BJP slams Cong on selective outrage over rape cases

New Delhi, Oct. 24: The BJP hit out at Congress leaders Rahul Gandhi and Priyanka Gandhi Vadra on Saturday for their "selective outrage" in cases of atrocities against women as it questioned their 'silence' over the alleged rape and killing of a six-year-old girl in Punjab. Noting that the young girl belonged to a Dalit migrant family from Bihar, finance minister and senior BJP leader Nirmala Sitharaman also took a swipe at Rashtriya Janata Dal (RJD) leader Tejashwi Yadav, questioning if he had asked Rahul Gandhi about the issue while holding a joint poll campaign with him in the state.

Attacking Yadav, she referred to a news report of 2008 to talk about the "allegations of eve-teasing and misbehaviour with women against the RJD brothers", a reference to him and his elder brother Tej Pratap.

"It (the Punjab incident) may not hurt the RJD because that is how things were when they were in power," Sitharaman told reporters while flaying Lalu Prasad Yadav's party for the "jungle raj" during its rule in Bihar during 1990-2005.

Hitting out at the Congress, she said, "The pretentious Congress has not said a word. The tweet-friendly Rahul Gandhi has not tweeted on the Hoshiarpur incident. There has been no outrage. And no picnic either."

Her 'picnic' jibe was in reference to Rahul Gandhi

● "Why is the brother-sister pair not going and voicing horror in Hoshiarpur? Why not in Rajasthan? The selective cry of outrage that the Congress wants to show when it is elsewhere but not in states governed by it is completely exposed," Nirmala Sitharaman said and his sister Priyanka Gandhi's visit to Hathras in BJP-ruled Uttar Pradesh following the alleged gangrape of a Dalit girl, who died in a Delhi hospital subsequently.

The BJP had accused Rahul Gandhi and Priyanka Gandhi of practising "political tourism".

"The Congress party should stand up and answer. Does this kind of selective outrage suit the stature of their party?"

"Why is the brother-sister pair not going and voicing horror in Hoshiarpur? Why not in Rajasthan? The selective cry of outrage that the Congress wants to show when it is elsewhere but not in states governed by it is completely exposed," Nirmala Sitharaman said.

Stating that crimes like rape should not be politicised, she said certain political parties are selective in voicing horror.

Another senior BJP leader and Union minister Prakash Javadekar also slammed the two Congress leaders and asked why had they not paid a visit to the family of the victim in Punjab yet.

He accused Rahul Gandhi and Priyanka Gandhi of going on a "political tou" to Hathras, as he questioned the lack of a similar reaction from the two leaders to ghastly crimes against women in Punjab and Rajasthan, which are ruled by the Congress. They go to these places for "photo-op", Javadekar said, referring to the Congress leaders' visit to Hathras. "A six-year-old girl coming from a Dalit migrant family from Bihar was raped and murdered in Punjab's Tanda. Former Union minister Vijay Sampla from our party met the family. Nobody from the Congress met them.

"They (the Gandhis) cannot see atrocities against women in the states where it (Congress) is in power. Neither Rahul Gandhi nor Priyanka went there and nor was there any comment from his president, Sonia Gandhi," he told reporters here.

Javadekar also claimed that the culprits in the rape-and-murder case in Punjab have not been arrested yet and demanded stringent action against them.

Women will be in the vanguard of governance: Bedi

Puducherry, Oct. 24: Striking

a note of optimism, Puducherry Lt Governor Kiran Bedi on Saturday said women would be in the vanguard of self governance in the union territory after civic polls are held, which are due for nearly a decade.

With the completion of delimitation of wards and related tasks, the local body elections are expected to be held for five municipalities, 10 commune panchayats and 98 village panchayats, which together have more than 800 wards.

Against this background, Bedi, in a video message to people said, "One third representation would be available for women in the civic bodies, women would therefore be in the vanguard of local self governance and Puducherry as a whole is in for an amazing change in the coming years."

Once representatives for civic bodies were elected by the people, there might be no need for public to visit 'Raj Nivas' to seek redress of grievances as these could be addressed at the local level, she said.

Women, elected to civic bodies have an opportunity to check alcoholism as well, the Lt Governor said adding she looked forward to them heralding a new era of progress when elections to local bodies are completed.

Management skills should also be augmented for women and the onus was now on Local Administration and Rural Development Departments to meet the requirement, she noted.

Bedi had appointed Roy P Thomas as State Election Commissioner, and measures to hold the civic polls has already been initiated by him.

The tenure (2006-11) of elected local bodies, including municipal councils ended in July 2011.

Subsequently, to hold civic polls, the State Election Commission had issued notifications which included aspects like allotment of reserved seats on the basis of delimitation of wards completed in 1995 and on the 1991 census.

The matter went to the court as well and the delimitation exercise has now been completed.

J. STALIN | DC
CHENNAI, OCT. 24

Strongly deprecating the conduct of a grade-II police constable, working in District Armed Reserve in not appreciating the mercy shown by the authorities, modifying the punishment of dismissal from service for his unauthorised absence into a minor punishment, the Madras high court has dismissed with a cost of Rs 50,000, his petition challenging the order of punishment.

DC CORRESPONDENT
CHENNAI, OCT. 26

Traffic on the Chennai-Tiruchy National Highway came to a standstill for more than four hours on Saturday after a tipper truck flipped. Traffic police barricaded the road but found it difficult to remove the vehicle and ease the traffic.

The truck, which started from Pulikoradu stone quarry near Tambaram, was carrying m-sand to a site in Medavakkam. At around 6 am, when the vehicle was crossing Chromepet on the Pallavaram-Thoraipakkam radial road, the back wheel of the vehicle developed a snag and the truck flipped.

"Luckily there was no motorist near the container while it flipped. Else there would have been casualties. But since it was the morning hour, most of the public were stuck in the traffic," said a police officer. Later, cranes and earth movers were pressed into service and the container was removed from the site. By around 10 am, the road was cleared. The Chromepet traffic investigation police registered a case.

The drama of news

Apsara Reddy

And the point is..

What's made us such a drama-obsessed lot who look everywhere else but within?

As India battles one of its worst economic downturns and unemployment, the emancipated voter seems to look outward. The US elections and Trump's many outlandish statements are the point of discussion in every drawing room. As India's third-largest state, Bihar goes to polls it's of little relevance to people. Even senior politicians of regional parties are excited to know about the US presidential elections as corona rages on in their respective states.

This is what ails India and its drama-loving populace. We care about the theatrics. We tune in, get involved in the thick of the emotion and with it let the most crucial things that affect us slide into oblivion. Sushant Singh Rajput took over our mind space in the midst of the Indo-China spat. Then a supposed Bollywood drug scandal got us all taking sides as Hathras perpetrators became a blink and miss news. Deepika Padukone and blocking Alia Bhatt's next film became top priority for netizens. As unemployment touches a 45-year old high youth of this country are devising hashtags for the US elections, trashing Bollywood or better still creating memes on their favourite punching bags "Pappu" and "Feku".

There is a dwindling interest in what's happening within or how this moment is going to define how we will live and grow. Shrugging off hard news as "boring" and latching on to the tabloid news bandwagon has resulted in a country full of glamour and scandal obsessed news consumers.

The loud, eyeball grabbing news and theatrics is what is selling in India.

News anchors taking positions, celebrating influencers as opposed to the real doers and those with impact, not just influence. They are two different things. We live in a healthy democracy where there is a massive amount of content and choices for us to tune into. But why are we paying so little attention to our own civic issues, corruption, elections, policies and women and child welfare. Rape in our own backyard sparks at the most a Facebook status and we are onto channel surfing.

The point is ideological driven media moguls have exploited the media's political and commercial value. Our culture that is all about purity and sanctity is also has a voracious appetite for voyeurism, and this the press has taken complete advantage of. We seem to celebrate someone's fall from grace, salacious affairs, motor-mouth politicians and indulge in media trials.

The point is we need to educate one another about the real value of news. It has the power to change our destiny. Mere entertainment and rabble rousing news outfits cannot shape our views. And before we predict Trumps victory or decry his clownish behaviour, remember the Kisan in our country deserves your attention.

Pit turns a menace on Kamarajar Salai

T. SUDHEESH | DC
CHENNAI, OCT. 24

Even two months after digging a big pit in the middle of Kamarajar Salai in Ramapuram, by metro water for laying a pipeline, the works remains unfinished, creating problems for pedestrians and traffic snarls for motorists.

A temporary fence encircling the pit near Arasaram junction continues as an epitome of the apathy of officials. Every day thousands of vehicles and pedestrians pass through the road, but the highways department and metro water officials are engaged in a blame game over the poor condition of the road which they created. With both sides of the congested roads encroached by shops and parked vehicles, commuters have no other option but to use the centre portion of the road resulting in traffic snarls and frequent accidents.

Making the condition worse, rain damaged the entire road. In addition to this, on Saturday truckloads of construction materials were off-loaded on the centre of the road, 100 metres away from the metro water pit, creating another traffic congestion in the area.

A. Paul Dhas, president, Ramapuram Social Welfare Federation, requested officials to level the dug up portion of Thiruvalluvar Salai as the peak winter season is nearing. "We have informed all officials including the highways department and metro water. But they are simply passing the buck. The real victims are taxpayers. "In order to resolve the issue, we want to bifurcate Thiruvalluvar Salai; one stretch from the culvert to Arasaram junction and other from Arasaram junction towards Alwarthirunagar," he said.

When DC contacted the officials, they blamed each other for the situation. Prabhu, assistant engineer, highways department, said that they were waiting for the clearance certificate from the metro water authorities to repair the road. Until they do so, we can't do anything there," he says.

Meanwhile, Kannan, superintendent engineer, metro water, claimed that they completed the work weeks ago and gave a clearance certificate to the highways department. "We don't know why they deny the fact. We will take up matters with the higher authorities," he said.

DMK alliance intact, will win 2021 polls: Mutharasan

ARULOLI M | DC
TIRUNELVELI, OCT. 24

The DMK-led alliance in the state is intact with no confusion, said CPI state secretary R. Mutharasan, and added that the DMK alliance would sweep the 2021 Assembly elections.

