TTD forest department deploys fire-fighting teams

Seshachalam biosphere burns

DC CORRESPONDENT TIRUPATI, MARCH 27

The scorching summer heat has yet again brought to the fore the forest fire menace in Seshachalam biosphere. This disturbs the entire region's biodiversity, ecology and environment.

Nearly half a dozen incidents of forest fires were reported in the last two weeks in Seshachalam forests that spread across Chittoor, Kadapa and Nellore districts.

However, timely intervention by forest and fire services personnel are bringing down the flames regularly and protecting the forest-belt from wildfires. Forest fires are a regular phenomenon in these forests and pose a great threat to forest wealth, flora and fauna.

● NEARLY HALF a dozen incidents of forest fires were reported in the last two weeks in Seshachalam forests that spread across Chittoor, Kadapa and Nellore districts.

● TIMELY INTERVENTION by forest and fire services personnel are bringing down the flames regularly and protecting the forest-belt from wildfires. Forest fires have become a regular phenomenon

According to Forest Survey of India (FSI), based on the forest inventory records, 54.40 per cent of forests in the country are exposed to occasional fires, 7.49 per cent to moderately frequent fires and 2.405 per cent to high incidence levels, while 35.71 per cent have not yet been exposed to fires of any real significance.

Among the top five states with the highest number of FFP/alerts between November 1 of last year and this Friday, Andhra Pradesh occupied the fifth position.

During this period, forests in Anantapur circle, Tirupati wildlife circle, FDPT Srisaillam circle, Rajahmundry circle, Kurnool circle, Visakhapatnam circle and Guntur circle, received 13,673 FFP/alerts (SNPP-11,651 and MODIS-2,022), as per FSI data.

Experts say the prolonged dry spell has led to drying up of vast tracts of Seshachalam forest cover, which in turn caused fire. This is aggravated by an increase in human activity. Forest fire is also a most common hazard in the Tirupati and Tirumala forest belt, comprising nearly 3250 hectares, that comes under the Tirumala Tirupati Devasthanams (TTD).

In view of the soaring temperatures, the TTD forest wing has stepped up measures to prevent fire in the forest area under its control.

They have taken precautionary measures like strengthening watch towers, deployment of additional staff, fire lines and fire-fighting squads kept on ground to prevent and control incidences of wildfire and to meet any contingency

AP'S MOVE TO REORGANISE DISTRICTS MAY GET DELAYED

DC CORRESPONDENT
VIJAYAWADA, MARCH 27

The Andhra Pradesh government's move to reorganise the districts may get delayed further. The office of the Registrar General replied for a query under the Right to Information Act, 2005 raised by city-based Inaganti Ravi Kumar recently, stating that Census 2021 and other related field activities were postponed until further orders due to the Covid-19 pandemic and no new dates were decided.

The office said that for Census 2021, initially the period from January 1, 2010, to December 31, 2019, was fixed for mapping the jurisdictional changes and date of freezing boundaries was December 31, 2019. However, due to the pandemic, the Census and other related field activities were postponed and the date of freezing of boundaries was extended upto March 31, 2021, for all states and Union Territories and will be effective till the Census is over.

Moreover, it takes a minimum of three months to complete the preparatory works for reorganisation of the districts under the provisions of AP District Formation Act, 1974. Besides, the poll code is in force in all seven Assembly segments falling under Tirupati Lok Sabha constituency where a bypoll is due. The state government intends to complete the mandal and zilla parishad polls early. If the State Election Commission announces the schedule, the poll code will be in effect until the election process is over.

As the thumb rule says that no alteration of jurisdictional boundaries are to be taken up during the Census year and the Census is likely to commence once the prevalence of Coronavirus subsides, the AP's plan to reorganise districts is likely to be deferred.

Though Telangana state managed to reorganise 10 districts into 33 districts in 2016-17, at that time, there was no rule on freezing of boundaries as it was not a Census year.

ARTIFICIAL ROBO SAND TO RESOLVE SAND SHORTAGE

DC CORRESPONDENT
VIJAYAWADA, MARCH 27

The usage of 'Robo sand' has been proposed to resolve the shortage of sand by an expert team from the Siddhartha Engineering College. The team said constructors are using artificial sand in Hyderabad, Bengaluru and other places for quality constructions.

They were speaking at a seminar, 'Investigation of usage M-sand and stone dust', conducted by the Confederation of Real Estate Developers Association of India (CREDAI).

VR. Siddhartha Engineering College Dean Dr Panduranga Rao giving a presentation on Robo sand said that their college conducted research on how manufacturing sand can be used as an alternative to prevent a sand shortage. He said that the shortage of sand is increasing day by day which is putting a huge impact on constructions.

He said that constructions can be done using Robo/M-sand under which dust from gravel can be used in the form of sand. He stated that the best example of this is the construction of the flyover near the Siddhartha College using 'M-Sand'. Many other constructions have already taken place in Vijayawada as well as Bengaluru and Hyderabad.

Siddhartha College of Engineering Assistant Professor M. Tej Sai said structures built using M-Sand (Robo sand) will be strong for a long time. He said that some precautions need to be taken while using the sand like adequate water should be used during the mixing of the cement.

VRSEC Professor Dr Chava Srinivas and CREDAI President RV Swamy and others addressed the seminar.

Retaining wall soon to prevent inundation by Krishna floods

CM to lay foundation stone for the construction of retaining wall on March 31

DC CORRESPONDENT
VIJAYAWADA, MARCH 27

The menace of flooding on the banks of the Krishna river in Vijayawada could be a thing of the past with the construction of the first of its kind flood protection wall. Chief Minister Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddy will lay the foundation stone for the construction of the 1.5 km-long second phase of the retaining wall on March 31.

The actual retaining wall is 2.28 km long, of which only one km could be built during the slow pace of construction works. During the 2019 election, Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddy promised to complete the construction of the wall and sanctioned ₹125 crore funds and going to start works on March 31.

The retaining wall will be constructed from Kanakadurga Varadhi to Kotinagar Tarakaramanagar, Ranigarithota, Bhupesh Gupta Nagar colony and other areas on the banks of the Krishna river. Every year during floods as many as 2,500 families living on the banks of the river are facing severe problems due to inundation. Those families were shifted to safer places by the government and were provided with food and shelter. With the upcoming river protection retaining wall there will be no problems to the families during floods.

The upcoming retaining wall can stand floodwater up to 11 lakh cusecs. During the last two years, about 8 lakh cusecs of floodwater was witnessed during the rainy season in 2019 and 2020. The water from the Prakasam Barrage downstream continued for months creating severe problems to the families. In the year 2019, the crest gates at Prakasam barrage were open for 80 days while in the year 2020 the gates were open for 120 days releasing lakhs of cusecs of floodwater downstream into the Bay of Bengal.

The locals of various colonies of Krishna riverbank said that they were facing inundation difficulties for the past 20 years and earlier TD government failed to construct the retaining wall. They said that they used to leave houses every time during floods, hoping to get rid of inundation problems due to floods with the construction of a first of its kind retaining wall.

Krishna district collector A. Md Imtiaz said that about 575 families will be relocated to Jakkampudi or New Rajarajeswaripeta who are residing on the bank of the river who are affected during the floods every year.

GOVT NOT GIVING IMPORTANCE TO HOUSE SESSION: TD

DC CORRESPONDENT
VIJAYAWADA, MARCH 27

Telugu Desam MLA Dola Bala Veeranjanya Swamy on Saturday accused Jagan Mohan Reddy Government of not giving due importance to assembly sessions while taking major decisions affecting all sections of people in the state. He maintained that this is because Jagan regime has taken the ordinance route, as it is unable to provide answers to people by holding assembly sessions.

The TD MLA said that the neighbouring Telangana and even parliament are holding their budget sessions.

Veeranjanya Swamy said the AP Chief Minister had made it a habit of bypassing the assembly. He stated that Jagan Mohan Reddy will go down in history as an "Ordinance CM".

In this regard, the MLA recalled how major decisions including the three capitals and replacement of State Election Commissioner had been affected through ordinances. "It is very unfortunate that even the budget, which plays a key role in giving a new direction to development and welfare, is now being approved through an ordinance," he pointed out.

DC CORRESPONDENT

Agriculture minister Kurasala Kannababu said ministers have appealed to Chief Minister Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddy to take up delta modernisation works to ensure free flow of water in canals toward reducing losses to life and property during calamities.

Participating as chief guest of Krishi Vignana Kendra's 25th year celebration at Undi in West Godavari District on Saturday, Kannababu said ministers have also sought from CM ₹15,000 crore multipurpose facility centres having warehouses and cold storage plants for agriculture produce and fish products, apart from processing units in every Lok Sabha constituency of the state.

The minister disclosed that the Chief Minister has positively responded for these two requests. He pointed out that modernisation of deltas will create additional water facilities for cultivation. And, scientists at multipurpose facility centres will give timely suggestions to cultivators for increasing their yields.

Kannababu said Jagan Mohan Reddy is working hard for farmers, including extending them a power subsidy of ₹750 crore, which no other government in the country is doing. CM's Rythu Bharosa Kendras (RBKs) with required skilled staff, including 11,000 agricultural scientists, are always available to farmers for resolving their difficulties.

