HC HAD SOUGHT ALLOTMENT EXPLANATION

The court had earlier sought an explanation by the government and Shankar regarding the allotment. HMDA and other officials filed an affidavit stating that the market value was ₹20 lakh and submitted that the allotment was made on a Cabinet resolution of June 18, 2019.

Chief Justice Chauhan observed, "In the counter affidavit, the officials claimed that the market value of the land while allotting to the film director was ₹20 lakh per acre whereas the prevailing market value of the price is ₹2.5 crore... if the market value of the land is ₹2.5 crore, the court fails to understand on what basis the land is allotted at ₹5 lakh... Even if it is a Cabinet decision, the Cabinet cannot abuse its power by passing orders for allotment of land at such a low rate. A decision of the Cabinet should be on an economic basis."

The Chief Justice continued: "The allottee assured that a world-class film training studio will be constructed on land and more employment will be provided. Even if 300 persons are employed once the studio is constructed by spending an amount of ₹50 crore, how can the land which costs ₹2.5 crore per acre be allotted at a very low price of ₹5 lakh per acre?"

"This parcel of the land seems to have been sold for peanuts... it is not a justification to say that it is a Cabinet decision and therefore it will stay unassailed," Justice Chahnan said. "The Supreme Court says that whenever a parcel of land is allotted to any person, there is a certain procedure which has to be followed by putting that land to auction, so that the government gets the highest price available... there is no reason to sell precious land for peanuts."

The Bench cited exhaustive remarks of the Supreme Court on land allotment by governments. It said that the policy of allotting land should comply with constitutional provisions and any allotment should not violate procedures.

The court enquired about the status of the construction on the allotted land. Satyam Reddy, counsel appearing for the petitioner, informed that there was a status quo order on this issue. The land has been levelled and ready for construction.

BJP chief slams TRS govt during online meet with partymen

DC CORRESPONDENT
HYDERABAD, AUG. 10

Signalling the reinvigorated resolve of the saffron party to take its challenge against the TRS government a notch up, BJP president J.P. Nadda alleged that Chief Minister K. Chandrashekar Rao was involved in a scandal of ₹40,000 crore in the Kaleshwaram irrigation projects, whose costs were escalated from an estimated ₹45,000 crore to ₹85,000 crore only for receiving bribes.

Addressing BJP Telangana state leaders and cadre online as part of the bhoomi puja for the construction of nine party offices, three of which in the districts of Hyderabad, Mahbubnagar and Nalgonda have been completed, Mr Nadda, who formerly served as Union health minister, said, "the way KCR is handling the Coronavirus pandemic is shocking. Despite being chided and rapped on its knuckles by the High Court several times, this government is sleeping. The testing facilities are poor, testing is low, positive rate of cases is high.

Despite being a humanitarian crisis, the TRS government has no strategy or care to handle it well."

Calling upon the cadre to understand the people's sentiments, which wish to throw away the TRS government and strengthen Prime Minister Narendra Modi's mission to strengthen the country, Mr Nadda said, "within months of giving KCR the mandate, people have decided to defeat the TRS. It reflected in the Lok Sabha, when the TRS lost eight out of 17 seats it fought."

"It is sad and condemnable that a journalist lost his life because of lack of oxygen in Telangana state," he said. "This shows the terrible situation of healthcare. Worse, KCR has chosen to deny over 98 lakh people of the state facilities and relief under the Ayushman Bharat scheme, even as private hospitals in Hyderabad charge over ₹1 lakh per day for ICU and other emergency Covid care. Is this how a state must be run?"

A senior BJP leader after party president J.P. Nadda's virtual rally said the Dubakka byelection would be a great opportunity for the party to show it means business when it claims to dethrone Chief Minister K. Chandrashekar Rao and defeat the TRS. The seat fell vacant following the death of Dubbaka legislator S. Ramalinga Reddy last week.

"From the mishandling of Coronavirus to the anger over the Mallaannasagar project, people in Dubakka are itching to defeat the TRS, whenever these bypolls will be held. The BJP, feeling inspired by party president Nadda's speech, will work hard to win this bypoll," he said.

Revealing that the party was looking for a new candidate from the constituency, given that the previous candidate had lost his deposit, he said, "a local from the district, preferably a Reddy as the constituency has always elected only upper caste candidates, with ability to raise both resources and mobilise cadre is being looked for presently."

Telangana state BJP state president Bandi Sanjay said, "while party offices of MIM are shelters for Islamic terrorists, party offices of the Communists are dens for anti-nationals, and the TRS offices houses the corrupt, the offices of BJP are used for education and cultural activities of the patriots." Senior leader Muralidhar Rao also participated in the event.

Children studying in Classes six to 10 in government schools will have digital classes from August 20. Digital classes for those studying in Classes three to five will begin on September 1. The classes will be aired on Doordarshan and T-Sat network channels.

Likewise, digital classes for intermediate students will begin from August 17. Admissions to intermediate colleges will begin after September 1.

The dates for common entrance tests, however, are subject to approval of the High Court.

Meanwhile, classes of engineering students will not begin on August 17, as was announced by the Telangana government earlier.

The government reportedly wants to wait for the Central government's guidelines and the Supreme Court's order on the same.

Wuhan Covid-19 strain vanishes, new one in city

KANIZA GARARI | DC
HYDERABAD, AUG. 10

The first strain of SARS Cov-2 virus — the so-called L strain — that initially caused Covid-19 is slowly disappearing according to 48,653 genomes that were studied by researchers and published in the journal Frontiers of Microbiology.

The L strain which was widespread in Wuhan has mutated during its journey to different continents and five different strains have been produced. The L strain from Wuhan emerged in December 2019 and the first mutation was the S strain that appeared in the beginning of 2020. After that, there were strains G and V which have been produced in mid-January 2020 as they spread to different parts.

The G strain is most widespread till date and it has mutated to GR and GH strains in February 2020. In India, earlier there was L strain and then G and GH strains have been dominant. According to the CCMB, there has also been Clade A 3i which has been found to be very virulent in India. These were found in Maharashtra, Tamil Nadu and Delhi and also parts of Telangana state.

There are different samples which are being collected from states and the genomic studies are being carried out.

The genomic study of the virus is also important for development of drugs for the diseases and also checking use of old molecules on the virus. Presently, CCMB has got more than 20 different molecules for testing on whether it will work on the virus. The scientists are looking at the different strains and the impact of medicines on them to understand how treatment can be further improved.

Meanwhile the biggest worry was whether like the influenza virus, the Coronavirus will be variable but it has been found that, despite mutations, variability will be limited. This means that despite the different strains due to mutations, the virus structure has remained the same.

A scientist at CCMB explained, "Less variability means that even if there is a mutation the vaccine will work for all the strains of Coronavirus. This is positive news. The disappearing strain L also shows that due to constant mutations there are chances that other strains will slowly disappear and there may be new ones or they may not be. Or it could also mean that there is immunity developing for some strains."

TS REPORTS 1,256 FRESH COVID CASES

DC CORRESPONDENT
HYDERABAD, AUG. 10

The state recorded 1,256 new cases of Covid-19 and 10 deaths due to the disease on Sunday, taking the tally to 80,751 cases and toll to 637. The data for Sunday was released by the state health department on Monday.

The fall in numbers could be due to the smaller number of tests performed — 11,609 on Sunday against 22,925 on Saturday, when 1,982 cases were reported. The results of 1,700 samples are awaited.

The Greater Hyderabad Municipal Corporation area recorded 389 cases while 867 were reported from the districts.

Ranga Reddy topped the districts list at 86 cases, followed by Sangareddy 74, Warangal Urban at 67 and Adilabad at 63 positive cases.

There is a major challenge being noted with home isolation in rural areas as many houses have six to seven family members and there is only toilet. Those who are coming to government hospital isolation centres have to stay for the full 14 days.

A senior government doctor explained, "In mild cases too, we are not able to ask them to seek treatment at home as there is no facility of a separate toilet. They are all staying together and many of them are scared to go home as they do not know how family and neighbours will behave."

The government isolation centres in districts are full and there is limited understanding of home care facilities. The burden on doctors and healthcare workers therefore is very high.

Caution must for kids taking online classes

ADITYA CHUNDURU | DC
HYDERABAD, AUG. 10

Raising concerns regarding the long-term health of children, ophthalmologist Dr Ramesh Kekunnaya has advised restrictions on the use of electronic devices for studying.

Dr Kekunnaya, head of the Child Sight Institute at LV Prasad Eye Institute (LVPEI), said that the increased use of electronic gadgets, prolonged work and lack of daylight exposure could result in the progression of myopia in children.

"Electronic devices are known to emit short wavelength blue light, suppressing the hormone melatonin which maintains the circadian rhythm in the body. Prolonged exposure to blue light, especially before their bedtime can cause sleep disturbances in children. Too much screen time can also result in dry eye, headache, stress, anxiety, behavioural and mental issues," he said.

Dr Kekunnaya suggested that the amount of time children spend on digital devices be proportionate to their age. "While 12 to 16-year-olds can be allowed eight hours of online study, the hours of screen time for younger children should be restricted to less than four hours. Toddlers (younger than three years) must be refrained from using any digital device," he told parents.

He added that teachers need to give appropriate breaks between classes.

"A short break every 45 minutes and a long break of 1-2 hours during long sessions are needed. Online classes should be scheduled in the morning and afternoon, ensuring that children do not use these devices in the evening and at night," he said. Dr Kekunnaya advised parents to encourage their children to follow the 20-20-20 rule to keep eyes from drying out.

Clouds to hinder meteor glimpse

T.S.S. SIDDHARTH | DC
HYDERABAD, AUG. 10

The southwest monsoon has played spoilsport with clouds hiding the once-in-a-lifetime chance that amateur astronomers had to glimpse astronomical events.

The latest would be the Newise comet which is expected to make a return to the solar system only after 6,800 years. It made its closest approach to Earth on July 22, when it was visible to the naked eye from many places but clouds blocked the show in Hyderabad.

The popular Perseid meteor showers that will occur on Tuesday too are likely to be obscured by the continuing cloudy weather over the city and state.

"People can spot the meteor shower to the eastern direction, early in the morning. It is expected to happen between August 11 and 12. However, if the clouds continue to reign over the skies, the chances of sighting this event are very less. It is best if people go to open places where there is minimal clouding to view it," Dr B.G. Sidharth, director, B M Birla Science Centre, told Deccan Chronicle.

He aid that the meteor shower that would be witnessed is the debris of a comet that was discovered in 1858. "The tail of the comet gets disintegrated and is spotted as a meteor shower on earth," he said.

KTR extends financial aid to IIT student

Hyderabad, Aug. 10: IT Minister K.T. Rama Rao has provided ₹1.50,000 in financial assistance to Mekala Anjali who is pursuing the second year of IIT in Indore.

Mekala Anjali comes from Hasanparthi district of Warangal and is an auto-driver's aunt.

She completed the intermediate with 972 marks in MPC in TSRJ Gurukulam Hasanparthi and secured a seat at IIT Indore.

She appealed to the minister, however, that her family could not bear the expenses, and asked for help. Minister K.T. Rama Rao had promised to bear the expenses related to other education in recognition of her performance.

used to the new normal of virus, the stress caused due to social, personal and financial pressure is a concern for everyone. The same concerns are also applicable to couples who are looking forward to be parents. While we have seen a drop in new patients coming to our centres, there are couples who do know that their window of opportunity for becoming parents is diminishing."

