SC grants interim bail to comedian Munawar Faruqui

New Delhi, Feb. 5: In a relief to comedian Munawar Faruqui, arrested in a case for allegedly hurting religious sentiments by passing objectionable remarks about Hindu deities during a show, the Supreme Court on Friday released him on an interim bail. The top court also stayed the Madhya Pradesh High Court order of January 28, which had refused to grant him bail noting that to “promote harmony” is one of the constitutional duties. It also stayed the production warrant issued against Faruqui by a trial court in Allahabad in Uttar Pradesh in connection with the FIR lodged in the state.

A bench of Justices R.F. Nariman and B.R. Gavi said issued notice on two petitions filed by Faruqui seeking bail in a case lodged in

Indore in Madhya Pradesh and clubbing and quashing of FIRs lodged for the same alleged offence in different States. The top court sought response from Madhya Pradesh government on both the pleas filed by Faruqui and from Uttar Pradesh, Delhi and Maharashtra governments on the plea seeking clubbing and quashing of FIRs.

“This being the case, we issue notice in both the petitions, and stay the Judgment of the High Court. The petitioner is released on ad-interim bail on conditions to the satisfaction of the trial court. In the meantime, there shall be stay of the production warrants as well,” the bench said.

At the outset, advocate Saurabh Kirpal, appearing for Faruqui said, “This is a case of victimisation”. He said that allegations made in the FIR are vague in nature and procedure of arrest laid down by the court in its 2014 verdict was not followed. The bench noted the submission and said, “The counsel has pointed out to us that quite apart from the fact that the allegations made in the FIR are vague that the procedure contained in Section 41 CrPC as adumbrated by our Judgment in “Arnesh Kumar Versus State of Bihar and others” has not been followed before arresting the petitioner.” — PTI

Centre agrees to allow extra attempt to UPSC aspirants

New Delhi, Feb. 5: The Centre Friday told the Supreme Court that it is agreeable to give an extra chance as a one-time relaxation to UPSC civil service aspirants, who had appeared in their last attempt in the 2020 exam amid the Covid-19 pandemic and are otherwise not age-barred.

“Relaxation, only to the extent of providing one extra attempt for Civil Service Examination (CSE), specifically limited to CSE-2021, may be granted to only those candidates who appeared for CSE-2020 as their last permissible attempt and are otherwise not age-barred from appearing in CSE-2021,” the Centre told a bench headed by Justice A.M. Khanwilkar. “This relaxation for the candidates and to the extent as prescribed above, shall be a one-time relaxation only and shall apply only for appearing in CSE-2021 and shall not be treated as a precedent,” it told the bench. — PTI

NEW DELHI, FEB. 5

Defying a ban, thousands of people attended a mahapanchayat at Shamli in western Uttar Pradesh in solidarity with the farmers who have been protesting for over two months against the three agricultural laws at the borders of Delhi. Security, meanwhile, has been beefed up all across the Delhi-NCR area in the wake of the farmers' unions calling a nationwide 'Chakka Jam' (blockading of roads) protest on Saturday.

Bharatiya Kisan Union (BKU) leader Rakesh Tikait, who has become the face of the anti-farm law protests, said the 'chakka jam' will not take place in Delhi, Uttarakhand and Uttar Pradesh, but will be done in other parts of NCR and the rest of the country, including the southern states.

“Dilli mein hum nahi kar rahe, wahan to raja ne khud qile-bandi kar li hai humare jaam karne ki zaroorat hi nahi hai (We are not going to do anything in Delhi, the king there has already fortified it, there is no need for us to do a blockade now),” he said, in a veiled jibe at Prime Minister Narendra Modi and his government over the fortification of the protest sites at the Ghaziipur, Tikri and Singhu borders.

Mr Tikait, however, did not attend the mahapanchayat in Shamli, saying his outfit had nothing to do with the meeting. But his brother Narendra Tikait attended it in his personal capacity. The state government had not given permission for the mahapanchayat, organised by the Rashtriya Lok Dal and Samajwadi Party, on the ground of the “unruly behaviour” of the farmers during the Republic Day tractor rally and “violation of Covid guidelines” by protesters. The administration even imposed Section 144 CrPC prohibiting the gathering of more than four persons from February 4 till April 3.

Despite the ban, a large number of people joined the mahapanchayat, where songs imploring the Prime Minister to listen to the voice of farmers played in the background.

Road blockade today; police heightens vigil

BHASKAR HARI SHARMA | DC

NEW DELHI, FEB. 5

Ahead of the ‘chakka jam’ (road blockade) proposed by farmers, the Delhi police has made adequate security arrangements at the borders so that miscreants cannot enter the national capital. The police will also be monitoring the content on the social media.

“In view of the violence that took place on January 26, adequate security arrangements have been put in place by the Delhi police at the borders,” a police spokesperson said.

Meanwhile, investigating the ‘toolkit document’ uploaded on a social media handle by teen activist Greta Thunburg, the police is now writing to Google to know the IP address from where it was uploaded.