The minister pointed out that fertilisers and pesticides are also available in RBKs, which can be applied as per suggestions of scientists, so that farmers can enhance their yields and income.

Housing minister Cherukuvada Sriranganatha Raju said record yield is expected during this Rabi season. He exhorted scientists to take steps for enhancing paddy yield per acre to 90 bags.

FARMERS TAKING UP FISH FARMING IN KADAPA DIST.

DC CORRESPONDENT
KADAPA, MARCH 26

Farmers of Kadapa district are not only focusing on agriculture but fish farming as well. Already, many farmers in Porumamilla, Jammalamadugu and Chapadu mandals are operating fish ponds. Many more have applied for constructing new ponds.

Officially, there are 130 acres of fish ponds in the Chapadu mandal, 80 acres in Porumamilla and 15 acres in Jammalamadugu mandal. It is agriculture lands that have been converted into fish ponds. Aqua farmers had suffered severe losses due to lack of transport and sales during lockdown because of Coronavirus.

But the situation has changed now with the state government recently amending aquaculture regulations and simplifying them for providing assistance to farmers. It has also taken steps to promote fish farming by appointing special committees at the state, district and mandal levels. This has led to many farmers turning to fish farming.

Karnati Narayana Reddy, a farmer from Kuchupapa village of Chapadu mandal, said he has converted 30 acres into fish ponds and has applied for ponds over another 18 acres. He said they buy fish seedlings from farmers of East Godavari or Nellore districts.

Each seedling weighs about 8-10 grams. These grow quickly and are ready for harvest in 4-5 months. Narayana Reddy said he has spent about ₹1 crore on digging ponds and other works and has already sold fish worth ₹80 lakh. Another crop of ₹50 lakh is ready for harvest. He said there is no problem with water as his ponds are near the Kundu River.

Fisheries farm technician Vasudeva Raju said a well-watered and well-maintained fish farm is always profitable. Selection of feed for fish is very important. He said health of fish should be carefully monitored and necessary medicines given in case of any suspicion.

Quality of water too should be monitored regularly. The effort is worth it as fish farming provides more profits than all other food grain crops.

Kadapa District Fisheries Department deputy director Avva Nagaraju told Deccan Chronicle that as water supply in the district is now good and almost all reservoirs are full, many farmers are shifting to fish farming, with government too providing incentives.

He said collector Chevuri Harikiran wants to give a further fillip to fish farming in Kadapa district. New permits for fish farms will be issued in a few days and even seedlings will be available from fish hatcheries in Kadapa. Those interested may visit the office of Fisheries Department, Nagaraju added.

He suggested that Jagannanna Gorumudda benefits should be delivered individually to the students in order to avoid mass gatherings. He directed district collectors and joint collectors to ensure thermal screening in every educational institution in coordination with officials from the medical and health department.

Suresh said that half-day schools would start on April 1. He said the biometric system has been updated for the half-day schools and directed the officials to use biometric attendance without fail.

State director of school education Vadrevu China Veerabhadra, Intermediate Board Education Commissioner V. Ramakrishna, higher education special chief secretary Satish Chandra and other officials participated in the review meeting.

All staff given work from home option

The matter was immediately brought to the notice of district collector Chevuru Harikiran. A Covid test was conducted on 60 employees on the collector's instructions. As of Saturday morning, another 18 employees were declared positive and sent to home isolation. All staff members were immediately given the work from home option while the entire office was sanitized. But this development has spread fears in the collector's office complex. An officer told Deccan Chronicle that not all employees had shown Covid symptoms but were isolated as a precautionary measure. Public negligence is presumed to be the main reason for the increase in Covid cases, which for the last two months was in single digits but was now increasing.

Two days ago three family members of a forest officer in Siddavatam mandal were confirmed Covid positive.

It was on March 31 last year that 15 cases were reported for the first time in Kadapa district. At one stage it had risen to almost 1,000 cases per day. However, since December there has been a steady decline and it fell sharply in January and February. There has been a resurgence from the third week of this month. A total of 40 cases were reported in Kadapa district on Saturday. In addition, a total of 55,861 positive cases were registered in the district. So far 55,187 people have fully recovered from the disease and 84 are in home isolation.

Harikiran and SP Karur Karunapati Nagendra Kumar Anburajan have decided to impose heavy fines on those who come out without a mask. Shops allowing customers without masks would be strictly dealt with.

Anburajan told reporters that police teams would conduct inspections everywhere and warned that fines would be levied if anyone appeared on the roads without a mask.

Consumers ridicule COTPA amendments

Nearly 82 per cent of users considered the proposed ban of designated smoking areas in airports, hotels and restaurants is tantamount to harassment, mental anguish and cruelty.

The Public Response Against Helplessness and

Action for Redressal (Prahar) on Saturday released the findings of the first-ever survey among actual users of tobacco products on the likely impact of the proposed COTPA Amendment Bill 2020. The respondents have outrightly opposed the proposal to ban sale of loose cigarettes.

Explaining the need for the study, Abhay Raj Mishra, president and convener of Prahar, said "It is an established principle that before framing any law which affects a class of stakeholders, the views of the affected party must be sought."

However, in the course of framing and seeking a public response to the provisions of COTPA Amendment Bill 2020 no such attempt was made to take the opinion of the actual users of tobacco products. Unlike other groups, consumers are not cohesively represented by any associations or bodies. Therefore, Prahar took it upon itself to collect the views and table it for the consideration of policy-makers."

Auto carrying explosives seized

DC CORRESPONDENT
KURNOOL, MARCH 27

Auto-rickshaws in Kurnool are highly explosive as they are used to carry highly explosive material. The interception of an auto carrying 800 detonators and 782 gelatin sticks (unlicensed) on Saturday sent shock waves raising questions about the preventive measures taken by the traffic police. The city has about 25,000 auto-rickshaws plying between Kurnool and its suburbs.

K Nagalapuram Police seized 800 detonators and 782 gelatin sticks (blasting material) from a person on Saturday while the accused was transporting by auto under Nagalapuram police station limits. The accused was carrying the contraband under the guise of blankets.

He owned the auto driven by the accused and there was no other person at the time of interception, it is learnt.

The accused was identified as Boya Rama Nayudu, a native of Ulindakonda in Kallur mandal. Kurnool DSP K.V. Ramesh said that the police led by Nagalapuram SI M. Kesav, who got information about illicit transportation of blast material were raided checked vehicles and found an auto that was carrying the said material without any licenses person in connection with this and seized the auto and the explosive material. A case was registered and the inquiry is underwat.

The police arrested one

When asked about the motive of the accused in carrying explosives alone in an autorickshaw, a police official said that farmers in villages hire the services of blasters to blast rocks and stones in their fields. Whether such an activity was regulated or not is not known, he said.

The DSP (Traffic) Mahaboob Basha said a drive is taken to check autorickshaws to check for the goods carried in them. Passenger vehicles are prohibited from carrying goods, and cases will be booked, he said.

KMC REMOVES TRASH BINS IN ALL WARDS

DC CORRESPONDENT
KURNOOL, MARCH 27

Kurnool municipal corporation took a unique initiative and dispensed dumper bins from all the vantage points, leaving no place for residents to throw trash.

Now, the residents have to use trash bins at their places which will be collected by the sanitation staff. Anyone contravening these provisions will be fined, a KMC official said.

KMC Mayor Ramayya said this measure had been taken to make the city garbage-free. With the new system, each ward member is responsible for ensuring garbage is not thrown at street corners and ensures cleanliness. He said the city would be made plastic-free and aspires to be an ideal Judicial capital of Andhra Pradesh.

The KMC ward members pitched an umbrella at the place where dumper bins used to be in their wards and were seen coaxing residents to dispose of their trash responsibly and counselled residents about the need to dispose of garbage in bins.

The KMC Mayor Ramayya took out this maiden initiative and appealed to the public to comply with the new rules.

However, residents feel uncomfortable as dumper bins used to be of convenience to them. Manjula, a resident of Venkataraman colony, said this procedure is inconvenient as they now have to wait for the garbage collectors, whose timings are uncertain.

Deputy Commissioner Ms Padmavati said that KMC collects 180 tonnes of garbage out of which 140 tonnes is wet and 40 tonnes is dry garbage daily. The garbage is treated at the Gargeyaputnam dump, she said.

Off the beaten track

Defend our freedoms, just connect the ‘dots’

Around the world in March, millions died from Coronavirus, cancer, and the many maladies we don't seem able to prevent or cure. And with our new irrational rejection of vaccines, including the ones that have conclusively, over centuries, helped eradicate disease, millions more will perish. But, after rampaging diseases, our single biggest problem is male violence, surely, whether it manifests itself in full-scale warfare, environmental degradation, or the brutalisation of the vulnerable, including women?

This month (and every other in my long career as a woman), I have despaired over the widespread murder of women. As I lament the loss of London's Sarah Everard, the six Asian women gunned down in Atlanta, and the rising tide of femicide of the past weeks in India, I am gripped by a terrible déjà vu. We've all been here before; reassured by our leaders that they'll take firm steps to protect women, we watch history repeating as they blithely fail. And like a cracked record I find myself railing against our mistreatment again; fitfully hopeful that speaking up might make a tiny difference. Didn't the Suffragettes' dissent eventually garner votes for British women? Didn't the recent Indian Farmers' Protest, especially the tenacity of its women, focus the world's attention on their predicament? Yet, over time, so little has changed for the better in man's treatment of man, and indeed, Woman, that my faith in our voices being heard has been shaken.