During a visit here on Saturday to participate in a party workers meet, Mutharasan condemned police for filing a case against VCK president Thol Thirumavalavan for his alleged comments against Hindu women.

Stating that Thirumavalavan had mentioned only what has been written in Manu Dharma about women, Mutharasan demanded the immediate withdrawal of the case against the VCK leader, who has high regard for women.

Responding to the governor's delay in approving the internal reservation of 7.5 percent for government school students in MBBS admissions, Mutharasan suspected that the Centre was behind the delay.

Reacting to the media on the number of seats the CPI planned to contest in the 2021 assembly election in the DMK alliance, Mutharasan said that it would be decided later. Mutharasan however was confident that the DMK alliance would sweep the 2021 assembly election.

Elephant electrocuted in revenue land, finds probe

B RAVICHANDRAN | DC
OOTY, OCT. 24

The electrocution of a wild jumbo in a farm land in Benthoor hamlet near here along Segur additional reserve forest area last Monday, and the way in which the three accused buried the animal's carcass, raised several eyebrows.

Investigations revealed that the land in which the jumbo was electrocuted was a revenue land which had been encroached by the accused.

Sources said that initially it was thought that the accused trio had taken the piece of private farm land for lease from someone for farming activities. Only later it came to be known that it was a revenue land, categorized as 'village grazing ground' along the Segur additional reserve forest, located in a remote area far away from Benthoor hamlet.

"The three accused were identified as S Vigneshwaran, S K Gopalakrishnan and Ajithkumar, all hailing from Benthoor hamlet and raising vegetables in a private land adjacent to the revenue land, which over the years they had encroached. Since their encroaching of the revenue land had gone unnoticed, they developed the courage to fence the area and pass electricity at night hours to check the entry of wild animals from the forest. The wild jumbo had sneaked into this land and was electrocuted. The trio burnt the elephant's carcass to a certain extent, dug a pit in a remote corner of the land and buried it. Now, revenue officials are taking steps to retrieve the encroached land," sources added.

Meanwhile, wildlife activists here wanted the district administration to order a survey of village grazing grounds and other government lands along the forest fringes across the Nilgiris to know the present status of these lands, and to check encroachments on them.

around 1:30 am early on Saturday.

A postmortem was performed on Saturday noon, and the report revealed that the animal had been sick for a long time due to age. Its teeth were completely damaged and the animal had remained unable to chew its food. Wounds on the animal's rear part of the body were infected with worms.

The normal life span of sloth bears is said to be around 15 to 18 years, added the DFO.

State health secretary J. Radhakrishnan said coronavirus infection in the state had come down by half due to various efforts of the government, like aggressive testing, fever camps and door-to-door surveys.

Speaking to the media at the Rajiv Gandhi Government General Hospital where he congratulated doctors who performed double surgeries on two patients from Andhra Pradesh, he said despite the increased attention given to care of Covid-19 patients, treatment for other diseases continued as usual. The two twin surgeries were an example for that, he said.

Speaking about coronavirus, he urged the public to cooperate and ensure that the infection rate was brought to zero. Since it was festival time, he urged the people to be extra careful and said that wearing facemasks was mandatory.

Signalling a further slide in daily fresh infections, Tamil Nadu on Saturday recorded 2,886 new cases, pushing the tally to 7,06,136, the health department said. As many as 35 people succumbed to the virus, taking the death toll to 10,893. The state has been witnessing a steady decline in the number of new infections over the past few days. On October 18, Tamil Nadu saw the daily new cases dropping below the 4,000 mark, months after hovering around the 5,000 mark. Recoveries continued to remain significant with 4,024 people walking out of health care facilities after getting cured, totalling to 6,63,456. Active cases as on Saturday stood at 31,787, the bulletin said. Testing of samples was at 80,237, aggregating to 94,36,817 specimens getting examined till date. Tamil Nadu does not use Rapid Antigen Diagnostic Tests (RADT) and all tests are RT-PCR (Reverse Transcription Polymerase Chain Reaction based). Of the 7.06 lakh COVID-19 cases, Chennai's share mounted to 1,94,901 with 779 new infections reported on Saturday.

DC CORRESPONDENT
CHENNAI, OCT. 24

Political leaders of different hues and many common people expressed their opposition to the police filing six cases against VCK general secretary

Thol Thirumavalavan on a complaint filed by Aswathaman of the BJP accusing him of degrading women, while fisheries minister D. Jayakumar supported the police action.

Speaking to the media on Saturday, Jayakumar said Thirumavalavan had insulted women, who should be honoured and respected, by quoting someone called Manu. It should be condemned but DMK president M K Stalin was playing second fiddle to him because the DMK did not respect women, he said.

Stalin accused the Edappadi K. Palaniswami's AIADMK government of being partial and vindictive in registering the case against Thirumavalavan and said that he had only spoken what Periyar E. V. Ramasamy and B. R. Ambedkar had been speaking in their lifetime to create awareness among the people.

The speech was twisted and modified with a view to launching a smear campaign by the BJP and RSS and it was supported by the AIADMK government, said TNCC president K. S. Alagiri.

Manusmriti had passages belittling many oppressed classes of people and speaking in favour of women's disempowerment, said G. Ramkrishnan, Politburo member of the CPM. Accusing the police of dancing to the tunes of the Sangh Parivar, he recalled that the same police did not act when someone said that all women media persons made compromises in their career.

Demanding the withdrawal of all the cases against Thirumavalavan, MDMK general secretary Vaiko said the AIADMK government was continuing with its act of satisfying the Hindutva forces. Among the other political leaders who supported Thirumavalavan on the issue were: former Union Minister

P. Chidambaram, Tamilaga Valvurimai Katchi founder Velmurugan, CPI State secretary R. Mutharasan and Naam Tamilar Katchi coordinator Seeman.

Meanwhile, the VCK organised protests demanding a ban on the book Manudharmam that denigrates women. Several political activists participated in the protests as Dravidar Kazhagam general Secretary K Veeramani had given a call to all to take part in the agitation against Manudharmam.

SALEM, OCT 24

The Neelamalai plantation workers union has threatened of protests and agitations if concerned authorities do not take steps to run bus services to Yercaud.

Over 30,000 people live in the 67 hill villages in Yercaud taluk, Salem district. But buses to Yercaud have still not been operated again following the curfew due to the pandemic, putting the villagers in a lot of trouble.

A statement issued by general secretary of the association, Nallamuthu, said that bus services, trains and other vehicles were not allowed to operate due to corona spread across the country.

Then, gradually vehicles were permitted to run. Two months back, buses were operated to all parts of the state including the Nilgiris and Kodaikanal. But bus services have not resumed to Yercaud, which is called the 'poor man's Ooty'.

Marudhu brothers remembered

DC CORRESPONDENT
CHENNAI, OCT. 24

Remembering the legendary Marudhu Pandiar Brothers, Periya Marudhu and Chinna Marudhu, of Sivagangai, several leaders, led by Chief Minister Edappadi K Palaniswami, paid tributes to the valiant duo on the day they were hanged by the British East India Company 219 years ago.

The thirst for freedom was planted in the hearts of Tamil people by the Marudhu brothers, said Palaniswamy, in a tweet, adding that in their bid to chase the British out of Tamil soil, they fought bravely from 1785 to 1801. Marudhu brothers sacrificed their lives to protect the honour and dignity of the Tamil race, said Deputy CM O. Panneerselvam, saying that on their memorial day one should remember and celebrate their valour and sacrifice.

They waged a war to save the motherland from the British and laid their lives down for it, said DMK President M K Stalin, in his Facebook post. They were a formidable force as they united Tamil kings to fight the enemies and traitors, he said.

DMK MP Kanimozhi Karunanidhi tweeted that the Marudhu brothers were the precursors for the Indian Independence Movement and said that they had set an example to others through their courage.

Several Twitter users too paid their homage to the Marudhu brothers, some of them recalling their bravery in detail. Some even called the killing of the chieftains of Sivaganga as the 'first massacre' of the freedom movement by mentioning that 521 Tamil people were also killed along with them.

MLA PUTS UP SIGNBOARD IN TULU LANGUAGE

GURURAJ A PANIYADI | DC
MANGALURU, OCT. 24

While people and elected representatives from coastal Karnataka have been pressing to add the Tulu language in the 8th Schedule and holding various types of campaign, Belthangady MLA Harish Poonja has gone a step ahead by putting up his office signboard in Tulu language.

Though there are scriptures and inscriptions of Tulu script, it has been almost forgotten during recent years. For the last few years, Tulu activists have been toiling to familiarise the script and many have shown interest in learning and writing in Tulu script. Techies too have developed fonts for computers. Though Tulu is a spoken language, people use Kannada and English script to write in Tulu language also. However, the unique move of Harish Poonja has now gone viral on social media and received appreciation from the people.

Tulu is the language of the Dravidian family, spoken in Dakshina Kannada, Southern part of Udupi district, and Northern part of Kerala's Kasargod district. People from this region are settled in various parts of the country and abroad.

J&K PARTIES FORM ALLIANCE, ELECT FAROOQ AS ITS PRESIDENT

SRINAGAR, OCT. 24

Jammu and Kashmir's half-a-dozen mainstream regional political parties along with the CPM's local unit on Saturday formally structured their alliance and unanimously elected former chief minister Farooq Abdullah as its president.

Abdullah who heads the erstwhile state's oldest political party National Conference told reporters, "Ours isn't an anti-national group. Our aim is to ensure that the rights of people of J&K and Ladakh are restored."

He alleged that attempts are being made to drive a wedge between various communities in what are now known as twin Union Territories of J&K and Ladakh and said that the new alliance would defeat such designs as well. He said, "Attempts of dividing us in the name of religion will fail. It's not a religious fight."

The signatories of 'Gupkar Declaration' met at the residence of former chief minister and PDP president Mehbooba Mufti here earlier to discuss the political situation and other important issues faced by J&K and Ladakh. A spokesman of the group said that during the meeting the participants put forth their valuable suggestions.

The BJP has demanded arrest of former chief minister and PDP president Mehbooba Mufti after she said that she wouldn't hold any other flag unless and until Jammu and Kashmir's state flag is restored.

The Congress also criticised her for showing disrespect to the national flag. She has been trolled widely also on social media platforms for her remarks.

