release on Tuesday that it has "mutually agreed to part ways" with longtime CEO Kelby Krabbenhoft, who took over in 1996 and helped expand the organisation from a community hospital into what is billed as the largest rural nonprofit health system in the country. Krabbenhoft left the executive position after telling employees in an email that he believes he's now immune to Covid-19 for "at least seven months and perhaps years to come" and that he isn't a threat to transmit it to anyone. He said wearing a mask would be merely for show. Dr Kathy Anderson, president of the North Dakota Chapter of the American Academy of Pediatrics, said it was "an especially dangerous message to be sending right now in North Dakota." —AP

China opposes India's ban on 43 more apps

Beijing, Nov. 25: China on Wednesday said it was firmly opposed to India's decision to block 43 more Chinese apps on national security grounds, claiming the move violated WTO rules. India on Tuesday blocked 43 more Chinese mobile apps, including Alibaba Group Holding's e-commerce app AliExpress, in a fresh wave of web sanctions amid its border standoff with China.

The banned applications, which include a few dating apps, were a threat to the "sovereignty and integrity of India", an official statement said in New Delhi.

The Ministry of Electronics and IT issued the order for blocking the access of these apps by users in India based on the comprehensive reports received from Indian Cyber Crime Coordination Center, Ministry of Home Affairs, the release said. Earlier on June 29 this year, the government had blocked access to 59 mobile apps and on September 2, another 118 apps were banned under Section 69A of the Information Technology Act.

The ban had come in the backdrop of border tensions with China in eastern Ladakh since May. Asked for his reaction to the latest ban on Chinese apps by India, Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman Zhao Lijian told a media briefing here China expresses serious concern over India's move.

Japan protests island infiltration

Tokyo, Nov. 25: Japan used a visit by the Chinese foreign minister on Wednesday to protest Beijing's increased activity and what it calls infiltration around disputed East China Sea islands. Both sides agreed to avoid provocative actions in the contested area.

"The situation is extremely serious," Chief Cabinet Secretary Katsunobu Kato told reporters after meeting with Chinese Foreign Minister Wang

Yi, who arrived in Tokyo on Tuesday for a two-day visit. Relations between the two countries have been strained over territorial disputes and wartime history, even though ties have improved in recent years while China's trade dispute with the US has escalated. "I am aware of and concerned with the public reports surrounding Chinese military construction along the dis-

Pak hosts UN proscribed ultras: India

United Nations, Nov. 25: India has reminded Pakistan, the "host to the world's largest number of UN proscribed terrorists and entities", of Abbottabad, the garrison city where al-Qaeda leader Osama bin Laden hid for years and was killed, in a hard-hitting response as Islamabad's UN envoy gave a "dossier of lies" to Secretary General Antonio Guterres. India's Permanent Representative to the UN, Ambassador T S Tirumurti on Tuesday tweeted that the "dossier of lies presented by Pakistan enjoys zero credibility".

"Concocting documents and peddling false narratives is not new to Pakistan, host to the world's largest number of UN proscribed terrorists and entities. Remember Abbottabad!" he said. The Indian Ambassador's tweet was in response to Islamabad's UN envoy Munir Akram meeting Guterres to hand over the dossier from the Pakistan government that alleged India was promoting terrorism in the country. Tirumurti made a reference to Abbottabad, where bin Laden was hiding for years and was killed.

Biden signals US on way back to good governance

Having played truant for weeks while jousting with democratic principles like a Don Quixote engaging with windmills, Donald Trump finally gave in to allow the transition to begin of President-elect Joe Biden to the White House. Given that his political base began crumbling with Republicans too calling on him to cease his assault on the integrity of the presidential election and legal options disappearing as challenges on the premise of fraud in the polls were laughed out of court, Mr Trump may have altered his alternative reality view just a shade to accept Mr Biden was on the way to winning in the Electoral College while having dominated the popular vote.

It is, of course, far from certain that the outgoing President will not place further obstacles in the victor's path as he clings to the delusion the election was stolen from him and has set his lawyers on an incredulous path of conspiracy theories to undermine the sanctity of America's polls. If the US President's hesitant concession to the will of the people and the US electoral process is followed logically, as it must, by Mr Biden being sworn in on January 20, 2021, Mr Trump will become the laughing stock of the liberal world.