What would our sagacious leaders suggest we do instead? Talk less, say Japanese Olympics chiefs Mori and Sasaki. If women stopped airing their concerns, according to them, 'women's problems' would simply evaporate (so negligible are they). And isn't it a fact, such men point out, the moment women stop 'nagging', nobody hears about these issues again? Proving they never actually existed. All it requires then to solve 'women's problems', is for women, or nags, hags, and "Olympics", as Sasaki would have it, to keep quiet.

Be seen less, spouts the Uttarakhand CM, in charge of an Indian state of around 5 million women. Bare female knees, sayeth he, will be the undoing of society. Leading to the collapse of morals, sense, and civilisation, ultimately. Haven't we heard that (and similar) from the patriarchy, times without number? Nor can it be wrong, surely, if so many men agree? Women revealing anything at all, including their capabilities, are immoral, dangerous and destructive. The only women worth respecting are the ones you can't see. Or hear. Because quiet, retiring women, whether locked in their homes, muzzled, or DEAD, can't upset our perfectly inequitable planet.

Walk less too, we're told often. Women shouldn't go anywhere on their own, except in a straight line between work and home. Not that every place of work is acceptable! If you work in a spa for example, you might get bumped off by frustrated men, and the fat-cat-owned media will slaver over it, but have no sympathy to spare. And even less action will be taken. Taking the path that suits you — literally and figuratively as well — is not for women, you expect Dark Age patriarchs to proclaim. But no, this is the message from our modern judiciary and police: guardians of our wellbeing. In Britain this month, not only was it revealed that a policeman had murdered homeward-bound-after-sundown Sarah Everard, they then stymied multiple vigils to mourn her in the name of Lockdown. Like all stalwarts of the status quo, I suspect they'd suggest a woman's place is at home if they could. The necessary Lockdown mantra of 'stay home, stay safe' has never been just a pandemic-protection slogan when it comes to women, but imposed rules to live by through history. It kept us so safe sometimes, we never felt pain again: as the reality of 137 women killed around the world DAILY by men intimately known to them attests.

But if staying home, staying covered, staying silent, hasn't spelt safety for us, what will? Unlike the prized collection of exotic birds we're sometimes perceived to be, safety is only a small part of our needs. We must continue to educate. Teaching women early to be free, to aspire to every wonderful opportunity this world has to offer, and young men to respect these same freedoms and aspirations in women, is key. But as the mother of both a son and a daughter, I've discovered that this is harder to achieve than I'd imagined. We encourage, support, and role-model the right behaviours for both, yet find that the occasional stereotype, or mild sexist trope, still wends its way home. Through conversations with our children, their friends and teachers, it's become obvious that this is the influence of playground chatter, media and the Internet; as much of which we vet as possible, like all concerned parents. Yet, the trickle that filters into their lives is proof of the pervasive nature of prejudice, and how impossible that is to eliminate entirely. And is shielding from reality the right approach anyway? So, we discuss inequities with them instead, explain why they're wrong, where they come from, and how best to address them. Thus teaching them both NOT to 'know their place'.

That isn't a complete solution either, is it? Just like protecting ourselves isn't enough, nor protesting. What's required, of course, is a major overhaul: systemic change that runs deep and wide through society, and belongs to us all. The answer then, though neither original nor revolutionary, lies in connecting the dots — literally! Because "dots", funnily enough, is what middle-class India calls its daughters. Our political leaders and corporations don't want upheavals, and activist organisations sometimes grow too big to make a deep-rooted difference. But if we can join, in small but ever-widening circles, our young women (and many peaceable men) — the dots — to work towards change, whilst providing support and the benefit of our experience, there's hope yet. The possibility even of societal transformation. Then, no matter what our sex, sexuality, class, caste, colour, age or creed, we might finally walk, in darkness and in light, bare-kneed or bare anything-at-all, any which way we please.

India's Gilded Age

Manish Tewari

State of the Union

One thing that stood out during the recently concluded budget session of Parliament was how ministers of the Union kept parroting ad nauseam "It is not the business of government to do business". It left me wondering as to whether they really even understood the full import or implications of their utterances.

I could not help wondering every time the above proposition was articulated that the next inevitable and portentous consequence would be that it no longer would remain the business of government to be in government. By the time the grand garage sale of India's public assets would be over economic and, by extension, political power would have become so intensely concentrated in the hands of chaebols and oligarchs that they would be the real overlords of India giving even the American gilded age a run for its money.

No government would in future either be able to challenge them meaningfully or deliver public goods and services for the teeming millions who make up the bulk of our populace and require them most.

The Gilded Age, 1870-1899, was a period in American history when a few people through gross chicanery and outright sophistry became vulgarly wealthy in a very short span of time.

The eminence grise of the gilded age were the quick-rich moguls namely John D. Rockefeller, Andrew W. Mellon, Andrew Carnegie, Henry Flagler, Henry H. Rogers, J.P. Morgan, Cornelius Vanderbilt and John Jacob Astor. However in the popular imagination of American people they are still the robber barons who had become affluent through illegitimate means.

The later iterations of the gilded age have been periods in the history of nations when public assets created out of public money have been privatised on a mega scale.

The person who really put wheels under this large-scale privatisation of public assets in the penultimate decade of the twentieth century was Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

On becoming the Premier in May 1979, she sold off steelmakers, carmakers, aerospace firms, oil and gas giants, airlines and the telecoms' monopoly in the face of robust protests by well meaning and sober public intellectuals, and even the directly impacted workers of these former state-owned enterprises. Even public housing was pawned of the tenants who lived in it.

However, in the ultimate analysis, this privatisation turned out to be more of a societal shock, rather than therapy for an ailing economy. It was a violent act of economic engineering enforced by resorting to the coercive powers of the state. Its social implications were colossal. Short sighted un-egalitarian, and antithetical to the notion of public investment, it did not lay the underpinnings for either sustainable or pervasive prosperity. It was a chimera.

In fact, a 2005 study by economists Blanden, Gregg and Machin found that: "The rapid increase in UK income inequality that began in 1979 is sometimes justified by the argument that society is now more meritocratic so that it is easier for the poor to become richer if they are willing and able to work hard. In fact, our research shows that the opposite has occurred — there has actually been a fall in the degree of social mobility over recent decades. Children born to poor families are now less likely to break free of their background and fulfil their potential than they were in the past. Thus the only enduring legacy of the Thatcher years was that while the rich became richer the poor became poorer."

Post the collapse of the Soviet Union in the mid and late 1990s, Russian President Boris Yeltsin launched a ruthless privatisation programme of the Soviet created and commanded economic model incubated public sector. In what became the hugest disposal ever of state-owned property, history enterprises were sold at a rate of over eight hundred per month. By time the process ended 77 per cent of Russia's large and mid-size organizations and 82 per cent of the small ones were transferred to private owners. These 15,000 privatised assets accounted for two-thirds of industrial output and over 60 per cent of the industrial work force of Russia, the official successor state of the Soviet Union.

The auctions conducted to privatise these assets were completely rigged. The most lucrative enterprises did not even come up at these public sales. These were either simply farmed out to favoured businesspersons or were disposed of through opaque processes.

Productive establishments and other precious assets were simply pawned off at a fraction of their worth. A tiny clique of oligarchs and carpetbaggers simply took over much of Russia's economy and became filthy rich. They snapped up valuable state assets at rock bottom prices. More often than not oligarchs just stripped their acquisitions of all value simply leaving a shell of a company behind.

They acquired natural resources and then re-sold them at hefty premiums and parked the money abroad. Another favoured modus operandi was the acquisition of majority shareholding in valuable state properties. Having achieved that goal the minority shareholders that more often than not was the Russian State or provincial governments became putty in their hands. The bottomline was not wealth generation but wealth extraction.

A country that lifted 271 million people out of poverty between 2004 and 2014 is today staring at the spectre of a growing income and wealth inequality

As a consequence, billions of dollars of public money found its way into private hands as unearned income. The result was that there was hyper-inflation, the bottom dropped out of the Russian currency and ordinary people were forced into the most extreme form of destitution. It was a plight far worse than even the years of Communism.

Similarly in India today there are capitalists who are benefiting from a very similar modus operandi. They are "growing fatter" by the hour cornering public assets at basement prices aided and abetted actively by a collusive state. Airports, airlines, public sector units, power utilities are all being put on the chopping block under a fallacious construct that it is not the business of government to be in business. The consequences of such a ill-conceived strategy in the name of privatisation and disinvestment would haunt India for decades to come.

A country that lifted 271 million people out of poverty between 2004 and 2014 is today staring at the spectre of a growing income and wealth inequality. Even before the pandemic hit India in all its ferocity India's richest one per cent held more than four-times the wealth held by 953 million people who make up for the bottom 70 per cent of the country's population. If there is a time to revisit the fundamental construct it is now. It must be reemphasised with all the force at our command that it is indeed the business of government to be in business or there would be hell to pay in the years ahead.