Elaborating further, Dr Rao explains that one has to understand that post 30, with every passing month;

chances of a woman getting pregnant go down by 0.3 per cent. That means a delay of six months will decrease the chances of a woman getting pregnant by two per cent. "We have been supervising our patients under stringent standard operating procedures, as their safety is our primary concern. Our staff are well-trained. All the protocols that we have created do make the procedure a little longer. But they appreciate the efforts we take to keep them safe," the doctor said.

Covid-19 test is now mandatory for an IVF procedure, where a woman's egg and man's sperm are fused in a laboratory. The medical condition of the couple's family members is also required into.

Dr Rooma Sinha, senior consultant gynaecologist at Apollo Health City, said, "Safety is everyone's concern. The decision to conceive due to Coronavirus can be postponed, but for how long is the question. Patients should, however, be mentally ready even though fertility centres do offer a safe environment."

Inflows begin into Sriramsagar

Water level in SRSP has reached 38.309 tmc; officials monitoring release into Kakatiya, Saraswathi canals

NARENDER PULLOOR | DC
NIZAMABAD, AUG. 10

Inflows from Godavari into Sriramsagar project (SRSP) began on Monday. Around 36,000 cusecs of water will reach the project from catchment areas of Nizamabad and Nirmal districts. Compared to last year's water level of 14.653 tmc ft, the water level in SRSP has reached 38.309 tmc. Officials are monitoring water release into Kakatiya, Saraswathi and Laxmi canals.

Due to heavy rainfall in Nizamabad and Nirmal districts, streams and rivulets are in spate and the water flow into river Godavari has increased.

Inflows into SRSP increased from 8,345 cusecs to 36,000 cusecs by Monday afternoon.

The project water level has reached 1074.40 feet as against the full reservoir level of 1091.00 ft. It is believed that inflows will increase further by Tuesday morning.

Speaking to Deccan Chronicle, Sriramsagar project superintending engineer T. Venkateshwar Rao said that rains in catchment areas will improve the inflows. There is no inflow from upstream areas of river Godavari in Maharashtra, he said.

"We are monitoring with the irrigation officials of Maharashtra over water flow in river Godavari", he explained and added that water storage reaching 38 tmc is a good sign.

Meanwhile, the SRSP officials reduced the outflow of water from the project on Monday. Initially, they released 3,853 cusecs into the Kakatiya canal and gradually reduced it to 2,000 cusecs and 1,500 cusecs. Similarly, water release into Laxmi canal has been reduced to 100 cusecs from 350 cusecs, while the outflow of 600 cusecs into Saraswathi canal is intact. However, they released 360 cusecs for Alisagar lift irrigation scheme and 152 cusecs for Mission Bhagiratha.

Evaporation loss stands at 360 cusecs per day.

On the other hand water flow in river Godavari increased at Kandakurthi and Basara. River Godavari enters into Telangana state from Maharashtra at Kandakurthi in Renjal mandal. Kandakurthi is also confluence of river Godavari and its tributaries Manjeera and Haridra. The river divides erstwhile Nizamabad and Adilabad districts.

KHAMMAM, AUG. 10

For the first time in three decades, Nagarjunasagar Left Canal is to get water ahead of the normal schedule and this will help an early completion of Kharif and Rabi. Water will be released from Wednesday.

The ayacut farmers of Bhakta Ramadas Lift Irrigation Project (BRLIP) will be most fortunate as they will get water without any barriers during Kharif. BRLIP is not sanctioned as an irrigation project and the ayacut will be under the second phase of Sriramsagar Project.

As things stand, water is not available under SRSP. Water from Palair reservoir is being lifted and extended to agricultural fields. About 55,000 acres in Tirumalayapalem, Kusumanchi and Khammam Rural mandal will be irrigated with the NSP left canal water. Interestingly, the Palair reservoir is fully filled with flood waters from its catchment areas.

Officials have evolved an action plan to the left canal ayacut and about 24 tmc water will be released in regular intervals for crops. It is expected that

The farmers, who are raising crops under the lift irrigation schemes of the Left canal, will also get water this season.

There are 137 lift irrigation schemes on the Left canal and 80 schemes are in good condition.

There are 308 tanks under NSP Left canal command. Unlike earlier times when tanks had to be filled with Left Canal water, this time, the three balancing reservoirs such as Palair, Wyra and Lankasagar are full.

KCR prepares to attend apex council meeting

The Chief Minister was making preparations for the Apex Council meeting which is likely to be hosted by the Union Jal Shakti ministry after the second week of this month on river water disputes between Andhra Pradesh and Telangana state. AP Chief Minister Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddy is expected to be present at the meeting. While the AP government has objected to certain projects in AP, the TS government has complained about slew of irrigation projects including at the Pothireddypadu head regulator at Srisaillam and in Rayalaseema.

The Chief Minister made it clear that the TS government was constructing projects based on its share of the river waters. It was not correct to raise objections on the projects for which allocation of water was agreed upon before the formation of Telangana state.

Rao said: "The Centre raising unnecessary objections over releasing water from Srisaillam to Nagarjunasagar. Srisaillam is not an irrigation project. It is a hydroelectric project. Without taking these facts into consideration, the Centre raising objections is not proper."

He said, "in the Godavari and Krishna basins, projects are constructed based on the state's rights. The projects which are being constructed now were sanctioned at the time of formation of the state and water allocations made. Permission from all the institutions concerned were given including the Centre Water Commission (CWC). About ₹23,000 crore have been spent, 31,500 acres of land was acquired," he said. Fertiliser scarcity a concern in Khammam

DC CORRESPONDENT
KHAMMAM, AUG. 10

With the kharif season beginning, there is a dearth of supply of fertilisers. 'Out of stock' boards were seen hung on the doors of many dealer shops as well as in the primary agriculture cooperative societies.

According to farm officials, to raise different crops in 6.53 lakh acres in the district, 2.57 lakh tonnes of fertilisers is required.

Urea 74,397 tonnes, DAP 32,158 tonnes, potassium 23,418 tonnes, 1.18 lakh tonnes of complex and 8,611 tonnes of single phosphate.

Interestingly, Urea the most basic nitrogen fertiliser used in agriculture is not available as per the demand. Though officials have claim that 12,000 tonnes of urea was placed in the district, the ground reality is different. M. Srinivasa Rao, a farmer from Chintakani said, "The distributors say that urea is not available."

Sources in the farming department said that companies are not supplying fertilisers as per the demand.

Fertiliser companies have to supply 80 percent fertilisers from June 1 to August 15. However they have not fulfilled even 50 per cent of supply according to the schedule.

With the incessant rains, many water sources have filled up. Cotton farmers already began sowing operation a month back. But have no fertilisers to apply to the fields.

The stock of fertilisers coming to the PACS centres are being sold away within hours of unloading. Many farmers are unaware when the fertilisers arrive at the PACs centres.

MUMBAI, AUG. 10

Maharashtra Cabinet minister and Nationalist Congress Party (NCP) leader Nawab Malik has rubbished reports that 12 MLAs of his party are joining the BJP. Instead, those legislators who went to the BJP before 2019 Assembly polls are eager to return to the party, he said on Monday.

There is a buzz in the political circles that 12 NCP MLAs are on their way to the BJP, which is likely to bring the MVA government, consisting of Shiv Sena, NCP and Congress, into trouble.

The NCP broke its silence on the issue calling these reports ‘baseless’. “Some people are spreading rumours of 12 NCP MLAs joining BJP, this is baseless and fabricated news. The legislators who went to the BJP before the election are eager to return to the NCP. Soon, a decision will be made and the details will be made public (sic),” Mr Malik tweeted.

The reports of NCP legislators joining the BJP have come on the backdrop of saffron party leaders’ assertions that the MVA government will not last long due to its internal conflicts.

In Assembly polls, BJP emerged as the single largest party in the state with 105 seats followed by the Shiv Sena with 56 seats, NCP bagged 54 seats while Congress got 44 seats in 288-member Maharashtra Vidhan Sabha. However, Sena broke its alliance with the BJP on the issue of sharing of the Chief Minister’s post and formed the MVA government with NCP and Congress.

Open air classes gain pace in Valley

The trendsetter of this exercise is Muneer Aalam, an engineer-turned-teacher from Srinagar

YUSUF JAMEEL | DC
SRINAGAR, AUG. 10

As Kashmir continues to reel under lockdown necessitated by the alarming increase in the number of Covid-19 deaths and cases, the holding of open-air classes for students forcibly kept away from schools for more than a year now is gaining momentum.

Private teachers and tutors are organizing such lessons for students from primary to higher secondary classes, at least, at a couple of dozen places in various districts of the Valley. In most cases, the education in the time of pandemic is being imparted to these students free of cost.

In remaining instances, mohalla (locality) or village welfare committees or charitable organizations are funding the pursuit, however.

The trendsetter of this unique exercise is Muneer Aalam, an engineer-turned-teacher from Srinagar. He had in view of the slow 2G internet speed debilitating the online classes launched for students by their respective institutions in earlier, started free open-air coaching classes at Srinagar’s Idgah grounds in June “to ensure the students don’t fall behind their school or college syllabi.

His “Minaz Zulumaat-illan Noor” from darkness (of ignorance) to the brightest light (of knowledge) - endeavour not only continues but it has also inspired many people here and elsewhere in the Valley and is being widely appreciated. 40-year old Aalam reaches spacious Idgah grounds at the break of dawn to start his classes for 80 boys and girls.

These students pour in from different parts of Srinagar and neighbouring townships, carrying their foldable chairs or mats to attend the classes.

“We adhere to the Covid-19 SOPs and guidelines and take all precautions which include students sitting at distances and wearing masks.”

Last week, when Srinagar received rains after a long time, these classes were held on the porch of Aali Masjid, which is part of the historical Idgah where Muslims offer special Id prayers twice in a year, instead.

“For the first time in the last 50 day, we took the classes a few metres away from our open-air classroom on the veranda of Aali Masjid. The management of the mosque, the second largest in Kashmir, readily agreed to it,” he said. He added, “It was raining but I decided to look for an alternative place to hold the classes so that the students who come from near and far off places are not disappointed. My first class on that rainy day went for about three hours, the longest in nearly two months.”

Mr. Aalam said, “I’m an engineer from the IIT but teaching is not only my profession but also my passion for the past two decades. I felt the pain of our students who were suffering due to being away from their schools and colleges for so long and the online classes not being any helpful to them because of the low speed internet. Believe me, thinking about the future of our children and the society I couldn’t sleep.”

He lamented that even the Supreme Court has failed to come to the rescue of students as the petitions seeking restoration of 4G internet services are pending before the top court.

“When you look into the eyes of these young boys and girls you see helplessness. I just want to ask one question, isn’t education a priority before the government,” he said.

He added, “It appears they are telling us let education suffer but there should be no law and order problem. For God’s sake, don’t spoil the future of our new generation. We won’t be able to face them tomorrow”, he added.

While Mr. Aalam teaches maths, he has been joined by a couple of more people lately to teach other subjects.

Mudassir Ahmed, a student said, “These classes have been very helpful to us. We’re face to face with our teachers here. After the lessons are over, we interact with them, seek clarifications from them and give them feedback. Zoom classes have not been any beneficial because of the poor connectivity”

G.N.Var, chairman of chairman of Private Schools Association of Jammu and Kashmir which has 2,200 schools associated with it, said, “Our students are worried and confused and many of them even suffering from psychological distress because educational institutions are shut for more one year now and the online classes have been a practical joke. Their main worry is - they might not be able to compete with students from other states in all-India level examinations.”

