Mercury residue found in raw rice by NIN in Eluru

DC CORRESPONDENTS VIJAYAWADA/KAKINADA, DEC. 11

Residues of mercury in raw rice and herbicide in raw tomato was found by the National Institute of Nutrition (NIN) after analysing samples of food, for the mystery illness at Eluru in West Godavari. This was revealed during the review held by the Chief Minister Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddy virtually from his Camp Office here on Friday.

AIIMS and IICT ruled out virus and bacteria in the water collected from suspected sources of contamination. However, they did not rule out the presence of pesticide in the water as they got dissolved in the course of metabolism in the body. AIIMS noticed the presence of lead and nickel in the fresh consignment of blood samples of affected persons as it had earlier observed the same in the blood samples.

Meanwhile, animal husbandry authorities maintained that the blood samples of 10 buffaloes sent for analysis at Veterinary Biological Research Institute, Vijayawada did not have any heavy metals after analysis while five milk samples also did not have any concentration of heavy metals. Five grass samples collected from grazing lands were found to be phosphine negative.

Analysis of fresh water fish samples were sent to JNTU, Kakinada and APPCB, Visakhapatnam, and results are expected to be out by Saturday. Test results of soil samples collected by NEERI are expected to be out by Friday and CCMB will come up with its report on Wed-nednesday.

As several Central agencies were coming up with different findings in independent investigation and causing confusion about the illness, the CM reportedly asked them to coordinate with one another and arrive at a conclusion.

The Chief Minister directed the setting up a 21-member high power committee headed by Chief Secretary Nilam Sawhney to investigate the cause of unknown convulsions at Eluru.

It may be mentioned that the SEC has been writing a series of letters to the state government on multiple issues like release of funds, extension of support for conduct of gram panchayat polls, and referring to directions of both the AP High Court and also the Supreme Court.

Ease loans for weaker section, urges Jagan

DC CORRESPONDENT VIJAYAWADA, DEC. 11

Chief Minister Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddy sought bankers' cooperation for the implementation of government welfare schemes to empower weaker sections of society.

He was addressing the 213 State Level Bankers Committee meeting here on Friday. The Chief Minister expressed dissatisfaction over the disbursement of loans to leased farmers.

Welcoming the achievement of 7.6 per cent growth in the past three months Jagan Mohan Reddy rooted for doubling of farmers' income.

Expressing dissatisfaction over poor coverage of tenant farmers, he urged bankers to come forward and provide loans to tenant farmers as they have been given Crop Cultivated Right Cards (CCRC).

He said bankers should support MSMEs as they play a key role in the financial sector and the banks should assist in restructuring of loans for MSMEs. He stated that the Government has paid ₹1,100 crore subsidy amount pending to industries from 2014 and also fixed electricity charges during Covid were waived.

The Chief Minister said, "The Self-Help Groups have deposited ₹7,500 crore in their accounts for 2020-21. However, the interest paid by banks is only 3 per cent, but the same banks have been charging an interest of around 11 per cent and 13 per cent." He asked the bankers to consider the fact that the government itself has been paying interest on timely paid loans.

He told bankers to inspire and motivate women through their programmes.

The Chief Minister said the state government has been implementing Jagananna Thodu scheme through which ₹10,000 was provided as interest free loan to street vendors.

Farmers challenge agri laws in SC

Claim laws will lead to commercialisation, put them at corporate's mercy

SANJAY KAW | DC NEW DELHI, DEC. 11

As the deadlock between the Centre and agitating farmers drags on over the repeal of three farm laws, a farmers' union has challenged the new agriculture laws in the Supreme Court. The Bhartiya Kisan Union moved a petition in the apex court on Thursday claiming that the new laws will lead to commercialisation and throw farmers at the mercy of corporates. The petition also said that a "rail roko" agitation would begin soon.

While both sides are adamant on their position, Union agriculture minister Narendra Singh Tomar on Friday asked the farmers to stop their agitation in the "interest of the common people" and take the path of discussion. He said that the Central government has sent their proposal to the farmers' unions, adding that they have not yet responded.

The All India Kisan Sangharsh Coordination Committee, however, said that the government is "falsely claiming that the farmers' organisations have gone back on talks and should not have intensified their agitation at a time when talks are on." In a statement, the AIKSSC said the farmers' organisations are always ready for talks and have responded each time the government has called them. "It is the government which is adamant on not repealing the three Acts," they said.

After rejecting the Centre's draft proposal offering amendments to the three laws, the farmer leaders said on Thursday that they would soon announce a date for blocking railway tracks across the country. The protesting farmers have planned to intensify their agitation over the next few days by blocking highways leading to Delhi, gheraoing BJP leaders and offices and taking out another "Delhi Chalo" march on Monday. Farmers leaders have also been requesting more and more supporters to join the protests to increase pressure on the Centre for the withdrawal of the new laws. The Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) has already decided to join the protests. In a statement on Friday, the party said, "In solidarity with the call given by farmers, AAP would lay siege to district headquarters across Punjab on December 14 against the new agrarian laws introduced by the Modi government at the Centre."

Ahead of the roadblocks planned by the farmer unions to further intensify their agitation, authorities are keeping a close watch on villages along the Rajasthan and Haryana borders. There are reports that members of the Kisan Mazdoor Sangarsh Committee have begun their journey from Amritsar to join the protesters at Delhi borders. "About 700 tractor trolleys are moving towards Delhi's Kundli border," committee leader S.S. Pandher said.

Support for farmers' has been coming from different quarters. Many villagers along the highways and gurdwaras are serving langar (community kitchen) to the protesting farmers. An Amritsar-based eatery is providing meals at the Ghazipur border. A free medical camp has been set up at the Singhu border due to the prevailing coronavirus pandemic.

Farmers from various states have been camping at Delhi's Singhu, Tikri, Ghazipur and Chilla (Delhi-Noida) border points for over two weeks, demanding a repeal of the farm laws enacted in September. One of the key reasons behind the continuing surge in the number of protesters lies in the fact that sowing of wheat is over and farmers are free for about a month till the first irrigation of the crop is to begin.

After the initial silence, Bollywood is finally beginning to show its support for protesters.

Anantapur stares at Eluru like hazard

DC CORRESPONDENT ANANTAPUR, DEC. 11

'Ganga snanam- Tunga Panam' (a holy bath in river Ganges and drinking of Tunga water) is an indication of the reverence for Tungabhadra River water for drinking purposes.