Oppn couldn’t point out shortcomings, says Tomar

DC CORRESPONDENT

NEW DELHI, FEB. 5

Asserting Prime Minister Narendra Modi and the union government are committed to the welfare of farmers, agriculture minister Narendra Singh Tomar on Friday said neither the Opposition who criticised the three new farm laws, nor the farmers' unions, which had held more than 10 rounds of discussions with the government, have been able to point out what is “kaala” (black) in the laws which they are claiming are “kaala kanoon” (black laws).

Intervening in a discussion on the motion of thanks to the President's address in the Rajya Sabha, Mr Tomar reiterated that the new laws are aimed at boosting farmers' incomes and the government's offer to amend them to assuage the farmers' sentiments does not mean they are flawed.

Lok Sabha stalled for fourth day over farmer stir

New Delhi, Feb. 5: Lok Sabha proceedings were a virtual washout on Friday as relentless protest by Opposition members against the three farm laws continued for the fourth consecutive day, even as signs emerged that normal functioning could resume on Monday.

The government has always been ready for discussion and we are hopeful that Lok Sabha will function smoothly from Monday, parliamentary affairs minister Pralhad Joshi said.

While demanding repeal of the three laws, Opposition parties are also insisting on a stand alone debate on the farmers' issue.

The government has maintained that Opposition can raise the issue during the debate on the motion of thanks. — PTI

AFTER 18 MONTHS

High speed internet restored in entire Jammu & Kashmir

YUSUF JAMEEL | DC

SRINAGAR, FEB. 5

High speed 4G internet services were restored in entire Jammu and Kashmir late Friday evening, exactly after a gap of 18 months.

The authorities said that the decision to this effect was taken after the review of the security situation in the Union Territory and in view of the recommendations of a committee set up by the government to look into the issue some time ago.

The announcement was made by Principal Secretary Information, Rohit Kansal, who is also government spokesperson, through a tweet. It said, “4G mobile internet services being restored in entire J&K @dliprk.”

A formal order signed by Shaleen Kabba, principal secretary (home), said that in view of the advice of the special committee constituted on the directive of Supreme Court and upon “careful review” of the overall security scenario the restrictions on mobile data services and fixed line Internet connectivity is revoked “except to the extent that the pre-paid SIM card holders shall be provided excess to the Internet connectivity only after verification as per the norms applicable for post-paid connections”.

In August last year, the J&K authorities had restored high-speed 4G internet service on ‘experimental basis’ in two districts of the erstwhile state—Udhampur and Ganderbal, more than a year after a complete communication blackout was enforced in both Jammu region and Kashmir Valley regions ahead of the Centre's abrogating Article 370 and bifurcating the state into two Union Territories on August 5, 2019.

City may be first in country to have such system

Groundwater monitoring system to come to Chennai

T. SUDHEESH | DC CHENNAI, FEB 5

With metro water installing 200 automatic groundwater level recorders one in every ward and 20 rain gauges, one each in 15 zones as well as five lakes, the authorities plan to make Chennai, the country's first city, to have a comprehensive automatic groundwater monitoring system.

T. Prabhushankar, executive director, Chennai Metropolitan Water Supply and Sewerage Board (CMWSSB), told DC that the system will help to gather data from strategic locations spread across 420 sq.km, and would assist the detailed study on groundwater level and quality, and check over-exploitation of resources.

The real-time information gathering will also help Metrowater effective and equal distribution of quality water across the city, especially during summer. We can act with more efficiency according to the requirement of the particular area. In case there is depletion in the water table in one depot, it would be an indicator to reallocate water in a quick manner.

Apart from this, making the information accessible to residents will help to create attitudinal changes among them. If one person identifies the GW table is very bad in their locality, they can change towards the exploitation for his domestic purpose, and spread the information to their community as well. Since the GW data is so dynamic, we think this system will play a pivotal role in changing efficiency of Metrowater. It's the first comprehensive GW monitoring system when it comes to Metro cities in the country, he said.

"As the system is operational, residents can access real time data of groundwater, rainfall and lake water levels via portal in Chennai Metro Water website <http://122.183.188.248:8080/CMWSSB-web/onlineMonitoringSystem/waterLevel>.

Anyone can select the areas out of the 200 locations and can have a real-time record of groundwater levels in their respective locality. The portal will be updated with separate daily reports with downloadable format. Also reports of longitudinal GW data of a particular location over the selected time period can also be downloaded. And historical GW data right from 1987 is also available on the portal. Similarly, real-time rainfall data along with history since 1965 and daily lake levels can be accessed from the portal. This is a milestone in the country in quantifying the water cycle and also making information accessible to the citizen," he said.

As part of the system, a total of 200 borewells with digital water level recorders and sensors were constructed. The sensors will transmit real-time data and help assess the fluctuation in the groundwater table.