However, Asgar Hassan Samoon, Principal Secretary to the Government, School Education and Skill Development said, “We’re making an all out effort to ensure our students don’t suffer any academic loss. No doubt, we have only a 2G internet facility available to us which also gets disrupted occasionally due to law and order issues but our 1.35 lakh teachers are helping our 1.5 million students to complete the remaining sixty percent syllabus through community classes.

J&K L-G condemns killing of another BJP activistDC CORRESPONDENT

SRINAGAR, AUG. 10

Jammu and Kashmir Lieutenant Governor, Manoj Sinha, has strongly condemned the killing of BJP activist Abdul Hamid Najar by suspected militants in the central district of Budgam.

38-year-old Najar was shot at and critically wounded by militants while on a morning walk in Budgam’s Ompora area on Sunday, the police said adding that he died in Srinagar’s government-run SMHS hospital early Monday.

While expressing anguish over the killing, Mr. Sinha said “the heinous act is an attempt to spread fear and there can be no justification for such attacks”.

He added, “The society does not have any space for perpetrators of violence and those involved in this cowardly act shall be brought to justice.”

Mr. Najar is the second BJP worker killed by suspected militants in the past one week.

On August 6, Sajad Ahmed Khanday, a sarpanch associated with the party, was killed by gunmen in Vesoo village of Qazigun area in southern Kulgam district.

On the August 4 evening, a BJP Panch Arif Ahmad was critically wounded after militants fired upon him in Akhran village of the same district.

Earlier on August 2, a Territorial Army jawan Shakir Manzoor was abducted by gunmen while he was travelling through Damhal Hanjipora, a militancy-infected area of Kulgam.

Before taking him along forcibly, the suspected militants reportedly torched his car, the police sources here had said. His fate is still not known.

The killing and attacks on BJP men by suspected militants have triggered a new wave of resignations by party activists in restive Kashmir Valley.

Admitting that several party workers, most of them lower-rung activists, have resigned over the last few days following the recent attacks on BJP panchayat members and sarpanches, a BJP leader said some were from Budgam district in central Kashmir.

Letters and videos of several BJP workers announcing their resignations or disassociation with the party have been posted on social media platforms.

The BJP leader said three party workers, including two panchayat members and a sarpanch from Kulgam district of south Kashmir, have resigned from the party.

There is one from Handwara, one from Kupwara and one from Sopore as well, he added.

BJP media in-charge Manzoor Bhat dismissed the resignations as of no consequence.

A similar situation had emerged after the militants killed a local BJP leader Sheikh Waseem Bari along with his father and brother in northern Bandipora district on July 8.

2ND PHASE OF
SERO-SURVEY
IN MUMBAIVRUSHALI PURANDARE | DC
MUMBAI, AUG. 10

The Mumbai civic body has started the second phase of the sero-surveillance study in the city from Monday to assess the spread of Covid-19 and how many people have developed antibodies against the disease.

The survey will cover F-North (Dadar, Matunga and Dharavi), M-West (Deonar and Govandi) and R-North (Dahisar) wards, where a similar study was conducted last month.

The study will provide information about the spread of the infection and also throw light on herd immunity, an official said.

“The sero-surveillance study will give an insight into the spread of Covid-19 and development of antibodies. The paper work for the survey has begun from today,” Additional Municipal Commissioner Suresh Kakani said.

If everything goes as per the plan, the survey is expected to be completed in 12 days, he said.

A serological survey involves testing of blood serum of individuals to check for the prevalence of antibodies against an infection.

The sero survey conducted in the first half of July revealed that 57 per cent of slum population and 16 per cent of non-slum residents in the three civic wards had developed antibodies. It showed a high proportion of asymptomatic Covid-19 infection in the city.

No new circular
on train servicesSHAHAB ANSARI | DC
MUMBAI, AUG. 10

After a fake circular on suspension of trains went viral on social media, the Railways on Monday clarified that no new circular has been issued in this regard. However, as per the earlier order, train services will remain suspended and it will not have an effect on special trains that are being run by the railways.

“Some sections of the media are reporting that Railways has cancelled all regular trains till September 30. This is not true. No new circular has been issued by the Ministry of Railways. Special Mail Express trains shall continue to run,” tweeted Ministry of railways on Monday.

The fake notification that went viral on social media read that suspension of all local, suburban and express trains have been extended till September 30, in view of Coronavirus pandemic. However a notification issued by the railway board in May had announced commencement of special trains categorised as ‘Shramik Trains’ on selected-routes to facilitate the movement of stranded labourers.

The same notification had said that, “Regular passenger services including all mail, express, passenger and suburban services shall remain cancelled until further advice”. The limited local services being run for essential services will also continue to run.

Suburban services in Mumbai are considered as the backbone of the city, as it ferries lakhs of people every day.

Centre says Naveen’s home district

BHUBANESWAR, AUG. 10

Opposition political parties in Odisha on Monday came down heavily on the state government citing reports released by the Centre which stated that chief minister Naveen Patnaik’s home district Ganjam was among 13 districts in eight states/UTs with a high case load and Case Fatality Rate (CFR) higher than the national average.

BJP state spokesperson Golak Mohapatra and Congress leader Tara Prasad Bahinipati said the poor management of Covid-19 crisis in the state was well exposed in Ganjam district which has so far reported the highest number of cases and fatalities.

“While the Ganjam district administration says the active case load in the region has come down along with the report of new cases over the past few days, the Union health ministry report stated that 13 districts including the one from southern Odisha have 9 per cent of India’s Covid-19 active cases and 14 percent of the fatality, which is higher than the national CFR average,” said the BJP spokesperson.

“So far while the entire state has recorded a total of 335 deaths, Ganjam district alone accounts for 145 of them. Likewise, the district is also the worst hit in the state in terms of total number of cases which stands at 13,088. These figures expose how the state administration has failed to handle the Covid crisis,” said Congress leader Tara Prasad Bahinipati.

COVID, DISCHARGED FROM HOSPITAL

Bengaluru, Aug. 10: Karnataka Chief Minister B. S. Yediyurappa has recovered “completely” from Covid-19 and was on Monday discharged from a private hospital here nine days after being admitted, the state government said.

The 77-year old leader was admitted to the Manipal Hospital on August 2 after he tested positive for coronavirus. “After recovering from attacks on the ruling BJD on less number of tests, delay in report of cases and setbacks in admission of patients to Covid hospitals.

There was no reaction to the Opposition’s allega-

Covid-19 completely, Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa has been discharged from the Manipal Hospital,” an official statement said here.

Later, the chief minister himself tweeted about his discharge.

“Thank you everyone for your wishes and prayers. I have been discharged from the hospital and will be in self-quarantine,” he said.

tions from the ruling BJD.

The government, however, claimed that Odisha was well ahead of other states in containing the spread of the pandemic and registered the lowest level of fatality rate which stood at 0.71 percent.

NEW DELHI, AUG. 10

Former President Pranab Mukherjee was among those testing positive for coronavirus Monday as India’s overall infections reached 22,15,074, with 62,064 fresh cases. India also reported 1,007 deaths in a day, taking its fatality count to 44,386, the health ministry said.

According to Covid19India.org figures, the country’s total cases were about 22.5 lakhs, with nearly 45,000 deaths.

In a tweet, Pranab Mukherjee, India’s

President from 2012 to 2017, said: “On a visit to hospital for a separate procedure, I tested positive for Covid-19. I request people who came into contact with me in the last week to please self-isolate and get tested.”

He has been admitted to the Army’s R&R Hospital in Delhi.

This comes on a day World Health Organisation chief Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus predicted the number of people infected by the coronavirus will hit 20 million this week, including around 750,000 deaths. In a briefing on Monday, Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus acknowledged that behind these statistics there is a great deal of pain and suffering but said there were still green shoots of hope no matter what stage in an outbreak a country or region might be.

India’s Covid recoveries crossed 1.5 million on Monday after 15,35,743 patients were recorded to be fully cured. With the highest ever single day recoveries of 54,859 in the last 24 hours, the Recovery Rate amongst the patients has scaled another high of almost 70 per cent, the health ministry officials said. “The record high recoveries have ensured that the actual caseload of the country viz. the active cases has reduced and currently comprises only 28.66 per cent of the total positive cases. India has posted more than 9 lakh recoveries than the active cases (6,34,945),” officials added.

They further said that early detection through aggressive testing and efficient clinical management of hospitalised cases have shown results with continuously regressing Case Fatality Rate which is 2 per cent now and steadily declining.

Meanwhile, Serum Institute of India (SII), which along with Oxford University and AstraZeneca is conducting phase 2 and 3 of human trials of trials of the vaccine candidate, said the vaccine may be available by the year end and the final price of the vaccine will be announced in two months.

Meanwhile, Kerala on Monday recorded 1,184 cases while 784 recovered from the infection.

Of the new cases, 956 contracted the infection through contact, source of infection among 114 persons is yet to be known, 106 came from abroad, 73 from other states and 41 health workers.

Seven deaths were reported in the state on Monday.

The maximum number of cases were reported from Malappuram district 255, Thiruvananthapuram 200, Palakkad 147, Kasargod 146 and Ernakulam 101 respectively. So far 22,616 persons have recovered from the infection while 12,740 patients are still under treatment in various hospitals across the state, Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan told media persons on Monday.

IN BRIEF

11 drown in Panama flood

Panama City: Eleven people from one family died Sunday in Panama when their home was swept away in a flash flood as they slept, officials said. Nine of them were minors, said Carlos Rumbo, head of the national civil protection service. Two other people are missing in the sudden rise of the Bejuco River in Veraguas province west of Panama City. President Laurentino Cortizo expressed his condolences on Twitter. The civil protection service had warned Sunday of heavy storms with lightning and gusting winds in much of the Central American country.

Niger: French aid workers killed

Koure, Niger: Gunmen on motorcycles killed eight people, including a group of French aid workers, as they visited a part of Niger popular with tourists for its wildlife, officials said. "There are eight dead: two Nigeriens including a guide and a driver, while the other six are French," the governor of the Tillaberi region said on Sunday. France confirmed its nationals were among the dead, without giving a figure. French aid group ACTED said several of its workers were among those killed during a tourist outing. "Among the eight people killed in Niger, several were Acted employees," said the NGO's lawyer Joseph Breham. It is believed to be the first such attack on Westerners in the area, a popular tourist attraction in the former French colony thanks to its unique population of West African or Niger giraffes.

Bomb kills six in Balochistan

Quetta: An improvised bomb planted on a motorbike killed six people in Pakistan's Balochistan province on Monday, police said. A vehicle carrying personnel from the country's anti-narcotic force was believed to be the target of the blast in Chaman town, which borders Afghanistan, senior police official Razaq Cheema said. "The explosion killed six passersby and wounded 10 others, two of them critically," he said. Local police official Masood Khan confirmed the attack and casualties. No group immediately claimed responsibility for the attack but Baluch separatists demanding greater autonomy have been waging an insurgency for years while the province is also riven by sectarian strife and Islamist violence. Interior minister Ejaz Shah said in a statement that "such attacks are aimed at spreading fear among the people". Mineral-rich Balochistan, bordering Afghanistan and Iran, is the largest of Pakistan's four provinces, but its roughly seven million inhabitants have long complained they do not receive a fair share of its gas and mineral wealth. China is investing in the area under a $54 billion project known as the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor.