However, as things stand, the flows from the western part of Anantapur pose a serious threat due to heavy water contamination, added to which is the impact of unauthorised water purifying plants. This is a pointer to a repeat of the situation in Eluru because of lapses by the civic authorities.

Lack of a sewage plant, sewage used by more than three lakh people for growing vegetables and green leaves on the outskirts are posing a threat to the people. Only 30 percent of the lower income group consumes water distributed by AMC (Anantapur Municipal Corporation) while the middle and higher class depend on water being sold by unauthorised plants. Shockingly, most of the bore wells are contaminated because of residues of sewage in the absence of underground drainage systems. The natural streams are converted into drainage canals and up to 80 percent of water bodies are polluted. Groundwater accounts for 90 percent of the drinking water requirements in rural parts and nearly 50 percent in urban areas due to excessive extraction.

"The authorities have to test all the overhead tanks in the district. A strict sanitation drive should be ordered by the government to improve water quality and hygiene", AP Science Vedika pointed out.

Drinking water for Anantapur is drawn from Tungabhadra high-level main canal, which starts from the reservoir in Bellary district and enters Anantapur district. After entering Anantapur district through the open canal, the water is filtered at Muddalapuram filter bed. The water is pumped to two distribution centers in Anantapur through a pipeline from Muddalapuram.

"There are no community toilets in slums. Sulabh complexes are in a terrible shape leading to serious health problems, there are safety concerns, especially for young girls and old women", Dr. Suresh, president of Science Vedika from Vidyuth Nagar in Anantapur, observed and added that water samples drawn from several water plants establish presence of toxic substances and heavy metals like lead and cadmium. Sources said the unauthorised water plants, with a court order from Tamil Nadu, were selling poor quality borewell water after filtering it. A can is being sold at ₹12 and civic authorities have failed to initiate any action despite the deplorable quality.

Virologists say diseases supplement each other

Dengue poses Covid challenge

DC CORRESPONDENT TIRUPATI, DEC. 11

Covid-19 cases are seeing a decline for the past few days and giving some respite to public as well as the over-burdened health authorities.

However, increasing dengue cases have been posing a new challenges.

The latest data from the National Vector Borne Disease Control Programme shows that AP has reported 527 dengue cases till September 30. The number looks very meagre when compared to the cases reported in the last few years, yet health authorities who are bogged down with the fight against the Covid-19 pandemic are having a tough time taking preventive measures.

According to the data, the state had reported 5,286 dengue cases last year, the highest ever in the past six years. In 2015, about 3,159 cases and two deaths related to dengue were reported in the state, followed by 3,417 cases and two deaths in 2016, 4,925 in 2017 and 4,011 in 2018. Till

September 30 this year, only 527 cases were reported in the state.

Though the data shows a massive decline in the number of dengue cases, the authorities and the people are still worried because the Covid-19 and the mosquito-borne disease have overlapping symptoms. Both Covid-19 and dengue have symptoms such as high fever, headache and body pain. Virologists warn that dengue in this season may aggravate the Covid situation as both viruses may supplement each other.

Health experts, however, say that there is no cause for worry if the disease is treated in the early stages. However, if the treatment gets delayed, the platelet count for an infected patient would come down, eventually causing immunity deficiency and also respiratory problems in some cases. To allay such fears, the authorities are conducting health campaigns and doing flu tests.

Pound falls on Boris' no-deal Brexit signal

London, Dec. 11: Sterling skidded lower on Friday and implied volatility surged as markets increasingly priced the risk of Britain breaking away from the European Union at the end of the month without a trade agreement.

Prime Minister Boris Johnson said on Friday that Britain was likely to complete its exit from the EU without a trade deal. Current arrangements will end on Dec. 31 when Britain's Brexit transition period concludes.

The British currency fell more than one per cent against the dollar to a low of $1.3135, its weakest since November 13, before recovering to $1.3230 after Germany's foreign minister said negotiations may continue beyond a Sunday deadline.

Friday's fall puts the pound on course for a 1.5 per cent drop this week, the worst performance since September.

It briefly hit a three-month low against the euro before recovering some of its losses and was last trading at 91.65 pence, down 0.3 per cent on the day.

In an address at the Global Dialogue Security Forum, he underlined the need for India to put greater focus on having strong bilateral, trilateral and multilateral arrangements with like-minded countries to maximise its strategic leverage in the region.

More than 50 rice mills to be closed in W. Godavari

In the absence of this machinery, the mills can't do 'custom milling of rice'

DC CORRESPONDENT KAKINADA, DEC. 11

More than 50 rice mills in West Godavari District are going to close due to lack of Sortex machinery which makes the rice 'thin'. In the absence of this machinery, the mills can't do 'custom milling of rice' for the government.

After the Centre lifted 'levy policy' five years back, the government purchases paddy and gives it to the rice millers for 'custom milling of rice' and pays the mills. However, the state government has decided to supply 'fine rice' to people through the Public Distribution System by imposing several specifications on the quality. There are nearly 340 rice mills in West Godavari district out of which 270 mills got the "sortex" machinery. However, the remaining mills do not have the capacity to purchase the machinery as it costs nearly ₹70 lakh to ₹80 lakh.

"We can't invest such huge amount to convert machinery into sortex. If the machinery is fixed, we need to appoint additional driver and staff. Besides, the power tariff will also be changed. The rice mills have work for two months in khariff season and two months for Rabi season. For the remaining period, we have to pay minimum power tariff to the AP Transco," said a rice miller from West Godavari District.

● If the rice miller goes for sortex machines, he has to fix 150 HP motor and the minimum power tariff goes to nearly ₹30,000.

He said that at present they are paying ₹10,000 to ₹12,000 per month for their 100 HP motor.

However, if the rice miller goes for sortex machines, he has to fix 150 HP motor and the minimum power tariff goes to nearly ₹30,000. He said that after thoroughly assessing the income and expenditure, some of the rice millers decided to shutdown. He said that they issued notices to labourers for not coming after one month. He said that if they allow the labourers to come by not issuing notices, the rice millers have to pay salaries even if there is no work for them in the mill.

The West Godavari Rice Millers Association

President S. Srirama Raju said that the state government fixed a policy for the benefit of the people and the rice millers have to follow it. He said that sortex machinery is a part of the mill and the rice millers can get 'second hand machines' from ₹12 lakh. He said that the rice millers also should update their technology to changing circumstances or be left out in growth and business. He said that nearly 270 rice millers got the machines and another 60 to 70 rice millers want to go for the machinery in coming six months.