ARMY MALE BIAS

The apex court directive to reconsider giving permanent commission to Short Service Commission women officers in the Army is highly admirable and underlines gender equality (Army's male bias: Slap on the wrist for now from SC, DC, March 27). By all means, the prejudice against women in forces must be stamped out. Women have proved they are second to none. It calls for a great deal of learning from the armies of Australia, Israel and the USA which have benefited from women's services. Further, it helps to remove the shortage of officers.

The ruling party is making allegations against TD leadership on the reported land scam in Amravati. Two FIRs have so far been filed in this regard. Twenty months in power, the YSRC is still groping in the dark. If an outsider 'hears' about this hullabaloo, he or she might think that the ruling party has finally unearthed solid evidence. PAKISTAN'S OFFER

India must react positively to Pakistan's olive branch to normalise our acrimony, irrespective of Pakistan's compulsions to make the move. If it's really a change of attitude, this should show on the ground by ushering in certain CBMs like demolishing terror launch pads and the like. Of course, there's lull at the LoC since Pakistan Army Chief's dovish offer to bury the past and make way forward. Our Army chief keeps his fingers crossed in anticipation of some more tangibles to come through.

Acknowledge potential of Pope-Sistani historic tryst

Pardon my Lucknow chauvinism, but the benighted city once had intimate links with the centre of Shia Islam, Najaf, in Iraq, which Pope Francis visited early March in what must be counted among the pontiff's most epoch making journeys. His 50 minutes conversation with Shia Islam's highest spiritual authority, Grand Ayatollah Ali Sistani, in his modest, rented house in a Najaf alley, must have enriched both.

"A humble and wise man", the Pope said of Sistani. "It felt good, for my soul, this meeting." This was no hyperbole; this seemed to reflect the tenor of the conversation, where only interpreters were present.

Yes, that Lucknow link: in 1850, the Begums of Oudh (Awadh) established what came to be known as a bequest, a trust, of ₹6 million to be spent on the maintenance of the shrines at Najaf and Karbala. Stipends for Indian scholars were also established. After the first war of Independence in 1857, the British administered the bequest, which gave them leverage over the Shia clerical authority from Najaf to Tehran. By default or deliberation, the system continued until 1979 when Saddam Hussein consolidated power in Baghdad. Saddam's Ba'ath atheism would have been uncomfortable with Indian indulgence of Shia sectarianism. What would Pope Francis have made of the fact that "Allah o Akbar" was inscribed on the Iraqi flag only after Operation Desert Storm in 1992?

Another Lucknow link would have come up tangentially: Awadh antecedents of Ayatollah Khomeini, leader of the Iranian revolution. Khomeini's ancestors migrated from Kuntur, a qasbah not far from Lucknow, known for a line of Shia theologians.

The Pope would have been briefed on the vast difference between Sistani and Ayatollah Khomeini (Khomeini before him) on the role of the clergy in the affairs of the state. The issue had divided the Shia clergy down the middle. How can the Iranian revolution of 1979 be deemed to be an "Islamic revolution" without the second coming of the messiah who, in Shia theology, happens to be the 12th Imam who had "disappeared" in Samarra, Iraq. He would appear only on the Day of Judgement.

The clergy in Qom were at sixes and sevens. I was in Qom to meet Ayatollah Montazeri when this was a common topic of discussion. A revolution had come their way, pending Roz e Mahshar, Judgement Day. What label was to be pasted on the great happening? That is when the theory of Vilayat e Faqih or Vali Faqih, the Intermediate Imam, was enunciated. Pending the return of the Imam, an Intermediate system, under the Supreme leader, would govern, guided by the teachings of Islam.

Sistani and a section of the clergy even in Qom see their role differently — as spiritual guides only. Was Francis comfortable with Sistani on this score? The different circumstance of Tehran and Baghdad must have been part of the briefs prepared for Francis.

In 1979, the Shah was eased out and the Ayatollahs ushered into Tehran. Ayatollah Khomeini, who had been moved from Najaf to the suburb of Neauphle-le-Chateau on the outskirts of Paris, was that very year flown to Tehran. Why this complicated trapeze act?

In the mid-1970s, the US had Communist parties coming out of their ears in Angola, Mozambique, Ethiopia, Nicaragua, Chile, why, even in Afghanistan. Post Shah fervour in Iran would cause Persian Communist Parties, Tudeh and Mujahedin e Khalq, to surface from the underground. The Ayatollahs, the mosques filled with their cadres, would pounce on the Communists. That the Ayatollahs would be no friends of the Americans became apparent only when the siege of the US embassy in Tehran lasted 444 days, an embarrassment on a scale the Americans had never experienced.

1979 also happened to be the year in which Saddam Hussein consolidated himself in Baghdad. Neither the Ayatollahs nor Saddam were buddies of the US, but each could easily be tempted to seek US help against the other. This suited US officials like Martin Indyk, former Ambassador to Israel, who devised dual-containment — supply arms to both and make them fight. The monkey-between-two-cats policy lasted eight long years.

More to the point for the Pope would have been the after-effects of the post 9/11 wars thrust on Iraq, Syria, Libya, leading to the trek of millions looking for havens in Europe which, in this instance, was fighting xenophobia at home, a creeping aversion to the outsider, resulting in avowedly illiberal politics. True they are religious leaders whose mission was not to discuss politics, but rampaging identity politics are nothing but putrefied religious ideas.

Islamic terror, for instance, is cited as a cause for increasing Islamophobia by politicians like, say, Marine Le Pen in France. Such examples are strewn across Europe and other parts of the world. What was at fault was a one-sided media focus on Islamic terror, fuelling a Muslim sense of helplessness and anger, there being no outlet for his point of view.

Some of this Sistani must have addressed during their conversation. I hope he reminded the Pope that the first act of occupying forces was to vandalise the National Museum, the great storehouse of artefacts, books, scrolls representing one of the world's great river civilisations.

It might be something of a hyperbole that his meeting with Sistani, laden with peaceful intent, reversed the Jihad or crusade launched in 1095 by one of his earlier predecessors Pope Urban II. The eleventh century Pope was rattled by the Muslim occupation of the holy lands. Also, within a hundred years of Prophet Muhammad's death, the Muslims had established their rule over Spain and beyond. The pace of Muslim spread was unnerving. Pope Francis' expedition, on the other hand, provides a soothing touch to a people battered and bruised, having been on the declining side of the civilisational giant wheel for too long, a far cry from the days of Pope Urban.

PATOLE: CONG WILL RECONSIDER SUPPORT TO MVA

BHAGWAN PARAB | DC
MUMBAI, MARCH 27

The row over the Shiv Sena leader Sanjay Raut's statement that NCP chief Sharad Pawar should lead the United Progressive Alliance (UPA) has not died down as the Maharashtra Congress has once again issued a threat to Shiv Sena saying the Maha Vikas Aghadi (MVA) government in the state is in power because of its support.

State Congress chief Nana Patole said that if Raut does not stop criticising Congress leadership, they will have to think over their decision of supporting the government.

"The MVA government exists due to Congress' support. A time has come to make them understand that they (Sena and NCP) are not the government. If Sanjay Raut continues to speak against the Congress, we will have to take our own decision," said Mr Patole in Bhiwandi on Saturday. Mr Raut had said in New Delhi that the UPA is 'paralysed' now and hence a non-Congress leader like Mr Pawar should lead it at the national level. His statement has invoked an angry reaction from the Congress leaders, which asked whether the Sena leader was a spokesperson of Mr Pawar.

Reiterating his support the NCP chief, Mr Raut said that "some people in Delhi" are preparing to form UPA-II, which is why the existing UPA needs to be strengthened if the opposition is to fight the BJP.

The Congress leader also hit out at Mr Raut saying he should stop advocating Mr Pawar for the post of UPA head. Those who are not a part of the UPA should not talk about its leadership, he said.

SONOWAL CONFIDENT OF GETTING 100 SEATS

GUWAHATI, MARCH 27

Over 74 per cent voters exercised their franchise on Saturday in the first phase of the Assam Assembly polls which were held amid heavy security in 47 constituencies of the state.

Except some Electronic Voting Machine (EVM) glitches no major incidents reported so far from any of the poll bound Assembly segments.

After casting his vote at Sahitya Sabha Bhavan in Dibrugarh, Assam chief minister Sarbananda Sonowal, who is contesting from Majuli, told reporters that that BJP would get over 100 seats.

Besides Assam chief minister Sarbananda Sonowal, the first of three phases of the Assembly election has also decided the fate of other prominent faces in the fray like state Assembly speaker Hitendra Nath Goswami (Jorhat), state Congress chief Ripun Bora (Gohpur), Asom Gana Parishad chief Atul Bora (Bokakhat), Congress Legislature Party leader Debabrata Saikia (Nazira), jailed Rajior Dal president Akhil Gogoi (Sivasagar) and Assam Jatiya Parishad president Lurinjyoti Gogoi (Duliajan).

This election has been pitched as a battle between the BJP's '10 promises' and the Congress' '5 guarantees'.

