Saturday. SAD spokesman Daljit Singh Cheema said the party’s core committee was likely to discuss the issue of alliance tomorrow. “The party president is keen on a head-start for the

The Tribune had reported a series of meetings between leaders of both parties in December last year. The parties had agreed in principle to contest the elections together, but differences on sharing seats remained. Sources hinted that the BSP was demanding more seats in the Doaba belt as it had a stronger base there.

Khori residents protest demolition

8 arrested, 100 booked | Water, power supply snapped | Cops use mild lathicharge

TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

Faridabad, June 11

Hundreds of residents of Khori Gaon Basti colony staged a march-cum-demonstration in Surajkund today morning in protest against the impending demolition of their houses following a Supreme Court order.

About 100 persons were booked for blocking the road, while eight persons were arrested, said a police spokesperson. Colony residents, however, said 15 persons were detained last night and six of them had been sent to judicial custody. The case has been registered under Sections 109, 114, 147, 149, 186, 188, 269, 283, 341 and 506 of the IPC, and Section 61 of the Disaster Management Act.

They assembled on the main road near the Faridabad-Delhi border around 6.30 am and squatted there, raising slogans against the state government and the MC authorities. They demanded release of the arrested persons and rehabilitation before the demolition drive.

The protest came to an end at 8.30 am after the police dispersed the demonstrators following a mild lathicharge. The Supreme Court had, on Monday, ordered the eviction of encroachers from around 10,000 residential structures constructed illegally at Lakkarpur Khori village in Aravalli forest area of Faridabad district. The protesters were asked to form a committee, which would put forward their grievances to the DC.

Bandhua Mukti Morcha

general secretary Nirmal Gorana said a transit camp should be constructed to shelter residents of the colony before starting the demolition drive. “The state government should intervene on humanitarian grounds. Residents are victims, not accused.”

A memorandum was emailed to the Chief Minister,

Chief Secretary and DC, seeking their intervention.

Meanwhile, the protesters claimed the authorities had cut off the power and water supply to their houses. Mala and Sarina Sarkar, women residents, said there was no water and power supply since morning.

Water is mainly supplied through tankers, while electricity comes from Delhi.

Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) MP Sushil Gupta, who visited the colony today, asked the state government to rehabilitate the affected persons before starting the demolition drive.

Garima Mittal, MC Commissioner, said: “A public announcement was made, asking residents to vacate the colony as houses will be demolished soon in compliance with the SC order.”

Though no date of demolition has been announced, it has been learnt that it would happen next week.

GURUGRAM, JUNE 11

The arrest of a Chinese spy by the BSF in Bengal and his disclosure of having run a hotel in Gurugram for over one and a half years has brought the Gurugram police under scanner.

After drawing flak for failure of intelligence, the police have now started a verification drive.

“We have launched a verification drive at hotels and guest houses about their owners and the people residing there. We are tracking those who have not got police verification done. Paying guest house owners too have been asked to get all the details of inmates and get them verified under tenant verification,” said a senior police official.

The Chinese spy was identified as Han Junwei (36). He had been running a hotel in Gurugram’s DLF phase-3 by using a fake Aadhaar card. He was residing in Gurugram’s posh area.

Some of the staffers in this hotel are from China

He had taken hotel on 10-year lease in Gurugram while the rest are Indians. Hotel owner Jaiveer Lohia, a resident of Nathupur village, confirmed that the accused had taken his hotel on 10-year lease in October 2019.

Parul Lohia, a relative of the hotel owner, said that Han was regular in rent payment, posed as an Indian and never gave any reason to suspect him. “If there was anything fishy, we would never have given him our hotel,” said Lohia.

The authorities suspect that the accused may have got fake Aadhaar card from Gurugram and investigation in this regard are being conducted.

SHIMLA, JUNE 11
The Himachal Pradesh Private Educational Institutions Regulatory Commission (HPPIERC) today imposed a penalty of Rs 11 lakh on the IEC University, Baddi, for the violation of admission norms.

The university is running 30 external and self-paced learning courses that are not recognised by the distance education mode of the University Grants Commission (UGC) and without the fee approval from the state government.

The courses were started last year (academic session 2020-21) after getting prior approval of the HPPIERC, which allowed the courses after “conditional” approval in principle, keeping in view the Covid-19 situation and future learning technologies/methodologies with specific condition to provide entire details with number of teaching hours and days, examination and admission procedures but the sanctioned intake of the seats was not granted for these courses.

The commission observed that before seeking a formal approval from the HPPIERC, the university enrolled over 3,039 students by taking cover under the letter of conditional approval and collected fees to the tune of Rs 30 lakh, said chairman, HPPIERC, Maj Gen (retd) Atul Kaushik.

In the interim order passed today, the education regulator held that it was a clear-cut violation of the admission norms as well as the provisions of the IEC University Act as neither the student intake for courses was granted nor the mandatory fee approval was sought from the state government.

Moreover, the details of faculty, teaching hours, examination and admission procedures were also not submitted.

As the future of over 3,039 students enrolled in these unapproved courses is at stake due to negligence of the university, an expert panel would be constituted to analyse the infrastructure, faculty for conversion of external and self-paced learning courses to regular courses.

Finally, electricity supply given after 40-year struggle

RAVINDER SOOD

PALAMPUR, JUNE 11
Sandhya Devi, a resident of Bag Uprala village in ward number 10 of the Palampur Municipal Corporation, is a happy woman today as she finally got an electricity connection in her house after about 40 years of struggle.

Sandhya Devi got the power connection after a video went viral.

said that her late husband Birta Ram had served in the Army for 32 years and had constructed a house in his native village in 1983. Birta, during his lifetime, made all efforts to get electricity supply in his house. After he passed away, Sandhya Devi picked up the baton to realise his dream but her applications were turned down by the HPSEBL authorities time and again on “flimsy” grounds.