It will also help to assess the impact of rainwater harvesting (RWH) measures in each area and rectify deficiencies in the system. According to officials, at least nine lakh RWH structures are already available across the city.

Seal illegal tourist cottages in MTR, urge greens

B. RAVICHANDRAN | DC OOTY, FEB. 5

The way in which the local body administration in the Nilgiris is moving about to close illegal tourist resorts, cottages and homestays in the Mudumalai Tiger Reserve buffer zone limits has attracted criticism from activists.

The Nilgiris Environment and Animals Protection Samithi (NEAPS) wanted the administration to fully seal such places, instead of merely issuing notices and warning those who run such illegal tourist cottages and homestay facilities.

Following the death of a wild elephant due to burn injuries sustained by a fireball flung towards it by workers in an illegal tourist resort in the MTR recently, and the subsequent legal notices served by activist 'Elephant Rajendran', the local body administration here issued notices to 55 such unauthorized tourist resorts, cottages and homestays, and warned them of severe action.

As the owners of such properties promised the officials that they will not use their buildings to run tourist cottages, the local body administration shied away from sealing such buildings.

Meanwhile, B.K. Kumaran, president, NEAPS, charged that in the name of hosting their relatives as guests, most of these unauthorized tourist cottages, resorts and homestay facilities are accommodating tourists in their premises, which is also illegal. Without the connivance of concerned officials and police administration in Masinagudi, this type of illegal tourism will not happen.

"It is high time the district administration interferes in this issue and seals all such unauthorized tourist cottages, homestay facilities in the MTR buffer zone. No one understands why the local body officials are trying to show mercy on those running illegal tourist cottages. We urge that the vigilance department inquire into this and book the errant revenue and local body officials," Kumaran added.

Govindarajulu, general secretary, Tamil Nadu Traders federation, told newsmen here on Thursday night, that a resolution to this effect was adopted at the meeting. The meeting urged the government to expedite the ring road project in between Thuvakkudi and Thiruchendurai. The necessity of the service road rises only when the ring road project is completed, they added.

They said if the government continued with its proposed project, traders and general public residing and trading on either side of the Tiruchy-Thanjavar national highway, would be severely affected. Govindarajulu suggested that the government can construct a fly-over in between Old Palpannai to Thuvakkudi stretch. He said they are going to meet the Tiruchy collector on February 9 and to submit a memorandum to him in this regard.

Rlys to take up Madurai-T'kudi line, other TN projects

DC CORRESPONDENT CHENNAI, FEB. 5

John Thomas, General Manager, Southern Railway, said that the Central government has planned to take up the Madurai - Tuticorin line via Aruppukkottai and the Rameswaram - Dhanushkodi line, and has allocated ₹94 crore in the current budget.

Addressing a virtual meeting on Friday, John said the government allowed new line projects - Madurai - Tuticorin via Aruppukkottai and Rameswaram - Dhanushkodi line and allotted ₹20 crores and ₹75 crores, respectively. The government has allocated ₹200 crores for doubling of Maniyachi - Nagercoil line, and another ₹300 crore for the Madurai - Maniyachi -

Tuticorin doubling project. It allotted ₹25.5 crore for the Omalur - Mettur dam line doubling project, and it will be completed in March 2021. ₹35 crore has been allocated for the Salem - Magnesite - Omalur doubling line which will be completed in August 2022.

John said that the Indian Railways has been allocated an amount of ₹1,07,300 crore under 'Gross Budgetary Support' (GBS), of which the Southern Railway has been allocated a substantial amount of ₹3,855 crore, including stores and manufacturing expenses.

He stated that allocation under capital/GBS is very key as land acquisition for doubling and new lines have to be done. This will give a fillip to the infrastructure in the Southern Railway. In Tamil Nadu, 27 ongoing projects costing ₹30,961 crore are under different stages of planning and execution.

In Kerala, nine ongoing projects costing ₹8,799 crore over 458 kms length of lines falling fully/partly in the state are under different stages of planning and execution, he added.

Move will save up to ₹35K crore for government, Tangedco Freeze expenses, retire coal power plants, say experts

A.ARUL PALANI | DC CHENNAI, FEB. 5

The cash-strapped Tangedco and the state government can save up to ₹35,000 crore over five years through a combination of retiring 3.1 GW of old coal power plants, freezing expenditure on 3.5 GW of new plants at early stages of construction and availing of cheaper power to meet future demand, said an analysis conducted by research group 'Climate Risk Horizons'.

The report of 'Recipe for Recovery' points out that Tangedco's participation in the UDAY scheme in 2017, failed to revive the power distribution companies (Discom). The Centre recently approved a bailout package of ₹30,230 crore for Tangedco, but without measures to either lower the cost of power supply or raise tariffs, energy experts fear that dues would continue to accumulate.

The report identifies cost reduction and savings opportunities available through retirement of coal power plants that are over 20 years old. Such plants are typically less efficient, more polluting, and are now legally required to meet the 2015 air and water emission norms notified by the ministry of environment, forests and climate change. The deadline for compliance with the norms is 2022, but so far, little progress has been made.