BASHIR'S TRIAL DELAYED

Khartoum, Aug. 10: The trial of Sudan's ousted ex-president Omar al-Bashir was delayed Monday at the request of his defence, a prosecution lawyer said. The trial of Bashir over the military coup that brought him to power more than three decades ago, as well as of 27 other defendants, opened with a brief hearing in July. The second hearing had been set for August 11. But defence lawyers requested a delay for three of the defendants — Bashir as well as two former senior leaders of the once powerful but now defunct National Congress Party. "Lawyers for three defendants petitioned the Court of Appeal to release three defendants on bail, after the court refused to grant their request at the trial's first hearing on July 21," Moaz Hadra, one of the prosecution lawyers, said.

"The Court of Appeal must rule, and then a new date for the trial will be set," Bashir, 76, and his co-accused could face the death penalty if convicted over the 1989 Islamist-backed overthrow of the democratically elected government of prime minister Sadek al-Mahdi. It is the first time in the Arab world's modern history that the architect of a coup is tried for plotting a putsch, although the man dubbed the true brain behind it, Hassan Turabi of the National Islamic Front, died in 2016. Bashir stayed in power for 30 years before being overthrown on April 11, 2019.

US polls: Why running mate pick matters more this year

Joe Biden has committed to selecting a woman and is considering Blacks

New York, Aug. 10: For all the secrecy and speculation that typically surrounds the search for a vice presidential candidate, the decision rarely sways an election. But ahead of Joe Biden's imminent announcement, this year could be different. At a minimum, the decision will shift the force of the campaign — at least temporarily — away from Donald Trump's turbulent presidency onto Biden himself.

That's not a place many Democrats are comfortable given Biden's proclivi-ty for gaffes and the persistent lack of excitement behind his candidacy.

More fundamentally, the choice offers Biden an unusual opportunity to unify a party still reeling from Trump's 2016 win and solidify its future. He's already committed to selecting a woman and is considering several Black women. And since the 77-year-old Biden has not committed to seeking a second term, his running mate could be strongly positioned to become the Democratic Party's presidential nominee in 2024 and shape national politics for the next decade.

Sen. Tim Kaine of Virginia, who served as Hillary Clinton's vice presidential nominee in 2016, said Biden's decision "may be the most closely held and personally driven vice presidential pick ever".

"Nobody knows this job better than Joe Biden and nobody did the job better than Biden, so he's gonna really control this one on his own," Kaine said in an interview. He pushed back against those who discount the impact of running mates, estimating he added about 2 percentage points to Clinton's winning margin of 5 percentage points in Virginia.

While Biden has said a top priority is selecting someone who could step into the presidency on Day One, the politics of the moment have pushed the silver-haired white man to the brink of making history. He could become the first presidential nominee of a major party to select a woman of colour.

Last weekend, he met privately with Michigan Gov. Gretchen Whitmer, who's white.

Massachusetts Sen. Elizabeth Warren, who also is white, has been a leading contender. Biden's campaign team has been in recent contact with a small group of finalists that includes at least four women of colour: California Sen. Kamala Harris, former national security adviser Susan Rice, California Rep. Karen Bass and Illinois Sen. Tammy Duckworth. — AP

World pledges 250 mn euros for Lebanon Govt to resign over blast fallout

Paris, Aug. 10: World leaders on Sunday pledged more than 250 million euros for disaster-struck Lebanon, conference host France said, with the emergency aid to be delivered "directly" to a population reeling from the deadly port blast in Beirut.

Fifteen government leaders, including US President Donald Trump, took part in the virtual conference hosted by French President Emmanuel Macron and the UN, pledging solidarity with the Lebanese people and promising to muster "major resources" in the coming days and weeks.

A joint statement issued after the meeting in which representatives of nearly 30 countries as well as the EU and Arab League participated, did not mention a global amount. But Macron's office said the total figure of "emergency aid pledged or that can be mobilised quickly" amounts to 252.7 million euros ($298 million), including 30 million euros from France. Macron was the first world leader to visit the former French colony after Tuesday's devastating explosion of a huge stockpile of ammonium nitrate which killed more than 150 people, wounded some 6,000 and left an estimated 300,000 homeless.

German Foreign Minister Heiko Maas said that "more than 200 million euros of emergency aid

Beirut, Aug. 10: Lebanese Prime Minister Hassan Diab was expected to announce his government's resignation Monday amid popular outrage over the deadly Beirut port explosion that has reignited angry street protests.

The under-fire cabinet, struggling to weather the political storm, met amid widespread demands for an end to an entrenched political system widely seen as inept, corrupt and dominated by sectarian interests and family dynasties. During the session, "most of the ministers called on the government to step down", Sport and Youth Minister Vartine Ohanian said, saying she backed such calls.

Diab, who was set to address the nation on television at 1630 GMT, "is heading towards resignation", said another minister who asked not to be named after four of his colleagues had already stepped down.

According to the health ministry, at least 160 people were killed in Lebanon's worst peacetime disaster, 6,000 were wounded and about 20 remained missing. Six days after the enormous chemical blast which wreaked destruction across swathes of the capital and was felt as far away as the island of Cyprus, residents and volunteers were still clearing the debris off the streets.

International rescue teams with sniffer dogs and specialised equipment remained at work at the disaster's charred "ground zero", where the search was now for bodies and not survivors.

The Lebanese want heads to roll over the tragedy and are asking how a massive stockpile of volatile ammonium nitrate, a compound used primarily as a fertiliser, was left unsecured at the port for years.

The country's top official have promised a swift and thorough investigation — but they have stopped short of agreeing to an independent probe led by foreign experts as demanded by the protesters.

Four ministers had already decided they could no longer stand with a government that has shown little willingness to take the blame or to put state resources at the service of the victims.

The contagion looked set to spread, leaving Diab, who only accepted the top job in December last year, no option but to follow suit and agree to a full cabinet resignation. — AFP have been collected," including 20 million euros from Germany.

The joint statement from the world leaders and their representatives underscored concerns about Lebanese government corruption. "The participants agreed that their assistance should be timely, sufficient and consistent with the needs of the Lebanese people, well-coordinated under the leadership of the United Nations, and directly delivered to the Lebanese population, with utmost efficiency and transparency," it said.

USAID acting administrator John Barsa also said in a conference call Sunday that American help, some $15 million announced so far, "is absolutely not going to the government".

The donor nations urged Lebanon's authorities to "fully commit themselves to timely measures and reforms" in order to unlock longer-term support for the country's economic and financial recovery. And they said assistance for "an impartial, credible and independent inquiry" into Tuesday's explosion "is immediately needed and available, upon request of Lebanon".

The UN said some $117 million will be needed for an emergency response over the next three months, for health services, emergency shelter, food distribution and programmes to prevent further spread of Covid-19, among other interventions.

Lebanese President Michel Aoun, who was also on Sunday's group call, thanked Macron for the initiative.

"Much is needed to rebuild what has been destroyed and to restore Beirut's lustre," the Lebanese presidency quoted him on Twitter as saying. "The needs are many and we need to address them quickly, especially before the arrival of winter, which will accentuate the suffering of homeless citizens."

At least 21 people are still missing from the blast, and the Lebanese army said Sunday hopes of finding survivors are dwindling. Lebanese people enraged by official negligence blamed for the explosion have taken to the streets in anti-government protests that have resulted in clashes with the army. Macron said it was now up to the authorities of Lebanon "to act so that the country does not sink". — AFP

US cabinet member meets Taiwan leader

Taipei, Aug. 10: A US cabinet member met Taiwan's leader Monday during the highest level visit from the United States since it switched diplomatic recognition from the island to China in 1979, a trip that Beijing has condemned.

Health Secretary Alex Azar is in Taipei for a three-day visit to promote shared democratic values and the island's success in taming the Coronavirus. His trip comes as relations between the United States and China are in tumult, with the two sides clashing over a wide range of trade, military and security issues, as well as the pandemic.

China, which insists Taiwan is its own territory and vows to one day reclaim it, has described Azar's visit as a threat to "peace and stability". On Monday morning, Azar met President Tsai Ing-wen, who advocates the island being recognised as a sovereign nation and is loathed by China's leaders. "Taiwan's response to Covid-19 has been among the most successful in the world, and that is a tribute to the open, transparent, democratic nature of Taiwan's society and culture," Azar told Tsai. Tsai thanked the US for supporting its bid to be part of the World Health Organisation (WHO), a body Beijing keeps the island frozen out of.

"Political considerations should never take precedence over the rights to health," Tsai said, calling Beijing's refusal to let Taiwan join "highly regrettable". Azar brushed off China's criticism when asked about Beijing's anger over his visit.

"The message that I bring from the US government is one of reaffirming the deep partnership the United States has with Taiwan in terms of security, commerce, health care and shared common values of democracy, economic freedom and liberty," he told reporters before his meeting with Tsai.

Azar has previously been critical of Beijing's response to the Coronavirus. — AFP

HK media mogul Jimmy Lai nabbed

Hong Kong, Aug. 10: Hong Kong pro-democracy media tycoon Jimmy Lai was arrested Monday and led in handcuffs through his newspaper office as police raided the building, part of a sweeping crackdown on dissent since China imposed a security law on the city.

Lai, 71, was among nine people detained on charges, including colluding with foreign forces — one of the new national security offences — and fraud, in an operation targeting his Next Digital publishing group. It was the latest police operation against dissidents under the sweeping new law introduced at the end of June.

Two of Lai's sons were among those detained, a police source said as well as Wilson Li, a former pro-democracy activist who describes himself as a freelance videographer working for Britain's ITV News. The most serious national security crimes carry up to life in jail.

Journalists working at Lai's Apple Daily broadcasted dramatic footage on Facebook of some 200 police officers conducting the raid, and the newspaper's chief editor Law Wai-kyong demanding a warrant from officers. Apple's staff were ordered to leave their seats and line up so police could check their identities as officers conducted searches across the newsroom.

At one point Lai was present, in handcuffs and surrounded by officers.

CHINA SANCTIONS 11 AMERICANS OVER U.S. MOVE

Beijing, Aug. 10: China on Monday sanctioned 11 Americans, including senators Marco Rubio and Ted Cruz, in retaliation for similar US moves prompted by Beijing's crackdown in Hong Kong.

Washington last week accused 11 officials of suppressing "freedom and democratic processes" in Hong Kong, including city leader Carrie Lam, and announced plans to freeze their US assets.

It was the toughest US action yet in response to Beijing's introduction of a sweeping and controversial new national security law for the former British territory.

Beijing said the measure was a violation of international law and "grossly interferes in China's internal affairs". — AFP

Police said the search was conducted with a court warrant which was shown to staff.

Chris Yeung, president of the Hong Kong Journalists Association, described the police action as "shocking and terrifying". "This is unprecedented, and would be unimaginable only one or two months ago," he said. — AFP

HK police could face torture case

London, Aug. 10: Senior British officers in the Hong Kong police force could face legal action in the UK on torture charges after activists said Monday they planned to proceed with a private prosecution. The expatriate officers are accused of directly engaging in torture against pro-democracy demonstrators, or directing others within the force to carry out the crimes. Torture has allegedly been carried out in police stations and on the streets, with an incident cited at Hong Kong's Citic Tower during protests in June 2019. The prosecution is being brought by prominent activists and lawyers, who are using a JustGiving page to raise $260,000 to employ a full-time legal team. — AFP

Mayor Lori Lightfoot says a neighbourhood protection programme has been activated

Chicago looting: More than 100 arrested, 13 officers hurt

Chicago, Aug. 10: Hundreds of people smashed windows, stole from stores and clashed with police early Monday in Chicago's upscale Magnificent Mile shopping district and other parts of the city.