However, when a video of mediapersons went viral one social media this morning, the HPSEBL authorities swung into action and installed a temporary electricity connection at her house.

When a group of mediapersons today visited the Bag Uprala village for a reality check, Sandhya Devi

Higher education uptick

Positive sign, but focus has to be on preparing for jobs

THE 2019-20 report of the All India Survey on Higher Education, that provides key performance indicators, puts the total enrolment in the country at 3.85 crore: 1.9 crore male and 1.89 crore female students. There has been an overall growth of 11.4 per cent in the last five years; female enrolment during the period has gone up by 18.2 per cent. The number of institutions of national importance has increased to 135 from 75. The continuous rise in enrolment, number of institutions and gender parity in higher education signals a positive change, yet the findings call for detailed scrutiny, more so in light of the shrinking job market. More young people choosing to pursue higher education is a welcome sign, but not in the absence of clear career goals and guidance.

Female participation in professional courses is lower in comparison to academic courses at both the under-graduate and post-graduate levels; the share of girl students is lowest in institutes of national importance. The trend needs intervention. The pandemic has brought to the fore the need for having a lot more of the skilled workforce in the critical healthcare sector and allied services. Encouraging and preparing students for tasks that require intensive learning and training, and for which the demand is only going to increase, is one way to course-correct. Research and cutting-edge learning, too, have to be exponentially incentivised. Financial constraints cannot be allowed to come in the way of India's brightest.

A healthy aspect of the report is the number of institutions maintaining a playground: 89 per cent of universities, 92 per cent of colleges. Around 94 per cent of universities, 98 per cent colleges and 98 per cent standalone institutions have library facility, though nothing less than 100 per cent makes sense. For PhD, 2.02 lakh students are registered, but only 26.73 lakh have enrolled for diploma courses, that too mostly in teacher training, nursing and technical streams. Again, not so encouraging figures; jobs have to be at the core of the pursuit of higher education.

Poor vaccination rate

Need to maximise gains by focusing on priority groups

GOVERNMENT data showing vaccine coverage below the national average for both priority groups — health and front-line workers — in Punjab and Haryana is a cause for concern. Though the Covid vaccination drive for health workers began in mid-January, in Punjab, as late as May-end, as many as 28 per cent of them were yet to get even the first dose. It's a poor show, given that the national average for the first dose administration in this category is 82 per cent. In fact, Punjab lags behind in vaccinating the 45-plus age group also, with its first dose coverage being just 30.04 per cent against the countrywide mean of 33.7 per cent.

These gaps in the inoculation of the priority groups flag certain challenges and the need to focus on surmounting them for deriving optimal immunity benefits. While initially, vaccine hesitancy, stemming from scepticism and fear of adverse side effects, was the main cause of the low turnout, the vaccination pace has slackened further in the past few weeks due to a shortage of jabs. Though Punjab has infrastructure to administer three lakh doses a day, the supply chain permits just 60,000-70,000 doses. Studies indicating less severity of Covid-19 infection and zero mortality among those fully vaccinated should motivate all those having apprehensions about the shots to queue up for the doses.

The state governments need to consider evidence-based flexibility in vaccine schedules as per the logistics available and various ongoing researches. For instance, a latest report by health experts has flagged that mass, indiscriminate and incomplete vaccination can trigger the emergence of mutant strains. It has suggested that at present, while those who had coronavirus infection need not be inoculated, priority be accorded to vaccinating the vulnerable and those at risk, rather than going for a population-wide coverage. To maximise gains, it has recommended a reduced time interval for the second dose for areas with Covid surges. The vax strategy could be further guided by mapping the vulnerability at the district level through repeated local-level serosurveys. While districts recording over 70 per cent seroprevalence were fit for a return to normalcy, those with low levels required lockdowns and vax prioritisation.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

In the face of uncertainty, there is nothing wrong with hope. — O Carl Simonton

ON THIS DAY...100 YEARS AGO

LAHORE, SUNDAY, JUNE 12, 1921

A Misunderstanding.

MAHATMA Gandhi seems to misunderstand the position of those who, like ourselves, have been asking that the course which the Government has followed in the case of the Ali brothers should be followed in all similar cases, including the cases of persons charged with promoting disaffection of a less violent character. What Gandhi says in effect is (1) that sedition stands on a different footing to incitement to violence, and that while the latter is inconsistent with the faith of the non-co-operator; it is the duty of every non-co-operator to preach disaffection to the existing system, and (2) that the persons concerned will not give the undertaking. The question, however, is not what the persons concerned will or will not do, whether it is not the Government's duty to give them the same opportunity that they did give to the Ali brothers in this case. When the opportunity has been given, it will be for the former to consider whether they can or cannot avail themselves of it. If they cannot truthfully say that they did not intend to preach it, there is clearly no occasion for them to express their regret for any words that may have escaped them in the heat of the moment or give an undertaking regarding the future. Nor is there any occasion for them to do either if, as is often the case, the prosecution is entirely wrong and the persons concerned used no words that can rightly be interpreted as seditious. In this case they must go to prison. But it is just possible that there may be cases in which men did say what they did not mean. Why should they not have the opportunity afforded to the brothers? Then there are the cases of those who are actually charged with violence of one kind or another. These cases are clearly too of the same level as that of the Ali brothers, for as in that case so in these, the issue is false.