Retiring 3.1 GW of old plants (instead of incurring the capital expenditure to retrofit them will save approximately ₹1,670 crore in avoided costs. These plants are Thoothukudi, Mettur, North Chennai and NLC II Stage I. Replacing the scheduled generation from these old plants with cheaper electricity, either from renewable or through purchases on the open market, will save another ₹1,459 crore annually (₹7.3 00 cr over a five year period), as cheaper options are now available.

"These old plants are not on track to meet the 2022 deadline for compliance with the air pollution norms. Rather than incurring 1,600 crores or more on retrofits, it is more economic to retire them. The power surplus situation in the state and country, as well as cheaper renewable energy creates a potential win-win situation for Tamil Nadu's consumers through retiring these assets", said report author Ashish Fernandes of Climate Risk Horizons.

Tamil Nadu's coal fleet has been running below 60 percent plant load factor for the last three financial years. Moreover, over three GW of new coal plants are nearing completion and expected to be commissioned in the next 12 months, ensuring surplus electricity generation.

Sundarrajan G of 'Puvulagin Nanbargal' said, "The coal plants in question are responsible for significant pollution in terms of both air emissions and fly ash. Retiring them is the right thing to do environmentally. The government must re-examine the continued construction of coal plants and shelve those that are at an early stage."

As many as 3.5 GW of state-owned plants are in the early stages of construction - Uppur, Udangudi and Ennore Expansion. Freezing expenditure by halting construction on these plants would save over ₹26,000 crore.

US remarks a wake-up call Delhi can't ignore

The American government's statement on Thursday — in which the right of peaceful protest, free speech, and unhindered access to the Internet were flagged as signs of a "thriving democracy" — is a straightforward response to the egregious steps of the Narendra Modi government in recent days. These are the first substantive public observations on India by the two-week-old Biden administration. The message — in the backdrop of the farmers' agitation in the country, and the comments by journalists and other public figures in that context — accords with the sentiments of millions of Indians, and millions worldwide, who are surprised by the turn of events and processes in India for some time.

President Joe Biden's administration has underlined first principles in a neutral, moderate voice. Also, the US state department's cautionary observations — which was reiterated by the US embassy in India — was in response to a question by the American newspaper The Wall Street Journal, not off its own bat. This is a useful device suggestive of an official criticism, but not quite.

It will be obvious except to the dense that the present US administration's first public observations on India came immediately after the Narendra Modi government targeted some international icons, including the famous pop star Rihanna, the teen Swedish climate activist Greta Thunberg (who is nominated for the Nobel Prize) "and others" for lending support to the farmers' stir (since it is being railroaded by a monstrous government, actions which have drawn considerable domestic criticism).

Through a tweet, the climate activist offered a "toolkit" to back protesters. This is standard mobilising tactic for activists everywhere with the use of "Twitter storm" and the like. Supporters of the ruling party in India do this routinely when playing polarising games at election time.

The so-called "toolkit" has moved the Indian government, including its normally staid external affairs ministry, and the ruling party, to smell an international "conspiracy", no less, to defame India. This is laughable, of course.

The Delhi Police, frequently a violent and communal force, has filed a FIR against international personalities without naming anyone. This is a fig leaf. It is clear that Ms Rihanna and Ms Thunberg, "and others" (including the US vice-president's lawyer-writer niece Meena Harris), are the principal objects of its ire.

These FIRs — the official call for investigation — by the Delhi police, which is directly controlled by Union home minister Amit Shah, are related to extremely serious criminal offences such as sedition and attempt to cause disharmony as between communities. Before the international celebrities, it had been the turn of journalists in India — last week six well-known editors, in a long string of journalists in recent times, and senior politicians like Shashi Tharoor — to face exactly the same official allegations. The US state department's remarks appear to have this figured.

In its sorry response, the India's external affairs ministry is self-congratulatory, calling India a "vibrant" democracy with "shared values" with the United States. In today's climate, is it? No amount of seeking to falsely equate the January 6 attack on the US Capitol and the January 26 move by infiltrators in the entirely peaceful farmers' movement to create chaos at the Red Fort, hides the ugly reality of our present.

Don't pardon Rajiv killers

Given the embarrassing task of granting clemency to seven life convicts in the Rajiv Gandhi assassination case, the Tamil Nadu Governor, Banwarilal Purohit, has ducked the responsibility. He has passed the political football back to the President of India saying he is the appropriate authority to take the call though he may find it difficult to explain why he sat on it for two-and-a-half years before declining to decide. The prisoners for life, some of whose sentences were commuted to life and thus got a reprieve from the gallows, have been languishing in Tamil Nadu prisons for close to three decades. The question that arises is whether they deserve any sympathy.