At one point, shots were fired at police and officers returned fire, police spokesman Tom Ahern said on Twitter. No officers were injured in the shooting. Many of the businesses that were ransacked had recently opened after Chicago protests of George Floyd's May 25 death in Minneapolis devolved into chaos. It wasn't immediately clear what led to the unrest, which began shortly after midnight, but anti-police graffiti was seen in the area of the Magnificent Mile, which is one of Chicago's most-visited tourist attractions.

Hours earlier, dozens of people had faced off with police after officers shot and wounded a person Sunday in the city's Englewood neighbourhood, located about 10 miles (16 kilometres) away.

Asked for updates on the situation, Ahern said that police planned to hold a news conference Monday morning. Police Superintendent David Brown and Mayor Lori Lightfoot were expected to attend.

Along the Magnificent Mile, people were seen going in and out of stores carrying shopping bags full of merchandise as well as at a bank, the Chicago Tribune reported, and as the crowd grew vehicles dropped off more people in the area. On streets throughout the downtown area, empty cash drawers from stores were strewn about and ATMs were ripped open.

with glass and items from inside the stores. Clothes hangers and boxes that once contained television sets and other electronics were seen — evidence that thieves had taken racks of clothes and removed them from the hangers.

"This was obviously very orchestrated," the Rev. Michael Pfleger, a prominent Roman Catholic priest and activist on the city's South Side, told WBBM-TV as cameras panned the downtown area.

One officer was seen slumped against a building, several arrests were made and a rock was thrown at a police vehicle, the newspaper said. Police worked early Monday to disperse the crowds.

There was a large police presence Monday morning outside an Apple store located north of Chicago's downtown area. Blocks away, debris was strewn in parking lots in front of a Best Buy and a large liquor store.

Train and bus service into downtown was temporarily suspended at the request of public safety officials, the Chicago Transit Authority said on Twitter. Bridges over the Chicago River were lifted, preventing travel to and from the downtown area, and Illinois State Police blocked some expressway ramps into downtown.

Chicago and its suburbs, like many other cities, saw unrest following the death of Floyd. Chicago's central business district and its commercial areas were shut down for several days after violence erupted and stores were damaged in the wake of marches protesting Floyd's death.

In the Sunday shooting in Englewood, police said in a statement that they responded about 2:30 p.m. Sunday to a call about a person with a gun and tried to confront someone matching his description in an alley. He fled from officers on foot and shot at officers, police said. — AP

Covid-19 facility fires offer safety lesson

Back-to-back early morning blazes in private Covid-19 facilities, claiming eight and 10 lives respectively, should be seen as a much-required wake-up call for state governments. Fire services are under the 12th Schedule of the Constitution and fall in the domain of urban local bodies. These have an abysmal performance record when it comes to enforcing fire safety guidelines.

After the tragedy, however, a fire safety check has been ordered on all hospitals in Andhra Pradesh. Several states and municipal corporations all over India have followed suit. It is likely to open a can of worms.

Already, the fire service department has reported that over 250 hospitals under the jurisdiction of the Greater Visakhapatnam Municipal Corporation have not obtained no-objection certificates. In Hyderabad, in neighbouring Telangana state, 90 per cent of its 1,700 hospitals are not following fire safety guidelines.

The National Building Code of India, 2016, stipulates regulations required for fire prevention and life safety for buildings. These regulations relate to design and construction; building materials; occupancy features necessary to minimise danger to life; smoke; equipment and installations and guidelines for fire drills and evacuations. Also, according to the Model Building Bylaws, 2003, building plans have to be referred to the chief fire officer.

However, like road safety, fire safety continues to stay on paper. Unplanned construction in densely-populated areas remains the biggest threat. Only 30 per cent of cities have a fire master plan, which in most cases is outdated.

Those who lost their lives in the fire at Vijayawada's six-storey Swarna Palace Hotel, taken on lease by Ramesh Hospital, are more than mere statistics. Among them was Sabbithi Abraham, a pastor who had recently recovered from the disease but who stayed back to be with his wife, Raja Kumari. Raja Kumari, too, died in the disaster. Another patient, C. Pawan Sai Kisan, was the one to call up the police upon discovering the fire. The hotel's fire alarm had not been working.

In both cases, a short-circuit was the event that led to the blaze. In the Swarna Palace Hotel blaze, the hotel as well as the hospital knew of the presence of defects in the air-conditioning system and wiring but had not bothered to carry out repairs. The hotel did not have a fire safety certificate. As was the case with Ahmedabad's Shrey Hospital, which is owned by Bharat Mahant, who defected to the BJP last year.

A common refrain is that private hospitals are capitalising on people's reluctance to avail care at government hospitals during this crisis and are charging exorbitant fees. Ramesh Hospital, for instance, was charging its Swarna Palace patients a daily package of ₹5,000 in addition to treatment and other charges. However, governments are reluctant to rein them in as yet.

Language of alienation

Reading the tweet of DMK MP Kanimozhi Karunanidhi that she was asked if she was an Indian just for not knowing Hindi gave a sense of deja vu to many people in Tamil Nadu who had travelled up North. Students from the state being subjected to such savage humiliation for not speaking in Hindi in colleges and universities in places like Delhi is old hat. But the insult to Kanimozhi was striking as it happened at the Chennai airport.

Whatever be the real reason for the officer of the Central Industrial Security Force (CISF) refusing to communicate in a language that all air passengers could understand — it could be her lack of fluency in English or her fondness for Hindi — her questioning a passenger's nationality was uncalled for. Even if she was oblivious to India being a multi-linguistic nation, she had no right, as a CISF officer or otherwise, to take upon herself the authority to pronounce who can be an Indian.

While these personal drawbacks can hamper the officer from discharging her duties impartially, the present political situation allows her and many others like her to go about displaying Hindi chauvinism at airports and other public spaces without worrying about their prejudice and bigotry alienating non-Hindi speakers from the Indian mainstream.

It is of course intriguing that the particular officer, who should be living in Chennai, did not acknowledge that Tamil is never thrust upon the people who come to the state from outside. None of the lakhs of guest workers who walked their way back home from Tamil Nadu due to the sudden lockdown recently had to learn Tamil. For, the people of Tamil Nadu are not language chauvinists. They only resent forceful imposition of another language, be it through maltreatments at airports and universities or the implementation of a new National Education Policy.

Will Kashmir turn into 'heaven on earth' again?

Vishnu Prakash

Upon setting foot in Kashmir, Mughal Emperor Jehangir spontaneously recited an evocative couplet “Gar firdaus bar-rue zamin ast, hami asto, hamin asto, hamin ast (If there is a paradise on earth, it's here, it's here, it's here)” — which continues to resonate with millions of visitors every year.

The spell of mother nature's craftsmanship — inlaid with snow-capped mountains, golden sun rays, fabled valleys, lush meadows, glistening water bodies, manicured gardens, captivating flora and fauna — endures a lifetime. The region, traditionally home to Muslims, Hindus and Buddhists, had been an abode of multiculturalism, tranquility and harmony, thanks to its culture of “Kashmiriyat”.

Alas, that idyllic way of life was rudely disturbed by external inimical elements in October 1947 itself, within weeks of India's Independence. The UN commission hammered out a cease-fire agreement in August 1948, but without restoring the status quo ante.

At the behest of Sheikh Abdullah, Article 370 was introduced in the Constitution, temporarily according a special status to Jammu and Kashmir. In retrospect, this act of appeasement, that too on religious and political considerations, widened the emotional chasm between Kashmiris and other citizens, besides preventing a seamless integration of J&K with India.

To compound the folly, Article 35A was inserted by a presidential order in May 1954, barring Indians living outside J&K, from buying immovable property, applying for state government jobs or seeking permanent residency in the state. Such privileges were reserved only for J&K's so-called permanent residents, otherwise called “state subjects”.

In the process a short shrift was given to the foundational and fundamental right to equality enshrined in the Indian Constitution. The state was also exempted from all the laws of the land, unless specifically adopted by its own Legislative Assembly.

Before long it became evident that these special provisions were damaging the national fabric. Kashmiri Muslims, in particular, began shunning their Indian identity. Vested interest groups gradually sprung up across the spectrum, to accentuate the divide for political and monetary gains. They unabashedly played the religious card to further their purpose, thereby also tempting external forces to fish in troubled waters.

Articles 370 and 35A started acquiring a façade of permanence. Though elections were held regularly and the electorate spoke its mind; peace, progress and stability eluded the state due to the machinations of disruptive forces, corruption and nepotism. While the miniscule elite lined its pockets, the ordinary people of J&K, especially women and the under-privileged, faced discrimination and suffering. They lost out on socio-economic empowerment initiatives becoming available to the rest of their countrymen.

Ending almost seven decades of injustice due to political dithering, on August 5, 2019, the Modi government made bold to accord similar rights, benefits and duties on the residents of J&K, as available to all other citizens in India. The offending “temporary” provisions under Articles 370 and 35A were removed. The separatists and the state's political elite were stunned. To deter them from creating any kind of mischief, some short-term restrictions were imposed, most of which have since been lifted.

Barring the usual suspects, the global community recognised that the full integration of J&K with the Indian Union, in consonance with its Constitution, was an internal matter of India. Ahmad Al Banna, the UAE's ambassador to India, voiced the expectation that “the changes will improve social justice and security and confidence of the people in local governance and will encourage further stability and peace”.

The historical move ushered in “a new dawn in the region”. It was decided to create two Union territories — namely J&K and Ladakh. J&K would have its full statehood restored at the earliest. A blueprint to provide gainful employment, promote tourism and establish quality infrastructure, centres of educational excellence like IITs and IIMs, as well as top grade medical and sports facilities was unveiled. Ladakh is to become a solar powerhouse and play a crucial role in the International Solar Alliance.

“Promises are never kept” ... did you say? Why not examine the actual implementation during the preceding 12 months. For the first time, the J&K government has launched an accelerated recruitment drive.

Some 10,000 vacancies are being filled and 25,000 more are in the pipeline. Thousands of additional employment opportunities are being generated through power and infrastructure projects, especially under the Prime Minister's Development Program-me. Of the 6,000 jobs earmarked for Kashmiri migrants, nearly 4,000 have already been filled.

Under the PMDP, 54 and nine projects have been allocated to J&K and Ladakh respectively. The pace of work has picked up dramatically. Seventeen projects have already been fully or substantially completed. The rest — including the construction of highways, bridges and flyovers, transmission lines, hospitals and educational institutions, and hydro power generation projects — are being fast-tracked. Kashmir is to be connected with the rest of India, by rail, by December 2022.

Every effort is being made to strengthen grassroots democracy to empower panchayats, in particular. Implementation of the Centre's welfare schemes like MGN-REGA, Swachh Bharat Mission and the mid-day meals have been entrusted to them. A commendable “Back to Village” programme has been initiated, under which a gazetted officer actually stays for two days in every village, to take stock of implementation, review constraints and receive feedback.

Particular attention is being given to empower the underprivileged. Welfare schemes like Ujjwala, Ujala (100 per cent electrification achieved), income support to poor farmers, placement linked vocational training, scholarships, etc are being provided.

Since becoming an UT, Ladakh's socio-economic, educational and development needs are getting utmost priority. Steps have been initiated to prepare a vision document titled “Ladakh 2050”.

In sum, the government's farsighted decision in August 2019, has heralded a new era of hope, equity and empowerment. Kashmiris are witnessing purposeful efforts by the state and Union governments to instil greater dignity, development and democracy in the region. Consequently, the green shoots of peace and aspiration are beginning to sprout. With the government and people determined to stay the course, Kashmir is certain of reclaiming its crown as “heaven on earth” once again.