Sporadic violence marks first phase in West Bengal

Didi's purported audio clip seeking help from BJP leader to win surfaces

RAJIB CHOWDHURI | DC
KOLKATA, MARCH 27

Intermittent violence marked the first of the eight-phase Assembly Elections in West Bengal on Saturday with 30 constituencies spread across five key districts in the state's western belt, which went to the polls, witnessing a record number in the voters' turnout of almost 80 per cent.

Till the reports last came in the evening, the voters' turnout stood at 79.79 per cent out of over 73 lakh voters who got the option to decide the fate of 191 candidates.

Though the polling recorded a high figure, attacks and counter attacks between the ruling Trinamul Congress and BJP became evident throughout the day despite the presence of a massive central paramilitary forces deployment.

At Kanthi South in East Midnapore, Soumendu Adhikari, who is the brother of Nandigram BJP candidate Shuvendu Adhikari, had a narrow escape when his car was vandalized by a group of armed TMC workers in the broad daylight near a polling booth at Sabajput.

His driver Ramgovind Singh, however, suffered injuries.

Soumendu, who recently joined the saffron party, claimed that he reached the booth after getting complaints of rigging by the TMC there. At Salboni in West Midnapore, Sangjukta Morcha candidate of the CPI(M) Sushanta Ghosh, who is also a former minister, was heckled by a group of angry TMC activists. He was rescued by the police from the spot. Four persons were held by the police later.

At Bhagabanpur seat in East Midnapore, officer-in-charge of Patashpur police station Deepak Kumar Chakraborty and a central force jawan were injured when they led the troops to stop a clash between the TMC and BJP cadres who hurled bombs on each other. The injured duo was admitted to hospital.

At Dantan in West Midnapore, the central paramilitary forces lathi charged after the TMC and BJP workers clashed with each other over tearing party flags and leaving four injured.

In another incident, the villagers of Dadra at Keshiary in the district blocked the road by putting wood logs. They accused the central forces of beating them after they protested against their alleged order to cast votes in favour of a political party.

Later, a TMC delegation led by MP Sudip Bandopadhyay lodged a complaint with Chief Electoral Officer, West Bengal Ariz Aftab claiming that the central forces jawans tried to influence the voters in 15 constituencies.

In Purulia, TMC candidate Sujoy Banerjee was seen allegedly threatening to "shoot" some BJP workers in presence of the police near a polling booth during a heated altercation. The Election Commission has sought a report on the incident.

Meanwhile, two-time West Bengal chief minister and Trinamul Congress supreme Mamata Banerjee, who is contesting from Nandigram, landed in a tight spot on Saturday after an audio clip in which she is allegedly heard asking a local BJP leader, who was earlier in her party, to work for her victory in the hot seat against her nemesis Shuvendu Adhikari surfaced.

While Ms Banerjee remained silent, her party strongly supported her over the audio clip of two minutes and 52 seconds which appears to be a phone conversation she recently had with Proloy Pal, BJP district vice-president of East Midnapore.

In the evening, TMC spokesperson Kunal Ghosh, in a bid to counter the BJP's attack on the CM over her plea, claimed having an audio tape which allegedly has the conversation of two saffron party leaders — Mukul Roy and Sisir Bajoria — about creating pressure on the Election Commission in tweaking the rules for fielding party agents at polling booths which require them to be voters in the particular constituencies first.

Mr Roy, however, called it "fake".

Biden invites Modi, world leaders

Washington, Mar 27: US President Joe Biden has invited 40 world leaders, including Prime Minister Narendra Modi, to the Leaders' Summit on Climate to underscore the urgency and the economic benefits of stronger climate action, the White House said.

The two-day summit will be held virtually on April 22-23 and will be telecasted live for public viewing.

It will be a key milestone on the road to the United Nations Climate Change Conference (COP26) this November in Glasgow, the White House said on Friday.

Besides Modi, other leaders invited for the summit include Chinese President

Xi Jinping, Russian President Vladimir Putin, Japanese Prime Minister Yoshihide Suga, Brazilian President Jair Bolsonaro, Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau, Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, Saudi Arabia King Salman bin Abdulaziz Al Saud and UK Prime Minister Boris Johnson.

The White House said a key objective of both the Leaders' Summit and the COP26 will be to catalyse efforts to keep limiting warming 1.5 degree Celsius goal within reach. The summit will also highlight examples of how enhanced climate ambition will create good paying jobs.

India records over 62,000 Covid cases

DC CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI, MARCH 27

Cricketer Sachin Tendulkar tested positive for Covid-19 as India recorded 62,258 fresh cases and 291 deaths in one day.

The latest figures are again the highest single day spike in the last five months.

While the Delhi government said lockdown was not the solution to contain the spread of virus, the Maharashtra government announced night curfew in the whole of state and banned all gatherings effective from Saturday.

The state has also closed malls, restaurants and gardens from 8 pm to 7 am though home delivery of food in the night has been exempted.

With several festivals lined up in the coming days, the government is keeping fingers crossed.

Union Health Secretary Mr Rajesh Bhushan on Saturday chaired a high level meet with 12 States and UTs reporting a surge in cases during which they were advised to focus on stringent containment and public health measures in 46 high burden districts.

These states are Maharashtra, Gujarat, Haryana, Tamil Nadu, Chhattisgarh, Madhya Pradesh, West Bengal, Delhi, Jammu & Kashmir, Karnataka, Punjab and Bihar. They were told that increased testing and vaccination, effective tracing, prompt isolation, efficient clinical treatment, and adherence to Covid appropriate behaviour pivot of five-fold containment strategy.

The states were informed that the country has seen the sharpest rise in weekly Covid-19 cases and fatalities since May 2020 (7.7 and 5.1%, respectively). The focus was on 46 districts that have contributed 71% of the cases and 69% of the deaths this month.

Of total 36 districts in Maharashtra, 25 are most affected that account for 59.8% of the cases reported in the country during the past one week.

During the meeting, a granular analysis of affected districts in these States and UTs along with some key statistics was presented. Almost 90% of the Covid-19 deaths continue to be in the category of those aged above 45 yrs.

Findings of studies also depicted that while 90% people are aware, only 44% actually wear face masks.

One infected person could spread Covid-19 to an average of 406 other individuals in a 30 day window without restrictions which could be reduced to just 15 by decreasing physical exposure to 50% and to a further 2.5 (average) by decreasing physical exposure to 75%.

Meanwhile, Adar Poonawalla, CEO of the Serum Institute of India, on Saturday tweeted saying trials have begun in India for Covovax - the Covid-19 vaccine being developed in partnership with American vaccine developer Novavax.

MODI: INDIA, B'DESH WANT STABILITY, LOVE AND PEACE

Dhaka, Mar 27: India and Bangladesh want stability, love and peace instead of instability, terror and unrest in the world, Prime Minister Narendra Modi said on Saturday as he underlined that both countries want to see the world progressing through their own development.

Modi was speaking to the Matua community members after offering prayers at a temple in Gopalganj's Orakandi - the birthplace of Hindu mystic figure and community's spiritual guru Harichand Thakur.

"Both India and Bangladesh want to see the world progressing through their own development. Both the countries want to see stability, love, and peace instead of instability, terror, and unrest in the world," Modi said. Modi said he was waiting for this opportunity for many years and during his visit to Bangladesh in 2015, he had expressed desire to visit Orakandi, which has come true now.

"I am feeling the same emotions as felt by the Matua community members in India after coming to Orakandi," Modi said. Orakandi is the abode of hundreds of Hindu Matua community, a large number of whom are residents of West Bengal. Modi announced that India will upgrade one girls' middle school and set up a primary school in Orakandi, from where Harichand Thakur disseminated his pious message. He said during the pandemic, India and Bangladesh proved their capabilities.

"Both nations are facing this pandemic strongly. India is working by considering that it its duty that the 'Made in India' vaccine reaches the citizens of Bangladesh," he added.

LANKA RELEASES
ALL 54 INDIAN
FISHERMEN HELD

Colombo: Sri Lanka has released all 54 Indian fishermen arrested this week for allegedly poaching in the country's territorial waters, Indian officials confirmed on Saturday.

The Indian official sources here said that 40 of them were released on Friday and the remaining 14 have been released this morning.

The 54 Indian fishermen were arrested by the Sri Lankan Navy on March 24 at two different locations in the north and northeastern seas. The Navy also seized their five trawlers. Upon their arrest, the Indian High Commission here said that they were providing consular assistance to the arrested fishermen. It said the fishermen's issue needed to be treated in a humanitarian manner.

The Indian High Commission in a statement said the bilateral mechanisms were being utilised to see an expeditious settlement of the issue.

FOX NEWS SUED
OVER FALSE POLL
CLAIMS AGAIN

New York: Vote machine maker Dominion is seeking over $1 billion in a lawsuit lodged on Friday against Fox News, alleging the network broadcast false claims that its machines were used to rig the 2020 election that Donald Trump lost.

This is the second defamation complaint against the conservative news channel, which was already sued in February for similar reasons by another voting machine company, Smartmatic.

Dominion alleges that Fox began endorsing Trump's false claims the election was rigged in favor of Joe Biden because the channel was losing its audience, which includes many of the ex-president's supporters.

