Professor, 5 medicos held for exam malpractice

DC CORRESPONDENT
NELLORE, MAY 1

Police have booked a case against a professor and five MBBS students of Narayana Medical College in Nellore in an examination-related malpractice during the supplementary examination held here on Friday. A police team led by Dargamitta circle inspector Nageswaramma caught students red-handed when they were writing first-year biochemistry (Paper II) at the residence of the professor at Saraswathy Nagar in Nellore late on Friday night. The police team reached the house after an anonymous call that MBBS classes are being run in a house. They were surprised when they found the students writing on answer sheets with help from the professor.

According to police, the exam had actually been held at the college on Friday afternoon. The professor, with the help of two middlemen and a courier agent, managed to access an answer sheet bundle booked through Speed Post. NEW DELHI/AHMEDABAD

Twelve critical Covid-19 patients died at the Bhatra Hospital in Delhi's Mehrauli area allegedly due to oxygen shortage. Six of the 12 people who died had been admitted to the hospital's ICU (intensive care unit) and among the deceased is the hospital's gastroenteritis head, Dr R.K. Himthani (62).

"We ran out of oxygen at 11.45 am. Supply came at 1.35 pm (a second tanker reached at around 4 pm). We were out of oxygen for 1 hour and 20 mins," the hospital told the Delhi High Court which was holding the 11th day of hearings into a crisis triggered by a massive wave of Covid infections.

Meanwhile, at least 16 Covid-19 patients and two nurses died on Saturday when a four-storey hospital in Bharuch, Gujarat, caught fire. There were around 50 other patients when the blaze began at 1 am. It was put out.

The death toll stood at 18, police official Rajendrasinh Chudasama said, "including 16 patients and two nurses." Primary investigation revealed that the fire started due to a short-circuit in the ICU of the hospital," he said.

Local people and the kin of patients helped in the rescue operation during which dozens of patients were shifted to other facilities by ambulance. Some were brought out of the building on wheelchairs or on make-shift stretchers of cloth.

Police also had to control a nearly 15,000-strong crowd which gathered outside the hospital after hearing about the fire, but no law and order issue was reported, an official release of the Bharuch police said.

Meanwhile, the Delhi

High Court while hearing the shortage of oxygen said, "We hope no lives were lost," the court responded, to which the hospital said: "We have... including one of our own... one doctor."

About 230 people were left without oxygen for 80 minutes. Bhatra hospital has 327 patients out of which 48 are in the critical care unit. It has been raising alarms since Saturday afternoon over depleting levels of oxygen supply.

"Once a patient is pushed to the edge without the support of oxygen, it is very difficult to revive him. Unfortunately, we are expecting more fatalities," said Sudhanshu Bankata, executive director of the hospital.

Dr Himthani, head of the gastroenterology department, was among those who died due to lack of oxygen, said Dr S.C.L. Gupta, medical director of the hospital. He had been admitted to the hospital for the last 15-20 days. The hospital had sent out an SOS message about oxygen shortage on Saturday.

Dr Gupta said they had informed the authorities about lack of oxygen Saturday morning when they had 2,500 litres of the life-saving gas left.

PCB issues closure notice to Jay Galla's battery unit

DC CORRESPONDENT
NELLORE, MAY 1

Andhra Pradesh Pollution Control Board (AP PCB) on Saturday ordered immediate closure of plants belonging to Amara Raja Batteries Limited (ARBL) at Karkambadi and Nunegundlapalli villages in Chittoor district.

The board attributed closure orders to severe pollution caused by ARBL plants in the surrounding villages.

ARBL belongs to the family of former TD legislator Galla Arunakumari and Guntur TD MP Galla Jayadev.

In the notice served to Amara Raja company on Saturday, board officials underlined presence of high levels lead in blood samples collected from people of the villages.

"The lead values in blood are high (35%). Excess lead values in blood samples of those in surrounding villagers show that operation of these units is endangering public health" the notice said.

PCB further requested AP SPDCL to disconnect power supply to ARBL-run MVRLA, automotive batteries division, small battery unit, tubular unit, and unit 3 located along Chittoor-Bangalore road at Nunegundlapalli village of Bangarupalem mandal in Chittoor district.

Management of ARBL has said they are taking all necessary steps to comply with orders given by AP PCB. They have also pressed into action contingency plans to avoid dislocation in supplies of batteries to their customers across product segments, including essential-service segments like defence, hospitals and telecom.

"We shall continue to make our efforts to engage with AP PCB authorities in the interest of avoiding dislocation in supplies to some of our largest clients in sensitive sectors. At a time of a national emergency in the form of the Covid pandemic, such dislocation could be calamitous," the management said in a press release on Saturday.

Restrictions for indefinite period from May 4; Exceptions given to students, academics, scribes

US curbs travel from India, non-Americans restricted

Washington, May 1: US President Joe Biden has imposed restrictions on travel from India that stops most non-American citizens from entering the US for an indefinite period from May 4, citing the surging Covid-19 pandemic in the country.

Biden issued a proclamation on Friday restricting travel from India starting on May 4. Certain categories of students, academics, journalists and individuals have been exempted from the ban, the US State Department said.

US nationals, those having green cards, their non-citizen spouses and children below 21 years of age, are among the various categories exempted from the restrictions. The new travel restrictions have been imposed for an indefinite period and will require another presidential proclamation to end it.

"I have determined that it is in the interests of the US to take action to restrict and suspend the entry into America, as non-immigrants, of non-citizens of the US who were physically present within India during the 14-day period preceding their entry or attempted entry into the US," says the proclamation signed by Biden on Friday.

The decision has been taken at the recommendation of the Centres for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), within the Department of Health and Human Services, which determined India is experiencing widespread, person-to-person transmission of SARS-CoV-2, the virus that causes Covid-19.

After reviewing the public health situation within India, the CDC has concluded that proactive measures are required to protect the nation's public health from travellers entering the US from that jurisdiction, he said.

According to the State Department, the travel ban exemption to certain categories is in line with a similar exemption that the US has granted to some categories of travellers from Brazil, China, Iran and or South Africa.

Students seeking to commence studies in the fall, academics, journalists and individuals who provide critical infrastructure support in countries affected by a geographic Covid-19 restriction may qualify for the exception, it said.

This includes qualified applicants who have been present in India, Brazil, China, Iran, or South Africa, it added.

As always, visa applicants should check the website of the nearest embassy or consulate for the most up-to-date information about visa appointment availability, the State Department said.

Aussies from India to face 5-yr jail if they try to return

Melbourne, May 1: Australian citizens could face five-year jail term or hefty fines up to 66,000 dollars if they try to return home from India after Canberra made the journey temporarily illegal in an effort to curb the spread of the deadly viral infection in this country.

The temporary ban begins on Monday and applies to any travellers who have visited India within 14 days of their intended arrival date in Australia.

There are an estimated 9,000 Australians in India and over 600 of them are classified as vulnerable, according to The Sydney Morning Herald newspaper. The decision was announced by the health ministry on Friday after a meeting of the National Cabinet. The move aims at keeping the Coronavirus spread in check in Australia.

The decision was based on the proportion of overseas travellers in quarantine in Australia, who have contracted the infection in India, health minister Greg Hunt said.

The move was due to an "unmanageable" number of arrivals from the country who have tested positive to Covid-19, he was quoted as saying by the state-run Australian Broadcasting Corporation (ABC).

Breaches of the travel ban could lead to five years' imprisonment, a 66,000-Australian dollar ($50,876) fine or both, the report said.

He said that the doctors through tele consultancy assess the health status of the persons in home isolation and refer them to either Covid Care Centres or to Covid hospitals depending upon the health condition.

The health principal secretary said that as they were providing better healthcare and facilities at Covid Care Centres, more number of people were going there resulting in bringing down the demand for beds in Covid hospitals and added that at present, 8,709 persons were accommodated in such centres and sounded confident that the number might go up to 15,000 in the next two to three days. Rag pickers make money burning Covid dead bodies

K.M.P. PATNAIK | DC VISAKHAPATNAM, MAY 1

Undeterred or unaware of the Covid complications, hundreds of rag pickers including children are helping the families in cremating the dead bodies at various cremation grounds in Visakhapatnam city.

Their demand has increased after more and more deaths were reported from various hospitals and lack of staff from GVMC to dispose of the bodies.

This has also become a racket involving sanitary workers of the hospitals and ambulance operators who appoint these rag pickers for the cremation.

On an average, each worker is paid ₹1,500 to ₹2,000 for each body depending on the demand.

According to observers, the moment the hospital announces the death of a patient, sanitary workers call the ambulance to take the body. These ambulance drivers charge around ₹15,000 to ₹20,000 to complete the process of cremation which includes payment to the cremation ground personnel, material and wages to the rag pickers.

The only amount spent for the cremation is ₹1,500 for two quintals of fire wood, ₹200 for two litres of petrol and another ₹300 for miscellaneous goods. The rest is shared by the ambulance operator, sanitary worker at the hospital and cremation ground in-charge.

“These rag pickers are not seen every day. After making little money, they disappear and another batch appears,” said chief medical officer of GVMC Dr K.S.L.G. Sastry.

Talking to DC on Saturday, he said on an average 40 to 50 bodies are cremated in various cremation grounds and all need not be Covid infected deaths. Even for natural deaths, the family members are reluctant to participate in the rituals as the bodies are burnt close to the Covid bodies. A health volunteer said it was shocking to see young children cremating the bodies without even wearing the mask.

27-year-old MBA graduate cremates Covid dead for free

Psychological weakness killing: Pasha

VADREYU SRINIVAS | DC KAKINADA, MAY 1

As bodies of Covid-19 infected patients are abandoned by their near and dear ones over fear of contracting the virus, a 27-year-old MBA graduate has taken it upon himself to ensure a dignified funeral for the dead.

Maliseti Bharat Raghav, a resident of East Godavari's Bommuru, carries the bodies of victims in his auto, free of cost, and cremate them. Since the start of the pandemic, he claims to have cremated 130 bodies.

“When a village secretary died in his chair in Malepalli village of Gandepalli mandal in the district, his colleagues did not notice that he was dead for hours. Even as night approached, no ambulance reached the spot, following which the employees called me. I drove from Bommuru, and took the body to the cremation ground at Rajamahendravaram,” he added.