GHMC ELECTIONS

Caste and hereditary democracy are now following the law of diminishing returns (Talasani, Bonthu seek tickets for women kin, DC, Aug. 9). Hence all political parties should invite committed citizens, social workers, doctors and teachers to contest the GHMC elections. Hopefully, they can also commit 50 per cent seats for women. If implemented, it will be a trail-blazer in Indian politics and also help reduce the influence of money and muscle power.

ONLINE EDUCATION

What a show in education for TS (40% students do not have internet, DC, Aug. 10). There are many more drawbacks in online education programmes in India. Schools want to survive with online classes while parents want schools to reopen with utmost care. We do not know when the country will open its eyes. NEP says there must be less burden on children.

Land grab stir gets indirect support

NEW DELHI, AUG. 10 The current “land grab” agitation in several parts of the country continued to get indirect support in the Congress (R) Parliamentary Party today despite its strong disapproval by the Party President Jagjiwan Ram.

Many of those who participated in the resumed debate on land reforms on the third day felt that land reforms had not been implemented in several States because the Chief Ministers did not honestly believe in them.

It was also because the Congress Party itself was dominated by big landlords who opposed any progressive agrarian measure.

India losing its 'Mahabharat' against Covid?

The “Mahabharat” against Covid-19 has been lost. India had registered more cases last week, about three lakhs, than any other nation including the United States. We are clocking over 60,000 cases a day and there is nothing to stop the number from going to one lakh a day and higher.

The only places in India that have registered a drop are the cities where the levels of infection are so widespread that half the city has already been touched, and the scope for increase is limited. Nothing is stopping the spread of Covid-19.

It may interest readers to know that India is the only nation to show a consistently exponential trend of growth. Our graph from the beginning of March till today is one that goes straight up and steeply. This is not how other nations have responded. Europe saw peaks in March and then Italy, Spain, Britain and others have declined since then. America saw a peak in April, led mostly by the spread in New York, then a fall and now is seeing another rise in other parts of the country.

Bangladesh saw a peak in June and has since been in decline.

Pakistan was clocking half the number of cases as India but peaked in June and has been dropping since, averaging less than 1,000 cases a day now. Sri Lanka has been in total control of the epidemic and has only 300 active cases now, and a total of only 11 deaths since its first cases in March.

India is the only nation, to repeat, that has consistently been going up in terms of number of cases from the start till now. This was not the result expected when the Centre took charge of the problem on March 24, when we had 500 cases. We have 30 times more cases each day today after various lockdowns, from total bans on all activity to a series of unlocks that nobody really understands any longer and almost nobody follows. Even the police, initially enthusiastic about stopping movement, has lost interest across the country in trying to combat the plague. The question is not whether we have lost the Covid “Mahabharat” because the numbers are clear. The question is why. The answer is that we never had a strategy to counter the pandemic. The first lockdown was the biggest mistake

The lockdown in India, along with that in Mauritius, New Zealand and South Africa, was rated 100, meaning individuals had no freedom. New Zealand peaked in March, Mauritius in April and South Africa in July.

we made. What Prime Minister Narendra Modi should have told the country was that this was a highly infectious disease but with a very low fatality rate. People should be extremely cautious about not touching their face, washing their hands regularly and wearing a mask to protect others. They could go about their work and business otherwise.

What he did instead was to create panic across the entire country. By calling it a “Mahabharat” and saying specifically we would win it in 21 days, he took the seriousness out of the fight against Covid-19. It would end after the lockdown is what he told us, and this was wrong. This was not a short and sharp battle that would be won or lost over three weeks, but a long one of vigilance rather than extreme measures.

The three-week strict lockdown was described by an Oxford University study as the harshest in the world. The lockdown in India, along with that in Mauritius, New Zealand and South Africa, was rated 100, meaning individuals had no freedom. New Zealand peaked in March, Mauritius in April and South Africa in July. In India, it made no meaningful difference to the rate of spread. Not only that, it has comprehensively gutted the economy in a way that all of us can palpably feel at the level of each individual. All of us are suffering in a way that we have not before in our lives. Those who are not yet, will soon do so. This is a recession, a word whose meaning none of us is familiar with.

The mismanagement of the lockdown has made India pay a real price, that it is still continuing to pay four months later. A report in the Hindu Frontline headlined “Surat: Silence of the looms” said 35 lakh migrants in the Surat area had gone back home after suffering great deprivation. There was nobody to operate the machines and even markets that were open would be shut down when one positive case was discovered. There was no plan to move forward and things were happening by default. If the workers return, and if the demand for fabrics returns, then the great manufacturing city of Surat would try to stand again on its feet. Till then, things will continue the way they were. This level of incompetence is not to be found in any other nation that has been hit by Covid-19.

The truth is that Narendra Modi is attracted to the grand announcement. He likes the spotlight and the energy of the moment. Covid-19 was a struggle not of brief violence, an 18-day war like the Mahabharat, but a long one of carefulness and patience. Other nations knew it and their leaders communicated it in that fashion. Mr Modi's style has left us with 20 lakh cases and over 40,000 deaths, and who knows how many more to come. The peak is nowhere in sight. And it has absolutely ruined an economy that was already tottering last year.

BoP to be very strong this year: Piyush Goyal

India expects its balance of payments to be “very, very strong” this fiscal, aided by stronger than expected exports and a fall in imports, commerce minister Piyush Goyal said. “Exports have shown a good turnaround. We are in July at about 91 per cent export level of the previous year, July 2019, figures,” Goyal said at an industry event. “So broadly, our balance of payments this year is going to be very, very strong.”

₹10,000 cr Fund of Funds to be operational soon

To provide Rs 50,000 crore equity support to stressed MSME units, a Fund of Funds announced as part of the Rs 20.97 lakh crore Aatmanirbhar Bharat Abhiyan package is expected to get operation soon, SBI chairman Rajnish Kumar said. The objective of the Rs 10,000 crore Fund of Funds is to help MSMEs with growth potential when they are facing severe shortage of equity and low revenues.

Honda begins pre-launch bookings of Jazz

Honda Cars India Ltd (HCIL) said it has started pre-launch bookings of its refreshed premium hatchback, Jazz. The new Jazz can be pre-booked with an amount of Rs 21,000 at HCIL dealerships or online through 'Honda from Home' platform on the HCIL website with Rs 5,000, the company said. HCIL senior vice president and director, marketing & sales Rajesh Goel said the vehicle is slated for launch later this month.

LIC launches policy revival campaign

To encourage continuation of risk cover in this difficult period, LIC said it has provided an opportunity for policyholders to revive their lapsed policies. Festival hiring yet to pick up

SANGEETHA G
CHENNAI, AUG. 10

Despite the festive season kicking off, hiring of temp staff to meet the seasonal demand in various sectors has not picked up. Even e-commerce, which has started its seasonal sales, is still cautious about hiring.

The temporary staff hiring for the festive season usually starts before August and goes on till December. However, by August the industry gets a clearer picture about the hiring trends.

As per the data from Indian Staffing Federation, in the second half of 2018, different sectors had hired around two lakh people for temp jobs. In 2019, despite the general gloom in the economy, hiring witnessed a 10 to 15 per cent growth over the previous year. However, this year ISF has not seen clear indications of hiring from across sectors yet.

“Usually, e-commerce, retail, consumer durables and BFSI are the major sectors which hire people to meet the festive season demand for additional hands,” said Lohit Bhatia, president, ISF.

This time, almost all the sectors are cautious about hiring more people as the existing staff is not fully engaged.

E-commerce, which has been the forerunner in terms of hiring in the past few years, has already started its festive season sales.

STILL GAUGING MARKET MOOD

- ▶ This time, all sectors are cautious about hiring

However, when Financial Chronicle asked about this year's hiring, Amazon said, “currently, we do not have any information to share with regards to hiring ahead of the 2020 festive season.”

Last year, Amazon itself had created more than 90,000 seasonal employment opportunities across its fulfilment centres, sorting centres, delivery stations, partner fulfilment network and customer service sites.

This year, even during the lockdown in May, Amazon announced that it has opened close to 50,000 seasonal roles to meet the surge in demand for online products.

However, delivery services continued to be disrupted even after the lockdown.

“E-commerce may probably see a surge in sales due to the pent-up demand of the past few months. This would require more hands to deliver things to the customer. However, the social distancing norms will force them to limit the number of people who can be deployed at warehouses and other centres,” said Bhatia.

“As far as other sectors are concerned, businesses are still evaluating and waiting to see how the festive season shapes up. For them, it is still early days,” he added.

LAND BANK TO HELP MSMEs IN THE WORKS: GADKARI

MADHUSUDAN SAHOO
NEW DELHI, AUG. 10

In a bid to promote small shops and business houses, the Centre is mulling a land bank and social micro finance institute (SMFI) to assist the micro, small and medium enterprises (MSMEs).

“We are working on the idea of a land bank and social micro finance institution which will be very helpful for entrepreneurs and persons who want to run small shops and businesses,” Nitin Gadkari, minister for MSMEs, said on Monday at a webinar.

Besides, the government is also planning to promote the manufacturing of selected products, especially agro-based and khadi products in the rural belts. The efforts are part of the government's Atmanirbhar Bharat Abhiyan initiative to reduce the dependence of imports and push exports.

“Handloom, handicrafts, khadi industries and agro-based industries should be encouraged, especially in 115 aspirational districts in the country. We will have to plan special policies for agricultural, rural and tribal sector because they have huge potential of creating employment,” he said.

On the issue of delayed payments to MSME vendors, Gadkari said instructions have been given to all ministries and PSUs to clear pending bills within 45 days.

Tata Motors moves ahead of M&M in July retail sales

MICHAEL GONSALVES
PUNE, AUG 10

Tata Motors, India's biggest automaker by revenues, overtook Mahindra, as the third largest in terms of total vehicles retailed in July, the latest Federation of Automobile Dealers Association (Fada) data showed on Monday.

It also revealed that Maruti Suzuki, India's top car maker and Hero MotorCorp, India's largest motorcycle maker, strengthened their pole positions in the pandemic-hit market.

However, the passenger vehicle (PV) retail sales last month declined 25.19 per cent year-on-year to 1,57,373 units, as the pandemic continued to impact vehicle off-takes.

This is the first time the auto dealers' body has released market share data based on vehicle registration. The Society of Indian Auto-mobile Manufacturers (SIAM) releases data based on wholesale numbers (dispatches to dealers).

Tata Motors' retails increased to 12,753 units in July, rising its market share upto 8.10 per cent from 6.07 per cent in the year-ago period. But registration of Mahindra vehicles dropped to 7,811 units last month, bringing down its market share to 5 per cent, down from 8.47 per cent in the same month last year.

The top two car makers, Maruti and Hyundai, strengthened their lead in the market in terms of market share even as volumes saw a year-on-year drop owing to the pandemic. Maruti's share jumped from 47.24 per cent to 50.40 per cent. Hyundai's share inched up to 18.69 per cent from 18.33 per cent in the year ago period.

Kia Motors India, one of the latest entrants in the PV market cornered 4.45 per cent in July. French carmaker Renault India too showed a smart recovery during the month, gaining share—it went up to 3.18 per cent from 2.04 per cent in the same month last year.

Most of the other PV makers saw a year-on-year drop in their share of the market, according to Fada data.

Among the two-wheeler makers, with the exception of market leader, Hero MotoCorp which saw its share go up to 40.66 per cent in July against 35.61 per cent last year, most of the other two-wheeler makers saw their share declined.

Commercial vehicle sales, a barometer of economic activity, declined 72.18 per cent year-on-year to 19,293 units, while three-wheeler sales dropped 74.33 per cent to 15,132 units last month.