TTD RESUMES DARSHAN FOR CHILDREN, AGED

DC CORRESPONDENT TIRUPATI, DEC. 11

TTD has decided to resume the Srivari darshan at Tirumala temple for devotees aged above 65 years and less than 10 years and pregnant women henceforth but within the framework of Covid-19 guidelines and all health safeguards prescribed by the health authorities.

It may be recalled that following the Covid-19 norms, TTD has dispensed with darshan for the above categories since March 20. However, since the temple body resumed darshan for devotees in June, it has been receiving a huge number of appeals from devotees to resume darshan for devotees under these categories.

The requests included to redeem long pending vows of tonsuring, ear piercing, annaprasana for infants and children, while shastipurthi, seventy, eighty-year celebrations for aged persons at the abode of Lord Venkateswara as they involve the sentiments, traditions and practices of devotees.

Similar appeals and requests were also aired by devotees during several dial-your-EO programmes.

Medical services suspended by private doctors in Kadapa

DC CORRESPONDENT KADAPA, DEC. 10

Kadapa district private doctors said that they would approach the court on the decision of the Central Council of Indian Medicine (CCIM). Medical services were suspended Friday across the district. He said it was outrageous for CCIM to allow Ayurvedic doctors to perform 58 types of surgeries. They staged a protest in front of Indian Medical Association (IMA) hall for a few hours with black badges. The doctors suspended all medical services until 6 pm, except for emergency and Covid-19 patients. IMA president Dr K. Nagendra Prasad speaking to DC said that medical services were suspended in protest of the decisions taken by the CCIM. He said that it was difficult for those with higher education to perform surgery and that it was not shameful for Ayurvedic doctors to issue such an ordinance for surgery. He questioned whether it was reasonable to issue such an ordinance now as a matter of urgency, as surgery is usually allowed after qualifying examinations. We are preparing for a legal battle on this matter. He said that this ordinance is said to endanger the lives of the people and hence this decision should be subverted.

TD opposes the hike in municipal taxes

DC CORRESPONDENT KADAPA, DEC. 10

Telugu Desam Kadapa Parliamentary Party President Mallela Lingareddy said that besides raising municipal taxes, raising taxes on vacant lands is also bad.

Raising the water tax from ₹100 to ₹300 will burden the people, he said. He spoke to reporters on Friday at the party office in Kadapa.

He said the YSRC government had sucked the blood of the people after showing the Navratnas for victory and winning.

After that, the TD leaders Mallela Lingareddy, V.S. Ameer Babu and Hariprasad went and stood by the victims during the road widening to Rims in the 15th ward near Kadapa Collectorate, where shops were being built and the houses of people who had been living there for a few years were being demolished. They said if middle class people have been building houses and living there for years, it would be awful to demolish their houses without even paying the minimum compensation. They said it was unfair to remove these houses so that a YSRC camp office could be built on this road. They demanded immediate compensation for the houses and then proceeded with the demolition.

Suspended judge arrested for forgery

DC CORRESPONDENT TIRUPATI, DEC. 11

Suspended Chittoor-based junior civil judge S. Ramakrishna was on Friday arrested by the Madanapalle sub-division police in connection with a forgery and cheating case filed against him by a bank, police said.

Madanapalle DSP Ravi Manoharachari said that on December 6, Canara Bank manager Kiran Kumar had lodged a complaint with the Two Town police against Ramakrishna for misusing bank cheques that belonged to his deceased aunt Sucharitha.

"In his complaint, the bank manager stated that they have learnt about the issuance of cheques in the name of the deceased recently and enquired into the matter. In their inquiry, they found that the suspended judge Ramakrishna had misused his aunt's signed cheques and gave them to five of his debtors," the DSP said.

"Based on the complaint lodged by the bank manager, Two Town police have started an investigation into the matter and collected forensic reports and death certificate of Sucharitha, who died at the age of 65—on June 6, 2019—before arresting Ramakrishna. He was taken into custody on Friday night and further investigation is on," the DSP added.

It may be recalled that Ramakrishna had earlier filed a petition in the AP High Court along with a call record of his alleged telephonic conversation with Justice Eswaraiah. He stated in his petition that Justice Eswaraiah made derogatory and abusive comments

KMC fails to check building plan violations

DC CORRESPONDENT KURNOOL, DEC. 11

Illegal constructions abound in Kurnool city as the municipal corporation failed to take steps in granting building permissions. Scores of commercial complexes in the central business district have no parking places. Cellars are being used to run businesses. The planning wing of Kurnool Municipal Corporation (KMC), with hardly any staff, has made mockery of town planning and became a bane to orderly development of city infrastructure.

Footpaths occupied by shops have been let out to hawkers as a step-down subsidiary.

Despite road widening near General Hospital two years back, it has been of no use to ease traffic. In Venkat Ramana colony, footpaths are occupied by mobile tiffin centres. The stretch from Congress office to old traffic signals, shops have come up on footpaths.

It is estimated that more than one-third of the capacity of the main roads in the city is depleted due to indiscriminate parking.

Business areas such as Abdullakhan estate, Gayatri estate, RMK plaza, Bhupal complex, Central plaza, Allankar plaza, Nehru road, Park road, Pula bazaar, RTC bus station circle, Krishna Nagar main road, Nandyal road and State Bank circle and residential areas such as Old town, Ammarvarisala road and Minchin bazaar are the most-affected, say commuters. Most roads are left with width that allows one or two vehicles to pass, thanks to the parked vehicles. On ZP Road, Park road, Pula bazaar road, Nehru road and Krishna Nagar main road, for instance, traffic jams have always been common during peak hours., Prahalad, a commuter said.

Most commercial complexes do not provide parking space in the Kurnool city. The AP Building Rules mandate that complexes must provide parking space of 25 to 30 per cent of the total built-up area, but an overwhelming number of complexes violate this rule with impunity. Complexes are granted permissions by the municipal corporation even when they violate clear cut rules on the provision of parking spaces, open cellar and foot path roots. The relaxation in these rules is purportedly in the 'interests of the public.'

As prices of open sites and plots shot up, construction has become expensive, and complex owners are mushrooming in every locality irrespective of whether they are needed or not. The Municipal Corporation should conduct surveys and then call for applications to construct complexes based on need.

Town Planning Experts blame lack of enforcement of building bye-laws as the main cause for parking problems. Any building should have an area measuring more than 50 square meters for a parking lot. In public buildings, 10 per cent of the area should be reserved for parking. These norms are supposed to be enforced during the approval of building plans, which is evidently not happening. The basement area in many buildings house shopping complexes, and in residential areas, a portion of many houses are rented out as offices, leaving no space for parking.