“When a businessman passed away in a house in Rajamahendravaram, nobody was sure whether he was infected with the virus or not. However, as part of taking precautions, nobody came forward to shift the body. Finally, I phoned a few relatives and forced them to accompany me to the burial ground,” said Ameer Pasha, who claims that such scenes have become common sight.

He further said that people were in a state of panic, and feared that mere exposure to the virus would kill them, which is why they stay far away from the dead bodies.

Pasha also added that psychological weakness was killing people as well. “One patient, who was confident while being admitted at the hospital, died of shock after his Covid-19 results turned out to be positive.”

Asserting that the state is taking all possible steps to check the spread of Covid-19, government adviser (Public Affairs) Sajjala Ramakrishna Reddy slammed opposition leaders for their cheap politics during the pandemic and panicking people with their false propaganda.

Mr Ramakrishna Reddy said that the opposition leaders have been acting irresponsibly even during the crisis, while the state government has been striving to control the virus spread with the directions from Chief Minister Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddy who has been constantly reviewing the situation. He criticised TD chief Chandrababu for creating panic among the people, including the students and employees across the state. He said that Chandrababu has become a Non-Resident citizen of Andhra Pradesh, who is indeed scared to live here but falsely alleging the state government through Zoom meetings. Sajjala had termed Chandrababu as the worst villain for the state.

Mr Sajjala said that some people had laughed when the CM had said that coexistence with Covid-19 was inevitable, but today it became a reality

Naidu appeals to state government

DC CORRESPONDENT
VIJAYAWADA, MAY 1

Telugu Desam chief N. Chandrababu Naidu on Saturday expressed concern over YSR Congress government taking the second Coronavirus wave lightly, despite it playing havoc with lives of workers, employees and students.

Addressing a meeting of Telugu Nadu Trade Union Council (TNTUC) as part of party's May Day celebrations, he demanded that the state government forthwith postpone Class X and Intermediate examinations in order not to harm lives of students, their parents as also teaching and non-teaching staff.

Naidu asked how students could be forced to write examinations when they are in the grip of fear psychosis triggered by the massive rise in Covid-19 infections all around. Fear is not letting them focus on their studies. Further, students aged less than 18 years are not eligible for vaccination. Under the circumstances, it will not be correct to force them into reaching examination centres for taking their exams.

PROVIDE COVID-19 ASSISTANCE TO WORKERS, SAYS LOKESH

DC CORRESPONDENT
VIJAYAWADA, MAY 1

Telugu Desam national general secretary Nara Lokesh on Saturday demanded the Jagan Mohan Reddy government to come to the rescue of the workers as they were suffering financially in the second wave of Coronavirus infections. He urged the Government for extending Covid-19 assistance in order to provide some relief to the families of the workers who were facing untold hardships.

Mr Lokesh deplored that the workers were facing the Covid-19 threat on the one side and not able to find work opportunities on the other hand.

He stated that it was by making sacrifices and agitations that the workers and all sections of society protected the Visakha Steel Plant. He further stated that now, they would not allow anybody to snatch away or steal the Steel Plant with backdoor methods.

Lokesh called upon the government to continue works and construct projects in order to provide work opportunities for the workers.

dead bodies at burial grounds, the TD national president slammed the government for letting the Coronavirus situation worsen in a manner that countless bodies are awaiting last rites. Patients living with the virus are unable to get ambulances, hospital beds or oxygen supply, he pointed out.

On occasion of May Day, Naidu targeted

YSRC for not implementing pro-worker programmes like Anna Canteens and Chandranna Bima, which had been of great help to unorganised workers during the TD rule.

He released a copy of the "Karmika Desam" weekly brought out by TD highlighting issues related to workers in organised and unorganised sectors of society.

Covid drains APSRTC's coffers as services hit

DC CORRESPONDENT
VIJAYAWADA, MAY 1

Covid-19 pandemic has crippled the Andhra Pradesh state road transport corporation, majorly impacting its services and revenue, and resulting in nearly 50 per cent loss in occupancy and revenue.

The second wave, in particular, has seen a huge drop in occupancy rates as people are reluctant to travel by buses, owing to rapid spread of the virus across the country.

According to APSRTC officials, the organisation's per day revenue through bus services in 13 districts fell from ₹12 crore to ₹5-6 crore.

Besides operational and revenue losses, the virus has also hugely impacted the service providers' staff. Nearly 1,897 staff members had been infected between January and April, and 47 have succumbed to the virus.

With dwindling occupancy rates, the APSRTC has reduced bus services by 30 per cent since the past 10 days. As the daily number of infections near the 19,000 mark, commuters are forced to think twice before boarding buses, thereby pushing the occupancy rate below 50 per cent, and causing a huge loss in revenue for the transport corporation.

K.S. Brahmananda Reddy, the APSRTC's executive director of operations, said that while there were 10,600 bus services to various destinations, a majority of them were cancelled in the month of April. "Presently, we are running 7,000 services per day, having cut down by 30 per cent, while incurring a 50 per cent revenue loss. All containment measures are being taken and Covid-19 protocol is strictly being implemented in buses, as well as at bus stands and APSRTC's offices."

Two commuters, K. Seshu and B. Raju, said that since the virus was spreading swiftly during the second wave, a majority of people were wary of using public transport, and preferred to use their personal vehicles to avoid the risk of contracting the virus, and added that only those without an alternative were traveling via buses.

Lemon prices fall within a week shattering farmers

DC CORRESPONDENT
KADAPA, MAY 1

Within the period of a week, prices of lemon in wholesale market here have fallen to ₹1,500 from ₹4,000-₹5,000 a bag of approximately 800 fruits.

Groves of lemon in Kadapa district are spread over about 8,000 acres in largely Chakrapeta, Vemula, Veerapunayunipalle, Chintakommadinne, Pendlimarri, Vempalle, Chitveli, Penagaluru, Jammalamadugu and Mylavaram mandals.

Most of the crop is exported to Hyderabad, Bengaluru and Chennai. But with Coronavirus delivering a serious blow in the second wave, exports have stopped, leaving lemon farmers distressed. There is not much consumption of the fruit in Kadapa district. Amarnath Reddy, a farmer from Vempalle area, said; "We face losses in lemon cultivation every year. Until a week ago, the market price was quite good, with wholesalers buying 800 lemons at ₹4,000 and above. Now that exports have stopped, we have to request traders to buy the crop even for ₹1,500," he said.

Teachers worried over exam duty

NELLORE, MAY 1

Teachers in government service working in Nellore and Chittoor districts are worried over state plans to conduct Class X and Intermediate examinations as many of them were infected and some among them died after attending election duties during the recent bypoll to Tirupati parliament seat.

Speaking to this newspaper, AP Teachers Federation State vice-president N. Mohan Doss alleged that 20 to 25 teachers succumbed to Covid among hundreds of infected after performing election duties.

He also alleged that authorities failed to provide PPE kits, sanitisers and other protective gear for those deployed for election duties.

work for 48 hours without a break," Mohan Doss said while reminding that they have to collect the election material one day before the election and move to the assigned polling stations.

He said that all these activities and exposure to the crowds resulted in the infection and demise of many teachers and now the families are in serious trouble after losing the breadwinners.

On the proposal to hold Class X exams, Mohan Doss observed that students are not ready for the exams since only a few formative assessment tests and summative assessment tests are held.

TD PICKS HOLES IN COVID-19 DASHBOARD

DC CORRESPONDENT
NELLORE, MAY 1

TDs State spokesperson Anam Venkataramana Reddy slammed the government for misguiding Covid patients with wrong information on the availability of beds in Covid-19 hospitals. He alleged that there is no parity between the beds shown in the dashboard and actual availability in the hospitals.

He said that 104 service is also a failure while referring to the embarrassing situation faced by ruling party senior leader Vijaya Sai Reddy when he attempted to contact 104 on Friday.

Speaking to the media on Saturday, he found fault with minister Anilkumar Yadav for joining in Apollo Hospitals for Covid-19 treatment instead of GGH in Nellore even after commending the services of the institution.

Stressing that Covid-19 management system of the government collapsed in the district, he alleged that no nodal officer in the district is responding.

COUNTING OF VOTES IN UP AFTER SC'S NOD

Lucknow, May 1: Counting of votes for the panchayat polls in Uttar Pradesh will be held on Sunday with the Supreme Court on Saturday refusing to stay the process and the State Election Commission (SEC) saying the candidates and their agents will be allowed to enter the counting centres only if they have tested negative for Covid-19 in the 48 hours prior to the commencement of the counting process or taken both doses of the vaccine.

In a special urgent hearing on a holiday, a bench of justices AM Khanwilkar and Hrishikesh Roy passed the order after taking note of several notifications and assurances of the SEC that the Covid-19 protocols will be followed at all the 829 counting centres.

The court directed that there will be a strict curfew in the entire state till Tuesday morning and no victory rallies will be permitted. It also asked the SEC to fix the responsibility for observance of Covid-19 protocols at the counting centres on gazetted officers.

The bench directed the poll panel to preserve the CCTV footage of the counting centres till the Allahabad High Court concludes its hearings on the related petitions before it.

It also ordered that the government officials, candidates and their agents will have to produce RT-PCR test reports to show that they are Covid-19 negative before entering the counting centres.

The Uttar Pradesh Prathamik Shikshak Sangh (UPSSS), in a letter dated April 29 and addressed to the chief minister and the state election commissioner, had said if the counting of votes on May 2 was not cancelled, the teachers will boycott poll duty.

GST REVENUES HITS A RECORD OF ₹1.41L CRORE

New Delhi, May 1: GST collections crossed the ₹1 lakh crore mark for the seventh month in a row and touched a record high of over ₹1.41 lakh crore in April, indicating economic recovery, the Finance Ministry said on Saturday. The Goods and Services Tax (GST) collections, which directly reflect the state of economic activity, in April are 14 per cent higher than ₹1.23 lakh crore mopped up in March.

In April last year, the revenue had plummeted to a record low of ₹32,172 crore, after the government imposed a nationwide lockdown to curb the spread of Coronavirus. As economic activity picked up, GST collections started crossing the ₹1 lakh crore mark since October last year.