"So Fox set out to lure viewers back — including president Trump himself — by intentionally and falsely blaming Dominion for president Trump's loss by rigging the election," the suit argues.

IRAN, CHINA
ALLIANCE

Tehran: Iran and China signed a 25-year "strategic cooperation pact" on Saturday in the latest expansion of Beijing's flagship trillion-dollar Belt and Road Initiative as the US rivals build closer ties.

Negotiations for the deal, launched five years ago, sparked controversy in Iran last year and virtually no details of its contents have been released.

China is Iran's leading trade partner and was one of the biggest buyers of Iranian oil before then US president Donald Trump reimposed sweeping unilateral sanctions in 2018 after abandoning a multilateral nuclear agreement with Tehran.

The China-Iran pact, which Tehran said included "political, strategic and economic" components, was signed by the two countries' foreign ministers, Wang Yi and Mohammad Javad Zarif, reported.

"We believe this document can be very effective in deepening Iran-China relations, Iran's foreign ministry spokesman Saeed Khatibzadeh said.

Myanmar junta kills over 90
protesters on 'day of shame'

Lethal crackdown across country on Armed Forces Day

Yangon, March 27: Security forces killed more than 90 people, including some children, across Myanmar on Saturday in one of the bloodiest days of protests since a military coup last month, news reports and witnesses said.

The lethal crackdown, which took place on Armed Forces Day, drew strong renewed criticism from Western countries. British Ambassador Dan Chugg said the security forces had "disgraced themselves" and the U.S. envoy called the violence horrifying.

Senior General Min Aung Hlaing, the junta leader, said during a parade to mark Armed Forces Day that the military would protect the people and strive for democracy.

State television had said on Friday that protesters risked being shot "in the head and back". Despite this, demonstrators came out on the streets of Yangon, Mandalay and other towns, as they have done almost daily since the Feb. 1 coup that ousted elected leader Aung San Suu Kyi.

The Myanmar Now news portal said 91 people were killed across the country by security forces.

At least 29 people, including a 13-year-old girl, were killed in Mandalay, and at least 24 people were killed in Yangon, Myanmar Now said. A boy as young as five was earlier reported among the dead in Mandalay but there were conflicting reports later that he may have survived. Another 13-year-old was among the dead in the central Sagaing region.

"Today is a day of shame for the armed forces," Dr. Sasa, a spokesman for CRPH, an anti-junta group set up by deposed lawmakers, told an online forum.

US, UK embassies blast junta

Yangon March 27: The US embassy in Myanmar condemned the junta for "murdering" civilians on Saturday as the military celebrates its Armed Forces Day.

"Security forces are murdering unarmed civilians, including children, the very people they swore to protect," said a statement released on the embassy's Facebook page. "These are not the actions of a professional military or police force."

● THE EUROPEAN Union and the United Kingdom said on Saturday that actions by Myanmar's junta are "indefensible" after scores of anti-coup protesters were reportedly killed as the country marked Armed Forces Day.

The European Union and the United Kingdom said on Saturday that actions by Myanmar's junta are "indefensible" after scores of anti-coup protesters were reportedly killed as the country marked Armed Forces Day.

In a statement released on Facebook, the EU embassy in Myanmar said, "This 76th Myanmar Armed Forces Day will forever stay engraved as a day of terror and dishonor. The killing of unarmed civilians, including children, are indefensible acts."

"The European Union stands more than ever by the courageous people of Myanmar and calls for an immediate and unconditional end of all forms of violence and the restoration of democracy," the statement also read.

The British ambassador wrote in a statement released on Twitter that "the security forces have disgraced themselves by shooting unarmed civilians." "Dozens of innocent people have reportedly been killed, including children," he added.

Biden offers help to reopen Suez Canal

Cairo, March 27: Dredging and tugging aimed at freeing a mega vessel stuck in the Suez Canal failed on Friday to end a blockage that has lifted shipping rates for fuel tankers and scrambled global supply chains for everything from grains to baby clothes.

U.S. President Joe Biden said his administration was looking at what it could do to help, after the 400-metre (430-yard) long Ever Given ran aground in the vital trade waterway on Tuesday due to strong wind.

"We have equipment and capacity that most countries don't have. And we are seeing what help we can be," Biden told reporters in Delaware.

A U.S. official, speaking on the condition of anonymity, said the Navy was prepared to send a team of dredging experts to the canal, but was awaiting approval from local authorities.

The latest effort to dislodge the ship with tug boats was suspended late on Friday, and attempts resumed on Saturday, three sources at the canal said. The Suez Canal Authority (SCA) could not immediately be reached for comment.

Shipping rates for oil product tankers nearly doubled after the ship became stranded, and efforts to free the giant vessel may take weeks and be complicated by unstable weather, threatening costly delays for companies already dealing with Covid-19 restrictions.

All its 25 crew members, who have remained on board, were safe, in good health and spirits, Bernhard Schulte Shipmanagement (BSM), the Ever Given's technical manager said.

A Dutch rescue team had confirmed two additional tugs would arrive on March 28 to help dislodge the ship, BSM said.

China wine duty:
Aus to tap WTO

Sydney, March 27: Australia's trade minister threatened to take China to the World Trade Organisation on Saturday over its "unjustifiable" decision to hike duties on Australian wine imports for up to five years.

In the latest salvo between Beijing and Canberra, China's commerce ministry announced levies ranging from 116.2 percent to 218.4 percent would be slapped on Australian wine imports from Sunday.

Trade Minister Dan Tehan said the tariffs meant it was "basically impossible" for Australian wine to be competitive in the Chinese market.

"This decision which has been taken by the Chinese government is extremely disappointing and completely unjustifiable," Tehan told reporters in Melbourne.

"We will be looking at next steps, and those next steps will include looking at taking this matter to the World Trade Organisation." On Friday, the Chinese commerce ministry said it was imposing the duties after an investigation found "dumping and subsidies on imported wines" from Australia impacted the Chinese market.

Wine exports to China hit a record A$1.3 billion ($900 million) in 2019, according to Australian government data, making it the biggest market by value for the product.

Biden attacks new Georgia's vote law

Washington, March 27: Georgia's sweeping new voting restrictions came under attack on Friday, with civil rights groups challenging them in court and President Joe Biden saying the U.S. Justice Department was examining what he called an "atrocious" law.

Among other limits, the Republican-backed law enacted on Thursday imposes stricter identification requirements, limits drop boxes, gives lawmakers the power to take over local elections and shortens the early voting period for all runoff elections. It also makes it a misdemeanor for people to offer food and water to voters here in line, in a state where people sometimes wait for hours in the heat to vote.

The legislation has alarmed Democrats, who just months ago celebrated historic wins in the presidential election and two Senate campaigns in Georgia that helped deliver the White House and U.S. Senate control to their party in Washington.

Biden, the first Democratic presidential candidate in three decades to win Georgia, on Friday accused Republicans there and in other states of mounting a broad assault on voting rights.

It's an atrocity," Biden told reporters, shortly after comparing the restrictions for a second straight day to racist "Jim Crow" laws, which were put in place in Southern states in the decades after the 1861-65 U.S. Civil War to legalise racial segregation and disenfranchise person of colour citizens. Biden said it was unclear what, if anything, the White House could do to address the law but added that the Justice Department was "taking a look."

Apophis to not pose threat to earth: Nasa

Washington, March 27: Nasa has given Earth the all clear on the chances of an asteroid called Apophis hitting our planet any time in the next century, having worried space scientists for over 15 years.

The 340-metre (1,100ft) chunk of space rock hit the headlines in 2004 after its discovery led to some worrying forecasts about its orbit. It became a "poster child for hazardous asteroids", according to one Nasa expert.

It was supposed to come frighteningly close in 2029 and again in 2036. Nasa ruled out any chance of a strike during those two close approaches a while ago, but a potential 2068 collision still loomed.

But new telescope observations mean that collision has been ruled out and Apophis has been officially taken off the US space agency's asteroid "risk list".

Davide Farnocchia of Nasa's center for near-Earth object studies, said in a statement: "A 2068 impact is not in the realm of possibility any more, and our calculations don't show any impact risk for at least the next 100 years."

Scientists were able to refine Apophis' orbit around the sun thanks to radar observations earlier this month, when the asteroid passed within 17m km (10.6m miles).

A well-researched but uncritical portrait of Bollywood's 'first lady'

Partha Chatterjee

Kishwar Desai's biography of Devika Rani, often called the First Lady of Indian cinema, is interestingly titled, The Longest Kiss. The reimagined illustration on the cover replicating a publicity still from her first film, Karma (1933), directed by J.L. Freer Hunt, with Himanshu Rai, her husband, and of her kissing him most freely sets the tone for the book. It is a thoroughly researched, conscientiously written biography. It is clear from the start that Desai is battling most vigorously for Devika Rani. Himanshu Rai in Hindi films, like the prince from Gouripore, Assam, P.C. Barua did in Bengali productions, attempted to wed social issues with his own understanding of film craft that could sometime lead to art. Both were from the Indian elite and got interested in cinema when abroad. It was in England that he met Devika. She was educated there because her father Manmathanath Chaudhuri, a Bengali aristocrat by birth and a doctor by profession, had the vision to have his three children Nikhil, Devika and Mahim educated abroad, meaning England. Devika's mother came from the Tagore clan, highly educated Bengali landowners who reached their zenith through Rabindranath, great litterateur, artist and social thinker and founder of Santiniketan, a seemingly Utopian rural university. Desai's meticulous research into Devika Rani's life from her birth to death is commendable. Her reading of DR's personality on the whole is accurate despite the scarcely concealed admiration of a gushing fan but the uncritical appreciation of the films made at Bombay Talkies owned by Himanshu Rai, produced by him and starring his wife in the lead until 1943, today seems lazy, though in their time almost every film produced by Bombay Talkies was critically hailed and financially successful. The greatest box-office success attained by a Bombay Talkie film was Kismet directed by Gyan Mukherjee which held the record for being the biggest hit in the annals of Hindi cinema until Ramesh Sippy's Sholay came along in the mid-1970s.