Unscientific parking of vehicles on roads is eating into the already shrinking space of our roads.

MANOJ ANAND | DC GUWAHATI, DEC. 11

A group of 18-organisation led by Krishak Mukti Sangram Samiti (KMSS) here on Friday organised a massive protest at Sivasagar in Upper Assam and threatened to intensify agitation against the Citizenship Amendment Act (CAA) all over the state. All Assam Students’ Union (AASU) has also decided to revive the anti-CAA protests from Saturday by starting ‘Gono Hoonkar’, meaning public outcry, the agitation aims to press for repealing of the act. AASU general secretary Shankar Jyoti Baruah said, “The government has to repeal the CAA—an anti-Assam law that has already taken the lives of five Assamese citizens including innocent students during the agitation last year. The families of the five martyrs and AASU will continue to seek justice.” The students’ unions in Assam had launched a protest against the CAA after it was passed by Rajya Sabha, the Upper House of the Parliament.

UZBEKISTAN TO JOIN TRANSPORT CORRIDOR (INSTC)

SRIDHAR KUMARASWAMI | DC NEW DELHI, DEC. 11

In a major development, Uzbekistan has agreed “in-principle” to India’s request to join the International North-South Transport Corridor (INSTC), an important initiative taken by India, Russia and Iran to promote transportation cooperation and to enhance connectivity with central Asian countries, the Ministry of External Affairs (MEA) said on Friday. The INSTC is the “shortest multimodal transportation route linking the Indian Ocean and Persian Gulf via Iran to Russia and North Europe”. The “in-principle concurrence” of Uzbekistan was conveyed by the Central Asian country at a Virtual Summit between the two nations on Friday co-chaired by Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Uzbek President Shavkat Mirziyoyev. India had maintained that Uzbekistan’s participation in the project would add to the “overall improvement of connectivity in the larger Eurasian space”.

West Bengal refuses to let its chief secretary, DGP go to Delhi after MHA summons them

RAJNISH SHARMA & RAJIV CHOWDHURI | DC NEW DELHI/KOLKATA, DEC. 11

A day after Trinamul Congress workers’ violent attack on BJP president J.P. Nadda’s convoy at Diamond Harbour in West Bengal, the Union home ministry on Friday morning summoned top two bureaucrats of the Mamata Banerjee government to New Delhi on December 14. The MHA’s move, however, infuriated the Trinamul supremo and the state government has decided not to allow the two bureaucrats to go to Delhi, saying that the issue is being dealt with.

Nadda’s convoy had come under attack in the Lok Sabha constituency of Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee’s nephew, Abhishek Banerjee.

State chief secretary Alapan Bandyopadhyay and director general of police Virendra were directed to meet Union home secretary Ajay Bhalla at 12.15 pm on Monday to “discuss the law and order situation, including the incidents regarding certain Z-category protectees” in the poll-bound state.

On Friday afternoon, Bandyopadhyay wrote a letter to Bhalla, assuring him of the state government’s “elaborate arrangements for security coverage” which included a pilot and a bullet proof car for Nadda in his convoy and a large deployment of West Bengal Governor Jagdeep Dhankhar on Friday advised Trinamul Congress supremo and Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee “not to play with fire” and “apologise” for mocking BJP president J.P. Nadda as “Chaddha, Nadda, Fadda, Bhaddha” after her party workers’ alleged brazen attack on his convoy at Diamond Harbour, also her nephew Abhishek Banerjee’s Lok Sabha constituency, in South 24 Parganas a day before.

I once again make an appeal to her to withdraw her video with an apology.”

On Thursday afternoon Banerjee had told a rally, “They (BJP) have no other work. Sometimes the Union home minister comes here. Otherwise its Chaddha, Nadda, Fadda, Bhaddha who are here. And when they do not have an audience, they call their workers for doing Nautanki.”

Senior TMC MP Sougata Roy, however, rejected Dhankhar’s demand of an apology from the CM.

“The question of Banerjee’s apology does not arise. Why does the Governor feel so much anguish over a comment against the BJP chief? Is he a BJP representative?” he asked.

NK: MUST REVISIT 7TH SCHEDULE OF CONSTITUTION

New Delhi, Dec. 11: Finance Commission Chairman N.K. Singh on Friday underlined the need for revisiting the Seventh Schedule of the Constitution, which specifies allocation of powers between the Centre and states, in view of changes in technology and national priorities.

The Seventh Schedule has three lists — Union, state and concurrent. While the Centre can make laws on subjects specified in the Union list, the state governments have jurisdiction over items in the state list. Both the Centre and states can make laws for subjects in the concurrent list, but the Union’s law will prevail in case of conflict.

“We need to revisit Schedule VII of the Constitution in a more fundamental way,” Singh said while speaking at FICCI’s Annual Convention and 93rd AGM.

Singh said the Commission on Centre-state relations, headed by Justice M.M. Punchhi, had in 2010 recommended that there should be a consultation process between the Union and states via an Interstate Council for legislation on concurrent subjects. It was of the opinion that the Union should only transfer those subjects into the concurrent list which were central to achieving demonstrable national interest, he said. — PTI

Doctors sport black armbands, ribbons

DC CORRESPONDENT NEW DELHI, DEC. 11

Doctors at several hospitals in the national capital, including AIIMS, on Friday sported black ribbons in support of the protest call of the Indian Medical Association (IMA) against the Centre’s move allowing post graduate practitioners of Ayurveda to be trained in performing surgical procedures.

The IMA, which had given the nation-wide call on December 1, has demanding withdrawal of the notification. Doctors at AIIMS, and various Delhi government-run facilities, including LNJP Hospital, Rajiv Gandhi Super Speciality Hospital, DDU Hospital, GTB Hospital, BSA Hospital, Sanjay Gandhi Memorial Hospital, and civic-run Hindu Rao Hospital performed duties while wearing black armbands and ribbons.

The Resident Doctors Association of AIIMS-Delhi, in a statement said, “This step will not only encourage already rampant quackery, but also undermine the safety of the public. We request the government of India to retract this notification immediately. We stand with our medical fraternity in this regard and support the strike called by Indian Medical Association.”

President of FORDA, an apex bodies of various RDAs in the city, Shivaji Deb Barman said, “Doctors in Delhi observe black ribbon protest, but will not withdraw any services”.

The IMA has given a call for withdrawal of non-essential and non-Covid services between 6 am and 6 pm on Friday to protest against the notification.