The eccentric nomination and firing policies of Mr Trump who let go of loyalists refusing to toe his line when in office may be a thing of the past

The damage Mr Trump has wrought by casting doubts freely in people's minds on the legitimacy of what has emerged as one of the cleanest elections in American history might have repercussions for the rest of the world. Authoritarian leaders in his mould would only be further encouraged to ignore the popular will even as the US election process and its presidential system of governance takes an image hit as a role model for democracies. The election is the very fount of democracy even if the US presidential poll hinges on the transfer of Electoral College votes and not on the popular vote as we saw also in Mr Trump's victory in 2016.

The path ahead of a Biden White House governing the US even with the obvious heft of its economy and the clout of its military might would be riddled with unprecedented health and economic challenges in a world still in the grip of the coronavirus pandemic. The colourful hints to be seen in the incipient composition of the Biden Cabinet straightway convey how different the US is going to be after four years of Mr Trump and his predominantly white and male Cabinet.

It is not only a reflection of the diversity that is to be welcomed as in Mr Biden's black and Indian origin vice-president Kamala Harris or in the choice of treasury secretary, likely to be Janet Yellen, with her expertise as one who headed the Federal Reserve, and in Avril Haines as the first woman to be director of national intelligence. The eccentric nomination and firing policies of Mr Trump who let go of loyalists refusing to toe his line when in office may be a thing of the past. The one thing that America needs most now is a settled mode of governance far from the maddening whimsicality of a Donald Trump, a salesman who became an accidental President.

UP law violates basic rights

The right to life and the right to religious freedom are two fundamental rights of every Indian citizen, guaranteed by the Constitution. However, the Uttar Pradesh government has some other views on them and has come out with an ordinance that criminalises religious conversion even as the Allahabad high court affirmed the right of adults to decide on their choices.

The Uttar Pradesh Unlawful Religious Conversion Prohibition Ordinance, 2020, cleared by the state cabinet, makes religious conversion a cognisable offence inviting a jail term up to 10 years. It makes the onus on proving that a conversion was effected not for marriage or through misrepresentation, force, undue influence, coercion, allurement or other fraudulent means on the person converting or those who facilitate it. The ordinance is condemnable as it shows how badly the state government seeks to intervene in the personal choices of people and score some propaganda points, violating the very fundamentals of the Constitution.

If someone has a doubt on the impact the new statute will have on interfaith marriages, they can look at the intervention the Allahabad high court was forced to make on Tuesday in a case. Holding that nobody, including the state, can have an objection to a relationship of two major individuals who out of their free will are living together, it quashed an FIR filed against a man, a Muslim, registered on the complaints of his father-in-law under the Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act (POCSO), 2012, though both the man and his wife, a Hindu, were adults. If the POCSO Act can be misused against an adult in an interfaith marriage, then one can imagine how the new law will make the lives of interfaith couples miserable.

The Uttar Pradesh law is no accident; others on similar lines are in the works in many states. Unless they are stopped in their tracks, the great ideal of personal liberty in this country will suffer a serious setback.

Use Tibet links, counter China in the Himalayas

Claude Arpi

For millennia, the Himalayas have been an active bridge between the Indic and Tibetan civilisations. The great physical barrier has been a place of intense contacts between two worlds which shared their search for infinity.

After the arrival of a newcomer (Mao's People's Liberation Army) on the plateau in 1950-51, the ancient relations became more and more strained, ending with being completely severed in 1962.

Beijing could not tolerate India's special relations with Tibet.

Today, while Beijing promotes its Belt and Road Initiative (BRI), or the new Silk Roads, it has made sure that the ancient kinship between Tibet and the Himalayas is not revived; all the borders have been closed for almost 60 years now, with the exception of three land ports opened for petty trade at Nathu-la, Shipkila and Lipulekh-la; far from the flourishing business that took place over many centuries. Beijing has conveniently set aside these traditional trade routes to sponsor new ones (with Pakistan).

The situation turned for the worse in March 1959, when the Dalai Lama reached Khenzimane, north of Tawang, and was given asylum by the Indian government; and relations between India and Tibet, as well as the trade and pilgrimage, reached a point of no return.

Soon after the Indo-Tibet frontier became the "disputed" Sino-Indian boundary, intrusions took place in Longju in the then North East Frontier Agency (Nepa) and Kongka-la/Hot Springs in Ladakh in the summer of 1959, making New Delhi suddenly realise India had a new neighbour and that the boundary had not been settled, as the idealist Indian government had wanted to believe.

After 1962, an ancient world disappeared and India (and the Himalayas) lost a friend, a kind neighbour and a peaceful border.