On Friday, Ms Mufti had while addressing her maiden press conference after her release from a 14-month-long detention said that she wouldn't raise any flag other than that of the erstwhile state of Jammu and Kashmir till its special status is restored.

"I won't hold any other flag until our state flag is returned," she said when asked about her statement that there would be no one left in J&K to raise the Indian national flag if Article 370 was abrogated that she gave days before the erstwhile state was stripped of its special status and split up into two Union Territories on August 5 last year.

Narinder Raina, president of BJP's J&K unit, termed Ms Mufti's remarks as "seditious" and said that she should be booked for the same and arrested immediately.

Asserted that "no power on earth can either hoist the state flag again or restore Article 370", he told reporters in winter capital Jammu, "I request lieutenant governor Manoj Sinha to take cognisance of the seditious remarks of Mehbooba Mufti, book her for the seditious act and put her behind bars."

Mr Raina pledged to "shed every drop of our blood for our flag, country and motherland" and said that J&K is an integral part of the country and, therefore, only one flag can be hoisted here.

RJD leader Tejashwi Yadav reiterated his commitment for 10 lakh jobs to state's youth and promised overall development of Bihar while releasing his party's separate manifesto for Bihar elections on Saturday.

Major points included in the RJD manifesto titled 'Hamara Pran' (our pledge) is employment, scrapping of farm laws enacted by the central government, better education and health system, smart villages and infrastructure development for the growth of industries and agriculture.

"This is our pledge, not a manifesto. Our party's resolution is to bring overall development in Bihar," RJD leader Tejashwi Yadav said while releasing his party's manifesto in Patna.

Using the occasion to lash out at the BJP for promising 19 lakh jobs in its manifesto which was released a week earlier, Tejashwi Yadav said that "the BJP is trying to fool people by its fake commitment".

He said, "There is a difference between employment and earning. Providing 10 lakh jobs to state's youth is our top priority which we will sanction immediately after the grand alliance is elected to power. We could have promised more than 50 lakh or one crore jobs but our party doesn't make false commitments."

RJD anarchy drove away Nitish: Nadda

Bihar Sharif/ Lakhisarai, Oct. 24: The RJD is "predisposed towards anarchy" and the realisation had led Bihar Chief Minister Nitish Kumar to snap ties with the party and return to the NDA, BJP national president Jagat Prakash Nadda asserted on Saturday.

Nadda also alleged that the state had remained deprived of many medical facilities during the period of the RJD shared power with Kumar on account of the "indolence" of Tej Pratap Yadav, elder son of party supremo Lalu Prasad, who then held the health portfolio in Bihar.

"The RJD is predisposed towards anarchy and lawlessness. And they remain unrepentant. It is the very reason why Nitish Kumar had to dump them and return to the BJP after which the state resumed its march towards progress", the BJP said in Lakhisarai district.

Kumar, the JD(U) president, had resigned in July, 2017 after his then deputy and Prasad's younger son Tejashwi Yadav's name cropped up in a money laundering case.

BARIPADA, OCT. 24

A 65-year-old Muslim man has been at the forefront of the Dasara festivities for decades at Tentulidinda village near Baripada in Odisha's Mayurbhanj district. Kohinoor Islam diligently supervises each and every detail of the Durga Puja, from the selection and making of idols to their immersion.

While the Sarbajanina Saradiya Durga Puja Pandal or community puja pandal at Tentulidinda village epitomises the communal harmony between Hindus and Muslims in the region, Kohinoor appears to be the torchbearer.

It all started in 1984 when Kohinoor evinced his interest in organising the puja at his village.

With the support from elders, he went ahead in promoting communal harmony with this unique idea.

Since then Kohinoor has been initiating special measures for the conduct of puja in the village.

"On the request of villagers, I took the responsibility of conducting the Dasara festival at the Sarbajanina Saradiya Durga Puja Pandal. None has ever any issues with me leading the arrangements as people from both the communities live together peacefully. I get full cooperation from all my fellow villagers to make this puja a grand success," Kohinoor said. He is not only known for his organisational skills, but he can also recite several Vedic slokas (hymns) and mantras at ease.

"Kohinoor Islam has been doing a great job in promoting communal harmony. Despite being a Muslim, he has acquired lot of knowledge about Hindu rituals and even the Bhagwad Gita. He is no different from anyone of us in the village," said Anil Nayak, a resident.

During the festival people of all communities visit the pandal and offer prayers. They also share together the bhoga or offering given to Goddess Durga.

"The uniqueness of our Dasara festival here has given us a different identity. Not only people from our neighbouring villages come here, but also curious devotees from West Bengal also arrive here to see for themselves how two communities are celebrating this festival with equal zeal and fervor," said the locals.

Cameroon arrests ivory smugglers

Yaounde: Cameroon authorities arrested four ivory smugglers attempting to transport nearly 120 elephant tusks through the country's south, officials said on Friday. The group had trafficked nearly 675 kilograms (1,500 pounds) of the illicit cargo from neighbouring Gabon, which is home to more than half of Africa's remaining forest elephants. They hid their haul in the bottom of a van with a false compartment, state television reported. It was the biggest ivory seizure in the West African nation for five years, customs officer Jean-Claude Ekoube said. Ivory trafficking is fuelled by strong demand in Asia and the Middle East, where elephant tusks are used in traditional medicine.

INDIAN BOY'S EASY SOLUTION TO HANG HEAVY OBJECTS

Dubai, Oct. 24: A sixteen-year-old Indian boy based in the UAE has come up with an innovative solution to hang weighted items from the wall without drilling holes, as part of a school assignment, which has now become a business idea for his family, according to a media report.

Ishir, a student of GEMS World Academy in Dubai, had to submit an innovative project for his Grade 10 International Baccalaureate (IB) course when he noticed how walls get damaged when nails are drilled into them, the Khaleej Times reported. "While screw and nails have been in use since time immemorial, they pose problems for people on a daily basis such as damage to walls, outsourcing labour, dust pollution and other dangers of drilling," Ishir told the daily, adding that he wanted a non-intrusive solution to this issue.

Though Ishir had a fair idea as to how he wanted to execute the project, he reached out to his elder brother Avik, an engineering student at Purdue University in the US, for further guidance. "When we put our minds together, the solution, like all great ideas, was elegantly simple," Ishir told the Khaleej Times. The solution included two steel tapes and a strong magnet which holds the entire assembly together. "The steel tape that adheres to the wall is known as the 'alpha steel tape' and the one on the object to be hung as the 'beta steel tape'."

"The neodymium magnet holds the entire assembly together, including the object being mounted," Ishir elaborated. This non-intrusive method to hang weighted objects from the wall has been named 'KLAPIT' based on the 'clap' sound produced when the two magnets click.

Biden promises free vaccine for everyone in US if elected

Biden slams Trump for his policies to combat Covid pandemic

Washington, Oct. 24: Democratic presidential candidate Joe Biden has pledged that if elected as president in the November 3 election, he will ensure free Covid-19 vaccination for all Americans, laying out his pandemic response plan just days before the US presidential polls.

In a major policy speech on the Coronavirus in his home state of Delaware, Biden on Friday flayed US President Donald Trump for his policies to combat the Coronavirus pandemic that has killed over 223,995 people and has had a devastating impact on the country's economy. "President Trump said we're rounding the corner, it's going away, we're learning to live with it. They are quotes. But as I told him last night, we're not learning to live with it. We're learning to die with it. This is a dark winter ahead," Biden, 77, said.

Already more than 220,000 people in the US have lost their lives to this virus. Worse yet, a new study from Columbia University suggests that anywhere between 1,30,000 and 2,10,000 of those deaths were avoidable, he said.

"Once we have a safe and effective vaccine, it has to be free to everyone, whether or not you're insured," the former vice president said. He said that if elected, he would direct the federal government to "bulk-purchase as many doses as necessary of the Covid-19 vaccine so we can provide it free to those who are uninsured, under-insured or Medicaid-eligible."

"Covid-19 dwarfs anything we've faced in recent history and it isn't showing any signs of slowing down. The virus is surging in almost every state. We passed 4.8 million cases. And when Trump was asked this week what he'd do differently to get the pandemic response right from the start his answer was and I quote, 'Not much. Not much.'," he

US sets infection record as fatalities near 2,24,000

Boise (US), Oct. 24: The US Coronavirus caseload has reached record heights with more than 83,000 infections reported in a single day, the latest ominous sign of the disease's grip on the nation, as states from Connecticut to the Rocky Mountain West reel under the surge. The US death toll, meanwhile, has grown to 2,23,995, according to the Covid-19 Dashboard published by Johns Hopkins University. The total U.S.

caseload reported on the site Friday was 83,757, topping the 77,362 cases reported on July 16.

The impact is being felt in every section of the country — a lockdown starting on Friday at the Oglala Sioux Tribe's reservation in South Dakota, a plea by a Florida health official for a halt to children's birthday parties, dire warnings from Utah's governor, and an increasingly desperate situation at a hospital in northern said. Alleging that Trump does not have a plan to fight the coronavirus, Biden said the longer he is the president, the "more reckless" he gets.

"We don't have to be held prisoner by this administration's failures. We can choose a different path. We can do what Americans have always done: come together and meet the challenge with grit, compassion, and determination," he said.

Revealing his plan, Biden said he would immediately put in place a national strategy that will position the country to finally get ahead of this virus and get back the lives. Biden said he will ask the new Congress to put a bill on his desk by the end of January with all the resources necessary to see how both the public health and economic response can be seen through the end what is needed.

Indian-Americans stand with Biden, call Trump 'foe'

Washington, Oct. 24: Joe Biden and his running mate Senator Kamala Harris have the best understanding of the Indian-American community, the diaspora leaders supporting the two Democratic candidates have said, describing US President Donald Trump as a "foe" who criticises India on the world stage.

With less than a fortnight to go for the November 3 presidential election, Indian-Americans on Friday asserted that Biden, first as a US Senator and thereafter as the vice president, has a strong track record of helping the community. Trump, a Republican, is being challenged by Biden in the US presidential election.

grandchildren will not have the same opportunities as we had. We need a leader who understands our community, our values, our pride and appreciates our hard work and gives equal opportunity and say in his administration," said Ajay Jain Bhutoria, a Silicon Valley-based entrepreneur.