“The notification by the Central Council of Indian Medicine (CCIM) to allow legal practice of surgeries by Ayurveda practitioners and the formation of four committees by NITI Aayog for integration of all systems of medicine will only lead to “mixopathy”, said the IMA.

BJP TO HOLD AWARENESS DRIVE ON FARM BILLS

DC CORRESPONDENT NEW DELHI, DEC. 11

With the Modi government unwilling to buckle under farmer unions pressure to repeal the recently passed three farm sector legislations, the ruling BJP has decided to take the three laws to the farmers across the country by organising ‘chaupals’ and press conferences.

Despite the deadlock between the Centre and the farmers unions, mainly from Punjab, continuing even after series of talks between representatives from both sides, the government is hopeful that to “find a solution to the issues raised by the agitating farmers.” But, with the farmer unions showing no sign of relenting, the BJP has decided to hold atleast 700 press conferences & 700 ‘chaupals’ till the district levels to “dispel the myth and propaganda” against the three laws.

The party has also activated its social media team and supporters to explain why the three laws were enacted, why the reforms were needed in the agri sector and how its political opponents are “trying to misled the farmers for their political interest.”

The party has also asked its social media teams and cadre to highlight how opposition parties, including the Congress, had proposed the same reforms regarding AP-MCs, contract farming and some other issues.

Expansion of ministry is Shivraj’s jurisdiction: Scindia

RABINDRA NATH CHOUDHURY | DC BHOPAL, DEC. 11

Senior BJP leader and Rajya Sabha member Jyotiraditya Scindia on Friday arrived in a 40-car convoy carrying his supporters to hold discussions with Chief Minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan and top leaders of the state party to accommodate his loyalists in the state ministry and party organisational posts.

Neither side disclosed what transpired at the meeting, but sources said that it’s been a month since bypoll results were announced in Madhya Pradesh that firmly placed the Shivraj Chouhan-led BJP government in power. And yet the MLAs who had quit the Congress along with Scindia are yet to be accommodated in Chouhan’s Cabinet.

There has been a delay in the reconstitution of state executive body and district units of the party owing to some “hitches” between Scindia and the state party leadership over accommodating the former’s loyalists in various organisational posts.

State party president V.D. Sharma and state organisational secretary Suhash Bhagat were also present at the meeting.

The Chief Minister is also under pressure to re-induct two former ministers, Govind Singh Rajput and Tulsi Silawat, following their victory in the November 3 Assembly by-elections. The two former ministers are considered staunch loyalists of Scindia.

Scindia refused to divulge what was discussed at the meeting but said, “Expansion of ministry is Chief Minister’s sole jurisdiction. The Chief Minister as well as the Central leadership of the party will take a call on it”.

Sources said the meeting discussed reconstitution of the state executive body and district units of the party apparently to accommodate Scindia’s loyalists who had resigned from Congress and joined BJP recently.

“The meeting discussed accommodation of particularly the former MLAs and ministers who lost the November 3 Assembly by-elections in the organisations and state-owned corporations. The former MLAs had resigned from Congress and joined BJP recently. Majority of them are followers of Scindia,” a senior BJP leader told this newspaper on the condition of anonymity.

No leniency for rape accused: HC

SHAHAB ANSARI | DC MUMBAI, DEC. 11

Observing that the quantum of sentence to be imposed upon the accused convicted for rape cannot be viewed with leniency unless there are special reasons, the Bombay High Court enhanced imprisonment of a convict to 10 years from 3 years and fine amount to ₹1,10,000 from ₹10,000. The court has ordered that ₹1 lakh from the fine amount be given to the victim. The incident had happened around 28-years-ago.

A division bench of Justice Sadhna Jadhav and Justice N.J. Jamdar observed that the trial court has shown undue leniency to the aunt of the accused and acquitted her and the state has failed in discharging its duty of prosecuting the case diligently.

According to the judges, “Passage of time will not be a justifiable reason to take a lenient view.”

The bench further said, “Courts cannot be oblivious of the impact of such a heinous offence. The object of deterrence in commission of such heinous offence cannot be lost sight of while sentencing.”

“Once the accused is convicted, the victim also deserves justice. Dishonour of a woman needs to be eliminated and judicial pronouncement, which imposes a disproportionately lenient sentence, needs to be set aside. The sexual harassment of a woman at a place, where she is working to earn her livelihood, is a disgrace meted out to her at the hands of the abuser, which needs to be deprecated and set right,” the court further said.

SHOOT TO KILL

Device will help user to detect, engage targets effectively

Special forces get a CornerShot boost

DC CORRESPONDENT HYDERABAD, DEC. 11

Counter-insurgency operations by special forces across the country are all set to get a major boost with the Centre procuring CornerShot devices to be used with Glock pistols.

The CornerShot, which provides its operator the ability to observe and engage targets from behind cover, will minimise casualties and gunshot wounds during counter-insurgency operations or hostile situations.

The ministry of home affairs (MHA) recently cleared the proposal and orders for the state-of-the-art weapons system is to be placed shortly.

“CornerShot will enable the user to detect and engage targets effectively, using traverse firing in day or night. It also allows its user to see and fire around corners. It will go a long way in preventing and minimising casualties as the user will not be exposed to return fire by the enemy,” a senior police official told Deccan Chronicle.

Though CornerShot systems are being used for training purposes, this will be the first time that personnel in the CRPF, BSF and other forces will be using them in their Glock pistols.

The CornerShot weapon system consists of two joined sections.

The front portion holds the pistol along with the camera and other features including tactical LED light, laser device besides other attachments. The rear section houses the operating features, monitor, controls and has a foldable butt.

Among other countries, Israel has been a leading manufacturer of CornerShot systems that are used by military special forces and counter-terrorism units across the world.

They mostly use it for their Beretta and Glock pistols.

“CornerShots that are being purchased will have a visible laser indicator with zeroing mechanism for range not less than 15 metres under clear starlight night conditions. The CornerShot lever allows the operator to quickly swivel the weapon system up to 60 degrees in either direction and turn it back to straight just as quickly,” another official involved in anti-insurgency operations explained.

The CornerShot system is already in use for the Indian Police Service (IPS) probationers at the prestigious Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel National Police Academy in Hyderabad.

Nadda stoning: All parties guilty of decorum breach

The attack on the motorcade of BJP president J.P. Nadda in the Diamond Harbour area near Kolkata on Thursday is disquieting. We know the culture of violence appears deeply embedded in West Bengal, ironic as this is for a part of the country to which the uplifting description “renaissance” is ascribed for the all-round effervescence seen here in the nineteenth century in conditions of colonial modernity. No political party operating in the state can claim to be free of guilt in this regard.