Two-wheeler sales declined 37.47 per cent to 8,74,638 units last month, while total sales across categories declined 36.27 per cent to 11,42,633 units last month.

IndiGo to raise up to ₹4,000 crore via QIP

New Delhi, Aug. 10: IndiGo's parent company InterGlobe Aviation on Monday said it will raise up to Rs 4,000 crore through a qualified institutional placement (QIP).

The aviation sector has been hit hard due to travel restrictions amid the coronavirus pandemic.

Consequently, IndiGo has cut salaries of senior employees and fired 10 per cent of its workforce during the last few weeks.

InterGlobe Aviation informed the BSE that its board of directors has approved “the raising of funds for an aggregate amount of not exceeding Rs 4,000 crores through an issue of equity shares by way of qualified institutional placement.”

InterGlobe had on July 29 announced a massive loss of Rs 2,844 crore for the quarter ended June 30. In the corresponding period a year ago, it had posted a net profit of Rs 1,203 crore.

GMR, Saint Mary's ink pact to set up global school

Hyderabad, Aug. 10: GMR Hyderabad Aeropolis limited (GHAL) said on Monday that it has partnered with the city-based Saint Mary's Educational Society to set up an international school at the 'Hyderabad Airport City'.

The Sancta Maria International School, a K12 (kindergarten to 12th grade) institution, would come up on 15 acres at the Hyderabad Airport City and the residential academic facility is slated to be unveiled by 2022, a press release from the GMR group said.

The 'Edu Port' at the GMR Hyderabad Airport City today hosts the Schulich School of Business, Chinmaya Vidya-laya, GMR Aviation Acad-demy, Flight Simulation (Technique Centre), CFM South Asia Training Centre and Pratt & Whitney India Training Centre, the release said.

Sancta Maria International School envisions to provide the highest standards of education, offering a great learning opportunity for students, the release said. —PTI

JSW Steel uses Covid to overhaul US biz

SWANSY AFONSO
AUG. 10

The coronavirus pandemic is accelerating India's most valuable steelmaker's plans to overhaul its loss-making US operations.

JSW Steel outlined plans two years ago to invest $1 billion in the US to expand its global footprint. That plan was curtailed by an economic downturn and import tariffs imposed by President Trump, with the situation worsening with the virus outbreak.

The company will spend this year “in structurally fixing” its facilities as the pandemic has resulted in the “lowest spread US steel prices have seen in the last decade,” according to Parth Jindal, director of the US operations.

The steelmaker has idled its Ohio plant to begin upgrading its electric arc furnace and plans to restart production at the 1.5 million tonnes facility in March. It has also shut its pipe mill in Baytown to fix equipment and plans to automate and optimise operations to cut costs.

“Our plan is to reduce the losses and be extremely frugal and focus on completing these projects,” Jindal said in an interview. “From next year onward, we truly believe the US operations will be well-positioned to be earnings-accretive to JSW Steel.”

As part of a shakeup, JSW last week brought in Mark Bush as the new chief executive officer for its US operations, replacing John Hritz, who will now focus on strategy and legal affairs.

The company has changed its focus from coils to slabs at its Ohio plant as “it is no secret that the US is extremely slab deficient,” Jindal said.

Investors book profit, equity MFs see ₹2,500 cr outflow

RAVI RANJAN PRASAD
MUMBAI, AUG. 10

Investors are opting for debt mutual funds, gold and overseas funds and booking profit in equity and hybrid mutual fund categories after a sharp rally in the equity market, latest July month data released by the Association of Mutual Funds in India showed.

The mutual fund industry's total asset under management (AUM) rose to Rs 27.11 lakh crore as on July 31 as against Rs 25.48 lakh crore in June, aided by Rs 91,391.73 crore inflow in various debt fund categories.

All equity oriented schemes barring tax-saving equity-linked savings scheme (ELSS) saw combined outflow of Rs 2,480.35 crore and all hybrid schemes like balanced and aggressive hybrid funds saw combined outflow of Rs 7,301.29 crore.

G Pradeepkumar, CEO, Union AMC, said, “For the first time in as many as four years, equity funds as a category has witnessed negative net flows to the tune of Rs 2,480 crore. This is partly because of profit booking after a strong rally since the end of March 2020.”

“It appears that a good chunk of this money has moved to short-term debt funds. These investors could be waiting for a correction to re-enter the market,” Pradeepkumar said.

Other exchange traded funds (ETFs) saw inflows of Rs 13,125.61 crore largely on account of Bharat Bond NFO Tranche II receiving applications amounting to Rs 10,992 crore.

Gold ETF AUMs make a new high

SANGEETHA G
CHENNAI, AUG. 10

Assets managed by Indian gold ETFs touched a new high of Rs 12,940 crore in July, surpassing the previous high set in January 2013. Cumulative AUMs of 11 gold ETFs grew 19 per cent in July to Rs 12,940 crore against Rs 10,857 crore in June.

This is the highest level AUMs have touched since these funds were launched in the market. The previous high was recorded in January 2013 when gold ETF assets stood at Rs 12,057 crore. As gold prices kept falling from their highs, AUMs had dipped to Rs 4,300 crore levels in the subsequent years due to continuous outflow.

Defence stocks rally up to 9% on import ban

RAVI RANJAN PRASAD
MUMBAI, AUG. 10

Defence stocks rallied as much as 9 per cent as investors rushed to buy them post-defence ministry issuing a statement on Sunday, banning import of 101 items.

The top gainers on the BSE included Hindustan Aeronautics (8.74 per cent), Bharat Electronics (9.17 per cent), Bharat Dynamics (4.16 per cent), Bharat Forge (3.62 per cent), Walchandnagar Industries (4.92 per cent), Larsen & Toubro (4.81 per cent) and Cochin Shipyard (3.27 per cent).

Other gainers included Astra Microwave Products (5.48 per cent), Reliance Naval & Engineering (4.87 per cent), Garden Reach Ship Builders & Engineers (7.24 per cent), Mishra Dhatu Nigam (4.15 per cent), BHEL (2.84 per cent) and BEML (3.95 per cent).

Analysts from Edelweiss Securities said, “What is noteworthy here is a clear time-bound & specific item-wise imports embargo to help the manufacturers (especially private sector) prepare better and commit more investments across the value chain (Tier I, II, III, components manufacturer etc). We would like to believe that Tier-I integrators will reap greater benefits over next two to three years as their supply-chain (MSMEs, private sector) will further strengthen augmenting their systems delivery capabilities, with respect to timeline as well as complexity.”

“We are positively surprised with the pace of policy announcement, which is far more specific and includes clear timelines,” Edelweiss Securities said.

Ferrero family scion takes side bets in cookies

BEN STUPPLES
AUG. 10

Michele Ferrero helped introduce Nutella and Kinder chocolate to the world, turning his family's Italian confectionary business into a global giant with annual sales of about $10 billion. Now his son, Giovanni, is charting his own path.

Net assets of Giovanni's investment firm, CTH, surged 40 per cent last year to 2.8 billion euros ($3.3 billion), filings show. The increase was boosted by its $300 million purchase of Danish cookie baker Kelsen Group, an acquisition designed to help preserve Italy's biggest fortune by investing beyond the confectionary industry. Giovanni has “established his presence in the wider sweet packaged-food market” with CTH, said Guido Giannotta, a director of the Brussels-based firm, who helps manage the Ferrero family's fortune. Such a move will “represent an important de-risking solution, both in terms of product categories and geographical reach,” he added.

Like the Ferreros, many of the world's richest individuals are diversifying their fortunes as they seek to grow wealth across generations. Zara founder Amancio Ortega-Spain's richest person-invested the proceeds from his clothing business Inditex SA into real estate worldwide, while Microsoft Corp co-founder Bill Gates' holdings range from railroads to agricultural businesses to construction firms.

The Ferreros' business began as a family pastry shop in northern Italy that used hazelnuts as a way to stretch limited cocoa supplies. After World War II, it grew into a confectionary firm, opening production facilities and offices abroad. It launched the Nutella and Kinder Chocolate and Tic Tac mints brands in the 1960s and then expanded with products, including Ferrero Rocher.

CTH was created in 2016 and owns Belgian cookie maker Delacre and US candy company Ferrara in addition to Kelsen Group. Ferrero Group—the family's confectionary business—has also invested beyond candy, completing a $1.3 billion deal last year for Kellogg Co's cookies and fruit snack brands.

Giovanni, 55, is executive chairman of Ferrero Group and owns a controlling stake in the Alba, Italy-based company, which is now valued at $23 billion, according to the Bloomberg Billionaires Index. It makes up the bulk of the Ferrero family's $32.9 billion fortune.

Investing in cookies “makes sense as chocolate and biscuits fight for the same space in our stomachs,” said Duncan Fox, a consumer products analyst at Bloomberg Intelligence. “If you can get the right innovation, you get far greater distribution if you have exposure to both.”

France's Fiona is victorious in Italy

Palermo: Fiona Ferro of France upset fourth-seeded Anett Kontaveit of Estonia in the Palermo Ladies Open final to win the first four-level tennis title in five months.

Ferro, who is ranked 53rd in the world, won 6-2, 7-5 on Sunday. She had lost just one set on her way to the final.

It was Ferro's second WTA title and the 23-year-old sealed it on her second championship point when Kontaveit hit a return long.

Kontaveit has lost five of the six finals she has contested. It was the first official tennis event — for men or women — since March when the coronavirus pandemic shut down sports across the globe.

There were strict health protocols, including fewer ball kids, a limited number of fans and no post-match handshakes between opponents. Players and officials for the tournament were tested every four days for Covid-19 and one player who tested positive withdrew over the weekend. — AP

Deepa sees 10+ Para medals

New Delhi: India's first-ever woman Paralympic medalist, shot-putter Deepa Malik believes the country's medal count will be in double digits at the Tokyo Games next year.

"At Rio we had doubled the medals, we were a squad of 19. We had two gold, a silver and a bronze. In 2018 (Asian Para Games), we were a squad of 194 and won 72 medals. It has already set the benchmark," Malik told paddler Mudit Dani during his chat show, In The Sportlight.

"The sensational thing about Tokyo next year will be India bagging Paralympics medals in double digits," she added. Malik has never let her disability come in the way of her passion. She had taken inspiration from the injured soldiers of the Kargil war when, in 1999, she was told that she would need a surgery to remove a spinal tumour. "The hospital to which I was taken for my surgery was full of war casualties. I think that immediately became my inspiration. If these healthy young men were losing a limb in their line of duty, then I have no reason to crib just because I have a disease," she said. — PTI

Players stabbed at Oz rugby game

Sydney: One man has been charged and another remains under police guard in a hospital after a low-tier rugby league game in Sydney ended with one player allegedly stabbed another competitor and two spectators. Australian Associated Press reported on Monday that New South Wales state police had arrested and charged a 20-year-old man with affray and assault occasioning actual bodily harm.

Police and emergency services were called to Old Saleyards Reserve in North Parramatta on Sunday following reports of an assault after an under-20s community game between Wentworthville Magpies and Penrith Brothers.

A 19-year-old player and two spectators, aged 16 and 22, were injured during the incident and the injured men remain in Westmead Hospital.

New South Wales Rugby League chief executive David Trodden described the incident as "sickening criminal behaviour." — AP

ALEX KEEPS POINT SCORING RUN AT BRNO

Brno, Czech Republic: The Repsol Honda Team took steps forward on a demanding Sunday as a difficult Brno weekend came to a close, Alex Marquez and Stefan Bradl ready to come back stronger in Austria next week. Blue skies welcomed the MotoGP World Championship to the third race of the 2020 MotoGP World Championship at the Automotodrom Brno. After sweltering conditions in Spain, the 46°C track temperature seemed pleasant in comparison. A focused Alex Marquez put a disappointing qualifying result behind him.