Bhutoria said that Biden and Harris are the leaders who will lead the country out of this mess and restore its soul, revive the middle-class economy and re-establish America's leadership on the world stage and best relationship with India.

Referring to the final presidential debate between Trump and Biden on Friday, Bhutoria said that the president criticised India on the world stage. "The community understands who the real friend of India is, who the foe. Trump is a foe. Most recently on the debate stage saying: you cannot trust India's Covid-19 numbers and India is filthy. He has suspended the H1 Visa Programme, put trade deals with India in jeopardy, and has used (Indian Prime Minister Narendra) Modi's friendship for photo opportunities only," he alleged.

US finds first ever nest of hornets

Los Angeles, Oct. 24: After months of meticulous tracking, authorities in the western US state of Washington on Friday said they had uncovered the first ever nest of the deadly Asian giant hornet in the country.

The nest was found on Thursday by Washington State Department of Agriculture (WSDA) entomologists on a property in Blaine, near the border with Canada, the agency said in a statement.

It added that an attempt to eradicate the nest of wasps — the world's largest hornet species also known as the "murder hornet" — would take place on Saturday.

"The successful detection of a nest comes after a WSDA trapper collected two live Asian giant hornets on October 21 (Wednesday), caught in a new type of trap the agency had placed in the area," the statement said. "Two more hornets, also living, were found in another trap the morning of October 22 when WSDA staff arrived in the area to tag the previously trapped hornets with radio trackers and follow one back to its nest," it added.

Scientists in the state have been actively searching for the Asian giant hornet since the first such insect was detected in December 2019 and after one of the wasps was trapped in July in Whatcom County, where Blaine is located.

Several more of the invasive pest not native to the US were subsequently caught, all in the same region.

Ethiopia says will not 'cave in' after Trump slams dam

Addis Ababa, Oct. 24: Ethiopia vowed on Saturday not to "cave in to aggressions of any kind" after US President Donald Trump lashed out over the country's Nile River mega-dam and suggested Egypt might destroy it.

Prime Minister Abiy Ahmed's office defended the Grand Ethiopian Renaissance Dam, set to become Africa's largest hydropower plant, and said Ethiopia was working to resolve longstanding issues over the project with downstream neighbours Sudan and Egypt.

"Nonetheless, occasional statements of belligerent threats to have Ethiopia succumb to unfair terms still abound. These threats and affronts to Ethiopian sovereignty are misguided, unproductive, and clear violations of international law," his office said in a statement. "Ethiopia will not cave in to aggressions of any kind," the statement added. A separate version of the statement issued in Amharic featured more muscular language.

"There are two facts that the world has certified. The first is that there has been no one who has lived in peace after provoking Ethiopia. The second is if Ethiopians stand united for one purpose, it's inevitable, they will triumph," it said. Abiy's office did not explicitly mention Trump, but its statement came the morning after the US president weighed in on the dam dispute in support of Egypt.

"It's a very dangerous situation because Egypt is not going to be able to live that way," Trump told reporters in the Oval Office Friday during a

TRUMP CALLS 'BORAT' STAR AN UNFUNNY 'CREEP'

Washington, Oct. 24: President Donald Trump says he thinks Sacha Baron Cohen, the comedian behind the "Borat" films, is "a creep." Baron Cohen's new movie, "Borat Subsequent Movie-film," shows Trump lawyer Rudy Giuliani in a compromising position in a hotel room with a young woman acting as a journalist.

Trump told reporters aboard Air Force One on Friday night that he didn't know what happened with Giuliani.

"But, you know, years ago he tried to scam me," Trump said of Baron Cohen. "And I was the only one that said, 'No way. This guy is a phony guy.'" "I don't find him funny," Trump said, adding, "To me, he's a creep."

Trump appeared briefly on HBO's "Da Ali G Show" in 2003, but walked away from an interview with Baron Cohen's Ali G character after just a minute.

One scene in Baron Cohen's new movie scene shows Giuliani on a bed, tucking in his shirt with his hand down his pants after the woman helps him remove recording equipment. Giuliani called the scene "a hit job" and said he realised he was being set up.

UK's famous Diwali event turns virtual

London, Oct. 24: They are referred to as the biggest Diwali celebrations outside of India but this year the city of Leicester in the UK will be marking the festival of lights virtually, in keeping with the Covid-19 lockdown restrictions.

Leicester City Council said that with strict measures in place to stop the spread of Coronavirus, crowds will not be gathering on Belgrave Road this year for the traditional entertainment and fireworks. But instead Leicester residents and others are being invited to be part of the city's first virtual "Diwali Day" celebration from the "safety of their homes".

"We all need to find different ways to celebrate important festivals like Diwali and Christmas this year. Although we can't meet up with our extended families in person this year, our virtual Diwali celebration will help bring people together for an experience they can share with a family member or a friend — wherever they are in the world," said Leicester's Indian-origin Deputy City Mayor, Councillor Piara

● AS PART of the celebrations for Diwali Day on November 14, people can send in their personal video messages, which could feature in an hour-long package of entertainment that will be streamed on the Visit Leicester portal.

People are being encouraged to use their video to wish a friend, or a family member, a Happy Diwali — or they could share their tips for a socially-distanced, yet joyful, Diwali celebration with people around the world.

"We hope that people will enjoy recording their messages, and we look forward to sharing as many of them as possible as part of our Diwali Day programming," added Singh Clair.

More than 400 diners checked in at Changi Airport for lunch

Travel starved diners eat in parked jets

Singapore, Oct. 24: Hundreds of travel-starved diners ate lunch and watched seat-back films aboard two parked Singapore Airlines jets turned into pop-up restaurants on Saturday.

With the aviation industry in deep crisis due to the Coronavirus pandemic, airlines have turned to alternative ways to raise cash, from offering "flights to nowhere" to tours of aircraft.

Singapore's flag carrier, which has cut thousands of jobs and grounded nearly all its planes this year, offered passengers the chance to dine on board two A380 superjumbos — the world's biggest passenger jet.

On Saturday more than 400 diners checked in at Changi Airport and went through the usual security checks before arriving at the aircraft for lunch.

"The food is pretty amazing, it's better than the one they serve during the flight," Zhou Tai Di, a 17-year-old student in economy class, said as he tucked into his soy sauce-glazed chicken with spicy fried eggplant and rice.

Some settled in for a nap while waiting for their meals to be served, while others watched movies on the seat-back entertainment systems.

About half the seats were left empty, in keeping with social-distancing guidelines.

Calvin Teo, a 29-year-old civil servant and aviation buff, paid Sg$321 ($236) to be served a six-course meal in business class, saying he missed flying and hoped to recreate the experience.

"Of course the feeling of actually flying will be better, because there's the excitement of going to a new destination, to explore a new destination, and even though we can't do it now due to Covid, this is a good substitute for now, to recreate the feels of taking a long-haul flight," he said.

The most expensive option is a Sg$642 eight-course meal in a first-class suite, while the cheapest costs Sg$53 and consists of a three-course meal in economy class. A limited number of diners were also able to tour the double-decker aircraft and take selfies with pilots in the cockpit.

The tarmac meals proved surprisingly popular — the airline announced six additional sessions after more than 900 lunch tickets sold out within 30 minutes of bookings opening earlier this month.

The airline is also offering home deliveries of plane meals, but it has ditched plans for "flights to nowhere" — short journeys starting and ending at the same airport — following an outcry over the potential environmental impact.

Off the beaten track

A woke Navratri, and a happy Dussehra!

As a responsible citizen aiming to be a non-participant in the pandemic (I suffer absolutely no FOMO or fear of missing out, particularly when it comes to Covid-19, thank you very much), you will not be surprised to learn that I have set not so much as the tip of a toe anywhere near a puja pandal this Navratri / Durga Puja.

To be fair to the SARS-CoV-2 virus — which has had bad press since the moment it was born and needs to be shown by us woke people that circumstances of birth alone is no reason to be cast out of society — I also have not been near any puja pandal in the last 30 years if not longer, because I am the Indian version of Scrooge. From the moment we hit August every year, which, depending on what the lunar calendars are up to at the time, marks the beginning of the festive season, you hear me bah, humbugging all over the place, with emphasis on the ‘bah’.

I do not enjoy crowds. I especially do not enjoy crowds in a hot and sweaty climate punctuated by distinctly uncooling monsoon showers that set my sinuses aflame and cause me to sneeze like a machine gun on speed. I do not enjoy amplified aartis by priests so besura that even Cacofonix the bard would be dashing about with gags and ropes to tie them to trees while Asterix and Obelix stuff their ears with broccoli and tuck into roast boar. I do not enjoy the ‘talent shows’ organised by cooperative housing societies in which uncles attempt stand-up comedy so bad that the YouTube shows look good in comparison, aunts explore their inner item girl and give themselves displaced vertebrae for life and children run even more amuck than they normally do, only this time on a stage with amplifiers.

Finally, I absolutely do not enjoy my eardrums being shattered day after day by the techno-Bollywood remixes that our gods and goddesses are apparently fond of, according to puja and dandiya organisers, with Sheila ki jawani at No. 1 on the pandal charts, Lungi dance at No. 2 and Chammak challo at No. 3, all at ear-splitting volume.

So I was delighted when I read the rules for Navratri in Mumbai this year. Keep it low key, urged the state government. Do not do anything that involves mass gatherings; there will be no garba and no dandiya; discuss viruses and dengue-bearing mosquitoes whenever it appears that a crowd is gathering — that will send everyone home.

Meanwhile, in Kolkata, the high court demanded barricades outside the pandals and a maximum of only 45 people inside at any point depending on the size of the pandal, thus ensuring that 90 per cent of the population of the city would push and shove their way to the barricade, thus maintaining what we might now name ‘antisocial distance’ just to add another virus-related phrase to the Oxford English Dictionary.

“Aha,” said my Scrooge, rubbing its hands with glee as it read these rules in the newspapers. “Maybe I’ll get through this year with my eardrums and sanity intact.”

And so far, dear reader, this whole puja season I have not had to use my ear plugs at all. Instead, there is a blessed silence every day — or at least what passes for silence in urban India with its daily aural mix of shattering power drills, blaring car horns, screaming food processors, piercing pressure cooker whistles and the occasional cawing crow.