Even so, when politically mobilised hooligans, even at a symbolic level — as seems the case in the attack on Mr Nadda’s entourage — target the highest functionary of a political party, in this case the organisational head of the ruling party of the country, it is time for all concerned to reflect and get back to the drawing-board — for the sake of West Bengal and India. If not, political misfortune is apt to overtake us, no matter which party is in the saddle.

The BJP veteran Rajnath Singh, the defence minister and a former BJP chief, put the matter in a very sober way when he noted after the sorry incident, “Attack on political leaders is highly condemnable. The incident should be thoroughly probed and accountability should be fixed.”

Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee can hardly be said to have covered herself with glory when she rhymed disparagingly on Mr Nadda’s name

Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee can hardly be said to have covered herself with glory when she rhymed disparagingly on Mr Nadda’s name. This is not “bhadralok” at all, and sits even worse on a CM’s tongue. “I have asked the police to find out all this,” she said in public remarks. But she ought to be ordering a magisterial inquiry.

its social media interactions — and frankly, in its actions. It should have been proactive in clearing the route the BJP leader’s convoy was taking. If it pleads that it had not been told about it in advance, it is even worse. The local police ought to know. This is no one else’s business, Mr Nadda’s ‘Z plus’ security status notwithstanding.

Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee can hardly be said to have covered herself with glory when she rhymed disparagingly on Mr Nadda’s name. This is not “bhadralok” at all, and sits even worse on a CM’s tongue. “I have asked the police to find out all this,” she said in public remarks. But she ought to be ordering a magisterial inquiry.

The state is to have Assembly elections in a few months. If events of recent weeks are an indication, political violence may possibly rise. BJP is desperate to unseat Ms Banerjee’s Trinamul Congress. In the circumstances, it is necessary not to fan political passions. Union home minister Amit Shah tweeted soon after the tawdry incident, “The West Bengal government will have to answer for the state-sponsored violence.”

This is an observation laden with political partisanship, and because state polls are due soon it gives off the sense of President’s rule being imposed. The home minister ought to sound more sober and act with due responsibility.

A lone ranger departs

In the culture wars of yesteryear, his dance was totally lost on critics. Not considered Indian enough in the West, and Western enough in India, his zany moves failed to satisfy either the “diversity” or the “fashionableness” criteria. Then there were the traditionalists. Whenever he approached potential sponsors for money for his performances or projects, they invariably asked him, “What is modern dance?”

Astad Deboo kept on dancing, for 50 years, not just in India, but all over the world. His dance education was grounded in kathak, taken up at age six. His inspiration, on the other hand, had been a show by the American Murray Louis Dance Company, which he chanced to attend while pursuing a commerce degree in erst-while Bombay. The adventurous Parsi boy left Mumbai in 1969 onboard a cargo boat and hitchhiked his way through Europe to reach New York in 1974.

In New York, Deboo enrolled at the famous Martha Graham dance academy, but dropped out. He then trained with Pina Bausch in Germany and, in 1977, returned to India and learned kathakali under E. Krishna Panicker, eventually evolving his own style that was minimalist and eloquent in equal measure. But it was not until 1986 that his breakthrough came in terms of peer recognition when Deboo was commissioned to choreograph for Maya Plisetskaya, the prima ballerina of Bolshoi Theatre. The versatile Deboo would go on to collaborate with Bausch herself, theatre artiste Alison Becker Chase, rock band Pink Floyd, dhruwad singers the Gundecha brothers, even Manipur’s Thang-Ta martial artistes and Pung chowal dancers. Accolades arrived late, in the form of a Sangeet Natak Akademi award in 1995 and a Padma Shri in 2007, and when they came were too little given his contributions. It would not be incorrect to comment that Deboo was among the few who changed Indians’ puritanical approach to music and dance. For a long time, he was the only one in his field of contemporary dance, a genre he single-handedly, or rather single-footedly, pioneered in India. He leaves behind a transforming legacy, and unreserved admiration in the hearts of his now-sizeable tribe of students, dance aficionados and followers.

V is for valour, victory... But V is also for vaccine!

Shobhaa De

There is a joke doing the rounds on the social media which goes something like this: “Meanwhile, in Uhasnagar, everybody is waiting impatiently for the original Covid vaccine to be launched... They say that their duplicate has been ready for two months!” That joke says it all, and is such an accurate reflection of collective angst as one hears the “latest” vaccine-waley breakthroughs, with sombre experts weighing in with their considered opinion on the V-word. In Mumbai, it is as if Covid never happened, or at any rate, even if it did, the virus has miraculously vanished, and the party can begin. In drawing room discussions, the conversation flits from, “Are you going to take it?” to “I hear SRK went to Pune and has already taken it”. I am asked if I plan to take it, and I hesitate before replying... truth be told, I am still sitting on the fence. When I saw pictures of 90-year-olds getting jabbed, I turned cynical because I found it hard to understand why they would risk it at this stage of their lives. The Covid updates in the national dailies remain unread by me, and I switch off when prime time panel discussions breathlessly focus on “Who will win the vaccine race?” The point is, whichever pharmaceutical company wins that Covid Cup, it still won’t solve our problems here in India. But sure... shareholders who have invested in any of the big pharma players will be in a joyous mood over Christmas and New Year.

The off-site narratives of the vaccine story are most engaging. Kids and senior citizens, frontline workers and others in privileged categories, are busy boasting about being one up on the rest. Getting a shot will soon become a social test — if you aren’t amongst the first to extend an arm for the jab — hey — poor you! The usual “janata class” jamboree will kick in, with folks who will try to jump the queue, bribe their way to “qualify”, forge certificates and documents, call up influential “contacts”, fake illness, do whatever it takes to stake a claim and brag about it. “I have taken the shot — and you haven’t? Arrey! You should have called me, na? I know somebody who would have arranged it for you — that too, at home. Why go and stand in a line like all the others?” Funny... our “line complex”! We hate being seen standing in an orderly line anywhere. If you have to line up, it means you are a nobody — that’s the thinking. I remember one of our most dazzling billionaire wives cribbing that she hated flying “commercial” because it involved lining up with the hoi polloi! She used to frequently berate her husband publicly for not getting her a private jet. “It is so humiliating to be seen at an airport standing with the public!” she would moan and groan. It didn’t matter that personalities in the league of Ratan Tata and Azim Premji not only fly commercial, but carry their own bags on board, with

My own state of denial has made me push Covid and the vaccine into the background. I am not convinced it is THE answer, no matter what the docs say.