The gross GST revenue collected in the month of April 2021 is at a record high of Rs 1,41,384 crore, of which CGST is ₹27,837 crore, SGST ₹35,621 crore, IGST 68,481 crore (including ₹29,599 crore collected on import of goods) and cess ₹9,445 crore (including ₹981 crore collected on import of goods). During April, revenues from domestic transaction (including import of services) are 21 per cent higher than in March.

"GST revenues have not only crossed the ₹1 lakh crore mark successfully for the last seven months but have also shown a steady increase. These are clear indicators of sustained economic recovery during this period".

Delhi extends lockdown till May 10 after 27,000 new cases

National capital also battles shortage of beds, oxygen in its hospitals

New Delhi, May 1: Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal announced an extension of the ongoing lockdown in Delhi by another week on Saturday amid a sudden surge in Covid-19 cases as the national capital battles an acute shortage of beds and medical oxygen in its hospitals.

"Lockdown in Delhi is being extended by one week," Kejriwal said in a tweet.

The lockdown that was scheduled to be in force till 5 am on Monday now stands extended by another week till May 10.

The Delhi Disaster Management Authority (DDMA), in its order on the extension of the lockdown, stated that a review of the pandemic situation showed that the numbers of positive cases, positivity rate as well as bed occupancy (oxygen-supported or ICU beds) in the dedicated Covid-19 hospitals are very high.

"...therefore, in order to contain the spread of the virus and break the transmission chain, the curfew needs to be extended for another week in the territory of NCT of Delhi (except for essential activities and services)," it said.

In view of the spiralling number of fresh Covid cases and a high positivity rate, the Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) government imposed the lockdown in Delhi on April 19. It was subsequently extended by a week on April 25.

The DDMA has directed to extend the curfew (lockdown) on the movement of individuals (except for essential activities and services) till 5 am on May 10 or further orders, whichever is earlier.

The Covid situation in the national capital is extremely grim as the festering crisis due to the shortage of oxygen claimed 12 lives in the Batra hospital on Saturday, even as the Centre and the city government are involved in a blame game.

The number of fresh Covid cases is still soaring, despite the lockdown.

The number of positive cases in a 24-hour period stood at over 27,000 with a positivity rate of 32.69 per cent and 375 deaths, according to the Delhi government's health bulletin on Friday.

"We will have to watch the situation for a few more days whether the number of cases decreases or increases," Kejriwal had said on the first extension of the lockdown.

Chamber of Trade and Industry chairman Brijesh Goyal said 65 per cent of the traders are in favour of an extension of the lockdown.

Community platform LocalCircles said 75 per cent respondents in a survey conducted by it in the national capital favoured extending the lockdown.

Many believe that till Delhi goes back to a daily caseload of 10,000 and a test positivity rate of less than 10 per cent, the lockdown would be needed, LocalCircles chairman Sachin Taparia said. — PTI

India records highest-ever 4,01,993 fresh Covid-19 cases in last 24 hours

New Delhi, May 1: India's daily coronavirus tally crossed the grim milestone of four lakh, while the death toll rose to 2,11,853 with 3,523 fresh fatalities, according to data updated by the Union Health Ministry on Saturday.

The infection tally rose to 1,91,64,969 with 4,01,993 new cases, while the active cases crossed the 32-lakh mark, the data updated at 8 am showed. Registering a steady increase, the active cases stood at 32,68,710, accounting for 17.06 per cent of the total infections, while the national Covid-19 recovery rate has further dropped to 81.84 per cent.

The number of people who have recuperated from the disease surged to 1,56,84,406, while the case fatality rate stands 1.11 per cent, the data stated.

India's Covid-19 tally had crossed the 20-lakh mark on August 7; 30 lakh on August 23; 40 lakh on September 5; and 50 lakh on September 16. It went past 60 lakh on September 28; 70 lakh on October 11; crossed 80 lakh on October 29; 90 lakh on November 20; and surpassed the one-crore mark on December 19. India crossed the grim milestone of 1.50 crore on April 19. According to the Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR), 28,83,37,385 samples have been tested up to April 30, of which 19,45,299 were done on Friday.

The 3,523 new fatalities include 828 from Maharashtra, 375 from Delhi, 332 from Uttar Pradesh, 269 from Chhattisgarh, 217 from Karnataka, 173 from Gujarat, 155 from Rajasthan, 122 from Uttarakhand and 120 from Jharkhand, 113 each from Punjab and Tamil Nadu. A total of 2,11,853 deaths have been reported so far in the country, including 68,813 from Maharashtra, 16,147 from Delhi, 15,523 from Karnataka, 14,046 from Tamil Nadu, 12,570 from Uttar Pradesh, 11,344 from West Bengal, 9,022 from Punjab and 8,581 from Chhattisgarh. — PTI

States delay vaccination plan due to big shortage

New Delhi, May 1: India rolled out the third phase of its Covid-19 vaccination drive for those in the 18-45 age group on Saturday though the inoculation process failed to take off in some states due to shortage of vaccines.

While Uttar Pradesh, Chhattisgarh, Maharashtra and Jammu and Kashmir among other states and union territories launched the vaccination drive, Karnataka and Odisha made only a symbolic start to it.

Blaming organisations authorised by the Centre for not making vaccines available, the Jharkhand government said it will announce fresh dates for the jabs once they reach the state.

Chief Minister Hemant Soren said he has sought the Centre's intervention in facilitating procurement of at least 50 lakh vaccine doses. Tamil Nadu, Andhra Pradesh and Puducherry had also said on Friday that they do not have adequate stocks of vaccines to meet the expected rush of immunity seekers.

After these states expressed their inability to start the latest phase of the vaccination drive from May 1 citing paucity of doses, the Centre had said those, which have already coordinated with manufacturers, will kick off the drive on the designated date.

Delhi Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal announced that inoculation of people in the 18-45 age group will begin in the national capital from Monday, adding 4.5

lakh vaccine doses have been received by the city government. He visited a vaccination centre at Saraswati Vihar for a "symbolic launch" of the nationwide drive. He also urged people not to queue up outside the vaccination centres, saying walk-ins are not allowed yet.

The Kerala government said that vaccination of those in the over 18 years age bracket will be delayed due to shortage of vaccines and urged the Centre to take steps immediately to ensure their availability.

"The vaccination of those above 18 years of age will be delayed by a few days. As efforts are on to procure vaccines from manufacturers, those in the 18 plus category cannot be given the jabs now," CM Vijayan said.

FAUCI SUGGESTS LOCKDOWN TO CONTAIN COVID-19

New Delhi, May 1: Top US epidemiologist Anthony Fauci has suggested a lockdown for a few weeks in India as an immediate step to contain the spread of the coronavirus as its deadly second wave shows no signs of ebbing.

Fauci, in an interview to The Indian Express, said another most important thing in the immediate is to get supplies of oxygen, medication, PPEs.

He said looking at the magnitude of the crisis, India should look at putting together a crisis group that would meet and start getting things organised.

Without naming any government, he said one of the things that should have been recognised that "victory" was declared maybe too prematurely". — PTI

Got aggressive calls from the powerful: Adar

London, May 1: Serum Institute of India CEO Adar Poonawalla on Saturday spoke out about the pressures he was under over the production of Covid-19 vaccines to meet the ever-increasing demand in India as the country battles through a devastating second wave of the coronavirus pandemic.

In his first comments since he was provided with Y category security by the Indian government earlier this week, Poonawalla told The Times in an interview about receiving aggressive calls from some of the most powerful people in India, demanding supplies of Covishield — the Oxford — AstraZeneca Covid-19 vaccine that the Serum Institute is producing in India.

That pressure is largely behind his decision to fly into London to be with his wife and children, the 40-year-old entrepreneur said.

"I'm staying here (London) an extended time because I don't want to go back to that situation. Everything falls on my shoulders but I can't do it alone...I don't want to be in a situation where you are just trying to do your job, and just because you can't supply the needs of X, Y or Z you really don't want to guess what they are going to do," Poonawalla told the newspaper.

The level of expectation and aggression is really unprecedented. It's overwhelming. Everyone feels they should get the vaccine. They can't understand why anyone else should get it before them, he said. — PTI

India should not have exported vax: Ajit Pawar

BHAGWAN PARAB | DC MUMBAI, MAY 1

Maharashtra Deputy Chief Minister Ajit Pawar has blamed the Union Government for the scarcity of Covid-19 vaccines in the country. The Centre's decision to export vaccines to other countries led to its shortage, he said.

"I feel the Centre should not have exported Covid-19 vaccines to other countries. There was no need to send vaccines abroad in the initial stage. Had that not happened, it would have been possible to vaccinate more people in Maharashtra and other states," said Mr Pawar to the media after the state foundation day event in Pune, of which he is the guardian minister.

"We had planned to start the third phase in a big way in the state, but due to inadequate supply of vaccines, it could not be done. The union government should now allow the states to import the vaccine, at least the number of vaccines that were sent out in the initial stages," he added.

Mr Pawar said the state government has allocated 6,500 crore for the third phase of vaccination, which has a target population of 5.81 crore and it is ready to pay lump sum cash for this.

The government has discussed the vaccine availability issue with Serum Institute of India CEO Adar Poonawalla and Bharat Biotech. "However, it seems that we cannot fully rely on the two Indian firms. Hence, we are keen to import vaccines from foreign manufacturers with the permission of the Union government," he said.

Ever since the vaccination drive has started in the country, Maharashtra has continued to top the chart in terms of inoculating people. It has already reached a milestone of vaccinating 1.5 crore people in the state.

Centre trying to defame Uddhav: Sena

DC CORRESPONDENT MUMBAI, MAY 1

The Shiv Sena on Saturday launched a scathing attack on the Centre saying Delhi's rulers are trying to corner the state during the coronavirus pandemic as the state has a Chief Minister with a 'Marathi pride'. A conspiracy has been hatched to defame the state by creating political and economic chaos, alleged the party.

As Maharashtra celebrated its 61st foundation day on Saturday, the Sena said that the state is bravely fighting against the Covid-19 crisis. It blamed the Centre for "creating hurdles" in the battle. "The vaccination drive in Maharashtra has been halted due to Delhi's obstinate nature. Maharashtra is not being provided with adequate injections and medicines and it is also facing acute shortage of oxygen," said the Sena in an editorial in the party mouthpiece Saamana.