Middle class on shaky ground

The average household income has gone below the lowest point of 2019

AUNINDYO CHAKRAVARTY
SENIOR ECONOMIC ANALYST

WE have enough evidence to show that the Covid pandemic has left most Indians poorer. Even the recovery that we saw in October last year barely managed to put an average Indian family on a par with where it was two years ago. CMIE's latest data shows that even in January, when many believed India had defeated the coronavirus, the average household income was below the lowest point of 2019. Pew Research estimates that the number of poor people in India more than doubled last year.

This is likely to be an understatement, since Pew Research made its projections based on income distribution data from 2011. CMIE's data, analysed by economists from Azim Premji University, shows that income inequality increased in 2020. Their 'State of Working' report tells us that labour's share of GDP dropped from 32.5% in 2019-20 to 27% in the middle of 2020-21. Nearly half of those who had salaried jobs in the formal sector moved into informal jobs.

About 100 million people lost their jobs in the beginning of the pandemic, which was roughly 25% of those who had work in 2019. Even at the end of 2020, 15 million people couldn't find work. Those who did get employed had to settle for lower pay. CMIE's data shows that average incomes bounced back in October 2020. But even here inflation took away most of the gains. The report shows that an average worker's real income dropped by 17% in September-October 2020, compared to the same period a year ago. Self-employed people were the worst hit, but even those with permanent salaried jobs saw a 5% decline in their real 'inflation-adjusted' income.

COVID EFFECT: The proportion of the poor rose from 22% in 2019 to 39% in 2020. Even the cream of India's employees does not feel secure in their jobs. PTI

About 100 million people lost their jobs in the beginning of the pandemic — roughly 25% of those who had work in 2019.

The report says that an additional 230 million people fell below the 'national minimum wage' threshold of poverty. In absolute terms that means that the proportion of poor people rose from 22% in 2019 to 39% in 2020. In the middle of all this, India Inc made record profits. By the beginning of this year; the best-placed corporate employees saw a slight improvement in their situation. CMIE's latest wave of its Consumer Pyramids Household Survey shows that the number of 'company employees' who work in offices increased from 10 million to 11 million in the first four months of 2021 compared to last year. On the other hand, company employees who work outside offices — factories, construction sites, retail outlets, laboratories, deliveries, running errands — declined from 41 million to 36 million in the same period.

We would probably be right in assuming that a significant proportion of 'white-collar' jobs would be concentrated amongst those working from offices. CMIE's data shows that the number of such 'office' workers remained stable throughout 2020 and increased in 2021. Yet, anecdotal evidence and news reports suggest that many such jobs were lost during the peak of the first wave last year. This apparent anomaly can be explained if corporates have used the pandemic to let go of senior high-cost employees, promoting those in the middle to senior positions without a commensurate pay hike, and employing younger people at low salaries to fill vacancies.

Of course, the situation might have changed from April, when the second wave began, when several corporates announced that they were downsizing. One estimate suggests that the total number of white-collar jobs dropped by 24% to less than 14 million between April 2020 and this April. Jobs portals suggest that hirings declined by 15% in April-May compared to the previous two months. A recent report shows a hiring pick-up in the last two weeks of May. This see-saw in white-collar jobs shows that they have become extremely unstable. It is difficult for even the cream of India's employees to feel secure in their jobs. That also means they will find it difficult to make any big spending decisions.

White-collar employees, along with successful entrepreneurs, account for the bulk of India's buying classes. They make up less than 5% of India's population. These 14-15 million households buy cars, air-conditioners, double-door refrigerators, washing machines, microwave ovens, smart TVs and high-end smartphones. They are the ones who eat regularly at restaurants or go on holidays. They spend on high-speed broadband services, DTH and OTT, and shop heavily online. They also invest in mutual funds and take loans to buy homes. Job security is essential to make these expenditure decisions.

If this class loses its consumer confidence, a big part of India's organised manufacturing and services sector will be hit. Data on consumption decisions suggest that this is already happening. CMIE's latest CPHS sweep shows that the intention to buy consumer durables dropped sharply in the first four months of 2021, compared to the same period last year. In January-April 2020, roughly 20 lakh households planned to buy a TV set. One year later that had dropped to less than 7 lakh households. Similarly, those who intended to buy refrigerators dropped from 23 lakh households to less than 7 lakh. Those planning to buy washing machines dropped from 30 lakh to just above 3 lakh.

These are clear signs that India's consuming classes are facing an unprecedented crisis. The difficulty of getting jobs, the low pay if one manages to get work, the long hours resulting from reduced bench strength in every office, and job insecurity, is going to have a long-lasting effect on how an entire generation approaches their economic life. This is especially so because the Covid-induced recession comes on the back of a decade of economic slow-down. About 30% of those employed today have not witnessed the boom period of the early 2000s, and have never experienced a 'wealth effect'.

Job insecurity and financial uncertainty also have a profound effect on people's personality. Both breed fear, promote obedience to authority, and suppress innovation. They also create a predisposition towards accepting autocratic behaviour from one's bosses. In the social sphere, they promote patriarchy, traditionalism and authoritarian politics. This is the 'long-term effect' of Covid that we are doomed to suffer for several years to come.

Elaborate vistas of monumental glory

MINA SURJIT SINGH

WHEN Pliny the Elder, the great Roman philosopher, referred to the Egyptian pyramids as "idle and frivolous pieces of ostentation of their resources, on the part of the monarchs of that country", he set into motion a whole process of thought on the utility or futility of raising such elaborate monuments at the behest of a ruler's whims or insecurities, arguing that there was great vanity in the construction of such humongous structures.

Centuries later, the same idea found an echo in Milton's imaginatively constructed palace of gold in Paradise Lost. An alluring citadel of incomparable grandeur, 'Pandemonium' had been conceived as a democratic alternative to the autocratic regime in heaven, built at the suggestion of Mammon. However, as the name suggests, it remained a place of utter darkness devoid of order or moral light.