But the kinship of shared values and common history between India and Tibet have remained; unfortunately, this never translated into a coherent policy for Tibetan refugees as well as the populations of the border areas.

Though the Indian government never wanted to be politically involved with Tibet, the age-old ties between the Land of Snows and India's Himalayas has remained alive (as we have seen since the start of the present crisis in Ladakh); but now it needs to be revitalised by the government.

While the People's Republic of China was able to annex Tibet by force of arms, Beijing has been unable to assimilate Tibetans into their system. Can Beijing succeed in the future? It is a moot question, the answer to which the future alone holds.

Some argue the past should be forgotten, as the world has changed; further, China has become a powerful state; and the fact that the Communist regime is today dreaming of leading the world and imposing the "Chinese Dream" on the planet is worrying for the Tibetan and the Himalayan population. In view of this situation on India's borders, we must think of a new approach towards the Himalayas.

At the outset, instead of a new policy for Tibet alone, it would be better to have a common policy for the Himalayan belt and Tibet, which have shared countless cultural, spiritual, strategic and economic similarities. I would therefore suggest a new "Himalayan and Tibetan Affairs' Policy".

Some general principles should dictate this new policy.

First, that India should look after its own interests, then after the interests of those who are ethnically or culturally close to India, like the Tibetans. It seems obvious, but it has not always been the case.

India should adhere to its ideals of being a peaceful nation, of fighting against any form of imperialism and defending the rights of weaker people; further the government should certainly not take at face value declarations of peace by other nations, particularly China.

Another principle is that India's policies or actions should not be dictated by what others will think or say, particularly how China will react to a particular decision. This tendency has lasted too long with no tangible gain for this country (for example, the 2018 directive that no Indian officials should meet the Dalai Lama); retrospectively, it had counter-productive effects.

Unfortunately, India faces a country which still believes that power comes out of the barrel of a gun; without emulating China, India must quietly and forcefully look after its own interests and be honest, frank, straightforward about it.

Whatever overall policy is finally adopted, one element is crucial - coordination. In view of the individualistic tendencies of India's bureaucracy, this is extremely crucial in order to achieve the targeted aim of a common policy for all stakeholders (external affairs, defence, home, education, culture, security agencies). That is why I propose the creation of a Department of Himalayan and Tibetan Affairs (DHTA), to function under the Prime Minister's Office.

If any "coordinator" were to work under one of the above ministries, he/she will not be able to implement the holistic policy decided by the government.

A DHTA, headed by a secretary-rank officer, could be the central element for developing the border areas.

In the 1950s and 1960s, a post of SOFA (Special Officer of Frontiers Affairs) existed; the scope of the SOFA's responsibilities was limited due to the fact that it worked under the MEA alone; it was however manned by (excellent) officers; a few SOFAs could be professionally looking after border areas and Tibetan affairs.

Keeping in mind the welfare and customs of the local population and the Tibetan refugees, the DHTA could take measures to stop the migration of the local population towards the big cities; build infrastructure, work on closer ties between the defence forces and the local population, an eventual revival of border trade, trans-border pilgrimages, and promote Buddhism on a larger scale.

The DHTA could revive the Indian Frontier Administrative Service (IFAS); in the 1950s, IFAS officers did a great job on India's northern borders and in Tibet; most of them had sacrificed promising careers in the Army to join the service; all were remarkable personalities. Even though the cadre does not exist any longer, they are still a role model for young IAS/IPS officers posted at the borders.

The need of the hour is to revitalise the Himalayas and link it with the welfare of Tibetan refugees and the promotion of their unique culture. It is the only way to balance China's propaganda efforts in the border areas.

The writer is based in South India for the past 42 years. He writes on India, China, Tibet and Indo-French relations.

I propose the creation of a Department of Himalayan and Tibetan Affairs (DHTA), to function under the Prime Minister's Office

UNITY IN CALAMITY

The measures taken by the Tamil Nadu government for tackling the cyclone Nivar are laudable. The lessons learnt from the 2015 floods helped the authorities take all preventive measures to ensure safety of lives and property of the people. All political parties should/ are expected to work in unison with the government leaving behind their attitude of finding fault with the them and do whatever is possible to help the people come out of this natural calamity successfully with least loss of property and lives. Rehabilitation work should be carried out on a war footing by the ruling party, opposition and NGOs.