It alleged that Maharashtra is being cornered by the Delhi's rulers as the state has a CM and a government, which endorses 'Marathi Bana' (pride). "Though the governments in Delhi have changed, their enmity against Maharashtra has continued. The state has helped the country immensely in economic terms, but these governments have kept on robbing Maharashtra. Several projects and schemes in the state have been shifted to Gujarat with an aim to diminish Mumbai's importance and cut off Maharashtra's financial support," said the editorial.

Queues for O2, beds, thanks to Modi: RG

New Delhi, May 1: As India logged a world record of over four lakh Coronavirus infections on Saturday, Congress leader Rahul Gandhi said the entire world is shaken by what is happening here and accused Prime Minister Narendra Modi for queues everywhere, whether for oxygen cylinders, for life-saving medicines, for hospital beds and even outside crematoriums.

"Rely on yourself is the motto. No one will come to help you. Definitely not the prime minister," Gandhi said, while alleging that the Covid-19 situation has gone completely out of control for the Modi government, and wondered whether it was their way of making the states and the citizens truly

'Aatmanirbhar'.

In an exclusive interview, the former Congress chief alleged that the government completely failed to understand or to tackle the Covid-19 pandemic, right from the very beginning, despite repeated warnings including from scientists. Training his guns on the prime minister and Home Minister Amit Shah, Gandhi said India must be the only country in the world facing this massive pandemic without the guidance of an expert and empowered group that is charged with fighting the virus and protecting the people, with planning ahead, anticipating needs and taking the decisions that will result in swift action to save lives.

SHORT TAKES

THUNDERSTORM
KILLS 11, INJURES
102 IN CHINA

Beijing: An extreme thunderstorm hit an eastern Chinese city, leaving 11 dead and 102 injured, with strong winds causing buildings and trees to collapse.

Nantong city, located in the eastern province of Jiangsu, was among the hardest-hit when the extreme weather swept the Yangtze Delta on Friday night, according to state-affiliated newspaper Global Times.

Rescuers evacuated 3,050 people, a local government notice said. Wind speeds of 162 kilometers (100 miles) per hour overturned a fishing ship. Two sailors were rescued and search operations were underway for the nine remaining crew, the notice said. Electricity has been restored in Nantong, and collapsed trees, damaged vehicles as well as windows that have been blown away were being cleared.

YEMEN FLOODING
FROM SEASONAL
RAINS KILLS 13

Sanaa: Floods swept through parts of Yemen amid heavy seasonal rains, leaving at least 13 people dead, including two children, security officials said on Saturday.

Fatalities were reported in the provinces of Sanaa, Ibb, Shabwa and Hodeida, where it began raining late last month, the officials said. They spoke on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to brief the media.

Heavy rains also pelted the provinces of Aden, Taiz and Hadramawt, where flooding damaged houses and vehicles, they said. Rescuers managed to save some residents trapped in their cars.

Yemen's National Meteorological Center issued statements in recent days warning Yemenis to stay away from flood ducts in affected areas and to take necessary precautions. Yemen's rainy season runs from April through August.

KYRGYZ, TAJIK LEADERS MOVE TO SAVE CEASEFIRE

Bishkek, Kyrgyzstan: The presidents of Kyrgyzstan and Tajikistan spoke by telephone on Saturday hoping to maintain a fragile ceasefire after the worst border clashes between the ex-Soviet countries left at least 33 dead.

The talks came after Kyrgyzstan accused Tajikistan of violating the truce, but the press services of Kyrgyzstan's leader Sadyr Japarov and Tajikistan's Emomali Rakhmon said they discussed fulfilling the agreement reached on Thursday, when the fighting erupted.

Clashes between communities over land and water along the long-contested border are regular occurrences, with border guards often getting involved, however this week's violence was by far the most serious during the Central Asian pair's 30 years of independence.

Kyrgyzstan on Saturday announced two days of mourning and said that its death toll had risen from 31 to 33, with over a hundred other Kyrgyz injured and at least 30 properties destroyed in its southwestern Batken region.

AFGHAN SUICIDE
BOMBING KILLS
21, INJURES 90

Kabul: The death toll in a powerful suicide truck bombing that struck a guest house in eastern Afghanistan rose to 21 with as many as 90 others wounded, officials said on Saturday.

No one immediately claimed responsibility for the late Friday night bombing in Pul-e-Alam, the capital of Logar province. There was no indication why the guest house was targeted.

In Afghanistan, guest houses are lodgings often provided for free by the government, usually for the poor, travellers and students. The Interior Ministry quickly blamed the Taliban. There was no immediate response from the Taliban. The attack came on the eve of the official date set for the start of the final withdrawal of US and NATO troops from Afghanistan. The Taliban, who had demanded that all US troops pull out of Afghanistan by May 1, have not offered any guarantees for the safety of the departing troops. There was no indication the bombing was connected to the pullout.

Covid situation in India tragic: Harris

We as a country have made a commitment to support the people in India, says V-P

Washington, May 1: Vice President Kamala Harris has described the Coronavirus situation in India as "tragic" and said the US has made a commitment to support the country in battling the challenge.

"There is no question that it is a great tragedy, in terms of the loss of life, and as I have said before, and I will say again, we as a country have made a commitment to the people of India to support them," Harris told reporters on Friday in Cincinnati, Ohio. "We have already made a commitment in terms of a dollar amount that will go to PPE and a number of other things. But it is tragic. My prayers go to the people on the suffering, the blatant suffering that is happening," Harris said in response to a question.

Earlier, the White House announced restrictions on travel from India because of "extraordinarily high Covid-19 case-loads" and multiple variants circulating there". Harris said she hasn't spoken to her family in India since the news of the ban was made public. On the advice of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the Administration will restrict travel from India starting May 4, White House Press Secretary Jen Psaki had said.

"The policy will be implemented in light of extraordinarily high COVID-19 case-loads and multiple variants circulating in India," Psaki said in a statement.

WHO approves Moderna
vax for emergency use

Geneva, May 1: The World Health Organisation has given the go-ahead for emergency use of Moderna's Covid-19 vaccine.

The mRNA vaccine from the US manufacturer joins vaccines from AstraZeneca, Pfizer-BioNTech and Johnson & Johnson in receiving the WHO's emergency use listing.

Similar approvals for China's Sinopharm and Sinovac vaccines are expected in the coming days and weeks, WHO has said.

The greenlight for Moderna's vaccine, announced late on Friday, took many months because of delays that WHO faced in getting data from the manufacturer. Many countries without their own advanced medical regulatory and assessment offices rely on the WHO listing to decide whether to use vaccines. UN children's agency UNICEF also uses the listing to deploy vaccines in an emergency like the pandemic.

The announcement, however, wasn't likely to have an immediate impact on supplies of Moderna's vaccine for the developing world.

Now, only 13 border points between Nepal and India will now remain operational.

CANADA

Global students not to be allowed entry

Toronto, May 1: Canada is all set to suspend entry of international students, including from India, to Ontario, the worst-hit province which is battling the third wave of the Coronavirus.

According to the Canadian Bureau for International Education (CBIE), an education service provider based in Ottawa, there were 530,540 international students in Canada in 2020, of which the maximum were from India (34 per cent) followed by China (22 per cent). Ontario has the maximum number of foreign students at 242,825 or 46 per cent, it said.

During a press conference on Friday, Prime Minister Justin Trudeau said that the government is considering halting the arrival of international students in Ontario, following a request from the province's premier Doug Ford to combat the spread of the coronavirus pandemic, the globalnews.ca reported. "Because currently Ontario is the only province to request it, we are happy to work more closely with them," he said. Trudeau said they will be "reaching out to their officials" to formalise the request.

However, there is no clarity as yet on when the change will take effect or how long it will last.

New virus cases put
New Zealand-Oz
travel bubble at risk

Wellington, May 1: New Zealand's fledgling quarantine-free travel arrangement with Western Australia faced disruption for the second time in eight days on Saturday following fresh community cases of Covid-19 in Perth.

A worker at a managed isolation facility in the city and two people he shares accommodation with have tested positive, authorities said.

Western Australia Premier Mark McGowan said the state would not go into lockdown "at this point".

But New Zealand health ministry officials said they had conducted a "rapid" assessment and had "determined scheduled direct flights from Western Australia to New Zealand should be immediately paused while a further assessment is carried out."

A flight scheduled to arrive in Auckland from Perth at 5.50am on Sunday (1750 GMT Saturday) has been cancelled, but travel to other Australian states and territories is not affected.

It is the second such disruption since the two countries opened their quarantine-free travel bubble on April 18.

Iran N-talks to resume in Vienna

Vienna, May 1: Parties to the Iran nuclear agreement are to resume on Saturday the third round of negotiations in Vienna aimed at bringing the United States back into the accord.

The deal, which curbs Iran's nuclear programme in exchange for sanctions relief, has been on life support since then US president Donald Trump bolted in 2018.

The remaining partners to the 2015 accord have been engaged in negotiations since early April to try to revive it.

The third round of talks started on Tuesday and, after several days of technical discussions between expert groups and delegations, will resume on Saturday.

The service of EU foreign policy chief Josep Borrell said in a statement that delegates from Britain, China, France, Germany, Iran and Russia would meet in person at around 3 pm (1300 GMT).

"Participants will continue their discussions in view of a possible return of the United States to the JCPOA and on how to ensure the full and effective implementation of the JCPOA," the statement said, using the acronym of the agreement's formal name.

After the talks, the delegations will return to their respective capitals to receive instructions, Iran's foreign ministry said.

A European diplomat said that the American, European, Russian and Chinese delegations held a joint meeting on Saturday morning, but without Iranian representation as Tehran has refused to negotiate with the US directly.

As well as bolting from the accord, Trump's administration slapped sweeping sanctions on Iran, which in turn started ramping up its nuclear activities.

New US President Joe Biden supports the agreement — with which Iran was in compliance before Trump's sanctions — but has called on Tehran to roll back its measures before Washington ends sanctions.

PAK TO REDUCE
INBOUND GLOBAL
FLIGHTS BY 20%

Islamabad, May 1: Pakistan has decided to reduce the inbound international flights up to 20 per cent of the current numbers from May 5 as part of measures to contain the spread of coronavirus in the country, authorities said on Saturday.