While one acknowledges that reconstruction and innovation in architecture are important, is it ethical or even reasonable to prioritise grandiose projects at a time when matters of greater urgency demand our resources, planning and attention? When a nation ravaged by natural or man-made calamities is struggling to stay afloat, when the rancid stink of bodies burning in heaps or decaying for want of proper burial clouds the landscape, when the threat of a near collapse of the medical infrastructure haunts the mind, the construction of a lavish monument to vainglory is justly reprehensible.

The ambitious Central Vista Redevelopment Plan—a complex touted as much for its aesthetics as for being a huge source of employment — which includes a luxurious residence for the PM, aims to redesign and interconnect the 'corridors of power' of India through underground tunnels and labyrinthine passageways, possibly rife with intrigue. It proposes to uproot and replace Lutyens' and Baker's legacy with media-shy Bimal Patel's grand design, anticipated to be played out in a Parliament complex where our chosen representatives will gather to engage either in vigorous desk-thumping or uproarious disorder.

Ostensibly conceived as a tribute to our architectural excellence, it also seems a furtive attempt to pull down everyone and everything, including the stately ceremonial boulevard of New Delhi, which acts as a reminder of India's past subjugation and runs contrary to the present dispensation's notion of its rich religious and cultural tradition.

Much has already been said and written about the Central Government's raison d'être, yet its very mention remains a cause for national anxiety and dissent against such wasteful expenditure at the cost of the public exchequer. Meanwhile, amidst all this chaotic reality, the towering Statue of Unity looks vacantly at the sad spectacle of a country whose freedom the patriots had fought for so valiantly and passionately.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Messing with Lakshadweep

Reference to 'Lakshadweep conundrum'; it is extremely unfortunate that Lakshadweep, which is a picturesque archipelago of 36 islands, is entangled in political turmoil after the new administrator and the former BJP minister in Gujarat, Praful Khoda Patel, has pushed through a slew of new laws and regulations without consulting locally elected representatives, and thereby earning the wrath of the local Muslims who form the majority of the population in India's smallest UT. The local people fear that the new reforms under the pretext of 'development' will destroy their identity and culture, and ultimately impact the island's primary livelihood of fishing. All they want is a sense of tranquillity and belongingness in the peaceful landscape, which should not be spoiled by acts initiated for cheap political gains.

RANGANATHAN SIVAKUMAR, CHENNAI

Too harsh a punishment

Refer to 'Bigotry in cricket'; a distinction must be made between grave charges of systemic racism and younger players' indiscretions. Robinson was 18 at the time of his boorish tweets. Though that doesn't offer him a free pass, unless investigations reveal a continuing pattern of racist and sexist behaviour, stern punitive action against him may not be called for. He and others like him may need to be sensitised and educated, not punished and alienated.

SS PAUL, NADIA

Congress must wake up

Apropos of 'Prasada's defection', the turncoat cited his change of heart because of incessant letdown by the Congress leadership and the sworn enemy till yesterday has become his role model and inspiration. Simply put, all politicians treat voters as gullible and therefore have gumption to justify the change of the goalpost. That said, the Congress is unmoved by such defections and as usual persists to put up a brave face. The ground below the Congress is slipping, but it continues to live in a fool's paradise. Simply tweeting against Modi and belittling the government will not help. Now it is high time for it to come out of slumber otherwise it shall be consigned to history sooner than later.

DEEPAK SINGHAL, NOIDA

Jabs for frontline workers

The news report about below average performance in vaccinating healthcare/frontline workers in Punjab and Haryana is indeed disturbing, despite both states placed remarkably well in infrastructure, including health. It is important that both states take imme-diated corrective steps to remove the bottlenecks and launch aggressive campaigns to allay the fears of individuals in this category. Since comprehensive data would be available with the respective authorities regarding those vaccinated, the heads of the institutions should take it upon themselves to persuade them for vaccination. With gradual liberalisation of vaccine policy and ease availability of vaccines and the growing awareness about the potential benefits, hopefully the situation shall improve significantly in the coming days.

DINESH KUMAR VERMA, PANCHKULA

Paddy sowing

Paddy sowing is going on across Punjab and electricity is being given free to farmers. Since paddy is a water-guzzling crop, water is being pumped out daily, unmindful of the underground water table depleting very fast. Most districts have already been declared dark zones. Sangrur was the first one but still paddy is being sown. New tubewell connections are also being released. The Centre as well as the state governments who are contributing rice to the Central pool have been making a hue and cry for crop diversification, but none could come out with any remedial measures. Farmers may be ready for diversification but they are hesitant because of non-assurance of remunerative price for their produce. Already the three agriculture laws are hanging fire for repeal and the farmers have been protesting for months. Under such circumstances, how is crop diversification possible?

RAJ KUMAR KAPOOR, ROPAR

Pensionary benefits

The SC, vide its decision in Darshan Singh Vs State of Punjab, declared that 214 employees of Punjab's panchayat samitis and zila parishads, who retired between May 11, 1995, and June 30, 1999, were eligible for pension. A few employees of these institutions who retired during this period have not been included in the list of beneficiaries. The Punjab Government is requested that in order to provide socio-economic security to aged persons, a special chance should be given to the retired employees of panchayati raj institutions who have left out of the list for no fault of theirs. Some courts have directed the authorities that when a court case is implemented after attaining finality, its benefit ought to be extended to other similarly situated persons also. Thus, the pensionary benefit can be extended to other similarly situated persons by generalising the decision of the apex court.