PREPARING FOR NIVAR

NEWS IS flashed every now and then about the precautionary steps taken by the state government under the personal supervision of Chief Minister Edappadi K. Palaniswami. This is very heartening and people now witness how a government should function in emergency conditions and tackle the problems. No stone seems to be left unturned to meet the threat posed by Nivar cyclone to people at large and particularly the poor and impoverished. The criticism and the flak received by the government in the aftermath of Kaja cyclone seems to have taught a good and appropriate lesson to the state government and the details of preparedness made by the government are found to be excellent and heart-warming.

BCCI TO BLAME

IT IS painful to know that Rohit Sharma and Ishant Sharma may miss the first two Tests. Since Virat Kohli would be on paternity leave after the first Test, we were expecting Rohit Sharma to fill the gap. Alas, his eagerness to please his franchise, Mumbai Indians, he overlooked his fitness to represent MI during the play-offs and jeopardised the Indian team interest. Now that he is struggling to prove his cent percent fitness, it could prove to be a big blow for our Test team. Since he is a contracted player, the Board should have ensured his full recovery before representing Mumbai Indians during the play off stage and finals to ensure that he is fully fit to represent the nation. Rohit Sharma and BCCI must share the blame for this.

RECP: Why India must be firm on staying out

The "real" world of trade, commerce and diplomacy fructify on the facts. Thus, the 15-nation Regional Comprehensive Economic Partnership (RCEP), including the 10-nation Asean bloc from Southeast Asia, which came into being in mid-November, can also be evaluated only on the facts, not on any "regret", "shock" or "surprise". When a former Indian commerce minister and a former foreign secretary express anguish over New Delhi committing a "historical blunder", which they feel would negatively impact the nation's progress and prosperity and lead to "international isolation" diplomatically, one needs a scrutiny of the facts.

Why are we so hallucinating? India is a recurring, chronic laggard with the 15-member RCEP club - except for Cambodia, Laos, Myanmar and the Philippines, India's trade balance with the other 11 RCEP states is negative. And while India's total trade surplus with these four Asean countries is just $1,589.26 billion, the bilateral trade loss from the other 11 RCEP states - Australia, Brunei, China, Indonesia, Japan, Malaysia, Singapore, South Korea, Thailand, Vietnam and New Zealand - stands at a staggering $99,870.87 billion. How then, with which magic wand, can India be guided to the path of profit and prosperity in the Chinese-run RCEP? One wonders!

Can't we see how all these countries, which till recently had an independent identity and freedom of choice and action in the 10-nation Asean bloc, by one stroke of the pen on Sunday, November 15, in Hanoi, virtually lost all their panache, being subsumed by the RCEP - subject to the overlordship of the Communist Party of China, operating from Beijing! All in the name of "free trade", "ease of doing business", "free flow of goods", "tariff-free", "common prosperity" and "shared (not shredded) goals"?

Contextually, however, the RCEP that was signed into existence in Hanoi on November 15 can't be seen in isolation as a one-time landmark wishlist for commerce, trade, investment or collective prosperity, etc. Far from it. It is born out of the acute inferiority-cum-insecurity complex of the overlord of Beijing, President-for-life Xi Jinping, who has been left badly shaken by the fate of America's outgoing President Donald Trump. But the maverick US leader is still in office till noon on January 20, 2021, and the autocrat that he is, President Xi is not quite certain what steps his American counterpart may take against China in his few remaining weeks. That is the fear of the unknown. Therefore, he is searching for security, and the RCEP, he hopes, will fulfil that need.

The Communist Party of China's $14 trillion economy needs a protective screen of allies urgently, thus the efforts in the past few years towards the Belt and Road Initiative and offshoots like the CPEC. The Chinese-sponsored banks have for long been trying to convince its partners and client states to replace the use of the US dollar with the Chinese yuan (renminbi), which has found few takers. Will it have better luck with the "RCEP Common Market"? If its members agree to use the Chinese currency for its trade, Beijing's road to numero uno status would get easier. No one would miss the symbolism.

After afflicting the entire world with the Chinese virus and killing millions, while it has mysteriously caused the least damage within the People's Republic where it had originated, the Chinese Communists know well it is time to build an image of credibility and trustworthiness. Otherwise there is the very real danger of the West mobilising to strike back and maybe inflict damage - reminiscent of nineteenth and twentieth century Chinese history. It knows well that the existing world order faces its existential threat, as aptly shown in the IMF's latest annual report.