Neither have I understood the booster shot logic or the reactions to it — headaches, body aches and other symptoms. It’s being described as ‘The Post-Vax effect’.

Azim preferring to fly economy class whenever possible — but that is his special brand of eccentricity. I suspect we will see a similar scramble for the vaccine, with India’s swish set flying off to get their shots in London rather than wait it out for their turn back home. “Apna Time Aayega” holds no appeal for most self-styled VIPs, who consider it infra dig to be told they need to line up like everybody else.

My own state of denial has made me push Covid and the vaccine into the background. I am not convinced it is THE answer, no matter what the docs say. Neither have I understood the booster shot logic or the reactions to the vaccine — the headaches, body aches and other symptoms. It’s being described as “The Post-Vax effect” and it isn’t sounding good — pain swelling, fever. “The vaccine works! Crow those whose faith is undiminished, even if the statistics aren’t in place right now to make such declarations about this particular vaccine. But when it is pointed out that America has crossed the 15 million coronavirus cases, and people are still dropping like flies there, the writing on the wall is ominous indeed. What can be said to reassure citizens? Canada has already picked its vaccine of choice (Pfizer-BioNTech), the same one approved by Bahrain and the United Kingdom. Approvals are being rushed by several other countries, after stating just how rigorously the testing process is being imposed. I dunno! Call me a sceptic — this unholy rush to “market” the vaccine seems more driven by commerce than humanitarian compulsions. To think such a swathe of people across the globe will be at the mercy of agencies and governments! If your government decides — “This is the one” — then, that is the one! We will never know why this one was picked over that one. Who lobbied for it — who had the most to gain... Today, this one magic vaccine is going to determine the future of the world — and it will instantly become the single most potent factor when it comes to votes and elections. Its availability and efficacy will determine the fate of governments and political parties across the world. Citizens may never know why a certain pharma company was picked over rivals. Questions about decisions that will affect the health and well-being of our planet will be decided by politicians! The almost unlimited power of the virus over our lives has been established. Now comes the challenge of how we can tame the microbe, save ourselves and keep the faith. What if we discover a few years down the line that our governments have shortchanged us by withholding vital information. Or that our leaders sold our safety in order to stay in power. That the wrong pharma horse was backed? That a corrupt system bought a vaccine it knew full well would not work as promised and made guinea pigs out of us? We have given the mandate a bit too easily. Was there ever a choice?

FARMERS’ STRIKE

Farmers’ unions have put the government on the mat for a straight answer to repeal the contentious laws and rejected talks. It is a deadlock with both sides sticking to their guns. The only solution seems to be judicial intervention from the apex court where several PILs (writ petitions) are pending against the three farm laws promulgated under dubious circumstances in contravention to laid down procedures in the Constitution.

The farmers’ agitation which has been peaceful so far, may create law and order problems if trains are blocked. Hawkish elements among farmers want a confrontation. Once anti-social elements take over the peaceful agitation, it could escalate into a serious situation. It will be prudent for farmers to resume dialogue with the Centre and convince it about their genuine grievances.

Philosophy, Kant’s Critique of Pure Reason, several literary hard-covered tomes and titles which made the Punjab Book Service (PBS) look like it was in any street in Oxford or Cambridge.

But those titles were not what the clientele wanted and were not the titles stocked in the body of this lending library. The front room had packed shelves of detective stories, Perry Mason courtroom sort of stuff and “Westerns”. There was a back room which you entered through a heavily beaded curtain, with shelves full of brown-paper-covered pamphlet-like books with titles such as Confessions of a Russian Princess, Forget the Hocus Enjoy the Pokus and The Nun’s Delight. All to be borrowed overnight or so for a few annas.

Gentle reader, I beg you to believe that I only became aware of these titles when my friend Dara Cama borrowed them. I never crossed the beaded curtain.

Then a fateful day Dara went to the showcase and brought Will Durant’s Story of Philosophy to “Punjabi”, as we called the proprietor, at the book-borrowing counter.

Punjabi stared at the hard-covered volume as though he had never seen it before. There was a long pause because he couldn’t believe that anyone wanted to read the stuff that he used as decoy material for his chaaloo lending library. He looked up.

“Arrey vah Kyemah! Thoo flaaafsy pudhai?”

And yes, it was the moment when I converted from addiction to Earl Stanley Gardner to “flaafsy”. And then it was I came to appreciate, as perhaps Socrates did, that substituting one word for another changes the world.

This memory of such realisation came to me when in September of this plague year Cambridge University’s vice-chancellor issued a sort of fatwa free-choice demanding of the university staff and students that they “respect” all opinions. His bulletin was widely interpreted as the outlawing of any arguments or contentions which would offend any group. The fatwa was probably issued as a caveat to opponents or those who would argue against the “reality” or achievability of gender transformation. The call to “respect” the insistences of “trans” people and their supporters was interpreted in some quarters as a ban on expressing any opposition to them. This could, if extended, apply to a ban on countering the arguments of anti-vaccers, people who oppose vaccination.

A professor of philosophy at the university, Arif Ahmed, saw this fatwa as a mandated opposition to free speech. He proposed a simple amendment: substitute the word “tolerate” instead of the word “respect”. That would recognise the right to live with, but not agree with, opinions which seemed to you either ridiculous, contrary to scientific fact or unacceptable for some reason of faith, or otherwise.

Prof. Ahmed calls the vice-chancellor’s directive a policy and labels it as “academic McCarthyism”. The injunction to “respect” an opinion could merely mean to support the fact that it exists. But it could also mean to refrain from publicly contradicting it.

Prof. Ahmed began alone but soon signed up a fair number of academics and students to his amendment to the directive. He is certainly motivated by the acute opposition to the recent practice in British universities of banning (they call it “no-platforming”) people whose views they feel will offend one or another minority.

Prof. Ahmed sees that as an infringement of free speech within institutions which should be the champions of it and of vociferous arguments against offending ones. He told London’s Times that there is the risk of “self-censorship”, that there are now views and opinions in British academia that dare not speak their name.

He goes controversially further, saying that it’s right for academics to engage with white nationalists or even Islamic fundamentalists and that people should be able to hear their, possibly toxic, reasoning, and “make up their own minds and criticise as disrespectfully as they want”.