KARNAIL SINGH, BATHINDA

Looking beyond the second wave of Covid

AFTER two months of the devastating second wave, India's Covid cases seem to be on a downward trend. India saw an unprecedented spike in the daily caseload beginning in March, reaching over four lakh in the first week of May this year with deaths crossing 4,500 on a single day, the highest in the world. The test positivity had also crossed an alarming 25%. The main reasons for the explosion of cases were lowering of the guard on masks and social distancing due to complacency, congregations during election rallies and the emergence of new more transmissible variants of the virus.

India is now witnessing another epidemic, that of mucormycosis. Already approximately 30,000 cases have been reported. Present data suggest that Rhizopus arrhizus is the predominant agent causing Covid-associated mucormycosis (CAM) in India. A majority of (CAM) patients have uncontrolled diabetes. At the PGI, over 200 new CAM cases have been seen so far in 2021, with a majority having Covid while about 15% had recovered from it and some did not have Covid. Apart from the fact that steroids can cause elevation in blood sugar levels, SARS-CoV-2 itself can induce damage to pancreatic islets cells, which have a high expression of ACE-2 receptors. Increased resistance to insulin due to the inflammatory reaction may also be responsible for the elevation of blood sugar. A significant observation is that hardly any patient treated for Covid-19 at the PGI developed mucormycosis. This suggests that indiscriminate and prolonged use of steroids by treating doctors is the key factor. Despite guidelines clearly stating that steroids are recommended for moderate or severe cases only when oxygen levels drop, patients have been receiving steroids in many mild cases.

Apart from the unwarranted use of steroids in many patients, there has been a widespread practice of giving multiple antibiotics, Ivermectin, Hydroxychloroquin and sometimes prophylactic antifungal drugs by physicians. Even convalescent plasma continued to be used despite WHO negating its benefit over six months ago. The clamour for Remdesivir was also much beyond the actual number of patients who might have benefitted from it. These indiscretions caused panic resulting in hoarding and black marketing. People even stockpiled oxygen at home. Many doctors are yet to follow the Ministry of Health and Family Welfare guidelines, either ignoring them or not being aware of them.

One major cause of the destruction caused by the second wave is the emergence of Delta variant. Mutations in the viral genome leading to development of variants can make the virus more transmissible and immune to vaccines or make it cause more severe disease. Duration of infectiousness may also be increased. A recent CSIR-led research on genomic analysis of samples from November 2020 to April 2021 has shown Delta variant to be the dominant strain in India. This strain is 70% more transmissible than the Alpha variant which itself is 50% more transmissible than the original virus.

A significant observation is that hardly any patient treated for Covid-19 at the PGI developed mucormycosis. This suggests that indiscriminate and prolonged use of steroids by treating doctors is the key factor. Despite guidelines clearly stating that steroids are recommended for moderate or severe cases only when oxygen levels drop, patients have been receiving steroids in many mild cases.

BATTLING THE SURGE: There has been an epidemic of Covid-associated mucormycosis in the country with most of the patients having uncontrolled diabetes. PFI

Other research (Lancet June 3) has shown that two doses of Pfizer-BioN-tech vaccine had five times less neutralising antibodies against the Delta variant than against other variants. Delta variant has also been thought to cause more severe disease.

It is important for India to increase genomic sequencing so as to be ahead of impending likelihood of resurgence due to more infectious or more deadly strains. Being a large country, we need to sequence samples from different states. The importance of this strategy can be gauged from the fact that after the emergence of Delta variant in the UK, the government has slowed down lifting of the lockdown.

Additionally, there is a need to do serological surveys in different parts of the country. Antibody levels give an estimate of the population which is still vulnerable. Using this data, we can strategise our vaccination delivery better.

There has been speculation that India may have a third wave in a few months. This is based on the emergence of a third wave in some countries like Italy, France and UK after 8 to 23 weeks of the second wave. No one can deny this likelihood till we have adequate herd immunity through natural infection or vaccination. Moreover, there being a probability of new variants which may escape immunity, another wave is very much possible. Some experts believe that it is not a question of 'if' but 'when'. It is also being speculated that the third wave will involve children. The logic behind that is the likely protection of adults through natural infection or vaccination, leaving children vulnerable. However, experience from Europe and the US suggests that children are infrequently affected. Some experts attribute it to the lack of ACE-2 and other receptors in lungs of children. However, with the current rate of vaccination, even large segments of our total population remain susceptible to one or more waves. In any case, we need to ramp up our paediatric healthcare and augment infrastructure, especially oxygen supply which was found wanting earlier.

To limit the damage in coming months after the rampaging second wave, we need to pull all our resources. Foremost of them is vaccination. With the announcement of a new vaccine policy of the government and increased availability of vaccines in coming months, we need to scale up daily vaccinations to 70 lakh a day or more to hope to reach herd immunity in the next six months. That remains our best bet against the next wave.

There have been concerns about the adverse effects of vaccines and the chances of re-infection. So far, an insignificant number of serious adverse effects have been reported in India so far. Re-infection or breakthrough infection after two doses of vaccine is also quite low. In a study from PGI on vaccinated healthcare workers who had completed at least two weeks after the second dose, only 1.6% of the 3,000 recipients got re-infected. Among those who were never vaccinated, the number of infections was six times more.

As the lockdown got lifted partially a few days back, we are seeing people flocking to markets and flouting social distancing norms. After a peak of four lakh cases, 80,000-90,000 cases look reassuring but they have the potential to cause a flare-up. We must avoid crowding, social gatherings and unnecessary travel yet. We must continue with the mask and ensure it is worn properly. Since the virus also spreads through aerosols, proper ventilation of buildings must be ensured. This holds true especially for government offices. We must bring back the same seriousness as we had in the initial days of the pandemic, a limited number of clients or customers entering premises and queues being maintained with a distance of two metres. It is too early yet to reopen educational institutions. Lastly, as the second wave had a high attack rate among household members, contact tracing and isolation must be continued for positive cases.