Mercy may be a quality that is twice blessed, as the Bard of Avon put it, but sympathy for the conspirators of a heinous crime aimed at one who had been Prime Minister of India may be totally misplaced even if some of them may have, innocently or otherwise, contributed very little to the plot like buying a 9-volt battery to complete the circuit to blow up the explosives hidden in the body belt worn by the assassin Dhanu. The plot, hatched by LTTE's murderous chief Velupillai Prabhakaran, seemed to have come straight out of a Frederick Forsyth novel and was carried out on Indian soil near Chennai, killing 18 including Rajiv Gandhi and the assassin and injuring 43 bystanders on May 21, 1991.

Sympathy on humanitarian grounds for the surviving plotters has been built up in the strange political ambience in a state that once viewed a Tamil Eelam in northern Sri Lanka as a desirable outcome. Rajiv Gandhi, confused by a welter of opinions on the Tamils issue, may have erred in judgment in sending a peace keeping force to the island nation and paid the price. No government at the Centre could be seen as weak in pardoning the killers of a Prime Minister. The ball is back with the President even as the top court will continue to grapple with the legal challenges to lifetimes in prison.

Subhani

Yeh Rihanna-Wihanna, Greta-Vreta... kaun hai?

Shobhaa De

I was in salubrious Goa, desperately trying to dodge zillions of Dilliwallas who have as good as taken over this gorgeous state and established their own "klonies" across favoured villages and hamlets. Poor Goans, I thought to myself. First came the Israelis, then the Russians — and now these! Arpora has become a mini-Gurgaon, and the locals aren't amused. In such a surrealist setting, it was a bit tough for me to focus on a single tweet posted by a Barbados-born singer and the havoc it generated across India. Well, I'm getting carried away — it was Dilli netas and assorted celebrities/influencers who jumped in, and boom! Rihanna went viral. Be honest — how many of you reading this column had even heard of Rihana before this hungama? Okay — maybe, you had heard her. And even danced to her tracks, but did Rihanna and what she tweeted impact your life even remotely? No, na? I recall enjoying Under my umbrella, which brought Rihanna into the global stage way back in 2007. After that, I totally forgot all about her.

Now, I am unlikely to forget! The 32-year-old singer with a staggering 100 million followers on Instagram. No wonder our netas got sufficiently hilaaoed and obviously rattled, when she had the gumption to tweet in support of our protesting farmers. More than 226.3K retweets followed, with 490.3K users "liking" the tweet. Whoa! What was going on?

Uske baad, that opinionated Greta what's-her- face, got into the act and lagaoed her own tweet. Mayhem followed as all desi patriots scrambled to counterattack these impudent folks who had dared to question our official stand on the farmers' protests. People who had had absolutely nothing to do with either the farmers or the government, jumped in feet first to damn and attack the global "influencers", accusing them of generating an international conspiracy designed to break up our vast country and hand it over to China! Stumped? So was I... as it is, the sultry Goan weather had started to play tricks with my mood and thinking (without feni, let me hastily clarify), upar se... I was going through zabardast tweets posted by super-patriotic Indians, basically asking Rihanna and Co to butt out of India's affairs. Someone brilliant called Sambit Patra (know him?) thundered on a bigoted/compromised television channel: "Why doesn't Rihanna tweet about the 1984 riots?" Excellent question, Shri Patra. But the singer was born in 1988 and Twitter started only in 2006. Koi baat nahi — loyalty game question to all those big names who have passed the patriotic test with flying colours — did same Sikh Regiment, dealing with this strange situation that their traumatised families can do little about. Jeet Singh's son Veer works as a guard. He said: "Our fathers fought for India in their youth. The government has disrespected them by putting such veterans in jail." The two farmers own an acre of farmland each, on which they grow wheat. Today, they are languishing in jail and being called "Khalistanis" and "terrorists". Rihanna sang Unapologetic in 2012. You go figure who deserves an apology in this case.

Soon, everybody had jumped in to express their two bits' worth. I saved my gyaan and stayed out — savouring grilled calamari at a beach shack seemed a far more worthwhile pursuit. I thought lazily and idly to myself, trying hard not to get distracted by the overdressed Gurgaon crowd swigging beer at the next table: "Why is everybody frothing at the mouth and dissing Rihanna?" Then I remembered. If VVIP Bharatwaasis did not step up publicly and lecture us on our duty as citizens ("call out Rihanna, tell her not to meddle in India's affairs, let the world know we can handle our own internal matters..."), their bag of sarkari goodies would be snatched away. The more relevant counter question to all those big names who have passed the patriotic test with flying colours — did even one of them understand the highly complex farmers' problem? Frankly, it beats most analysts. Without getting to the bottom of what is nothing short of an unfortunate impasse at the moment, why ignite more fires? Who is Rihanna to us? Had her tweet been ignored, we would not have attracted even more global scrutiny — it was as if the entire government machinery at the time was busy dealing with a famous foreign entertainer's tweet!