The National Command and Operation Center (NCOC), which is the main anti-corona body of Pakistan, said that the decision to decrease the number of inbound flights was taken in view of the prevailing pandemic situation.

In view of prevailing global and regional disease trends, Pakistan has decided to reduce inbound international travel from May 5 to May 20.

International flights to Pakistan will be reduced to 20 per cent during this period, the NCOC said in a statement.

It said that travelers from the existing list of 22 countries banned to enter Pakistan would remain in place.

HONG KONG

MIGRANT STAFF
ALARMED AT RULES TO MAKE JAB MUST

Hong Kong, May 1: Hong Kong migrant worker groups on Saturday criticised plans to make Coronavirus vaccines compulsory for all foreign domestic helpers, labelling the move "discriminatory and unjust".

Health officials said they were planning to roll out mandatory inoculations for the 370,000 domestic helpers in the city, mostly poorly-paid women from the Philippines and Indonesia.

Those wanting to apply for work visas — or renew their current ones — would need to show they had been vaccinated, officials said on Friday.

If the plan goes ahead it would be the first time Hong Kong has directly tied working rights for foreigners to vaccines.

"This is clearly an act of discrimination and stigmatisation against migrant domestic workers," Dolores Balladares Pelaez, chair of United Filipinos in Hong Kong, told reporters.

Final phase of Afghan pullout by
NATO, U.S. begins

Kabul, May 1: The final phase of ending America's "forever war" in Afghanistan after 20 years formally began on Saturday, with the withdrawal of the last US and NATO troops by the end of summer.

President Joe Biden had set May 1 as the official start of the withdrawal of the remaining forces — about 2,500-3,500 US troops and about 7,000 NATO soldiers. Even before Saturday, the herculean task of packing up had begun. The military has been taking inventory, deciding what is shipped back to the US, what is handed to the Afghan security forces and what is sold as junk in Afghanistan's markets.

In recent weeks, the military has been flying out equipment on massive C-17 cargo planes. The US is estimated to have spent more than $2 trillion in Afghanistan in the past two decades, according to the Costs of War project at Brown University, which documents the hidden costs of the US military engagement. Defence department officials and diplomats said the withdrawal has involved closing smaller bases over the last year. They said since Biden announced the end-of-summer withdrawal date in mid-April, only roughly 60 military personnel had left the country.

The US and its NATO allies went into Afghanistan together on October 7, 2001 to hunt the al-Qaida perpetrators of the 9/11 terrorist attacks who lived under the protection of the country's Taliban rulers. Two months later, the Taliban had been defeated and al-Qaida fighters and their leader, Osama bin Laden, were on the run. In his withdrawal announcement last month, Biden said the initial mission was accomplished a decade ago when US Navy SEALs killed bin Laden in his hideout in neighbouring Pakistan. Since then, al-Qaida has been degraded, while the terrorist threat has "metastasised" into a global phenomenon that is not contained by keeping thousands of troops in one country, he said.

Until now the US and NATO have received no promises from the Taliban that they won't attack troops during the pullout. In a response to AP questions, Taliban spokesman Suhail Shaheen said the Taliban leadership was still mulling over its strategy. The insurgent group continues to accuse Washington of breaching the deal it signed with Biden's predecessor more than a year ago.

In that agreement, the US said it would have all troops out by May 1. In a statement on Saturday, Taliban military spokesman Zabihullah Mujahid said the passing of the May 1 deadline for a complete withdrawal "opened the way for (Islamic Emirate of Afghanistan) mujahidin to take every counteraction it deems appropriate against the occupying forces." — AP

Fans have a ball as Disney theme park reopens

Anaheim, United States: Fans wearing Mickey Mouse ears lined up as Disneyland in California finally reopened Friday, more than 400 days after the pandemic forced an unprecedented closure for the self-styled "Happiest Place on Earth." "It is the greatest feeling ever!" said Momi Young-Wilkins, a 55-year-old mother as she brought her children to the world-famous park near Los Angeles.

"I promised my daughters we would be back here on opening day, and I made it happen." Disneyland Park — the world's second-most visited theme park — and neighboring Disney California Adventure Park have been closed the longest of all the Mouse House's globe-spanning parks, delayed by California's sharp winter Covid spike and tough restrictions.

But with the Golden State now boasting the nation's lowest per capita infection rate, the sprawling resort flung open its gates Friday to the delight of many of its most obsessive devotees. Sisters Carla and Jasmine, 23 and 17, who preferred not to give their last name, used to visit "pretty much every day" before the pandemic.

"We would go after school, after work, and just go on rides, even if it was for a couple hours," said Carla, as they eagerly waited to re-enter.

"We've been excited for this opening day... it's very exciting and emotional!"

Off the beaten track

Criminal? Or practical, though only for temples?

People across southern India celebrated their new year, and other occasions, in the middle of April... “Celebrated” is the wrong word to use in the midst of the rising second wave of the coronavirus, but that was what it looked like. The little temple across the street, for instance, that came up illegally two years ago, had its second anniversary a few days before the new year. The temple committee announced a comprehensive day-long programme of festivities. There were to be six hours of noise and feasting: excruciating bhajans sung into a sound system that could be heard half-a-kilometre away, and a “traditional” lunch and dinner consisting mostly of rice and other starchy foods. Hundreds of people turned up, with vehicles crowding the narrow street, and not a mask in sight. And, of course, there were large piles of the garbage that the temple workers and visitors simply tossed across the wall into the vacant lot to its south.

A few days later came the new year, Ugadi in these parts, celebrated with vigour by crowds of devotees, accompanied by the noise, the feasting, and the garbage that seem to be an integral part of every celebration. Masks and social distancing were forgotten. Following shortly after was a week-long festival at one of the oldest and largest temples in the neighbourhood, involving three daily rounds of crowds and noise and gorging, and, of course, garbage in the aftermath. News emerged during the festival that the head of one of the large akharas involved in the Kumbh died of Covid-19 after getting the disease during the mela. Devotees either didn't know or didn't care, for the festivities went right on. The police filed a First Information Report against the temple committee for violating Covid guidelines, to no effect.

In the midst of all this came my wife's birthday. In the time of the pandemic, she gets Zoom calls and good wishes instead of visitors and presents, and she doesn't complain. My friend the professor from the business school called on Zoom, as he did last year, and, when he had finished with the greetings, I took the opportunity to pour out my complaints to him, about the crowds and the noise and the waste of food and the garbage.

He heard me out without batting an eyelid. “I have only bad news for you,” he said, when I had finished my rant.

“What do you mean?” I asked.

“All this stuff is not going to stop in the near future,” he said. “It's how business evolves.”

“What do you mean, business?” I asked, mystified. “I thought we were talking about crowds and gluttony and noise and garbage associated with temples and blind faith.”

“Yes,” he said. “It's what happens when you convert faith into income. It's called monetisation.”

“Nonsense!” I said.

“Relax,” he said. “Let me explain. Look at the Kumbh. It happens every twelve years, and millions of pilgrims gather for it: it's in the Guinness Book of World Records, you know, for the largest gathering of people.”

“So?” I asked.

“Think about it. Taking care of several million people for several days means a lot of money. All of them eat and drink and sleep and pray and bathe in the Ganges. So somebody has to arrange travel and lodging and food and security and logistics. It's a huge, expensive affair. They clean up entire cities, build new roads, arrange for cities of tents, and for hundreds of tons of food. Think of just the food. It means grain and vegetables and spices and oils and fuel and cooks... You know all that. Figure it out for yourself.”

“Right,” I said. “But what does all that have to do with the temples here?”

“Every festival is a smaller version of that,” he said. “Every celebration involves money. Where there's money there's business. Where there's business there's a business model. And every business model requires growth.”

“But the big temples are rich!” I said, for the faithful can be generous. “They've got enough!”

“It's all part of the business model,” he said. “Every temple wants more visitors. Every big temple collects lots of money. They do a little social service, feeding the poor every now and again, but that's it. The rest of the money they collect goes into getting more visitors. So they make it easier for people to get there. There are lots of old temples that were hard to get to: you had to walk cross-country to get to them, or climb steep old flights of stairs. All that is changing. They're building roads so you can get there easily... They've built a new road to Mansarovar that goes close to the Chinese border, that cuts three days off a five-day journey.”

That made sense. That big old temple nearby used to have a steep stone staircase to the shrine, and when it rained it got really slippery. They did it up last year, so now you can climb safely up even in the heaviest rainstorm. “Right,” I said.

“There's more,” he continued. “You have people who happen to be on temple committees organising bus tours on special occasions, or hotel accommodation. Running a temple is now a position of power, you know. It combines business and politics.”

I couldn't help agreeing. The temple committee had no trouble dealing with that police FIR. “I see,” I said.

“Blind faith leaves you unaware of its ill effects,” he continued. “There's a profit to be made out of that faith.” He paused. “You know, sometimes it looks like governing people is like growing mushrooms.”

“How so?” I asked, mystified.

“You keep them in the dark and feed them plenty of horsest!” he replied.

Reprieve, for now, from Yogi's victim-blaming

Pavan Varma

Chanakya's View

Yogi Adityanath, the saffron-dhari CM of UP, believes that everything in his state is hunky dory. There is no shortage of oxygen, hospital beds, ventilators, essential medicines. Those who say there is are criminals in league with blackmarketeers and anti-social elements and must be dealt with stringently under the law. Like the proverbial pigeon that closes its eyes and believes that the cat has gone, Adityanath thinks that if he closes his eyes all the miseries that people in his state are facing will disappear.

But unlike the pigeon, Yogi has teeth to bite. On April 24, he asked his officials to take action under the draconian National Security Act (NSA) and the Gangsters Act against anti-social elements who spread “rumours” and propaganda on social media and try to “spoil the atmosphere”. His additional director general of police, Prashant Kumar, added that those who desperately vent their anguish at the transparent mismanagement and shortages in the state, want to “tarnish the image of the government”, and FIRs will be filed against them. Hospitals were imperiously told to keep their mouth shut about the crisis of oxygen supplies, or else they will face the majesty of the law.

A PIL was filed by a social activist in the Allahabad high court against slapping of criminal charges on families of critical patients issuing an SOS on social media. The PIL stated that people are afraid that they will be arrested for “spreading rumours about scarcities”. It further stated that some relatives were actually arrested for this crime.