We are a long way away from overcoming the pandemic. Therefore, we must not lower our guard. While the authorities need to focus on organising vaccination, serological surveys and genome typing, the public needs to stick to masking, avoiding crowded places and going unhesitatingly for the job.

Review strategy to tackle Left-wing extremism

The Indian State has not been able to tackle the Maoist challenge fully for decades in spite of years of planning, schemes, funds and deployment of forces. The progress is rather slow. Even now, the Maoists are able to kill a large number of security persons at regular intervals and take away their weapons & communication equipment. What's needed is a strong political will on a long-term basis.

AN important news item this week about the proposed meeting of a tribal delegation with the CM and Governor of Chhattisgarh to lodge a protest against the establishment of a security camp near Silger in the state went almost unnoticed at the national level. Basically, the tribals have been put up as a front by the Maoists because they have been rattled by this new security camp; three of them were killed in firing from the camp when they attacked it on May 17. They don't want such camps around to check their activities in the interior areas dominated by them.

The Maoists don't believe in Indian democracy and their aim is to overthrow the Indian State by violent means. They have been trying to achieve this for decades after the CPI decided to join electoral politics in 1951. Starting with Naxalbari in 1967, there have been many groups, by splits and mergers, depending on their success or failure in different states, finally forming the CPI (Maoist) in 2004 by the merger of PWG (People's War Group) and MCCI (Maoist Communist Centre of India); and it has been a force to reckon with since then. At one time, they had a Red Corridor from Pashupatinath to Tirupati, covering many states. With setbacks over the years, they are most active today in Bastar (Chhattisgarh) and Gadchiroli (Maharashtra), along with some activities in Bihar, Jharkhand, Madhya Pradesh, Odisha, Telangana and Andhra Pradesh. Their effective presence has come down from over 100 districts to about one-third now with depleted strength. So, some success has been achieved by the State, but no final victory so far.

RED ALERT: Security forces have to stop violence, not resolve issues in Maoist-hit areas. PFI

Their basic area of operation has been the tribal belts of these states having dense forests and difficult terrain. They exploit the tribals living there by brainwashing them about the social and economic injustice meted out to them, lack of development, displacement from their land for government projects etc. Some of these grievances are genuine as the State has not been able to address these properly. The Maoists also don't allow development to take place either as they will lose their base. Taking advantage of inter-state boundaries and moving swiftly to the adjoining state by crossing over when they are under pressure in one state has been their operational strength along with guerrilla warfare. For funding, they depend on extortion and aid. They are also helped by urban Naxals and many sympathisers inside and outside the country. The poor tribals are caught in the crossfire of the Maoists and the security forces.

The Indian State has not been able to tackle this challenge fully for decades in spite of years of planning, schemes, funds and deployment of forces. The progress is rather slow.

Even now, the Maoists are able to kill a large number of security persons at regular intervals and take away their weapons and communication equipment. Definitely a relook at the strategy is needed. A four-point strategy is suggested for consideration.

The first is the requirement of a strong political will on a long-term basis. This was helpful in controlling situations in Punjab, Tripura and Andhra Pradesh. But the advantage there was that state-specific issues were at stake and here it is an inter-state problem. Unfortunately, the will has been missing due to the very nature of our federal structure and rule of different political parties at the Centre and the states over the decades, each having its own political agenda even in relation to this problem including some having sympathy for them, others at times favouring talks which of course have been offered but could not take place because the Maoists don't want to shun violence and weapons during the talks. So, it is very important that on the issue of controlling Maoist violence, there should be unanimity among the political parties. The Centre should take the lead in this regard.

Secondly, the state police forces must lead the operations as only locals can tackle such a problem and the present dual system of paramilitary forces working alongside cannot work effectively. The state police should be bolstered by increasing its strength and providing full support to police stations. To increase its strength immediately, all the battalions of paramilitary forces working there should be sent on deputation/absorption to the affected states. An example is the BSF which was raised in 1965 after the war with Pakistan by merging state armed police battalions of border states, pending its recruitment to raise the force further. Out of battalions, a few should be earmarked as 'peace battalions' by the states for providing security to the development projects in the areas. Further, the Army's help should be taken in training these battalions in counter-insurgency operations. And psychological operations using social media as a big component must be an integral part of these operations. For inter-state coordination, the Centre should station a commander/coordinator in the region. All the state governments in the country should help in dealing legally with urban Naxals who support violence.

Thirdly, the basic issues of socio-economic rights, livelihood of the tribals and development projects in these areas should be speeded up. The job of the security forces is only to contain violence and not resolve issues.

Fourthly, this battle must be fought on the ideological front. Communism has a big appeal for the poor tribals, especially when it matches with the ground reality of there being haves and have-nots. There are many organisations in the country that can contribute to reducing inequality.

With all these steps, besides the good work being done, there can be hope of tackling early this internal security challenge which may otherwise linger on for decades.

Narendra Modi that there is no need to vaccinate those with documented Covid-19 infection. NITI Aayog Member VK Paul today noted, "Respected institutions have submitted their views and we will consider these and also engage the experts one on one. Whether the Covid infected should or should not take a vaccine would be decided through the institutional mechanism which is in place for the purpose. The NTAGI meets regularly to study emerging evidence and to decide on policy."

Paul said the current recommendation from NTAGI is that the Covid infected should take the shots three months after recovery (the WHO recommends shots six months post recovery).