Yoga guru Ramdev's Patanjali eyes IPL sponsorship

New Delhi, Aug. 10: The new IPL title sponsor to replace Chinese mobile phone company Vivo will hold the rights for only a four-and-a-half-month period and the highest bid may not necessarily end up being the winning one, the BCCI stated on Monday.

Vivo, which had a ₹440 crore per year deal for five seasons, has suspended its partnership with the Board due to the Sino-India border stand-off.

Baba Ramdev's Patanjali has shown interest in becoming the new title sponsor. "We are considering the IPL title sponsorship for this year since we want to give the Patanjali brand a global marketing platform," Patanjali spokesperson S. K. Tijarawala was quoted as saying.

BCCI floated the tender invite for a new sponsor on Monday. Secretary Jay Shah announced a 13-point clause for submission of the bids from interested "third parties" and the winner will be announced on August 18. The last date for submission of bids is August 14.

"The Rights are available for the period from August 18, 2020 to December 31, 2020," the BCCI press release stated.

"Details regarding the Rights and product categories in which the Rights

● The BCCI has invited tenders for IPL sponsorship for a four-month period. However, the highest bidder is not a guaranteed winner, who will be announced on August 18.

are available will be provided only to parties who submit the EOI and are found eligible," it stated.

The BCCI also stated that bidding the highest amount may not fetch the rights for a company if the board is not satisfied with its plans on commer-cialising its most precious property. "...it is clarified that BCCI shall not be obliged to award the Rights to the third party which indicates willingness to pay the highest fees in the course of discussions/ negotiations with BCCI after submitting an EOI," the BCCI stated.

"BCCI's decision in this regard will also depend on a number of other relevant factors, including but not limited to, the manner in which the third party intends to exploit the Rights and the potential impact of the same on brand IPL..." the BCCI release stated.

"...(it) will be examined/evaluated by BCCI in the course of discussions/negotiations with interested third parties who submit an EOI," it added.

It can now be safely assumed that BCCI will get a lesser valuation for a four-month period compared to Vivo which had the rights for a bigger duration.

According to the BCCI's norms for accepting the 'Expression of Interest' (EOI), "...turnover of the interested third party must be over ₹300 crore (Indian Rupees Three Hundred Crores only) as per the last audited accounts."

ICC MEETING ENDS IN A DEADLOCK

New Delhi, Aug. 10: The ICC Board of Directors meeting on Monday ended up being a damp squib after they failed to reach consensus over Shashank Manohar's replacement as the next chairman of cricket's global governing body.

The sole agenda of Monday's meeting was to finalise the nomination process for the election but no breakthrough could be made over a unanimous choice to lead the International Cricket Council (ICC).

"Yes, there was no unanimity on a number of issues. Firstly, there is a divided house on whether there should be simple majority or the existing 2/3rd majority in a house of 17," an ICC Board member said.

However, the bigger issue is lack of an acceptable face and there is no clarity yet over BCCI president Sourav Ganguly throwing his hat in the ring.

There are multiple candidates who are harbouring ambitions of leading the ICC. "Colin Graves (England) is a strong candidate but it can't be said that he is favourite anymore. There are countries which won't support Graves. Similarly, someone like Dave Cameron (former Cricket West Indies president) may enter the fray with support of two independent directors but may not get enough numbers. Ditto for Chris Nenzani (South Africa)," a former ICC Director, who is abreast of the latest developments, said.

The veteran administrator made it clear that at this point, no potential candidate has numbers to go the distance and that's the precise reason that the board is not able to come up with a uniform election process.

"The best solution is to have a candidate acceptable to all and avoid an election which creates a tense atmosphere between member nations. But yes, I agree that by now, we should have been able to finalise the nomination process," the official said.

Sixth player from hockey team +ve

New Delhi, Aug. 10: Indian hockey team forward Mandeep Singh has tested positive for Covid-19, becoming the sixth national player to contract the dreaded infection, the Sports Authority of India (SAI) said on Monday.

The 25-year-old from Jalandhar is asymptomatic and is being treated along with the other five players by doctors in Bengaluru, where the national camp is due to start on August 20 at the SAI centre.

"Mandeep Singh, a member of the Indian Men's Hockey team, who was given the Covid test (RT PCR) along with 20 other players at the National Camp at SAI's National Centre of Excellence in Bengaluru, has tested Covid positive, but is asymptomatic," the SAI said in a statement.

"He is being administered treatment by doctors, along with the other five players who have tested positive."

Indian captain Manpreet Singh and four other players had tested positive for Covid-19 last week after returning to the SAI Centre following a month-long break.

LAKRA LOOKS UP TO SENIOR RUPI FOR TIPS

New Delhi, Aug. 10: When playing hockey, Indian junior team defender Pratap Lakra watches, learns and takes inspiration from seniors Rupinder Pal Singh's dragflicking abilities and Birendra Lakra's game, but is right now busy doing duty as ticket collector in the railways.

Since his entry into the junior national camp in 2017, Pratap knew only hard work would help him don the senior team jersey.

"Since the senior team also trains in Bengaluru where we have our national camp, whenever we have a rest day or when the senior team is playing an internal match, we go and watch them," he was quoted as saying in a Hockey India press release.

"I particularly follow Rupinder Pal Singh for his dragflick execution and in terms of defence and game I follow Birendra Lakra," he said.

EX-BANGLA CRICKETER CATCHES CORONAVIRUS

Dhaka, Aug. 10: Former Bangladesh left-arm spinner Mosharraf Hossain, who has represented the national team in five ODIs, has tested positive for Covid-19.

The 38-year-old, who had undergone four months of intense treatment including a surgery for brain tumour, contracted the infection after his father also tested positive for the contagious disease.

He was diagnosed with a brain tumour last year. Mosharraf is doing fine and has self-isolated himself at home after receiving the result of his Covid test on Sunday. "My wife and my child however tested negative and they are living with her parents," Mosharraf was quoted as saying by The Daily Star.

Lillard's half-ton powers Portland

Miami, Aug. 10: Portland's Damian Lillard poured in 51 points against a Philadelphia team missing injured stars Joel Embiid and Ben Simmons, powering the Trail Blazers to a 124-121 victory in their NBA match on Sunday.

Lillard, taunted on social media after two key missed free throws in a Saturday loss to the Los Angeles Clippers, unleashed the 10th 50-point performance of his career and fifth of the season to pull Portland within a half-game of Memphis for eighth in the Western Conference playoff fight.

"This was different because our season was on the line. We drop this one and we don't control our destiny. I thought we answered the call down the stretch," Lillard said.

Lillard hit 16-of-28 shot from the floor, 4-of-12 from 3-point range, and 15-of-16 from the free throw line and dished out a game-high seven assists.

The Blazers (33-39) and Memphis (33-38) are trying to hold off San Antonio (31-38) and Phoenix (31-39) for spots in next weekend's play-in series for the last West playoff berth. Portland's win eliminated New Orleans and Sacramento.

In another match, Cameroon playmaker Pascal Siakam scored a game-high 26 points to spark Toronto over Memphis 108-99, clinching the second seed in the Eastern Conference playoffs for the defending champion Raptors (50-19).

Memphis, led by 25 points from Dillon Brooks, missed a chance to clinch a play-in series berth. The Grizzlies are 1-5 in bubble games. San Antonio, trying to reach the playoffs for a 23rd consecutive season, pulled within a game of Memphis by beating New Orleans 122-113. DeMar DeRozan scored 15 of his 27 points in the fourth quarter to ignite the Spurs' attack and subdue rivals.

Jayson Tatum scored 29 points, five in the final minute of regulation time and five more in overtime, to spark the Boston Celtics over Orlando 122-119.

Angry old Anderson is still hungry for more

Manchester, Aug. 10: James Anderson insisted Monday he was still "hungry" to play Test cricket after speculation the England great was considering retirement.

Anderson recently turned 38, an age where many previous pace bowlers would have long since retired. Given his age, Anderson's meagre match haul of 1-97 during England's three-wicket win in the first Test against Pakistan inevitably led to speculation about his future.

By his own admission, Anderson, England's all-time leading wicket-taker, "did not bowl very well" at his Old Trafford home ground, where one of the ends is named after him, as England went 1-0 up in a three-match series.

I want to play as long as I possibly can. If I keep bowling the way I did this week, the opportunity to retire will be taken out of my hands. It will be a selection issue.

England pacer

But the swing specialist, whose 590 wickets are the most taken by any pacer in Test history, said he should not be written off after one poor game. "I want to play as long as I possibly can," Anderson told reporters during a conference call on Monday.

"If I keep bowling the way I did this week, the opportunity to retire will be taken out of my hands. It will be a selection issue," he added ahead of Thursday's second Test at Southampton.

"I'm still hungry to play the game. I think the frustration for me this week was that, after one bad game... the sort of whippers (about retirement) that go around, I don't think that's really fair," Anderson said.

Reflecting on his own performance in the first Test, Anderson said: "It's one of those things, everyone has a bad game, every now and then. I've not bowled very well and felt out of rhythm. For the first time in probably 10 years I got a little bit emotional on the field, got a bit frustrated, let it get to me a little bit."

Hami up for duel with 'mad' Max

Silverstone, Aug. 10: Lewis Hamilton welcomes the prospect of a Formula One title battle with Max Verstappen following the Dutchman's dramatic victory in Sunday's torrid 70th Anniversary Grand Prix at Silverstone.

Defending champion and current leader Hamilton, who has a 30-point advantage at the top of the drivers' standings, praised Verstappen and his Red Bull team for inflicting a first defeat on Mercedes in five races this year.

"It's great that Max won," said Hamilton, speaking in the aftermath of his record-equaling 155th podium finish, in second place.

"As I've said before I want to have races and a challenge. Obviously, the Red Bull seems to be quite close to us in race conditions, but that's a good thing and it will be interesting to see their progression through the rest of the year.

"I definitely will not overlook them. We will keep a close eye on them. It's not going to be easy by any means," he added.

Hamilton, who shares the podiums record with seven-time world champion Michael Schumacher, is in pursuit of his own seventh drivers' title this year and also has the German's unrivalled haul of 91 GP wins in his sights.

However in sweltering conditions on Sunday, Red Bull had not only a superior strategy — by choosing to start Verstappen on hard-compound tyres — but also a superior level of management of tyre wear, which appears to have become a weakness of Mercedes' otherwise flawless car this year.

Hamilton had only won the British GP at the same track a week earlier after surviving a last-lap puncture as Verstappen closed in.

Mercedes chief Toto Wolff conceded his team had failed to deliver after starting with Valtteri Bottas on pole and Hamilton second in their 67th front row lockout.

Verstappen started fourth and won by 11 seconds, a luxury that afforded him several light-hearted quips on his way to victory and a poor sign for Mercedes heading into the weekend's Spanish GP in Barcelona.

"It was a difficult day in the office," admitted Wolff, adding, "We have a handful of days to find out what exactly caused our issues today, come up with solutions, test them in Barcelona and then hopefully have a better race on Sunday."

The somewhat haunted looks on the Mercedes pit wall as their Pirelli tyres blistered over and again told its own story and Red Bull team chief Christian Horner, suggested their car, with its phenomenal levels of downforce, was almost too strong and too fast for the softer tyres introduced.