The Supreme Court has now given a fitting rejoinder to the undemocratic high-handedness of the likes of the UP CM. The hon'ble court on April 30 said: “If a citizen ventilates his grievances through social media posts, there is no presumption that it is not genuine. There cannot be and should not be any clampdown on free speech. If anyone is booked for airing their grievance about non-supply of oxygen, medicines or availability of hospital bed, it will amount to a clampdown and we will treat it as contempt of this court (Emphasis mine).” For good measure the court further added: “Let a loud message go out to the states and the DGPs. We will brook no violation of the rights to free speech of a citizen when the country is going through a humanitarian crisis during a health emergency. Let there be free flow of information. Grievances aired through social media posts could actually help the government and local administration to attend to common deficiencies in the healthcare sector and attend to them speedily.”

Obviously, Adityanath disagrees. From the beginning of his term, his entire approach is to misuse the law for clamping down on anyone who remotely seems to suggest that all is not well in his state. Earlier, we have seen how sedition cases were slapped on journalists who had the temerity to report the poor quality of food being provided in midday meals in schools in the state. Really, Mr Adityanath? Sedition? As the Allahabad high court once exasperatedly alluded, the tendency of the CM to treat everything as my highway or the wilderness, has gone too far. Siddiqui Kappan, a journalist from Kerala, was arrested by the UP police on his way to Hathras to cover the dalit teenager's heinous gangrape. At that time the venerable Yogi had used his magisterial powers to prevent journalists from meeting the family, and done everything else to somehow hush up the case. Kappan, in poor health, has languished in jail ever since, until a recent judicial intervention to shift him to AIIMS.

On April 24, he asked his officials to take action under the draconian National Security Act (NSA) and the Gangsters Act against anti-social elements who spread 'rumours' and propaganda on social media and try to 'spoil the atmosphere'

The central government obviously thinks that Adityanath is doing the right thing. On April 25, it invoked the IT Act 2000 to instruct Twitter to remove for viewing in India over 50 posts that were critical of the government's handling of the pandemic. These tweets related to the shortages of medicines, beds, oxygen, the huge crowds at Kumbh Mela and the tragic visuals of mass cremations.

There is only one reason why governments begin to behave this way. It is the hubris of power. When people in power begin to believe that that power entitles them only to praise, and that all criticism is against the interests of the state, and those interests are their exclusive monopoly, they react in this undemocratic way. There is also the myth of the so-called “strong” leader. To my mind, Adityanath loves the image of the autocratic leader who will brook no opposition. Possibly, he draws his inspiration from the perceived persona of the PM himself, who as the “strong” leader has refused to hold a direct press conference ever since he came to power, and considered meeting with the leaders of the farmer's agitation as inimical to his strong-man image. The net consequence of such hubris is demagoguery, and the justification, at any cost, of gross incompetence in governance.

Democracy is a fragile plant. If those who have been elected to tend to it believe that the entire garden is their preserve, and everybody else is an unwarranted trespasser, the plant will wither. For the moment, Adityanath has been soundly put in his place by the Supreme Court. But, such tendencies do not evaporate by one reprimand. They become part of a mindset, and reinforce the actions of other would-be demagogues. To Adityanath, and his ilk, I have only this couplet in response: “Yun dikhata hai aankhen mujhe baghban, jaise gulshan pe kuch haq hamara nahin.” The gardener looks at me in such a way, as though I have no rights to the garden.”

The Andhra Pradesh High Court has rightly asked the state government to reconsider its decision to go ahead with final exams for Class X and Intermediate (HC asks govt to rethink on SSC, Inter exams, DC, May 1). As the court observed it is not that easy to protect 30 lakh students and teachers from getting infected. Even though the government intends to save students from loss of academic year, the situation is very bad.

VACCINATION FAIL

It is an unfortunate scenario not only in AP, but all over the country. When the vaccination drive for people aged 60 years and above on March 1, 2021 was launched there were literally no takers, because the government perhaps failed to convince the beneficiaries about their efficacy. Now after the second wave, people are flocking to vaccination centres only to find 'no stock' notice boards. It reflects badly on the efficiency of the administration at every level despite being forewarned by the experts about it. India even exported vaccine to several countries. We are over 135 crore population and only two vaccines are being manufactured. Under these circumstances, the Centre “scheduled” the Phase 3 of vaccination without adequate spade work.

LIES DON'T HELP

No, Shobhaad! Blatant lies can't save India from Covid19, all right. But people's resolve can. Immediately, people should adhere to Covid-19-appropriate behaviour. Even now, it's not too late. We should learn from our mistakes and not get carried away by government's camouflage of naked and blatant untruths. By the time the dust settles, we would be nearer to 2024 and fresh from the macabre situation.

NEW DELHI, MAY. 1

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi today expanded her council of Ministers by adding 18 new members to the existing total of 37 but only 17 turned up for the swearing-in ceremony at the Rashtrapati Bhavan this afternoon.

A tribal member from Bihar, Mr. Kartik Oraon, who was appointed Deputy Minister in the Ministry of Communications, was not present to take the oath of office as he was not happy to be a Deputy Minister.

awesome talent she did in Charulata, which remains her most lyrical performance ever.

There were distinct periods in the work that Satyajit Ray did. His early films — Apur Sansar, Parash Pathar, Jalsaghar, followed by films like Kanchenjunga and Abhijana, documentaries including the film on Rabindranath Tagore commissioned on the insistence of Jawaharlal Nehru, India's first Prime Minister, Bala, on the great Bharatanatyam dancer Balasaraswati, who performs on the Madras Marina with the wind blowing her hair and snatching at her sari, are masterpieces.

The last three films by Ray — Ganashatru (Enemy of the People), Shakha Proshakha and Agantuk — were very different. These were bold critiques on contemporary social issues, including the conflict between rational science and irrational religion, the idea of the civilised and the primitive, of what is normal and sickness of the mind. Ray did not start out as a filmmaker with an agenda. He was a storyteller. But he responded to the shifts and changes in the world at large and his conclusions were sharp, critical and almost a call to action.

MukerjeeRevisiting the legend @100:
Ray's iconic role to endure

Cultural power surpasses the transient aggregation of political heft in West Bengal. In the natural order of things, there is a rise and a fall of political leaders and political parties, and power waxes and wanes in proportion to the will exercised by the people as voters. Ousting a cultural icon from his, and more rarely her, space in the pantheon of secular deities is an entirely different matter; it has not happened in recent memory.

The deification of the creative genius is a metamorphosis that is imperceptible but very real. There are two pantheons in Bengal. The first is the conventional pantheon of the divine, crowded by so many avatars of the goddess or gods that only the cognoscenti know the difference. The second is the pantheon of cultural deities, reflecting a particular aspect of the Bengali sensibility, an eclectic array of political leaders, litterateurs, artists, musicians, performers and filmmakers, almost anyone who the Bengali considers to be uniquely gifted and on whom is bestowed the status of an icon.

Satyajit Ray is part of the second pantheon. His centenary year, which begins from May 2, is a moment when the process of this metamorphosis will be visible. In these pandemic times, the homage, the tributes, the celebration and the cultural programmes may have to be in a virtual space, but that will not deter devotees of Ray's genius from honouring him by revisiting his work and his creativity in as many ways as possible.

The tributes will not be exclusive offerings of aficionados; the inclusivity of the celebrations will affirm his status as an icon. When Ray died in 1992, even manufacturers of objects as entirely mundane as shovels and construction equipment offered their tribute through advertisements, as a reflection of how significant the filmmaker's transition was from mere mortal to one of the pantheon. It did not matter that his films were never the sort of blockbusters that appealed to the masses. In the Bengali perception, Ray was an icon; his work was quintessentially Bengali, but his contribution was recognised as India's gift to world cinema.

It is revealing of West Bengal's unusual ethos that even the BJP, with its claim to being the world's largest party, scrambled to deploy Satyajit Ray to increase its appeal to the Bengali intelligentsia. If the BJP government in New Delhi lives up to its promise of an Oscar-like film award in the name of Satyajit Ray,

Satyajit Ray (1921-1992)

Bengalis may be pleased, but that is impossible to predict.

Satyajit Ray's oeuvre was not limited to making films, or writing his own scripts, or composing the music for his films. His work is part of the popular imagination. Snatches of his music from the fantasy series, Goopey Gayne Bagha Bayne, have become signatures in the culture of modern West Bengal. His Hirak Rajar Deshe is now the title of an animation series that is a regular satirical take on current politics on a local television channel. The dialogue of his film series featuring the detective that he created, Feluda, is part of the language in which Bengalis think and speak. He pervades the mind and is embedded in the Bengali spirit.

He was not a filmmaker to begin with. He worked as an artist in advertising. He also designed book jackets that are now classics in the world of book design. He created fonts. He created a visual language through his films that is now part of the grammar of filmmaking. The trilogy, the first of which, Pather Panchali (The Song of the Road), made in 1958, is the one of the greatest films ever made. It was the first of the total of 29 films and five documentaries that Ray made.

He worked with unknowns, including the legendary cinematographer Subrata Mitra, who improvised to create the amazing light in Pather Panchali, and the slew of films including Jalsaghar, Teen Kanya, Charulata, Devil, Mahanagar and Nayak. And through that work, men like Subrata Mitra emerged with their extraordinary talent. Soumitra Chatterjee, the legendary actor who passed away in 2020, was a Ray discovery. As were Sharmila Tagore, Aparna Sen and even Madhavi Mukherjee, who had worked in cinema before, but never displayed the Writer-director P.S. Vinothraj's Pebbles is a film born out of a trauma that he was witness to. In 2015, his sister's husband threw her out of their house and she walked 13 kms to her mother's house, carrying her two-year-old child.

Pebbles makes the husband walk and a young boy stalks him, taunting him with his silence and gaze that's a mix of anger and raging indifference.

P.S. Vinothraj's debut film, which won the prestigious Tiger Award at the International Film Festival Rotterdam in February this year, is a harsh, relentless, bare-foot trudge through a pale, malnourished land that seems stunned by the complete lack of water. It's dry to the bone and is slowly shedding itself, turning first to pebbles and then to sand. The film declares its intent at the onset with two scenes — first when young Velu (Chellapandi) stands in silence looking at his father (Karuththadaiyaan) who has taken him out of his class is asking, "Do you love your mother or me?"