"If more data emerges, the policy can be nuanced. It is dynamic. There is no hardcore ideological position in science. Suggestions will be appropriately discussed. NTAGI consists of experts who are globally commended," said Paul, advocating the same thought

The experts in their report to the PM have said, "Those infected with Covid may be vaccinated after there's evidence that the vaccine is beneficial after natural infection." They have also argued against the current mass indiscriminate vaccination. "Vaccinating the vulnerable and those at risk, instead of mass population-wide inoculation, should be the aim at present," the report said. — TNS

"If we want geographies to be protected, states have to do their own sero surveys to enable local policy decisions," said Paul. The last sero survey had put Covid prevalence rate in adults at 25 per cent (25 per cent people had developed antibodies against Covid). Vinesh wins third gold of season

WARSAW, JUNE 11
Star Indian wrestler Vinesh Phogat proved that her preparations for the Tokyo Games were on track as she won the 53kg gold at the Poland Open here today. Vinesh beat Ukraine's Khrystyna Bereza 8-0 in the final. Vinesh took most of her points through double-leg attacks while the 2019 European silver medalist Bereza was on the defensive throughout. It is the third title of the season for the 26-year-old Vinesh, who had also claimed gold medals at the Matteo Pellicone event in March and Asian Championship in April. Except for her opening bout against 2019 World Championship bronze winner Ekaterina Poleschchuk,

No India hop for Tokyo hopefuls, athletes told to reach Japan directly

VINAYAK PADMADEO
TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE
NEW DELHI, JUNE 11
As the Indian athletes' preparations for the Tokyo Olympics enter the final stretch, the Sports Ministry and the Sports Authority of India (SAI) are working overtime to ensure that there are no last-minute setbacks. The Ministry and SAI have told the National Sports Federations to ensure the Tokyo-bound athletes who are training abroad — and especially the medal hopefuls — are sent directly to Japan from their foreign training bases. "It is relatively safer for them to travel directly to Tokyo from wherever they are training, so we are encouraging all the federations to plan accordingly," SAI director general Sandip Pradhan told The Tribune. "We had a few athletes who wanted to come back to get their paperwork in order but we have told them to not bother with those things as we can get it (paperwork) serviced for them," he added.

Weightlifter Mirabai Chanu — who is training in St Louis in the USA — and wrestler Vinesh Phogat, who is currently in Warsaw, wanted to return to India before heading to Tokyo. Besides, SAI got Vinesh vaccinated last Saturday, using the good offices of the External Affairs Ministry. SAI is also trying to extend the stay of skeet shooters Mairaj Ahmad Khan and Angad Vir Singh Bajwa in Italy. Their visas are set to expire on July 6 and SAI is Weightlifter Mirabai Chanu — who is training in the USA — and wrestler Vinesh Phogat, who is currently in Poland, wanted to return to India before heading to Tokyo in touch with the External Affairs Ministry to get their stay extended so that the duo can fly to Tokyo directly from Italy. The SAI chief also informed that he has spoken to Hockey India officials to send the teams out of the country as well. The plan to send medal prospects directly to Tokyo may also work in the athletes' favour as travelling from a foreign country may exempt them from hard quarantine measures that the Olympics organisers may impose on countries — such as India — that are going through a strong Covid wave.

Spare rooms for sick
SAI and the Indian Olympic Association (IOA) have drawn a contingency plan for any athlete who catches the virus during the Olympics. IOA has booked rooms to accommodate its officials and support staff who cannot be accommodated in the Games Village. A few rooms will be designated for Indian athletes who are diagnosed as asymptomatic. The Sports Ministry would be footing the additional bill. "If any of our athletes are asymptomatic, they can be put in quarantine in those rooms. Of course everything will be done as per Japan's health protocol," a source said.

I was in training mode in Lisbon event: Neeraj

NEW DELHI, JUNE 11
Olympics-bound star Indian javelin thrower Neeraj Chopra today said his 83.18m gold-winning effort in the Lisbon event was achieved in training mode, adding that he will take his performance up a notch in the upcoming international meets. The 23-year-old made a promising start to his Olympics preparations with a decent 83.18m which he achieved in his sixth and final throw in the Lisbon event on Thursday. It was his first competition in more than a year. "We knew beforehand who are competing in this event in Lisbon and my coach told me to compete in training mode and not to go 100 per cent," Chopra said. "I had very less time for the competition and it was taken like training," he added. — PTI

Adaptability will be key in WTC final, says Ashwin

SOUTHAMPTON, JUNE 11
A "well-planned and knit" New Zealand side with two Tests against England under their belt will come into the World Test Championship final with an advantage and the Indian team will have to adapt and be ready for the challenge, feels senior off-spinner Ravichandran Ashwin. "I expect a well-planned and knit New Zealand team to come at us. Having played two Tests definitely come with an advantage so we have to adapt to that," Ashwin said. The WTC final, starting here on June 18, will be a culmination of two years of hardwork, said senior pacers Ishant Sharma and Mohammed Shami.

For Ishant, the only man with 100 Tests under his belt in the current team, termed it as a great effort. "It's been a practical as well as emotional journey, and this is an ICC tournament which is as big as 50-over WC final," Ishant said. "Virat (Kohli) has said this is not our sweat and hard work of just one month but over a period of two years...we won a tough series in Australia. We came back against England as we had to win 3-1," said India's latest member in the 300-wicket club. Shami said: "It's about giving 110 per cent as this is last ditch effort of our two years of hard work. It's important that we give it our all and double our effort." — PTI

Mukul, son back in Trinamool

Didi says will not take back those who betrayed just ahead of polls

TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

KOLKATA/NEW DELHI, JUNE 11 In a setback to the BJP, Mukul Roy, the first Trinamool Congress (TMC) leader to have switched to the saffron party, on Friday returned to the TMC triggering off speculation about more such “turncoats” thronging back to TMC.