"Governments and central banks around the world might spend $19.5 trillion just to put 'a floor under' the world economy - which has been reeling under the catastrophic impact of the pandemic". Governments, as of September 2020, have "announced nearly $12 trillion in stimulus measures and central banks across world have already spent $7.5 trillion" to soften the impact of the Chinese-origin virus on economics. Yet, the fact is that today "the state of the world economy is worse... than the Great Depression of the 1930s".

What India has done about the RCEP is perfect. It couldn't be otherwise.

Giving preference to imports rather than exporting indigenous goods, India's ruling class had made monumental blunders in the two decades since 2000, which led to New Delhi's capitulation before the CPC, with the Chinese brutally romping deep inside

India's hinterland and taking control of some sensitive and strategic sectors, thus endangering the security of India from within. Just contrast democratic India's behaviour with the way Beijing deals with non-Chinese entities operating in that country. India's decision on RCEP was also partly a damage-control exercise.

Our horrendous 2019-20 total trade deficit (despite the downturn due to the Chinese virus) still stands at $1,61,348.24 billion, though down from the 2018-19 figure of minus $1,84,000.33 billion.

India shouldn't be branded a "loser" for not joining the 15-nation RCEP as long as the supreme national interest of its 1.3 billion people is unaddressed by the RCEP's shadow of the CPC-created Chinese virus. Just wait and see: the octopus-like dragon will destroy economics, monopolise trade, break banks, create a debt trap, organise political sabotage, destroy indigenous industry, corner and usurp the dollar from all sources and replace it with the Chinese currency.

Diego takes hand of God

Argentine football legend Maradona dies of heart attack aged 60

Buenos Aires (Argentina), Nov. 25: Diego Maradona, the Argentine football great who was among the best players ever and who led his country to the 1986 World Cup title before later struggling with cocaine use and obesity, has died. He was 60.

The office of Argentina's president will decree three days of national mourning because of Maradona's death on Wednesday, and the Argentine football association expressed its sorrow on Twitter.

Maradona died two weeks after being released from a Buenos Aires hospital following brain surgery.

Famed for the “Hand of God” goal in which he punched the ball into England's net during the 1986 World Cup quarterfinals, Maradona captivated fans over a two-decade career with a bewitching style of play that was all his own.

Although his reputation was tarnished by his addictions and an ill-fated spell in charge of the national team, he remained idolised in football-mad Argentina as the “Pibe de Oro” or “Golden Boy.”

The No. 10 he wore on his jersey became synonymous with him, as it also had with Pele, the Brazilian great with whom Maradona was regularly paired as the best of all time.

Bold, fast and utterly unpredictable, Maradona was a master of attack, juggling the ball easily from one foot to the other as he raced upfield. Dodging and weaving with his low center of gravity, he shrugged off countless rivals and often scored with a devastating left foot, his most powerful weapon.

“Everything he was thinking in his head, he made it happen with his feet,” said Salvatore Bagni, who played with Maradona at Italian club Napoli.

A ballooning waistline slowed Maradona's explosive speed later in his career and by 1991 he was snared in his first doping scandal when he admitted to a cocaine habit that haunted him until he retired in 1997, at 37.

Hospitalised near death in 2000 and again in '04 for heart problems blamed on cocaine, he later said he overcame the drug problem. Cocaine, he once said famously, had proven to be his “toughest rival.”

But more health problems followed, despite a 2005 gastric bypass that greatly trimmed his weight. Maradona was hospitalised in early 2007 for acute hepatitis that his doctor blamed on excessive drinking and eating.

He made an unlikely return to the national team in 2008 when he was appointed Argentina coach, but after a quarterfinal exit at the 2010 World Cup in South Africa, he was ousted — ultimately picking up another coaching job with the United Arab Emirates club Al Wasl.

Maradona was the fifth of eight children who grew up in a poor, gritty barrio on the Buenos Aires outskirts where he played a kind of dirt-patch football that launched many Argentines to international stardom.

None of them approached Maradona's fame. In 2001, FIFA named Maradona one of the two greatest in the sport's history, alongside Pele.

Maradona reaped titles at home and abroad, playing in the early 1980s for Argentinos Juniors and Boca Juniors before moving on to Spanish and Italian clubs. His crowning achievement came at the 1986 World Cup, captaining Argentina in its 3-2 win over West Germany in the final and decisive in a 2-1 victory against England in a feisty quarterfinal match.

The ‘Goal of the Century’

The solo goal against which all solo goals will be judged. Named the “Goal of the Century” by FIFA in 2002, his high-speed slalom in Mexico in 1986 ended England's World Cup and cemented Maradona's position as the world's best footballer. The goal trumps others of its type not just because of its impact, the stage, the spectre of the Falklands War and the fact that it came just minutes after his notorious ‘Hand of God’ goal, but for the efficiency of its execution.