And I have to admit it: I am bored witless.

Where are the social media posts about divine bhogs that I look forward to every year with my tongue hanging out? Bhog is not permitted, say the state governments. It might contain a certain virus.

How will I know if Sheila ki jawani is still No. 1 on the pandal charts 10 years after it first released or if Chammak challo has finally climbed to the top, pulling the lung down and revealing its underwear and banian, all modesty damned?

How can I perfect my sneer at the residents of my cooperative housing society when it’s time for them to display their untalents on Navratri nights? (Note for grammar Nazis: if you can unfriend people on social media, you can certainly display an untalent.) I usually get a refresher course during the festive season, but not this year.

I feel so bereft without everything I hate about Navratri and the pujas, that I might actually do the unthinkable today: 30 years or more after I told my parents that if I was old enough to vote, I was old enough to stop participating in the annual family pandal hop, I might just step out of the house and visit a puja pandal. Since it’s the last day of the puja, I doubt if there will be a crowd.

And with a little bit of luck, I will not be hit by an unseasonable monsoon shower, find my sinuses inflamed, sneeze like machine gun on speed, and be arrested for spreading a certain virus.

Will the BJP use Nitish to get own CM in Patna?

Anand K. Sahay

Far & Near

There are two somewhat related perspectives to keep in mind with regard to the coming Bihar Assembly elections, where the first votes are to be cast on Wednesday, October 28. These have been largely overlooked in the media and in the facile opinion polls, which appear to have partly relied on the 2015 polling data on caste arithmetic as if this was the sacred gayatri mantra itself, besides strongly hinting that the presumed magic of Prime Minister Narendra Modi could safely take the ruling alliance home.

As we’ll see below, at least some crystal-gazers may be rather hoping that it will be just one part of the NDA — namely the BJP — that will reach the dry shores, no matter what the overt optics.

The first consideration stares us in the face, though we have been oblivious. It is quite simply the fact that the failure of the three-time chief minister Nitish Kumar’s government in coping with the dreaded Covid-19 pandemic, besides the mass return home of the poor from the country’s major cities regarded by Bihar’s massive pool of the labour force as the nation’s employment capitals in the absence of any worthwhile prospects at home, and the recent floods that played havoc with people’s already wretched lives, are stark truths that frame the real narrative for this election. Without ambiguity these point to the Nitish government’s casual disregard of the suffering of some of the poorest people that there are in the country. This can be seen in leaders of the ruling alliance speaking without pause about roads repaired or built more than 10 years ago, and their breathlessly recalling the serious uptick in crime that was relevant two decades ago, before the new generation of voters was born.

Parroting pre-history is part of an untidy and scarcely convincing strategem of the JD(U) and BJP to hide policy failures and executive inaction, and meant to help them smoothly glide over the wretchedness they have presided over for most of their 15 years in office — in other words, to trick voters.

Does the trick work? Among some sections, yes — defined in the main by class. The bulk of these are the state’s upper caste and upper crust, not that anyone’s vote can still be thought of as being immutable.

But ordinary folk have not forgotten the humiliation and the hurt caused by the CM urging them not to come trudging back to the state though, with the national lockdown suddenly announced by the Prime Minister in March, it was clear that they had no money to pay rents in metropolitan cities and no money to eat. They also calculated that, if the disease took them, it was better to die in their unpretentious homes in the village than on the uncaring roads of the big cities. Mr Kumar’s self-serving statements are being recalled at election time.

With the aim of building a strong caste support base of the poorest sections in his favour, Mr Kumar’s self-serving administrative decisions divided and sub-divided the big chunks of the OBCs and the SCs into super-fine strips till they could not be sliced up any further and gave them some benefits in the early part of his tenure to secure their undying loyalty.

However, if the wildly cheering, pressing, crowds at the poll rallies of young RJD leader Tejashwi Yadav, the CM candidate of the Mahagathbandhan — the alliance of the RJD, Congress, and all shades of the Left in Bihar, which are ranged against the ruling NDA — are any indication, then attempts to chisel the caste arithmetic may prove to be of little avail for the chief minister.

And the reason for this is plain enough. Mr Yadav speaks only of the crushing burden of unemployment, which has made even the upper castes reel, as he promises a million jobs on arrival (as CM — replacing Mr Kumar). It is this which makes the sentiment for “badlao” (change) in Bihar palpable, although elections

Ordinary folk have not forgotten the humiliation and the hurt caused by the CM urging them not to come trudging back to the state after the national lockdown was suddenly announced by the Prime Minister are notoriously hard to call. The media, except in the past few days, and the opinion polls, missed this, though it was out there, large as a football.

So gobsacked is the ruling alliance that the BJP is now promising the Covid vaccine free (only) for Bihar, such is the desperation. In the event of an anti-climax, it is the EVM factor that is likely to be blamed, and people are watching keenly. The political timbre and mak-eup of Bihar is different from next-door Uttar Pradesh, although both are Hindi-speaking. Bihar can be volatile across the board. This is where Jayaprakash Narayan’s all-encompassing movement was bred, and also Communists of every hue.

The second factor to watch out for, mentioned above — relating to JD(U) leader and CM Nitish Kumar’s unravelling — is the ambition nursed in the BJP’s bosom to have its own chief minister in Bihar for the first time, even if as part of an alliance. Other than Punjab and J&K (now, alas, only a UT), Bihar is the only state in North India where there has never been a CM from the BJP. That is Bihar’s uniqueness among the Hindi-speaking states.

If this is understood, then the side-court play — the Chirag Paswan phenomenon and the rushing of key RSS people to get the election nomination of Mr Paswan’s LJP, otherwise no great shakes as a political force — does not remain obscure. It is not clear how it will pan out, but one thing is clear — Mr Kumar may get to rue that he let the BJP ride the waves stepping on his shoulders even as he fooled himself that he stood for secular politics and secular values while canoodling with the BJP-RSS.

PMK’S THREAT

With reference to A resolution for a New Year protest (Oct. 24), the raking up of the demand for 20 per cent exclusive reservation for the Vanniyar community by the PMK leader, particularly at a time when elections to the Tamil Nadu Assembly elections are around the corner, is aimed at seeking more number of seats than any avowed purpose. That a few have responded to the call made in the Facebook page of the party does not mean anything. The party many have created a stir demanding reservation for its community earlier, but the times are changing, and the party cannot wag its tail anymore. Its call for reservation is just a scare and it needs to be treated with the contempt it deserves.

OLD ORDER CHANGES

“OLD ORDER changes yielding way to new”, goes Tennyson and Pope Francis endorses it to the hilt hitting upon the idea of rescuing the LGBT members, even as it has become a hot-button issue, since the suppressed LGBT community wants justice to co-habit with the rest of the society. The timely resonance of the editorial Pope and the family values, Oct.24) so biblically is a stamp of class trying to demystify the myth of society’s negation of the oppressed community. As opined by the Pope, after all, they are also the children of God and any departure from respecting them would be tantamount to barbarity, leave alone sexual preferences vesting in the hands of individuals. As the editorial states, “let us wait for the yoke to lighten and the burden to ease at the end of all”.

BJP’S POLL MANIFESTO

AT A time when the entire country is facing the cruel onslaught on them by the corona pandemic, it is quite uncharitable and highly condemnable that finance minister Nirmala Sitharaman has promised the free vaccine to contain the killer epidemic for Bihar in BJP’s election manifesto. If the BJP-ruled government at the Centre is interested in the welfare and well-being of all the citizens of India, they should have announced the free vaccine for every citizen of the country. Of late we find that such benefits are conceded only to the BJP ruled states and they look at non-BJP ruled states with a Nelson’s eye. How can the ta payers’ money be given as an election bonanza only to a particular state with an intent to harvest the votes?

CSK’S END IN SIGHT

DHONI-LED CHENNAI Super Kings going through a lean patch and it is almost out of IPL 13 this season due to insipid performances with both and ball. In the match against Mumbai Indians they were a shadow of the past and succumbed to a score of 114 and out of which 52 runs were scored by S. Curran. After winning the inaugural match against Mumbai Indians, the going has not been good. Dhoni’s batting is not up to the mark and the bowling of Jadeja is well below par for international standards. Overall, the batting appears brittle and the bowling substandard. Team selection was pathetic and the captaincy part was not astute at any stage of the tournament. Now the end is in sight and the CSK team is not going to qualify for the play offs for the first time in IPL history.

Xi’s world: How Covid accelerated China’s rise

Back in February, the Chinese State appeared in trouble. A terrifying virus had infected thousands of people and the country’s social media exploded in anger against the authorities faster than Chinese censors could scrub away the critical comments. Like governments elsewhere, the Chinese Communist Party (CCP) turned to the emergency analogy of choice, the Second World War. Channelling Mao Zedong’s guerrilla campaign against the Japanese in the 1930s, state media declared that China was fighting a “people’s war” against the virus.

As in that earlier war, China’s conflict with the virus has shifted from a defiant retreat to a declaration of victory. Nor is this just bluster. The latest economic figures suggest its economy is the only one in the world that will make a full recovery from the virus — growing by two per cent while America’s falls by five per cent, the Eurozone by eight per cent and Britain by 10 per cent. Justin Yifu Lin, former chief economist of the World Bank, thinks China is on track to become the world’s biggest economy by 2030. Beijing can now look forward, while other major economies are still working out how to manage the damage while racking up staggering amounts of debt.

None of this could have happened had China not dealt so swiftly (often brutally) with Covid-19. This week, the Chinese media has been full of images of people queuing for the new anti-viral vaccine — it feels there that the crisis is genuinely over.

Yet when I call friends in Shanghai, they point out that after the institution of an efficient (and highly intrusive) track-and-trace system and harsh lockdowns, life is pretty much back to normal.

Back in the spring, observers queried whether China’s high figures for suppression of the virus could possibly be real. Xi Jinping, China’s President and CCP secretary-general, can survey the state of his country and reflect that it is far better off than anyone might have expected when the pandemic started. The regime will have been further encouraged by opinion polling that suggests positive ratings for the government’s performance among Chinese citizens, with one survey suggesting 80 per cent satisfaction rates. The CCP has used this to justify doubling down on surveillance of its citizens, and the pandemic will almost certainly be taken as a pretext to clamp down on dissidence.