The book deals quite openly with her fraught relationship with her husband. Himanshu Rai in the eyes of the world was Svengali to her Trilby, albeit a spoilt and beautiful one. It was believed, that like in the legend, Trilby loses her soul -stirring singing voice when Svengali goes away, Devika too would lose all her creative talent following Himanshu's untimely death.

Devika, however, proved her critics wrong. She took over Bombay Talkies as owner-producer and made a grand success of it. The company did a number of films that were financially sound and critically appreciated. Among them were productions like Kangan, Jhoola (dir: Gyan Mukherjee), her protégé, Amiya Chakravarty's Basant, featuring a winning performance from Baby Mumtaz who would grow into Hindi cinema's most sought-after star-actress, the beautiful Madhubala.

She, a western educated liberal woman, was often forced for reasons of prevailing sense of propriety and business constraints as well her stake in Bombay Talkies which was as great as that of her husband, to behave disingenuously. But her ingrained honesty invariably made her respond to the call of her own morality and the longings of her heart eventually. Himanshu Rai, it appears to the lay reader, was terrified of his much younger wife's beauty, sophisticated sexual allure and innate talent. Despite making her work relentlessly in running Bombay Talkies, act in its major productions and take an active interest in almost all aspects of production, he became deeply distressed at all the public attention his wife was getting. He would often beat and berate her. The net result was his constant need for what passed for psychiatric care in those days. Devika Rani, made of sterner stuff, not only survived his sudden death, but came out a much stronger person.

Devika found emotional, and dare one suggest, sexual, satisfaction when she met Svetoslav Roerich, the very talented painter son of the Russian master Nicholas Roerich, who painted the Himalayas with sublime grace. Devika was threatened with dire consequences by the hypocritical male population, presumably mainly from Bombay. Somebody went to the extent of calling Svetoslav, the great love of her life and her soon-to-be husband a 'Russian Roast'!

She survived all the calamity to find happiness for a long time with Svetoslav; for a while in Kullu, Himachal Pradesh, and then for a long time, perhaps much too long a time, in Bangalore. She received the Padma Shri and the Dada Saheb Phalke Award for her contribution to Indian cinema and Svetoslav the Padma Bhushan. In old age, having lost the strength in their legs and become immobile, they were held to ransom by the very people who were supposedly taking care of them. It was a sad, futile ending to a rich, eventful life.

CHRONICLED, THE INCREDIBLE JOURNEY OF INDIA'S SHY, WRY JAZZ KING

review

Louiz Banks occupies a unique place as an Indian musician — equally celebrated as an innovative jazz artiste, playback musician for Hindi movies and composer. His journey, beginning in Calcutta, is a fascinating one. Ashis Ghatak's book is a labour of love, tracing his life meticulously with reverence and thoroughness; his ability to accurately portray the unique musical ambience of Darjeeling, Calcutta and Bombay during the periods he covers is delightful.

Born in 1941 in war-torn Calcutta, Dambar Bahadur Budaprihi was re-named "Louiz" to fit into the anglicised world of nightclubs for which his father trained him. His early years in Darjeeling where he was trained in Western classical music appear to have left a strong impression on the shy introverted boy Louiz was; the book traces his journey from Darjeeling to Kathmandu until the greener pastures of Calcutta beckoned. Playing at the Golden Peacock, in the newly opened Hotel Hindustan International, Louiz came to be an integral part of the cosmopolitan nightlife of Calcutta. The uncertainty of the profession resulted in Louiz moving to Bombay to try his hand in the thriving world of film music.

Holding his own musically amongst Indian classical musicians too, Louiz Banks was an integral part of the world of playback film music. He worked mainly for R.D. Burman (Banks terms him the "Mozart of India"), Laxmikant Pyarelal, then Bappi Lahiri, till around the early 1990s. He also composed music for films, and later for theatre productions. In the same period, his love for jazz remained; he formed a jazz fusion band entitled Jazz Yatra Sestet. Quoting Louiz, "the new band gave me international exposure". This group was later renamed Sangam. Though the band only lasted a few years, they toured Europe with about 60 concerts; a later, 1990s avatar was the band Silk (named after Shankar, Sivamani, Sridhar, India, Louiz and Karl Peters). In the 2000s,

A SYMPHONY OF LOVE — LOUIZ BANKS

Banks joined the band Cross Currents; his has an admirable ability to remain relevant musically amongst a younger generation.

But perhaps the biggest success financially for Louiz Banks was in the world of advertisements, including the immortal "Mile sur mera tumhara". Banks' unique ability in this arena is verbalised thus: "Unlike many Indian classical maestros Louiz could project his music... he could mould his music into a variety of forms. He understood where the music was coming from, what he needed to change and what after effects it was going to have in terms of musical communication." He was also prolific; sometimes making five jingles a day, yet never being repetitive. On this, Louiz says "I learnt the ability to erase everything that I did and get on to the next project."

The book is written in an anecdotal breezy style; music aficionados will enjoy the trivia on RD Burman's love for chillies and chess, and Banks jamming with the great Dizzy Gillespie in Washington. Banks is portrayed as a simple, self-effacing man with a wry sense of humour, with his feet firmly on the ground. His struggle is awe inspiring "I had to carry the piano and climb up and down three storeys in the morning and evening." Acclaimed by such diverse musicians as Ustad Zakir Hussain (incidentally, he has written a heartfelt foreword to the book) Shankar Mahadevan, and Braz Gonsalves, Louiz Banks straddled and ruled several different worlds with ease.

The book's ponderous attention to detail, and unusual use of words detract from the overall pleasure one derives from it. Referring to Zakir Hussain as Pandit not Ustad; mistakenly calling the band Shakti's violinist L. Srinivas instead of L. Shankar should have been avoided. But overall; these are tiny irritants; the book is a must read for anyone interested in India's non classical musical history from about the 1960s to date; the book is not confined to Louiz Banks' journey.

Cleverly imagined and deftly told, Sylvia wears pain lightly

review

Maithreyi Karnoor is unafraid of tragedy. From the opening pages of her debut novel Sylvia: Distant Avuncular Ends, the reader is confronted with accidents, deaths, estrangement and amputations. Yet, Karnoor's style is light. Life is tough, she seems to be saying underneath a parade of plotlines, but don't try to make sense of it all; that would only produce a fantastical, cyclical, run-on story.

Sylvia is Karnoor's illustration of this philosophy. Divided into two parts, the novel introduces several characters, all uniquely damaged, trying to make their way through the world. Together, they take on the shape of a strange, multi-headed beast.

Part I is a novella about a man who moves to Goa after having grown up in Tanzania and the UK. Ethnically Goan, he has returned to his ancestral soil as a foreigner. It is only when he finds a baobab tree in a village in south Goa does he feel comfortable enough to buy a house nearby. Incidentally, he becomes known in the village as "Bhaubaab," a fellow Goan brother "bhau" and an elder, "baab". (Baobab and bhaubaab; this is just one example of Karnoor's experiments with wordplay throughout the book.)

Bhaubaab and his neighbour Lakshmi become friends. Bhaubaab also ends up hosting his niece, Sylvia, in his new home. She is the daughter of his long-estranged brother, and a total stranger to him. Karnoor's narration shifts easily between Bhaubaab, Lakshmi and Sylvia, and each one is honest about their troubles. The resulting novella is equal parts haunting and hopeful, funny and fatal, nostalgic and forward-looking. The final scene is wrenching, but sweet, too. In this way, the sixty-odd pages fly by.

Part II is double the length of Part I, but sliced into shorter chapters. Tragedy persists like a sunrise: routine, but vivid enough to make you stop and stare. A mother commits suicide after having her baby; a hapless girl is possessed by a mutton-devouring spirit; another is assaulted by a truck driver; another writes apologetic poetry about her abusive husband. One of these is Sylvia, but Karnoor does not make it obvious. Unlike Part I, Sylvia's life advances haphazardly in this section, always amidst a crowd of characters who are tangentially connected to her. In fact, readers meet Bhaubaab only fleetingly in Part II, and Lakshmi never again. The result is a mosaic, colourful but cluttered.