Roy, national vice-president of the BJP and party MLA from Krishnanagar Uttar constituency, turned up at the TMC office in Kolkata this afternoon with his former MLA son Subhrangshu Roy (38). They were welcomed back into the TMC by party’s national general secretary Abhishek Banerjee in the presence of Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee.

Apparently, Roy was contemplating returning to the TMC as far back as March this year when the Assembly elections were underway in the state.

Banerjee said, “Roy did not utter a single word against the TMC during the Assembly elections.” She said those turncoats who had attacked the TMC at the time of elections and “betrayed” the party would Mukul joined the BJP in 2017. Roy’s name had figured in the Narada sting case being probed by the CBI. Roy’s critics claimed that he switched to BJP to avoid CBI action. Asked what led him to return to the TMC, Roy said he would soon give a detailed written statement on this. “I could not do BJP I will not do BJP. That is why I have returned to my original home,” he said without specifying any particular reason.

Banerjee said Roy was forced to join the BJP. “Agency was used to intimidate him,” she added. The CM said, “I had noticed that his health was deteriorating. It is not possible to work for the BJP. There is so much repression, so much cruelty....there is no place there for any human value.”

Meanwhile, BJP’s Bengal MP Swapan Dasgupta today tweeted, “An election setback is of concern. The task of Bengal BJP is to draw the lessons and move ahead. These steps are underway and will become evident. There’s no cause for new and old karyakartas to be dispirited and go into a shell. The BJP will build on the 2.2 crore votes and enlarge its reach.” While the BJP leadership dismissed as “inconsequential” Roy’s ‘ghar wapsi’, also calling him an “opportunist” who passed on “internal information of BJP to TMC”, there are concerns in the party which also draws significant strength from the play of perceptions.

This is also almost the first instance when a leader of Roy’s designation (vice president) has walked out of the BJP under Modi-Shah. “He was someone who was suitably accommodated in the organisation,” party leaders say.

While Roy was said to be upset over being denied the Leader of Opposition post and the increasing clout of Suwendu Adhikari, his return may have just opened doors to other former TMC leaders, observers say.

Ripples in Maha, Prashant Kishor meets Pawar

MUMBAI, JUNE 11

Political strategist Prashant Kishor on Friday called on NCP president Sharad Pawar at the latter’s residence here and held talks with him for around three hours, setting tongues wagging in political circles.

NCP sources said apart from discussing the prevailing political situation, Pawar hosted lunch for Kishor.

The meeting got over by around 2 pm, but neither Kishor nor Pawar spoke to the mediapersons gathered outside the NCP chief’s residence.

This is Kishor’s first meeting with Pawar after the victory of the DMK and TMC in the Assembly elections in Tamil Nadu and West Bengal, respectively. He had helped craft the election strategy for these parties in the Assembly elections.

After the assembly poll results, the election strategist had said that he was “quitting this space”. — PTI

VIBHA SHARMA

NEW DELHI, JUNE 11

A day after meeting Home Minister Amit Shah, Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath today called on Prime Minister Narendra Modi and BJP president JP Nadda amid reports of “disent” in the state BJP and possibility of a Cabinet rejig.

The PM later held a separate meeting with Shah and Nadda, said sources, adding that a decision on the induction of new faces, including from NDA allies Apna Dal and Nishad Party, in the UP Cabinet could be expected “soon”.

The sources said Jitin Prasad, former Congress leader from UP who recently made a high-profile entry into the saffron party, called on Adityanath last evening. The buzz is that the Prime Minister may also induct some leaders from poll-bound states, including UP, in his Cabinet to give a

U'khand disaster due to rock & ice avalanche: Study

NEW DELHI, JUNE 11

The February 7 disaster in Chamoli district of Uttarakhand, which resulted in over 200 dead or missing, was the result of an avalanche that dropped about 27 million cubic metres of rock and glacier ice from nearby Ronti Peak, according to a study by an international team of researchers.

The region experienced the tragedy when a wall of debris and water barrelled down the Ronti Gad, Rishiganga and Dhauliganga river valleys.

To investigate the cause, scope and impacts of the disaster, a global team of 53 scientists came together in the days following the tragedy.

The researchers, including those from Jawaharlal Nehru University in New Delhi and Indian Institute of Technology Indore, determined that the flood was caused by falling rock and glacier ice that melted on its descent, and not by a lake or diverted river.

The study, published in the journal Science on Thursday, suggests that climate change is contributing to such events happening more frequently, and highlights risks of increasing development projects in fragile environments.

The avalanche rapidly transformed into an extraordinarily large and mobile debris flow, the researchers said. — PTI

94% protection against serious illness in vaccinated docs: Study

ADITI TANDON
TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

NEW DELHI, JUNE 11

Covishield and Covaxin are working very well against severe Covid symptoms, shows a new research by Christian Medical College (CMC), Vellore.

Led by John Victor, Director, CMC, the research concludes that vaccination is protective and the best tool against looming future waves of the pandemic.

“Even as many states chose to restrict movement to reduce stress on the healthcare system, we realise that future waves can at best be prevented or at worst mitigated through aggressive and widespread vaccination,” authors say in a pre-print submitted for peer review.

The study found the protective effect of vaccination in preventing infection, hospitalisation, need for oxygen and ICU admission to be 65 per cent, 77 per cent, 92 per cent and 94 per cent, respectively, which means vaccines offer this level of protection to inoculated health workers.

The research is critical when the second dose coverage of Indian health and frontline workers is a dismal 56 per cent and 47 per cent and the first dose coverage 84 per cent and 85 per cent, respectively.