Not so long ago, it seemed as if Xi’s grand Belt and Road Initiative — designed to bring billions of dollars of infrastructure investment to a swath of territory from Western Europe to Southeast Asia by way of East Africa — might not live up to his grand ambitions. Had he overreached? But the pandemic has changed the balance of global trade in ways that might now make China seem like an attractive partner for developing nations.

China’s opportunity is clear. Previously, the Western world could dangle the prospect of generous investment to countries such as Pakistan or Myanmar through institutions such as the World Bank, tied as they are to norms of good governance and democracy. In a post-Covid world, in which there will be less trade, less travel, less globalism, how can the West continue to influence such countries?

Xi’s China has ended up in a strange position: expecting a lower growth rate than was predicted at the end of 2019, yet relatively stronger than many of its global rivals in terms of capacity to act. Still, there is no clear path from here to the next “people’s victory”. The impressive economic figures conceal a longer-term problem, as the economist George Magnus has argued, of an unbalanced economy marked by under-consumption, a rising trade surplus, and debt still rapidly rising.

The “dual circulation” idea that China can simply separate its domestic and international economies is unsustainable in the long term; major structural reforms will still be needed. And there are other issues, such as pollution, climate change, and demographic decline — from 2029, there will be five million fewer Chinese per year, and the population will be rapidly ageing.

China’s higher global status creates new vulnerabilities too. Beijing is having to come to terms with the reality that the oppression of the Uighurs and the constraining of freedoms in Hong Kong are not simply internal matters for a country that wants to achieve global influence through “a community of common destiny”, because the result is that Chinese businesses and investment become negatively associated with the authoritarian values of their homeland.

The single greatest obstacle to the CCP’s power, however, lies not in Beijing but in Washington. A second Donald Trump term, more virus-driven economic panic, and more chaos in the liberal global order, could end up further boosting Beijing’s message of economic success and authoritarian government. A Joe Biden administration may find it easier to bring China-sceptic forces together.

The fear of a new US administration may be behind the latest war metaphors coming out of Beijing. On VJ day in August, China stressed internationalism when it commemorated its founding role in the UN in 1945. This autumn, however, the 70th anniversary of the outbreak of the Korean War in 1950 has dominated China’s official media channels. In Chinese, that conflict is known as Kangmei — the “Resist America” war. In Beijing’s mind, the US is down, not out. America remains the only real challenge to China’s global future.

SUPARNA SHARMA

Can time, as in a particular period, a few years in the life of a nation and its people, one that is not too distant and whose inhabitants are still alive, turn into an artefact?

In Mira Nair's rendition of Vikram Seth's 1,488-page book, two years — 1951 and 52 — in a newly Independent India feel like an artefact, an endearing oddity. One that she dusted and cleaned, added colour to its fraying, fading bits, and then swirled around it waving her magical Bollywood wand, bringing to life its world, complete with the tehzeeb, the music, the petty corruption, rising bigotry, the idealist politician, gorgeous, young men and women who seek and find love, and then lose some.

It's a world that buzzes with evening chatter over chai, where mornings smell of harshringar, and evenings are rich with the sound of the tonga and ghazals by Saeeda Bai (Tabu).

But Nair's A Suitable Boy opens on an artificial note. The pretty, wide-eyed Lata (Tanya Maniktala) is talking to a monkey who is chewing pieces of mango (or is it orange) she is tossing to him. Her super expressive, one-sided banter is a bit too precious and sets off the series on an artificial note.

This spurious, synthetic note stays with A Suitable Boy throughout, irritating us in the midst of worlds and characters that feel real. It is sometimes injected by characters that are reduced to caricatures, or unbelievable scenes — like lip-to-lip kissing between a Muslim boy and a Hindu girl on a busy ghat.

A Suitable Boy's main concern is shaadi, and that's what it opens and closes with.

Savita Mehra (Rasika Dugal) is getting married to Pran Kapoor. Savita is Mrs Rupa Mehra's daughter, and Prof. Pran Kapoor is the son of the state revenue minister, Mr Kapoor (Ram Kapoor). In attendance are Savita's brothers — Arun (Vivek Gomber) with his wife Meenakshi (Shahana Goswami), and younger brother Varun (Vivaan Shah).

From the boy's side there is the groom's younger brother, Maan (Ishaan Khattar), among others.

Written for the BBC by Andrew Davies — who has adapted several other big books for British television, including Pride & Prejudice, House of Cards, War and Peace — A Suitable Boy is an adaptation of a book that is second perhaps only to Mahabharata in the deep love and respect it generates.

The book was written in English, and so is the serial. But, apart from the put-on air which encases some of its characters, the English dialogue throughout the first episode are shockingly trite, stagey. At one point Mr Kapoor asks his friend, Nawab Saab (Aamir Bashir), "Something is troubling you my friend. What is it?"

This hold-your-breath-in formality at a very Indian celebration — beti ki shaadi — relaxes a bit when Mrs Mehra (Mahira Kakkar) says to Lata, "Tu bahut mazak karti hai". We too exhale.

A Suitable Boy's home is the fictional town of Brahmur by the Ganges in Purva Pradesh. But it travels to Kolkata, Lucknow, Benaras, mostly in search of a suitable boy for Lata, and sometimes for India's first general elections.

But its setting really is a newly independent India as it struggles with the pain and devastation of Partition, the schism left on a nation's psyche, the feeling amongst some Hindus that India now belongs exclusively to them, and who feel emboldened to openly challenge Muslims' right to live in their own nation.

It's here, in Brahmur, that Lata, clutching books to her chest, goes to a college where James Joyce is not considered suitable reading for young ladies.

This is also where the free-spirited Maan, with his curly hair, mulmul Lucknavi kurtas, living on the joy and swag of youth, falls in love with Saeeda Bai, whose nose-pin and sensuous voice carry a hint of the bedroom. This is also where Maan saves and later hurts his friend Firoz (Shubham Saraf).

Brahmur is where Lata meets the passionate and temperamental Kabir Durrani (Danesh Razvi). And it's in Brahmur that Maan's decent and honourable Baoji pours over documents till late at night to challenge the Zamindari system.

And it's at the Brahmur legislative Assembly that he expresses worry over the actions of the Raja of Marh (Manoj Pahwa), who is building a Shiv temple next to a mosque.

I remember reading A Suitable Boy in 1993, because it was written by the man who had the audacity and genius to write The Golden Gate.

The book was riveting in its detailed characterisation, dialogue, elegant writing, but also excruciatingly demanding in attention and interest. I recall lots of details, some characters, but what has stayed with me the most is the feeling of entering and living in an India that was meant to be decent.

While the research and sharp political commentary that went into writing the 591,552-word novel gave it literary gravitas and heft, at its core A Suitable Boy is a very Bollywood, very melodramatic story.

Mira Nair has retained the essence of that world, that story, but has given a big Bollywood jhappi to a book that, though insanely impressive, was also a wrist-challenging tome with pages after pages devoted to how the tannery industry functioned, how land reforms were implemented.

She bypasses all that but enhances the romance and increases the seduction quotient by placing gorgeous people in gorgeous spaces.

As we stay with Lata's confusion between the forbidden, passionate Muslim, the impressive but unstable poet Amit, and the reliable but dull shoemaker Hareesh (Namit Das), and a Muharram procession clashes with Ram Lila, Mira Nair's series is a wet-eyed memorial to Nehru and Gandhi's India.

Like the watercolor on canvas of the opening credits, Nair's series conjures up a simpler time and it yearns for the decency and friendship of men like Mr Kapoor and Nawab saab, and the benign irritation of Mrs Mehra.

Lots has been left out, of course. And some bits that have been retained haven't been given the care and context they deserved — like the entire track with Rasheed (Vijay Varma). And when Nair's A Suitable Boy travels to Calcutta, it seems that it does so merely to poke at the pretensions of the bhadralok who, for a long time, pretended to be British.

Most of the characters in Calcutta are single-note and few actors are able to break through the few lines and costumes assigned to them.

Amit Chatterji (Mikhail Sen) is almost a joke, and Arun Mehra (Vivek Gomber) with his jaw perennially twisted into disapproval of all desis around him is boring. Mrs Mehra is almost funny in how bad she is. Mahira Kakkar contorts her face a lot, but only into three expressions — happy, sad, angry.

Not surprisingly, similarly limited characters assigned to Bollywood actors fare much better. Mrs Kapoor (Geeta Agarwal Sharma), for example, and Shahana Goswami's Meenakshi whose pallu-dropping, bed-hopping diva act is energising.

Sultry and sexy, Shahana Goswami's "Minxy" is like a naughty evening breeze that ruffles hair and ignites loins as it twirls about.

She brings lots of sizzle to what would have otherwise been rather drab outings to Calcutta and even reminded me of Rekha when she suddenly arrived crooning in a Calcutta club (Parineeta).

The stars of A Suitable Boy, however, are Ishaan Khattar, Tanya Maniktala and Tabu (whose singing voice is provided by Kavita Seth of Itkara fame from Wake Up Sid).

Khattar's Maan is the prodigal son who takes the story forward. Things don't happen to him, he happens to them, all in the pursuit of pleasure and love.

Tanya Maniktala's big, bright eyes, protected by thick, long eyelashes, are the lens through which we view A Suitable Boy. When they sparkle, we smile, and when she bats them gently, we pause.

Tabu, well, what can I say about her, except that she is Saeeda Bai, the resident of the haveli with pink walls and green interiors.

The various worlds of A Suitable Boy are lit by goodness, gorgeousness and a warm glow of nostalgia that women in sleeveless blouses and men with pants pulled up to their diaphragm, carry with them. This is courtesy Nair's old collaborator, costume designer Arjun Bhasin whose work always stands out for its fluidity, and who dresses characters characters here only to seduce us.

Inhabiting Mira Nair's world for six hour-long episodes left me with a deep sense of longing and loss for the spaces, characters and India she creates. But then, when Mrs Mehra shuts the door on Kabir without even acknowledging him, I thought, shayad, hum aise hi hain, shayad hum aise hi the.