Perhaps Rihanna does indeed possess remarkable understanding of complicated political, social and cultural issues in distant lands she may never ever set foot in. But the chances are, she goes along with what her PR team places before her.

Most super celebrities hire PR teams to manage social media accounts and project a finely calibrated public image. Perhaps Rihanna does indeed possess remarkable understanding of complicated political, social and cultural issues in distant lands she may never ever set foot in (unless the money is good, of course). But the chances are, she goes along with whatever her alert and socially aware PR team places before her. In simple words, it is shrewd brand building. It shows her as a thinking star concerned with humanity. That's it! Yes, a tweet from such an individual does snowball into a bigger controversy, if it catches on — like it did this time. These are the expected repercussions in the age of celebrity — deal with them wisely, as a government. By falling into the trap, we fed the monster and kept the story alive. Mogambo is very naraaz, okay? Get smart, you guys. Focus on asli matters. Rihanna's other hit was titled: "Bitch, better have my money..." She has made hers. The "bitch" has delivered. Where does that leave us? Still roping in celebrities to counter Rihanna! Hello! She has moved on, okay? She is probably tweeting about saving endangered dolphins in some remote bay. Such bewakoofi, I tell you!

TWITTER STORM

The tweets of international celebrities in support of the protests of farmers has triggered an unwarranted backlash from the ruling establishment at the Centre with many terming it as an infringement on our sovereignty. The very notion that the tweets of a few international celebrities could undermine, weaken or challenge our country's sovereignty is misplaced. Had not people all over the world lent their support through social media platforms on the 'Black Lives Matter' movement which gained momentum after the death of a black man George Floyd in US? Nobody in the US had termed the support from outside for Black Lives Matter movement as an infringement or an assault on the sovereignty of their country. It is time BJP-led ruling dispensation at the Centre refrain itself from wasting its energies through its knee-jerk reactions over a few tweets expressing support for protesting farmers.

SETTLE FARMERS' ISSUES

THE HIGH-HANDED passage of the farm laws was characteristic of the ruling BJP and its tyrannical nature. Months of demonstrations and sit-ins by the farmers across the country have grown into a stalemate marked by deadlocked talks between farmers and the Narendra Modi administration. Despite several rounds of talks, with two of them involving a three-minister panel of the Union government and a few dozen representatives of the farmers' unions, the impasse remains. The Centre cannot keep procrastinating the issue and has to make a decision and make it public very soon. The year 2020 has been a traumatic one for all and any continuation of defiance, arrogance and inconsistency by the Centre on decision-making will not give a positive signal in 2021, the year of hope, which is already a month old.

CHARACTER CERTIFICATES

IT IS baffling that MP makes character certificate must for DL (Feb. 5). The comical (il)logic of this order is to curb crimes against women in Madhya Pradesh and also suspend driving licences of those accused of crimes against women. Is there any connection between women molestation and men driving vehicles? So, a teetotaler and man of impeccable character will be the future driver of vehicles in MP. First of its kind, we have to wait and watch for improved behaviour of drivers towards womenfolk. What about character certificate for female drivers? Are they exempt from this rule, if so, gender discrimination? Parthasarathy Mandadi, Tirupati

"Gratitude is an angel
With a very short memory.
Jealousy, a demon
With a stimulated long one
Indifference shrugs its shoulders
In dismissal whenever he Encounters a strong emotion
Condemning it as the wrong one."
— From the Opera Bheeda Pareeda
Translated from Hungarian by Bachchoo

It was a Greek called Aristarchus who in 200 BC first said that the earth was a globe. Galileo was certain of it and in later centuries the Portuguese Magellan added the decisive circumnavigating proof. An early definition of "globalisation" was born. Today "globalisation" means an exchange of culture and trade amongst most if not all nations of the world and it would certainly include the phenomenon of the spread of the Internet to every crook and nanny of the world.

A Marxist definition would concentrate on the international flow and exchange of capital and of labour — with American motor car manufacturing relocating to the Far East and Coca Cola being concocted, bottled and sold from the Uighar districts of western China.

Its inevitability hasn't led to popularity. There are Canutes who wish to turn back the tide. The most boastful and vociferous of these in recent times was one Donald Trump, whose opposition to globalisation may not have included the conviction that the world was flat (though one can never be sure what neo-troglodytes believe). It certainly included a political programme that attempted to reverse the flow of capital out of, and labour into, the United States of America. It negated international treaties designed to stop the proliferation of nuclear weapons and was opposed to global action on climate change.

Britain's political position was paradoxical. On the one hand, Brexit caused the UK to leave one of the planet's largest trading blocs to go it alone, and on the other hand it trumpeted intentions to open Little England to an ambitious programme of international trade, an invitation to capital to come here with the promise of low taxes and Rishi Sunak's free ports, while at the same time stopping the import of even necessary labour. Welcome to "Free port and deport England" — both policies perpetrated, ironically, by British ministers whose origins are Indian and Indo-African.