Velu is to accompany his angry, drunk father to her mother's maternal house, to deliver the message that if she doesn't return, he'll remarry.

They get onto a bus, and at the very next stop a woman gets on, carrying three plastic pots of water. The bus conductor charges for each pot.

Shot in Arittapatti, Pebbles' plot almost seems like a screenwriting and direction challenge. As if someone told Vinothraj, write and direct a movie that covers just half a day with two main characters, father and son. They both go to get his mom, but return because she has already returned home.

Pebbles narrates this incident mostly with silence and through long, unrelenting shots that tell the story of the lifetime of a people and a land in pursuit of water. As the sun beats down on the dusty land with dry, rocky mud, and we follow Velu and his father, listening to each footfall. We feel the harshness of the land on our own skin, and like Velu, who always stays at a safe distance from his father, we too fix him with a disdainful stare.

This walk is interrupted by sudden bouts of violence and small digressions.

En route we meet a family of two women, one girl and a man who are smoking out rats from a hole. We see the entire capturing and cooking process that involves breaking tiny legs, and roasting. This brutality is life-sustaining in this brutal landscape.

The camera of Parthib and Vignesh Kumulai is a character in Pebbles. It's us. Stalking, staring. But it's an angry stare. Like Velu's.

When he picks up a broken piece of mirror, and while sucking on a pebble that's lodged in his cheek, aims the reflection on his father's bare back, we smile, like Velu. It feels right to surreptitiously assault the father's arrogant swag from this safe distance.

The film is also an editing marvel. Ganesh Siva (editing) doesn't do us the favour of cutting the harshest scenes — of an endless walk, of slowly drawing out water, half a mug at a time from a little puddle, or when the father breaks his toe nail.

It makes us watch all these, as if the movie is watching us fidget and get uncomfortable.

The film's last scene is heart-breaking. Velu returns home with a puppy and he and his sister and playing with it. He then takes the pebble out and tosses it into a small mound of pebbles.

We link this to the names he was scratching on a rock "Shanthi, Lakshmi, Velu, Ganapathy" and we know this is a trip he has made several times. And on each of these trips he has sucked on a pebble.

Pebbles will be playing at the Indian Film Festival of Los Angeles, from May 20-27. It's a virtual film festival and passes are available online.

Michael B. Jordan seeks revenge in Without Remorse

LINDSEY BAHR

In the new Tom Clancy adaptation, Without Remorse, Michael B. Jordan is a Navy SEAL about to trade military life for private security when his pregnant wife (Lauren London) is executed in their Washington D.C. home. It's part of a calculated ambush: The assassins are picking off the men in his unit because of a mishap in Aleppo where the Americans attacked the Russian military instead of Syrians. They were following orders without knowing the full story and soon the Russians are in the US retaliating. Jordan's John Kelly was the target, but he happened to be on the couch with noise canceling headphones and not the bed when they broke into his home.

It's somewhat frustrating that movies like this tend to be so similar that it almost ensures zero emotional investment in the inciting incident whatsoever. The dead, pregnant wife is a launching off point and the screenplay (written by Taylor Sheridan and Will Staples) doesn't do us (or them) any favors. Never has there been a more generic couple than the Kellys. One of the precious few scenes with them together has them reminiscing about what appears to be a prom photo that's framed in their dining room. Soon enough, she's dead and John and the movie can really get started.

I suppose it's just as well, since no one is coming to Without Remorse for a story about a couple. It just feels like a wasted opportunity to show Jordan in full expectant father mode instead of just fast-forwarding through loaded signifiers to get to a motive.

The good news is that Without Remorse is pretty great when it comes to the action, and there is a lot of it. Director Stefano Sollima, who directed the "Sicario" sequel (which Sheridan wrote), keeps the engines moving forward and the set pieces dynamic and distinct from the start. And although John Kelly might not be the most layered guy on the page, it's impossible to take your eyes off him — the power of movie star charisma? He's best when he's playing opposite Jodie Turner-Smith, playing Lt. Cmdr. Karen Greer. She is steely and intimidating without being cliché and makes you want a spinoff about how she got her position.

Clancy's novel was published in 1993 and it's a story that has been bouncing around Hollywood almost as long as it's been on shelves with everyone from Keanu Reeves to Tom Hardy circling the project at various points in the past two decades. But besides the names used, the book and the film seem to have almost nothing else in common. Instead of setting it during the Vietnam War, Sollima and the writers have made it modern with escalating tensions between Russian and the US Jamie Bell co-stars as a humorless and Robert Ritter as a suspect CIA officer who was the reason for the Aleppo snafu. Guy Pearce adds some gravitas as the Secretary of Defense. With its glossy pedigree, it will be no surprise to anyone that this was originally intended as a Paramount theatrical release before the pandemic.

Although it has a few twists and turns that you might not see coming, Without Remorse is also in some ways exactly what you expect it'll be. It doesn't exactly have anything revelatory to say about global diplomacy or the American military and it takes itself very, very seriously, which makes it a little disarming to see Brett Gelman show up at a key moment. It's also setting up at least one sequel. Jordan will likely be reprising John Kelly (by the end he's John Clark) in Rainbow Six. Maybe by then the filmmakers will allow themselves to have some fun with his character. Even so, he's just the shot in the arm that the Clancy-verse needed.

Another Round

SUPARNA SHARMA

Danish write-director Thomas Vinterberg's film, Another Round, ends with a two-and-a-half minute joyous dance sequence. Performed by Mads Mikkelsen, a trained gymnast, it's a spontaneous, free-spirited metaphor for life, a suggestion of how to do it. It seems to say, take a swig and then take a leap of faith. You may find what you are looking for, or you may not. But it's worth trying.

That's why, perhaps, last week the Academy bypassed Jasmila bani's absolutely brutal and brilliant Bosnian war drama, Quo Vadis, Aida?, and handed the Oscar for best international film to Vinterberg.

The Academy likes happy endings, and that's also the need of the hour, whatever the reality. In that sense, Another Round was the perfect choice.

It's a celebration of life, love and friendship that's framed in a personal tragedy.

In his acceptance speech for the Oscar, Vinterberg said that the film is dedicated to his daughter Ida who tragically passed away when he was filming.

"Four days into shooting, the impossible happened. An accident on a highway took my daughter away. Someone looking into a cell phone," he said.

His daughter had loved the script, he said. Probably because Another Round resonates in these worst of times — when we are living physically isolated and scared in our homes, but spend most of the time inside our heads, going over regrets, of things not attempted, of paths not walked, of emotions left unexplored.

Another Round tells the story of four high school teachers in their 40s. There's the sports teacher Tommy (Thomas Bo Larsen), psychology teacher Nikolaj (Magnus Millang), music teacher Peter (Lars Ranthe) and the history teacher, Martin (Mads Mikkelsen) who seems most obviously frozen by sadness. It's taken hold of his soul.

"Am I boring?" Martin asks his wife, and breaks down at a dinner with his friends. They have all lost touch with their younger selves, their dreams, and are now mildly depressed versions of who they were.

So when Nikolaj talks of Norwegian psychiatrist Finn Skårderud's claim that humans are born short of 0.05% Blood Alcohol Content, and to function at our best — physically, intellectually and emotionally — we must drink, they order another round.

The next day Martin tests this theory and his dull, confusing, rambling history class becomes engaging, fun. He tells the others and on Nikolaj's suggestion they all agree to test the theory under the ruse of conducting an experiment. A few swigs before and during work — to make up for the 0.05% shortage — and take notes.

Alcohol transport them back to a version of themselves in their youth — carefree, getting thrills by breaking rules. It energises them into taking charge, it makes them smile, reach out, take risks, precipitate things.

They reconnect with themselves, and that helps them connect with others. There's a family trip and sex, happy kids, and some heartwarming moments.

But, there's also temptation to drink more, and soon some relationships, lives begin to capsize. There's a suspension and a death.

"What is youth? A dream. What is love? The content of the dream."

These lines, by Søren Kierkegaard, appear at the beginning of Another Round which is simultaneously funny, sad, real, scary, warm, joyous. It also has a fabulous soundtrack that should be downloaded immediately, especially Cissy Strut by The Meters and What a Life by Scarlet Pleasure.

Every time you listen to them, you'll unfreeze. You'll feel like moving to the beats. You'll know that life is not just a sum total of the things we didn't do, the goals we didn't achieve. It is a collage of the moments we lived, the chances we took, the songs we sang, the joy we experienced.

Last week the Academy bypassed Jasmila Banic's absolutely brutal and brilliant Bosnian war drama, Quo Vadis, Aida?, and handed the Oscar for best international film to Vinterberg's Another Round

Seyfried lends grounding presence to campy thriller

JOCELYN NOVECK

Hollywood thrillers in which sophisticated, attractive city folk move to creaky old country homes and experience scary things are a dime a dozen. Less common is when those Hollywood thrillers are based on the theology of 18th-century Swedish mystic Emanuel Swedenborg. But here we are — a Swedenborgian thriller — and thus it's not a bad idea to read up a bit on the man, by which we mean to Google him, before diving into Things Heard & Seen, a well-cast and often entertaining but campy and sometimes obvious thriller starring Amanda Seyfried and James Norton. What you'll learn is that Swedenborg believed (among other things) that death was just a continuation of life — and that people lived on, in the spiritual world, past the expiration of their physical body. For the film's purposes, we'll boil it down for you: Ghosts!

In fact the film, based on the novel "All Things Cease to Appear" by Elizabeth Brundage, begins with a Swedenborg quote: "Things that are in heaven are more real than things that are in the world." So even if you've skipped your theology homework (tsk tsk), this should alert you to a spectral influence in the story — maybe even a seance or two.

We begin in the winter of 1980, when a perturbed-looking George Claire (Norton) drives up a snowy road to his isolated home. Immediately, it's obvious something terrible has happened.