Did we need another Rebecca? No, we didn't

Rebecca

CAST: Armie Hammer, Lily James, Kristin Scott Thomas

DIRECTOR: Ben Wheatley

RATING: ★★

JAKE COYLE

It's asking for trouble remaking Hitchcock, but with "Rebecca" you might be able to see a sliver of an opening. It's justly revered as a ghostly Gothic masterpiece and the only film of Hitch's to win best picture. Yet Hitchcock, himself, said it's not "a Hitchcock picture." He called his adaptation of Daphne du Maurier's 1938 book "a novelette, really" and noted that, besides, the Oscar didn't go to himself but to producer David O. Selznick.

And it's true, to a certain degree. More than any other top-tier (OK, second-tier) Hitchcock, "Rebecca" — the director's first Hollywood film — isn't a full expression of the filmmaker's devastating mischief, his clinical mastery of suspense. For that you'd be better off turning to "Notorious" or "Vertigo" or "Shadow of a Doubt" or "Psycho." Selznick insisted on too faithful of an adaption for Hitchcock to really sink his teeth in "Rebecca."

But let's not get carried away. "Rebecca" is still really good. Hitchcock, in movement and shadow, heightens the psychology of du Maurier's characters until every interactions quivers with tension. Joan Fontaine is exquisite, and Judith Anderson's frightfully poised Mrs. Danvers is a quintessentially Hitchcockian creation. Laurence Olivier ain't bad either. So did we need another "Rebecca"? No, of course not.

Ben Wheatley's "Rebecca," out Wednesday on Netflix, is a limp, gauzy retreat that never has half as firm a handle on the material as Hitchcock's terrifically taut film. A script by Jane Goldman, Joe Shrapnel and Anna Waterhouse lends a slightly more faithful adaptation (Hitchcock was restricted by the Hays Code in the film's final act). But throughout the film there's only ever a sense of searching vainly for a purpose. The best this "Rebecca" can come with is some florid production design, showy camera-work and several fine, very well-outfitted actors spread out across Southern France and the coastal English countryside. There is some quite nice light in this "Rebecca." But does anyone ever watch a grand Gothic fairy tale and think, "If only it had a bit more afternoon sun in it?"

The film's central trio — Lily James, Armie Hammer, Kristin Scott Thomas — is far from shabby James plays the low-class young woman rescued from her job as a lady's companion (Ann Dowd plays her wealthy, unpleasant employer) by the rich and galante widower Maximilian de Winter (Hammer) in a fast-unfolding romance that's practically rom-com on the Cote d'Azur but grows dark as a horror film back home at Maxim's enormous estate, Manderley. There, the spirit of de Winter's dead first wife looms everywhere, none more so than in the personage of Mrs. Danvers (a regal, menacing Thomas). James' never-named protagonist can't live up to Rebecca's always-looming image of beauty and grace, and she's helpless in the estate management her precursor handled so easily. A crippling feeling of inadequacy is at the heart of "Rebecca."

It's less the casting that feels wayward. James, holds the film reasonably together even as Wheatley — a British filmmaker known for high-stylized thrillers — works to fill the film with a distracting sheen. A work of fierce interiority has been turned into a hollow exercise in exteriority. One could argue about the authorship of the original "Rebecca," but this one is most definitely not "a Hitchcock picture." —AP

The Chicago Seven trial gets the Aaron Sorkin touch

CAST: Joseph Gordon-Lewitt, Sacha Baron Cohen, Yahya Abdul Mateen II, Frank Langella, Eddie Redmayne, Mark Rylance, Jeremy Strong, John Carroll Lynch, Daniel Flaherty, Noah Robbins, Alex Sharp, Michael Keaton, Alex Sharp, Noah Robbins

DIRECTOR: Aaron Sorkin

RATING: ★★★★★

LINDSEY BAHR

If anyone was born to make a film about the infamous federal trial surrounding the protests outside the 1968 Democratic National Convention, it's Aaron Sorkin.

The grandstanding of the celebrity revolutionaries Abbie Hoffman and Tom Hayden, the clash of disparate personalities and protest styles, the earnestness of the anti-war cause and the general chaos of the trial itself are all perfectly suited to his brand of storytelling. That he actually got to do it and release it in a year when police and protesters and riots are once again in the news, is almost too on the nose for even a Sorkin joint.

But sometimes things just fall into place perfectly and "The Trial of the Chicago 7," which Sorkin wrote and directed, is like a little gift in this very complicated year — relevant, smart and very entertaining. And seeing it only requires a Netflix subscription.

As he did in "Molly's Game," Sorkin starts his film in a sprint, energetically introducing the audience to key players getting ready to go to Chicago: "Yippies" Hoffman (Sacha Baron-Cohen) and Jerry Rubin (Jeremy Strong). Students for a Democratic Society members Hayden (Eddie Redmayne) and Rennie Davis (Alex Sharp), the conscientious objector David Dellinger (John Carroll Lynch) and Black Panther co-founder Bobby Seale (Yahya Abdul-Mateen II).

But instead of taking us with them to the protests, the film skips ahead to 1969 when Richard Nixon's Attorney General, John N. Mitchell (John Doman) decides he wants to charge the anti-war all-stars, or "the school-boys" as he calls them, with conspiracy to cross state lines to incite violence. It's some masterful exposition that sets up a trial that not even the lead prosecutor Richard Schultz (Joseph Gordon-Lewitt) believes is winnable or right. Schultz will later try to convince the jury that the eight people on trial are just the "radical left in different costumes."

Sorkin does a fine job of bringing to life the circus of the trial, with Judge Julius Hoffman (Frank Langella) doling out contempt of court charges and defendants talking back and cracking jokes (mainly Hoffman and Rubin).

Mark Rylance as the defense attorney William Kunstler has the perfect combination of affability and gravitas to bring balance to a trial that was on one hand ridiculous and on another gravely serious. Seale was there without representation and the judge couldn't have been less interested in that fact.

The script assumes at least a little bit of knowledge about the players but also tells you everything you need to know to stay engaged. And it's a joy watching actors stretch with different types of roles (and accents). Strong has fun going full stoner and Redmayne is effortless as the more buttoned-up American. Baron-Cohen perhaps is the most exciting as Hoffman, the activist/showman who even his fellow activists seemed to underestimate.

But the whole production is stacked with brilliant actors in both big and small roles. Kelvin Harrison Jr. appears too briefly as the Illinois Black Panther head Fred Hampton, as does the always wonderful Caitlin FitzGerald as an undercover cop, to name a few.

As in any Sorkin joint there are at least three lines of dialogue that might make your eyes roll into the back of your head and your body produce an involuntary groan so extended that you will likely have to rewind. But it just goes to show how good the rest of it is that a few clunkers could stick out that much. —AP

Captain can't run away, says Dhoni

Sharjah: The usually indefatigable Mahendra Singh Dhoni conceded to being hurt at the way Chennai Super Kings' IPL campaign has hurtled from one disaster to another but ruled out benching himself from the remaining three games, saying "a captain can't run away". CSK are all but out of reckoning from a play-offs spot and Dhoni said the three remaining games would be an exercise in understanding how the side should plan for the next season. They next take on Royal Challengers Bangalore on Sunday. "We have to make the most of the next three games and it is good preparation for the next year. Identify the batsmen, who will bowl at the death and hopefully the players will soak up the pressure," he said after the 10-wicket loss to Mumbai Indians here on Friday. "Captain can't run away, so I'll be playing in all the games," he added. — PTI

Indian teams in online chess final

Chennai: B. Adhiban and R. Vaishali shone bright as the top-seeded Indian men and women teams entered the finals of the Asian Nations (Regions) Online chess championship with victories over Kazakhstan and Mongolia respectively on Saturday. While the men beat Kazakhstan 2.5-1.5 and 3-1, the women's side posted 3.5-0.5 and 4-0 wins over Mongolia. Adhiban notched up important victories over Rinat Jumabayev on the top board in both his matches.

In the first match, India rode on Adhiban's win while Nihal Sarin, S.P. Sethuraman and K. Sasikiran drew their games. The Indian team, led by Surya Sekhar Ganguly, faces Australia in Sunday's final. Ganguly didn't play any match on Saturday. In the women's semifinal, India were in dominant form and won both the matches comprehensively. — PTI

Honda's Nakagami clinches first pole

Alcañiz, Spain: Japanese rider Takaaki Nakagami grabbed his maiden MotoGP pole position for Sunday's Teruel Grand Prix, while championship leader Joan Mir could only qualify in 12th place on Saturday. The 28-year-old Nakagami, who signed a new deal with Honda's satellite team earlier this week, posted a fastest lap of one minute and 46.882 seconds. "It's an incredible feeling," he said. "Everything is going pretty well so far. "I'm very proud but the most important thing is tomorrow (Sunday)." Italian Franco Morbidelli, who was quickest in practice, qualified second, just 0.063 seconds slower, as Alex Rins rounded out the front row. Of the four likely world title contenders, Spaniard Maverick Vinales qualified best. — AFP

Brady, Sabalenka in Ostrava semis

Ostrava, Czech Republic: Third-seeded Aryna Sabalenka recovered from a slow start to stage a big comeback, defeating qualifier Sara Sorribes Tormo 6-6, 6-4, 6-0 in the Ostrava Open quarterfinals.

The 73rd-ranked Sorribes Tormo from Spain was cruising at 6-0, 4-0 up until the 12th-ranked Sabalenka found her rhythm to rally and win 12 straight games.

The Belarusian will play Jennifer Brady of the United States, who also needed to come from a set behind to overcome Russian qualifier Veronika Kudermetova 6-7 (5), 6-3, 6-1 to book a place in her fourth semifinal in 2020, including the U.S. Open.

Also, fourth-seeded Victoria Azarenka knocked out seventh-seeded Elise Mertens 6-4, 6-1. — AP

Chakravarthy's five-for demolishes DC as KKR win big

Abu Dhabi, Oct. 24: Mystery-spinner Varun Chakravarthy dished out the best bowling performance of this IPL with a five-for after his batting colleagues stepped up in style as Kolkata Knight Riders beat Delhi Capitals by 59 runs here on Saturday.

Promoted to open the innings, Nitish Rana revelled in his new role as he overcame a personal tragedy to smash a whirlwind 81 and shared a game-changing 115-run stand with Sunil Narine (64) to lift KKR to an imposing 194/6 after being put in to bat.