Yet now, gentle reader, the most dreadful reminder that the tide of globalisation is upon us is not the rush of refugees from Africa to Europe or the determination of Japanese car manufacturers to relocate to countries where the promise of profit is the greatest. Independent of the will of capital and labour, nature has shown its near-apocalyptic hand. There have been plagues before, and Sars and Ebola did spread from one country to another, but Covid-19 and its menacingly developing variants is, after the very early spread of the ancestors of homo sapiens to all corners of the globe, the first truly fast-moving inhabitant of everywhere.

Earlier plagues hit single countries. Daniel Defoe wrote his Journal of the Plague Year as a novel covering events in London 1665. Then Shakespeare, it is said, wrote Macbeth and King Lear under lockdown in the early years of the seventeenth century. The Internet has alerted me to several literary efforts attempting to capture the ennui, isolation, change in shopping arrangements, etc during today's Covid lockdowns. No doubt there will be whole novels about what Netflix programmes some scribbler watched, with photographs of the meals they cooked in these dreadful months. I myself have found time to complete two books which have nothing to do with how I spend my time or what I cook but are brilliant fictional... (I've repeatedly told you that this space is not for your idiotic self-advertisements — Ed. Sorry yaar, iss mushkil vakht mey thhodee si publicity sey kya farak padtha? — fd).

The globalist way of looking at these times is to see them as a battle between two species of evolved life — the mutating, deadly coronavirus strains and the scientifically analytical and creative genius of scientists and the ingenuity of political ordering.

The scientific effort of the geneticists, doctors, epidemiologists and others who have not only invented and deployed five developed vaccines, and with many more to come, but have found treatments to alleviate the symptoms of the infected.

The political efforts, subject to all manner of constraints and forces, including crass cronyism — as in Britain where jobs and public funds are given to Tory friends and supporters — profiteering and fraud are confused and less laudable.

Here, gentle reader, are a couple of shameful statistics:

First: The International Labour Organisation estimates that the plague has cost the workers of the world a loss in earnings of $3.7 trillion. According to Oxfam, the increase in wealth of the world's top billionaires in ten months of the plague has been $3.9 trillion.

Next: As of January 23, 39 million people in the so-called "first world" had received an anti-Covid vaccination. The number of people who have been vaccinated in the continent of Africa, excluding South Africa, was 29. Yes, you read that correctly. No, I haven't missed out the words "thousand" or "million". There are reports, since that grim statistic, saying that subsequently other nations have allocated funds to get the vaccines across to Africa.

This isn't about generosity, it's self-preservation in a globalised world in which the enemy species has to be fought and subdued, if not annihilated altogether — through... err... globalisation?

To ensure safety
in a globalised world, all must get the vaccine...

Shastri pitches for break post IPL

Chennai: Indian cricketers must get a two-week break after this year's IPL to recover from fatigue since staying in bubbles is "mentally draining", head coach Ravi Shastri said on Friday.

The Indian players have not taken a break since the IPL 2020 in September in the UAE. The IPL was followed by a challenging Australia tour comprising four Tests, three ODIs and three T20Is. With the final spot in the World Test Championships at stake, India is currently hosting England in a bilateral series consisting of four Tests, five T20Is and three ODIs. "I do believe you need a break from international cricket at some point. After the England series, yes they go into the IPL. Again after the IPL, a couple of weeks off is a must," Ravi Shastri told Star Sports. — PTI

Consecutive win for Daruvala

Abu Dhabi: Mumbai Falcons and Jehan Daruvala continued their winning spree with a 2nd consecutive victory in the Asian Formula 3 Championship. A thrilling battle kept fans on their toes as Jehan had to fight tooth and nail to win Race 2 and also completed a hat trick of podiums to finish second in Race 3 and move into the championship lead. The Mumbai resident had a near perfect launch from pole position and held his position into the first corner. Behind him, Isack Hadjar of France also held onto second, while championship leader Guanyu Zhou dropped a position to allow Dino Beganovic into third. The first few laps were uneventful and once the top few settled into a rhythm, Hadjar seemed to have more pace than Jehan. He soon started piling on the pressure, with numerous attempts which did not stick. Hadjar then had a good run out of the corkscrew section and came alongside Jehan. The two entered the corner side by side, but Jehan held on.

Sweeping success

Root sweeps his way to 20th Test ton, puts England on top

C. SANTHOSH KUMAR
CHENNAI, FEB. 5

With a ringside view from behind the stumps, Rishabh Pant could easily see it. Shoulders drooped and heads bowed — the team's body language, at one time, was as flat as the surface. The wicket-keeper's constant egging, urging his teammates to lift themselves, summed up Team India's frustrating opening day on the field.

Joe Root (128 not out) and Dom Sibley (87) gave a masterclass on how to play spinners in subcontinental conditions with a brilliant 200-run stand for the third wicket as England stole a march over India on a featherbed in the opening Test here. At stumps, England, who won the toss, were 263/3 in 89.3 overs. Opener Sibley was dismissed lbw by Jasprit Bumrah in the last over of the day.