While the shorter chapters delve into a range of character psyches, it's not clear why Part II has been arranged this way. Reading these stories feels like viewing a series of unrelated Polaroid photos: just as one visual starts to come into focus, the next photograph is presented, still not fully developed. The brief references to Sylvia make the reader feel like we should be keeping track of all the connections that Karnoor is setting up, which becomes distracting. Will they help us understand the novel better? Is there a twist lying in wait, like the snake in Bhaubaab's shed? Karnoor doesn't provide any answers directly, but all of her characters allude to a life that is unfortunate and unknown. In the words of one character, trying to describe his wife's state of mind "is just a way of putting labels on things that cannot be known — as paying obeisance to the end of human knowledge: defining from the outside the dark, mysterious spaces of human minds that cannot be breached" (161).

But Sylvia is entrenched in a physical world, and not just a psychic one. The Goan settler subculture she describes is real and authentic; her WhatsApp group scenes are witty; and her urban-turned-farmer characters are appropriately fly-and-sweat-riddled. These vignettes almost compensate for Sylvia lurking in the shadows of the second half of the book. Almost, because Karnoor has the talent to have retained her onstage to narrate this fantastical, cyclical, run-on story.

The beauty of the ampersand & other keyboard symbols

review

This is such a great idea: a book with one short essay per punctuation mark or typographical symbol. Of course, our commas, ampersands and exclamation marks all come from somewhere; all were invented at some point or another and their stories are ever-changing. Computer coders, for example, have recently moved previously unsung but elegant marks such as the hashtag and the 'at' sign back to centre stage.

Claire Cock-Starkey is a confident and likeable host and makes a witty crack about her own surname in her essay on the hyphen. She somehow elevates what could have been a nerdy primer into something grander, and at various moments the book becomes meditative, poetic, philosophical and funny, as well as scholarly.

There is much to enjoy. The strangely named and beautifully shaped ampersand, we're told, evolved from the Latin 'et'. It is strictly called a 'glyph', and Cock-Starkey reveals that in the 18th century it was honoured with the 27th place in the alphabet. As for its weird name, it derives from the phrase 'and per se and', used by poor 18th-century children when reciting the alphabet, per se meaning 'standing on its own'. It became an official word in 1837.

Many punctuation marks were invented by the ancient Greeks, evolved by the mediaevals and fixed by the early printers. The colon, for example, which means 'limb', was invented by Aristophanes of Byzantium — not the playwright, but a librarian. It originally looked like a full stop and was intended to mark a breathing space between sections of text for the purposes of reading out loud. The great seventh-century linguist Isidore of Seville then decided on a three dot system for different lengths of pause: low dot for short pause, middle dot for medium pause, high dot for long pause. A variety of competing ideas were used by different orders of monks in the Middle Ages and Cock-Starkey says it was Caxton who ended the chaos by coming up with the slash, colon and full stop.

The semi-colon is a funny fellow. It was invented by a Venetian printer called Aldus Manutius in 1494 for editions of Dante and Erasmus. He adapted it from a bit of musical notation called the punctus versus, and it was Ben Jonson who really made sure it stuck by including it in his 1640 style guide, The English Grammar. In the 18th and 19th centuries writers went mad for it and in 1837 two rival French legal experts fought a duel over its use: one favoured the semicolon to end a certain passage, the other a colon. The semicolon supporter was wounded in the arm by the apologist for the colon. Today I still find it an impressive piece of punctuation and young people would be well advised to use it in emails in order to impress their bosses.

The author has made great efforts to bring things up to date and has unearthed fascinating stories about the guy at Twitter who brought back the hashtag, and the inner workings of the committees which set emojis. However, she occasionally falls into the trap of writing about contemporary fads in order to appear with-it, and thus dignifies a mere craze. For example, the use of multiple brackets as hugs or the triple bracket as a sign of anti-anti-Semitism are surely already dead.

Some sections are sad. Take, for example, the sorry tale of the interrobang. This mark is actually quite a good idea. It's a cross between an exclamation mark and a question mark and was invented in 1962 by an ad man called Martin K. Speckter. It was doing well and in 1968 even made it on to some Remington typewriters, a true sign of success. But in the 1970s it faded away, and though we're told it's still used in computer programming, it looks likely that the 'plethora of emojis at our fingertips', as the author puts it, will consign this potentially useful glyph to obscurity.

For a book about keyboard symbols, it's a real shame that the marks themselves are horribly reproduced in a washed-out grey colour. But it's a lovely read, full of fun and fascinating facts; a book to be kept by the bedside and consulted on a regular basis.

DECODING DECIDER

India, England look to end series on high in winner-takes-all game

Pune, March 27: Indian cricket team may like to revisit its 50-over template while picking up pieces from the Friday carnage with an aim to complete a hat-trick of series wins against England in the third and final ODI here on Sunday.

On batting belters that's been on offer at the Gahunje Stadium, England hit an astounding 20 sixes in a 337-run chase which became a cakewalk, thanks to impet bowling from spinners Kuldeep Yadav and Krunal Pandya.

Never before has captain Virat Kohli missed Ravindra Jadeja as much as he would have on Friday when Jonny Bairstow and Ben Stokes took the mickey out of India's left-arm wrist and orthodox spinners.

In the bowling department, Kuldeep scripted an unwanted record when he conceded 8 sixes, most by an Indian bowler. He leaked 84 runs in the second game after giving 64 runs in the first. And, so did Krunal Pandya, who gave 72 runs in six overs with an embarrassing average of 12 per over.

So, in all probability, the duo could be replaced by leg-spinner Yuzvendra Chahal and Washington Sundar, who can also chip in with the bat, if needed.

From team's perspective, it would be impossible to ignore Yuzvendra Chahal's inclusion in the playing XI even though the Haryana leg-spinners hasn't been in the best of forms.

Pandya senior would still make it to the team because of his batting skills but the apology of left-arm spin has certainly ensured that he won't be considered as a long term option.

In terms of batting, a total of 337 is certainly not bad by any standards but perhaps India can now look to have strategic shift in terms of innings building process.

The Men In Blue are the only team that always believes in accelerating in the last 15 overs, a template that was set by their illustrious former captain Mahendra Singh Dhoni.

It has worked on most occasions but of late, England with a world title has shown the world that attacking up front on batting tracks is the way forward. — PTI

Jonny to stick to his fearless shots

ARCHER TO UNDERGO RIGHT HAND SURGERY ON MONDAY

Pune, March 27: The reigning world champions would continue to stick to their aggressive and fearless brand of cricket, opening batsman Jonny Bairstow said after the tourists chased down 337 in just 43.3 overs to set up a series decider here on Sunday.

The opening batsman followed up 94 from 66 balls in the first match with 124 from 112 as England plundered 20 sixes to make the stiff chase a complete mismatch. "To be honest, I think it's just happening that way. There hasn't been a conversation saying we must hit more sixes," Bairstow said after Friday's series-levelling second ODI.

Bairstow smashed seven sixes, while Ben Stokes hit cleared the ropes 10 times before falling for 99. Opener Jason Roy (55) and debutant Liam Livingstone (27 not out) also added to India's misery as they conceded 20 sixes in total.

— the joint most by them in an ODI. They had conceded a similar 20 sixes against South Africa in 2015.

"If you look at where the game is going around the world, whether that be in T20, or 50-over cricket the team that hits the most boundaries generally wins the game. And if you're hitting boundaries that are going for six rather than four, then the numbers are going to stack up slightly more."

"There's 20 today — now, that's an extraordinary number in one game... If we can keep hitting boundaries, keep putting bowlers under pressure, they know if they miss their lengths, then that potentially could go for six."

The reigning world champions are however aware of their high-risk approach, having lost the series-opener by 66 runs despite Bairstow and Roy getting the team off to a similarly spectacular start. — PTI

Squash Challenger delayed after two Indians test +ve

DC CORRESPONDENT
CHENNAI, MARCH 27

The opening leg of the HCL SRFI Indian squash Tour has been postponed after two players tested positive for Covid-19. The event, the first international challenger tournament since the onset of the pandemic, was scheduled to start at the Indian Squash Academy here on Saturday afternoon.

The two Indian players who tested positive — Abhishek Pradhan and Abhishek Agarwal — have been withdrawn from the draw and the start of the tournament has been delayed until Monday. There will be another round of RT-PCR testing on Monday morning.

"If the next round of testing finds no positive Covid-19 tests, then the tournament will take place from March 29 to April 1, with both the second round and quarter-finals taking place on Tuesday, March 30," a statement from the organisers said.

All players are in a bio-bubble at a city hotel and they have been told not to step out of the room until they receive a negative test result. The tournament has participants from Egypt, Russia, France, Canada and the USA. If it starts, the tournament will now be held behind closed doors. The Professional Squash Association which is in close contact with the Squash Rackets Federation of India has given players an option to withdraw from the tournament and also reimburse the cost for the extended stay.

Tendulkar Covid +ve, in home quarantine

New Delhi, March 27: Legendary Sachin Tendulkar has tested positive for Covid-19 and is currently in home isolation.

The former India captain confirmed the news on his social media handle.

One of the biggest names to have tested positive for the virus in recent times, Tendulkar, however, informed that all his other family members have tested negative.

"I have been testing myself and taking all the recommended precautions to ensure Covid is kept at bay. However, I have tested positive today following mild symptoms," the 47-year-old wrote on his twitter handle.