Flashback to the spring before, in a Manhattan apartment. George and wife Catherine (Seyfried) are celebrating the fourth birthday of their daughter, Franny. George — handsome and chiseled, with the kind of tousled hair that looks breezy but you know he works on it — has an announcement to make: Not only has he completed his Ph.D in art history, but he's found a teaching job upstate. "Oh, at Bard?" asks a (snobby) friend. No, he replies, at a place called Saginaw. Nobody is impressed, but Catherine, despite having no desire to leave her coveted job as an art restorer, feels the need to support her husband. For one thing, she tells a friend, they need the money — his wealthy parents have finally cut him off. The friend warns Catherine she's giving up a lot to go live in a place filled with "rich horsey weekenders and full-time rednecks." But move they do, to beautiful Hudson Valley (writer-directors Shari Springer Berman and Robert Pulcini draw out both the charm and the isolation of the place) and their chosen town, which is ominously called ... Chosen. (Certain things are unabashedly telegraphed in this film. Then again, sometimes they're red herrings. Maybe? Why is Catherine bulimic, for example?) The house George has found, on an old dairy farm, is huge and creaky and needs work, but Catherine launches into the job. Soon, however, it becomes clear the family is not entirely alone. As happens in haunted house movies, there are strange noises and strange voices and dodgy electricity. There are also historical hints sprinkled through the home, suggesting past trauma.

Catherine is much more attuned to these than George, who's spending most of his time trying to curry favor with colleagues in his art history department, including the chairman, Floyd DeBeers, who has a fascination not only with Swedenborg but his influence on prominent landscape painter George Inness (DeBeers is played by a deliciously august F. Murray Abraham.)

Catherine also develops an affection for two brothers, Eddy and Cole, who live next door and offer to do odd jobs. As we suspect early on, there's more to these brothers and their connection to the home than meets the eye.

MI in Poll position

Pollards' unbeaten 87 off 34 balls downs table-toppers Chennai

New Delhi, May 1: Mumbai Indians beat table-toppers Chennai Super Kings by four wickets in their IPL match here on Saturday. Kieron Pollard blazed away to the fastest half-century of the ongoing league, reaching the landmark in 17 balls and remaining unbeaten on 87 off 34 balls at the end of the match. CSK scored 218 for 4 after being asked to bat. Moeen Ali (58) and Faf du Plessis (50) shared a 108-run stand before Ambati Rayudu pumelled the MI bowling attack into submission with an unbeaten 72 off 27 balls at the Arun Jaitley Stadium.

Rayudu, who notched up his fifty in just 20 balls, went hammer and tongs with seven sixes and four fours during his stay in the middle.

For Mumbai, Pollard (2/12) snared two wickets while pacers Trent Boult (1/42) and Jasprit Bumrah (1/56) grabbed a wicket each.

In reply, MI were off to a brisk start with Rohit Sharma and Quinton de Kock putting on 71 runs for the first wicket in just 7.1 overs.

Three wickets fell in quick succession to leave Mumbai Indians at 81 for three in the 10th over, but Pollard took charge of the situation after that, hitting a barrage of sixes and fours to keep his team in the reckoning.

However, Sam Curran bowled a brilliant 17th over, in which he picked up the wicket of Krunal Pandya to break a threatening 81-run partnership while giving away only two runs, to bring CSK back into the match.

But Pollard won it for Mumbai Indians off the last ball. — PTI

Struggling SRH sack captain Warner

New Delhi, May 1: In a desperate attempt to arrest their slide, SunRisers Hyderabad have thrust Kane Williamson into the leadership role by removing David Warner as they prepare to take on Rajasthan Royals, who are also struggling like them, here on Sunday.

In a surprise move, SRH removed struggling Australian batsman Warner from the captaincy on Saturday as the side has lost five of the six matches under him this IPL season. The Royals are not faring any better as they have managed to win only two matches out of the six they have played. No wonder, the Royals are placed seventh just above SRH. SRH are coming into Sunday's match after losing their last two matches including the Super Over defeat against Chennai Super Kings. SRH rely heavily on their top-order — Warner, Jonny Bairstow, Manish Pandey and Williamson — but they did not fire together.

There is a possibility that Warner could be dropped from the playing XI and West Indies captain Jason Holder is likely to replace him. — PTI

City on brink of title glory after win

London, May 1: Manchester City are within touching distance of the Premier League title after Sergio Aguero and Ferran Torres sealed a 2-0 win at Crystal Palace on Saturday.

Pep Guardiola's side sit 13 points clear at the top and will be crowned champions if second-placed Manchester United lose against Liverpool on Sunday.

After a tepid first half in south London, it was fitting that Aguero — the architect of so many big moments in City's history — should open the scoring with a typically lethal finish.

Torres killed off Palace two minutes later as City eased to an 11th successive away victory in the Premier League, equalling the English top-flight record.

Even if United do not slip up against Liverpool at Old Trafford, City have four matches left to secure the one win they need to clinch the title, starting with next Saturday's home game against Chelsea.

FOXES SALVAGE DRAW AT SOUTHAMPTON

Leicester missed a chance to cement their grip on third place in the Premier League after a 1-

1 draw against 10-man Southampton. Southampton had to play 80 minutes without Danish defender Jannik Vestergaard after he was sent off for a foul on Jamie Vardy.

But James Ward-Prowse's second half penalty briefly put Ralph Hasenhuttl's side ahead before Jonny Evans headed Leicester's equaliser. Leicester remain in third place, but fourth placed Chelsea would close the gap to just two points if they beat Fulham on Saturday. — AFP

Torch relay detour, diving test event opens

Tokyo, May 1: The Tokyo Olympics torch relay will take another detour this weekend when it enters the southern island of Okinawa.

A leg of the relay on Okinawa's resort island of Miyakojima set for Sunday has been cancelled altogether with cases surging in Japan. Other legs on Okinawa will take place.

A 17-day state of emergency went into effect on April 25 in some areas in Japan, which has shut down department stores and bars in Tokyo and the country's second largest metropolis of Osaka.

"We don't want people from outside the island coming in. Human life is at stake," Hayako Shimizu, a teacher in Miyakojima, said.

The relay, which will involve 10,000 runners from every corner of Japan, started six weeks ago and has been mostly on schedule despite major rerouting in Osaka and in Matsuyama City in nearby Ehime prefecture.

The relay is made up of a convoy of about a dozen vehicles with sponsors names festooned on them. The torch bearer follows, each running for a couple of minutes, before giving the flame to the next runner who awaits holding another torch.

The torch relay — like planning for the postponed Olympics that are to open on July 23 — is filled with uncertainty, constant changes, and questions about why it is taking place, and how it will take place.

A six-day, on-and-off diving event opened Saturday in Tokyo with 225 athletes from from 46 countries — but no fans.

It was not immediately clear where the athletes were staying or under what quarantine conditions, if any, they entered Japan. It's also not clear how many staff members accompanied the divers.

Contacted by AP, Tokyo organisers said it "understands that the athletes are entering Japan based on the guidelines provided by JASF (Japanese swimming federation) and approved by FINA."

It referred further enquires to FINA and local swim officials.

The Japanese news agency Kyodo, citing the Japanese Swimming Federation, said a coach of the Egyptian diving team tested positive for Covid-19 upon arrival in Japan. It said the rest of the team tested negative.

The diving event is one of several tests this month — all without fans.

Fans from abroad have already been banned. — AP

Punjab spinners aim to trick DC

Ahmedabad, May 1: Young Punjab Kings spinners Harpreet Brar and Ravi Bishnoi wouldn't mind another dream day in office against a menacing Delhi Capitals here on Sunday, aiming to take a giant leap forward in their bid for an Indian Premier League play-off berth.

Brar's match-winning 3/19 was wonderfully complemented by Bishnoi's 2/19 as their combined haul of 5/36 in 8 overs decimated a star-studded Royal Challengers Bangalore.

Come Sunday, the duo will face a tougher task against the Delhi team which has a slightly better record against spin attacks with openers Shikhar Dhawan and Prithvi Shaw in imperious form.

Dhawan (311 runs) and Shaw (269 runs) have provided flying starts with five half-centuries between them along with 71 fours and 15 sixes. For any bowling unit, facing the Dhawan-Shaw duo is a scary proposition.

In fact, Bishnoi, who primarily bowls the googly,

Maradona was left to 'fate' ahead of death

Buenos Aires, May 1: Argentine football icon Diego Maradona received inadequate medical care and was left to his fate for a "prolonged, agonizing period" before he died last year, an expert medical panel concluded Friday.

In a 70-page document, the panel stated that Maradona, who succumbed to a heart attack on November 25 at the age of 60, "started to die at least 12 hours before" the moment he was found dead in his bed.

Maradona died just weeks after undergoing brain surgery on a blood clot.

A panel of 20 experts was convened by Argentina's public prosecutor to examine the cause of death and to determine if there had been any negligence.

Maradona's neurosurgeon Leopoldo Luque, psychiatrist Agustina Cosachov and psychologist Carlos Diaz are under investigation as well as two nurses, a nursing coordinator and a medical coordinator. The finding could result in a case of wrongful death, and a prison sentence of up to 15 years if convicted.

The legal proceedings were prompted by a complaint filed by two of Maradona's five daughters against Luque, whom they blamed for their father's deteriorating condition after the brain operation.

Maradona underwent surgery on November 3, just four days after he celebrated his 60th birthday at the club he coached, Gimnasia y Esgrima. However, he appeared in poor health then, and had trouble speaking.

'DEFICIENCIES AND IRREGULARITIES'

The panel concluded that Maradona "would have had a better chance of survival" with adequate treatment in an appropriate medical facility.

He died in his bed in a rented house in an exclusive Buenos Aires neighborhood, where he was receiving home care.

Maradona did not have "full use of his mental faculties" and should not have been left to decide where he would be treated, the experts said.

They also found that his treatment was rife with "deficiencies and irregularities" and the medical team had left his survival "to fate". — AFP

KINGS RALLY TO SPOIL JAMES RETURN TO LA

Los Angeles, May 1: Los Angeles superstar LeBron James scored 16 points in his return from the longest absence of his NBA career on Friday, but the Sacramento Kings rallied to beat the Lakers 110-106 at Staples Center.

James, who missed 20 games with a sprained ankle, finished with eight rebounds and seven assists, but he also had five turnovers in 32 minutes of playing time. "I came out unscathed. It's a pretty good start," James said.

The reigning champion Lakers are pleased to have the four time NBA MVP back for the Lakers stretch drive, but James will have to shake off some expected rust in order to get into playoff form.

"For my first game in six weeks, I felt OK," James said. "My ankle was a little tight at times. As the games go on that will continue to improve." — AFP