While Root, playing his 100th Test, unleashed his most potent weapon, sweep, in all possible ways — reverse, slog and even switch hit — to slam his 20th Test hundred, third in as many matches, Sibley personified resilience and proved to be the perfect foil for his in-form skipper.

The pitch had little to offer the bowlers, but the England batsmen had to show a lot of patience. Sibley's marathon stay in the middle — 286 balls and 382 minutes — was significant as the 25-year-old not only absorbed the pressure early on, but also wore the Indian bowlers out with his dogged defence. With classic old-school technique, Sibley used his long strides effectively. He got closer to the pitch of the ball, didn't have any qualms in defending good deliveries and rotated the strike diligently to keep the Indian spinners at bay.

Root joined forces with Sibley after Rory Burns (33) and Dan Lawrence (five-ball duck) fell to R. Ashwin and Bumrah, respectively, before lunch. Burns, who made a solid opening stand of 63, plotted his own downfall when he played a reverse sweep to lob a simple catch to Pant. It was Ashwin's slowest ball of the first session. When Bumrah trapped new batsman Lawrence with the help of a reverse swing, England were two down for 63.

India had the visitors under the pump, but Kohli may be guilty of letting the guard down later. His decision to take both Ashwin and Ishant off the attack post-lunch was inexplicable. The packed leg-side field which had proved effective against the Aussies couldn't stop the England batsmen from scoring.

his purple patch. The contest between Ashwin and Root was fascinating. The England skipper cleverly negated the offie by not employing sweep shot. As Root grew in confidence, the sweeps were a delight to watch.

More than three years after making his Test debut, Bumrah got to play his first match at home. He bowled just a three-over opening spell before Ashwin was introduced as early as in the eighth. Left-arm spinner Shahbaz Nadeem who made it to the side following a knee injury to Axar Patel couldn't trouble the batsmen and bowled a bunch of no-balls.

Root wants to make it count

DC CORRESPONDENT
CHENNAI, FEB. 5

Skipper Joe Root who scored a scintillating century in his 100th Test and guided England to a commanding position against India wants to make it count. England had made 477 in the first innings the last time they played a Test here in 2016, but eventually they lost by an innings. So, Root knows the importance of a big total.

"I think we have to try and get as many runs as we can. We want to bat the whole of tomorrow and possibly a bit into the third day, then things could fall in place. We will try and score 600-700," said Root.

Root knows it's not easy to bat long in the humid conditions here. "But, I am ready for more. We have to try and consolidate our position. It's an impressive start, but we have to make it count. That's the most challenging part for us," he added.

The flat surface had nothing for spinners on Friday, but Root expects the track to wear out. "It's an unusual looking surface but it played pretty well. I think it's going to spin as the game goes on. With a bit of reverse swing, it was a good contest against India's bowlers. I was just trying to get used to the surface, get used to the bounce, and as I got in, I found it easier," added Root.

Root was all praise for his opener Dom Sibley. "It was a fantastic innings. He had a few question marks over his game after the Sri Lanka series. To go out there and put a performance early on in the series is amazing. It's a high quality attack and we had to deal with spin and reverse swing," he added.

Root became only the third Englishman to score a century in his 100th Test, following in the footsteps of Colin Cowdrey and Alec Stewart.

"It was very special," he said.

We bowled well in patches: Bumrah

DC CORRESPONDENT
CHENNAI, FEB. 5

It turned out to be a challenging 'home' debut for Indian speedster Jasprit Bumrah. Operating in short spells, Bumrah picked up two England wickets, but found the dry conditions difficult for a pacer.

"It was an interesting first match for me here. The pitch was on the flatter side and there was no lateral movement. The ball got scuffed up as the wicket was hard and dry. We are not trying to complain about the wicket. We are trying to figure out the options and resolve the issues," said Bumrah.

As the ICC has banned the use of saliva in the wake of Covid-19, bowlers have found it difficult to shine the ball. "When the ball becomes soft, it doesn't shine as well as we want it to. In India, the ball gets scuffed up easily. So to make the ball heavy, you have to shine one side sometimes, with sweat, and it doesn't really serve the purpose. You can't make one side heavy with sweat and it doesn't really work that way. But these are the rules and we have to make do with what we have at the moment," said Bumrah.

Bumrah said India bowled well in patches. "I felt we created a lot of pressure. We didn't give too many runs except in the last session. In the beginning of the last session, I think our body language was a bit down with not many wickets coming in. And also, it's not easy to keep yourself going in the searing heat. After a while, we started putting in more effort to get back into the game," he added.

Left-arm spinner Shahbaz Nadeem's selection over wrist spinner Kuldeep Yadav surprised many, but Bumrah backed the decision. "In hindsight, you can say a lot of things. As a team we went in, and backed all of them to perform well. Maybe after the game, we can discuss what could have been done better," he said.