Maradona barely deviates from his path towards goal the moment he spins free in midfield, with a few drops of the shoulder enough to embarrass England for the second time in the space of five minutes. “Diego assures me that he meant to pass to me several times but there was always some obstacle that forced him to change plans. Just as well,” striker Jorge Valdano, who followed Maradona up the field, said later.

Free-kick that conquered Naples

Nicknamed the “divine free-kick” in Italy, Maradona's iconic winning goal for Napoli in the November 1985 home clash with Michel Platini's Juventus — reigning European champions — was the one that created the Argentine's legend in Naples.

Standing over an indirect free-kick well inside the penalty area, legend has it that Maradona asked midfielder Eraldo Pecci to roll him the ball for a shot despite the closeness of the Juventus wall. A quick touch from Pecci was all he needed to flick a stupendous effort over a group of Juve players who were practically on his toes as he hit the ball and past a bamboozled Stefano Tacconi in the Juve goal.

‘El Pibe’ volleys Verona

There were more crucial goals among Maradona's 115 for Napoli, but few matched the sheer nonchalance of his outrageous lob in a 5-0 hammering of reigning Italian champions Hellas Verona in October 1985.

Collecting a long pass with his back to goal on the left flank, with the ball still bouncing, Maradona took a step and clipped a looping shot towards goal that gently faded off the left post.

ONE DAY, WE WILL PLAY TOGETHER IN THE SKY, SAYS PELE

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 25: Brazilian soccer icon Pele hoped he would “some day play ball with Maradona in the sky” as he paid tribute to the Argentine maverick, who died after suffering a cardiac arrest on Wednesday.

The only player, whose name was taken in the same breath with the ‘King of Football,’ the 60-year-old Maradona died two weeks after undergoing a surgery to remove a blood clot in his brain.

“What sad news. I lost a great friend and the world lost a legend. There is still much to be said, but for now, may God give strength to family members. One day, I hope we can play ball together in the sky,” Pele tweeted.

Pele and Maradona had tremendous mutual respect and admiration for each other's skills.

Despite a 20-year age difference, the two were good friends for decades and are widely regarded the most gifted to have played the beautiful game.

MARADONA IN HIS OWN WORDS

“To see the ball, to run after it, makes me the happiest man in the world.”

“I made mistakes, and I paid for them. But the ball is still pure.”

“I am Maradona, who makes goals, who makes mistakes. I can take it all, I have shoulders big enough to fight with everybody.”

“You can say a lot of things about me, but you can never say I don't take risks. I am black or white, I'll never be grey in my life.”

“When I wear the national team shirt, its sole contact with my skin makes it stand on an end.”

ON PELE

“There would be no debate about who was the best footballer the world had ever seen, me or Pele. Everyone would say me. Pele should go back to the museum.”

ON THE HAND OF GOD

“I was waiting for my teammates to embrace me and no one came... I told them, ‘Come hug me or the referee isn't going to allow it’. If I could apologise and go back and change history I would do. But the goal is still a goal, Argentina became world champions and I was the best player in the world.”

ON LIONEL MESSI

“Messi scores a goal and celebrates. Cristiano (Ronaldo) scores a goal and poses like he's in a shampoo commercial.”

Diego in the words of others

“Even if I played for a million years, I'd never come close to Maradona. Not that I'd want to anyway. He's the greatest there's ever been.”

— Lionel Messi.

“No ball ever had a better experience than when it was at his left foot.”

— Argentina teammate Jorge Valdano.

“Diego, for all Argentinians, is God. And he always will be.”

— Carlos Tevez.

“The best player there has ever been, better than Pele.”

— Ruud Gullit, Dutch legend

“What (Zinedine) Zidane could do with a ball, Maradona could do with an orange.”

— Michel Platini, French great

“Maradona. When he was on form, there was almost no way of stopping him.”

— Former AC Milan and Italy defender Franco Baresi, when asked who was the best player he faced.

“Maradona is a God to the people of Naples. Maradona changed history. In 80 years, we had always suffered, fighting against relegation, yet in seven seasons with him we won two leagues, a UEFA Cup, two Italian Cups. I'm a fan too and to live those years with Maradona was incredible.”

— Naples native Fabio Cannavaro, who was in the youth ranks at Napoli when Maradona was there and later won the World Cup with Italy in 2006.