Chasing a stiff target, Chakravarthy (5/20) and Pat Cummins (3/17) gave the Delhi Capitals batsmen a torrid time to restrict them to 135 for 9 in 20 overs.

Cummins gave a perfect start, dismissing both the openers Ajinkya Rahane (0) and in-form Shikhar Dhawan (6) in his first two overs.

Then Chakravarthy played the finisher's act in the back-end of the innings to choke the DC run chase.

Coming on the back of a horror batting show against Royal Challengers Bangalore when they crumbled to 84/8, KKR ticked all the boxes to keep their playoff hopes alive by securing their sixth win, with three matches left. For DC, this was their second successive loss but they still maintained the second spot. — PTI

RAJASTHAN FACE MIGHTY MUMBAI IN MUST-WIN TIE

Abu Dhabi, Oct. 24: Skipper Rohit Sharma's fitness would be a concern for defending champions Mumbai Indians as they aim to continue their dominant run, while a Rajasthan Royals would hope to stay afloat when the two teams clash in an IPL match here on Sunday.

MI roared back to form by crushing CSK by 10 wickets on Friday after their Super Over loss to the KXIP. Rajasthan, on the other hand, lost to the Sunrisers Hyderabad by 8 wickets in their last game.

MI are on course to make it to the play-offs but the game is crucial for RR, who are languishing at seventh place and a loss would mean a step closer to elimination.

Questions remain on whether Rohit, who suffered a hamstring injury and missed the game against CSK, will be available on Sunday for MI.

But Rohit's absence was hardly felt on Friday as the young Ishan Kishan (261 runs) launched into CSK bowlers with gusto. — PTI

SRH meltdown hands Punjab a thrilling win

Dubai, Oct. 24: Arshdeep Singh and Chris Jordan took three wickets each as Kings XI Punjab pulled off a thrilling 12-run win over Sunrisers Hyderabad in an IPL game here on Saturday.

From 100 for three, Sunrisers were bowled out for 114 as they suffered a spectacular collapse. Skipper David Warner (35) and Jonny Bairstow (19) added 56 runs for the opening wicket.

Sunrisers were in control of the chase until Manish Pandey was dismissed by Jordan in the 17th over. Substitute fielder J. Suchith's brilliant catch at long-off triggered Sunrisers' collapse.

Earlier, Sunrisers bowlers also produced a clinical performance to restrict Kings XI Punjab to a modest 126 for seven. SRH bowlers responded impressively to their skipper Warner's decision to field first, picking wickets at regular intervals to control the innings.

K.L. Rahul (27), Mandeep Singh (17) and Chris Gayle (20) all got starts but their innings never got going as they failed to grab the momentum.

EMBATTLED CSK TAKE ON RCB IN SEARCH OF PRIDE

Dubai, Oct. 24: Their house in complete disarray after eight defeats from 11 outings, Chennai Super Kings will look to give their forgettable campaign a semblance of respectability when they take on in-form Royal Challengers Bangalore in the IPL here on Sunday.

CSK, with six points from 11 games, still have a theoretical chance to make it to the playoffs, provided they do not lose any of their remaining three games, improve their net run-rate and all other match results go their way.

The three-time IPL winners have struggled in all departments of the game, leading to heavy criticism towards skipper M.S. Dhoni for not showing enough faith in the youngsters.

They run into a RCB squad which has grown in confidence as the tournament has progressed. Virat Kohli and his men are placed third on the points table with 14 points, the same as the table toppers Mumbai Indians and Delhi Capitals. — PTI

Zidane at ease with Real win

Barcelona, Oct. 24: Real Madrid averted a crisis in the best possible way on Saturday by beating Barcelona 3-1 in the first empty Clasico, landing an early blow in La Liga's title race.

Barca had the chance to inflict a third consecutive defeat on their rivals and increase the pressure on Zinedine Zidane.

Instead, Madrid's win earns them a six-point lead over the Catalans, having played one game more.

Sergio Ramos' penalty and a late Luka Modric goal finished off Barcelona after Federico Valverde and Ansu Fati had traded early strikes in a frantic game that defied those expecting further evidence of two heavyweights in decline.

Barcelona might feel hard done by, especially as Ramos' penalty was awarded after a check by VAR and a hugely exaggerated fall by Madrid's captain after Clement Lenglet tugged his shirt.

But aside from an impressive spell in the first half, when an inspired Lionel Messi threatened to win the game on his own, Madrid were dominant for longer spells and pulled away when it mattered.

This was Ronald Koeman's first Clasico as Barcelona coach and some of the pressure Zidane would have felt from a loss is now transferred to the Dutchman, who has overseen only three wins from his first six games in charge.

Barcelona face Juventus on Wednesday in the Champions League, without the suspended Gerard Pique.

Every Barca set-back is now seen through the lens of Messi's future too. The Argentinian, who failed in his attempt to leave last summer, has still to score from open play this season.

Mundo Deportivo had declared the match "The least Clasico of Clasicos" on its front page on Saturday morning.

The coronavirus pandemic meant the biggest football stadium in Europe was silent for the game that La Liga president Javier Tebas had claimed is "still the biggest football match in the world".

In the previous week, Real had lost to Shakhtar Donetsk and newly promoted Cadiz, while Barca were beaten by Getafe last weekend. — AFP

Hami on pole for record victory bid

Portimao (Portugal), Oct. 24: Lewis Hamilton claimed a thrilling last-gasp pole position on Saturday to give him the perfect launchpad for his bid to win a record 92nd race in Sunday's Portuguese Grand Prix.

In denying his Mercedes teammate Valtteri Bottas in the final seconds of qualifying, Hamilton moved to within three of his 100th career pole.

The six-time champion, who had trailed the Finn in all three practice sessions and in the two opening parts of qualifying, reeled off a stunning best lap in one minute and 16.652 seconds at the new Algarve International Circuit.

It was enough to outpace the Finn by 0.102 seconds and, as so often this year, to deliver heartbreak again after the pair had swapped from soft to medium tyres for their final runs.

Hamilton had gone out ahead of Bottas for the final session and took advantage by taking two flying laps, the second completed after the chequered flag fell producing his clincher.

Hamilton's ninth pole of the season sets him up to move clear of Michael Schumacher's 14-year-old record of 91 which he equalled in the Eifel Grand Prix at Nurburgring last time out.

"Yes, we have a great car, but we have to drive the nuts off of it. I have been digging and digging and digging to find that extra time," said Hamilton.

Max Verstappen took third for Red Bull ahead of Ferrari's Charles Leclerc and Sergio Perez of Racing Point with Alex Albon sixth in the second Red Bull. — AFP

Ayaz Memon
Over The Top

Chennai Super Kings' premature demise in the tournament has been the big story of IPL2020. Perhaps this description doesn't quite convey how disappointing the performance has been, so let me pick on some adjectives to make this clearer.

Shocking, disastrous, calamitous come to mind immediately, and all three can be taken in conjunction to show the trajectory the team has traversed in the past five weeks.

Last year's runners-up, CSK began on a strong footing, beating Mumbai Indians by 5 wickets in the opening game of the tournament.

Since then, they've won only two more matches, and that after much huffing and puffing.

The margin of defeats, meanwhile, kept getting bigger, culminating in the resounding 10 wicket thrashing by Mumbai on Friday when CSK imploded badly and could barely get into three figures.

There are quite a few teams that have struggled in this tournament. Yet, CSK has been the only team which has looked bereft of energy and chutzpah, barring the odd individual performance. The three wins have come so intermittently, that they've been laggards right through.

Inability to raise performance — individual and collective — at crucial junctures has made this the worst-ever season for CSK in the IPL. Consequently, the three times title winners and five times runners-up have failed to reach the play-offs for the first time.

Why has the team performed so abjectly?

On the face of it, neither the batting nor bowling has clicked, and the fielding has been ragged. Key players have underperformed, or been injured, youngsters haven't shaped up well, and in these circumstances, the captaincy has looked confused or confounding.

However, there is much more that goes into the making of a successful or failing side. There are below the surface complexities and nuances that can make or mar performance which can't be glossed over.

These have to do with squad selection, chemistry between players, strategies and tactics, captaincy, support staff, management decisions. All these contribute in how a team fares.

Each of these is important in itself. Without getting into the nitty gritty of each, I see a broader reason — which would include all of those mentioned earlier — to explain CSK's flop show.

This is the absence of 'forward planning', which was always their strength for so many season when they entered each campaign with meticulous preparation in advance.

An ageing team was always going to be a problem sooner rather than later. Having won the title in 2018 and finishing runner-up in 2019, CSK delayed bringing in fresh talent.

Several of CSK's players are not playing regularly, only in T20 leagues, starting with M.S. Dhoni himself. Watson, Rayudu, Bravo, Tahir. The Covid pandemic, made it worse since it kept all players indoors.

This was true for all teams, of course, but hurt CSK the most. Fresh legs and fresh lungs should have been acquired in the last auction. Loyalty of players who've done well can be rewarded/honoured in other ways.

In hindsight, the absence of Raina and Harbhajan also hurt. While there might be good reason why the franchise chose not to engage them as the season progressed, could substitutes not have been found instead of relying talent available?

Lack of stamina and substance in the team was evident right from the start and not helped by big guns in the team falling way short of expectations.

Spin bowling, always CSK's strength, was a let-down as Chawla, Karn and Jadeja (most disappointing) picked up only 14 wickets between them. The batting was up and down too.

Watson and Rayudu had a couple of blistering innings but weren't up to the mark consistently. And this is the first season where one hasn't seen a spectacular knock or two from Dhoni.

All in all, a lamentable performance by a team that prided itself on resolve, resilience, canny selection, ambition, strong captaincy, players rapport.

This is not to say that the CSK story is in terminal decline. It's a wonderful legacy created by the owners, with captain Dhoni as bedrock of excellence, and all players who have been part of the franchise over the years.

For this to be preserved, rebuilding has to start asap starting with reimagining the vision, recasting the team, rediscovering the mojo which made them the most feared team in the IPL.

CSK version 2.0 for the next IPL in March can then be as strong as version 1.0 was for a decade and more.