Myself? If I was president of the Cambridge Union and Osama bin Laden (Fish be Upon Him) was still alive, I’d send him an email asking him to speak about why Donald Trump — sorry, I mean America — is in his opinion The Great Satan. I’d perhaps invite Richard Dawkins or someone more militant to speak against him and let a thousand flowers (followers?) fight it out.

I shall not cease from mental strife... etc.

P.S. — As we go to press, Cambridge announces that the Arif amendment and others were passed with a huge majority.

Should tolerators and repliers, supporters of all free speech, now be termed “Arifists”?

Why we need to ‘tolerate’ all those who have contrary views

FRAUD CASE IN US

Washington, Dec. 11: An Indian-American from Michigan has been arrested along with two others on charges of conspiring to defraud at least 43 victims of more than $3 million through the sale of phony business opportunities, a US attorney has said. David Weinstein, 61, Vijay Vanam Reddy, 45, and Kevin Brown, 61, have been charged with one count of conspiracy to commit wire fraud.

Reddy on Thursday made an appearance in a Detroit federal court. Brown and Weinstein were arrested on December 8. Brown was released on $50,000 bond and Weinstein a day later. From September 2015 through August 2018, the three advertised business opportunities for sale on various websites. They purported to sell "blocks" of contracts with medical providers who allegedly wanted to outsource their medical billing, collections, appeals, answering, credentialing or transcription functions.

Britain, EU gear up as
'no-deal' Brexit looms

British Prime Minister admits Sunday deadline for next discussion does not hold out great promise

London, Dec. 11: British Prime Minister Boris Johnson has issued the starkest warning yet that the UK could be out of the EU on January 1, 2021, without a trade agreement in place as the two sides remain divided on key areas amidst last-ditch talks between the chief Brexit negotiators.

After Johnson's urgent talks with European Commission President Ursula von der Leyen in Brussels failed to break the logjam over the European Union (EU) fishing rights in UK territorial waters as a non-member and competition rules for businesses, the Prime Minister admitted that a Sunday deadline for their next discussion does not hold out great promise.

"At the moment, I have to tell you in all candour, the treaty is not there yet and that was the strong view of our Cabinet," Johnson said on Thursday night. "There's a strong possibility that we will have a solution much more like Australian relationship with the EU than a Canadian relationship with the EU," he said.

An Australia-style agreement effectively means no trade agreement and the two sides would then be trading on World Trade Organisation (WTO) norms, with considerable barriers to movement of goods as well as people. With the UK no longer signed up to the EU rules, it would also mean travel restrictions for Britons travelling to and from the EU at the end of the Brexit transition period on December 31, given the Coronavirus pandemic lockdown rules. — PTI

EU leaders agree climate
deal, budget after wrangles

Brussels, Dec. 11: EU leaders on Friday agreed an ambitious target for cutting greenhouse gas emissions after unlocking the bloc's landmark budget and Coronavirus recovery fund at a marathon summit.

The 27 member states struck a deal on a binding target to slash emissions by at least 55 percent by 2030 following an entire night of intense wrangling in Brussels.

The fight was over how the cost of the effort should be shared across the countries: highly dependent on coal, Poland — allied with several

deal as trade remains stuck

London, Dec. 11: British trucking firms, supermarkets and other businesses on Friday implored the government to strike a last-minute trade deal with the European Union, as the two sides' leaders told their citizens to brace for New Year upheaval in the UK-EU trading relationship.

British Prime Minister Boris Johnson has said there is a "strong possibility" that negotiations on a new economic relationship to take effect Jan. 1 will fail. Johnson and European Commission President Ursula von der Leyen have set a Sunday deadline to decide whether to keep talking or prepare for a no-deal break.

"We have not yet found the solutions to bridge our differences," von der Leyen said Friday at an EU summit in Brussels. "We will decide on Sunday whether we have the conditions for an agreement or not." Either way, she said, "in less than three weeks, it will be new beginnings for old friends."

Britain left the EU on January 31 but has continued to follow the bloc's rules during a transition period that lasts until the end of the year. Months of talks on a future trade deal have failed to bridge the gaps on three issues — fishing rights. — AP

Carbon emission down 7% in Covid

Paris, Dec. 11: Carbon emissions fell a record seven percent in 2020 as countries imposed lockdowns and restrictions on movement during the Covid-19 pandemic, the Global Carbon Project said Friday in its annual assessment.

The fall of an estimated 2.4 billion tonnes is considerably larger than previous annual record declines, such as 0.9 billion tonnes at the end of World War II or 0.5 billion tonnes in 2009 at the height of the financial crisis.

The international team of researchers behind the report said emissions from fossil fuels and industry would be around 34 billion tonnes of CO₂ equivalent this year — still a significant chunk of Earth's remaining "carbon budget".

Emissions reductions were most pronounced in the United States (down 12 percent) and the European Union (down 11 percent), the Global Carbon Project said.

In China, however, it said emissions would likely fall in 2020 just 1.7 percent as Beijing superpowered its economic recovery.

By sector, emissions from transport accounted for the largest share of the global decrease, with emissions from car journeys falling by roughly half at the peak of the first Covid-19 wave in April.

By December emissions from road transport had fallen 10 percent year-on-year and emissions from aviation were down 40 percent. Emissions from industry — 22 percent of the global total — were down 30 percent in some countries with the strongest lockdown measures. — AFP

Germany plans for tougher lockdown

Berlin, Dec. 11: Calls grew on Friday for tougher lockdown measures in Germany as the country's disease control center reported record daily increases in both Coronavirus cases and deaths.

The number of deaths from the virus rose by 598, to a total of 20,970. The previous daily record of deaths was 590, set on Wednesday. "The only chance we have to get in control of the situation is a lockdown, but it needs to be immediate," Interior Minister Horst Seehofer told Der Spiegel magazine. "If we wait until Christmas, we'll have to continue fighting these numbers for months."

GIVES DISTINCT
OBAMA FEEL

Washington, Dec. 11: President-elect Joe Biden is getting the old gang back together. Increasingly deep into the process of selecting Cabinet members and other senior staff, the incoming Biden administration has a distinctly Obama feel.

There's Denis McDonough, former President Barack Obama's chief of staff who Biden announced on Thursday would be nominated as the secretary of veterans affairs. Susan Rice, Obama's former national security adviser, was named the director of Biden's White House Domestic Policy Council.

That's on top of Biden already tapping Obama's agriculture secretary, Tom Vilsack, to head the department once again, former Secretary of State John Kerry to serve as special envoy on climate and Kerry's Obama-era deputy Antony Blinken to lead the State Department. — PTI

sector pares debt
by 26% to $7.7 bn

The gems & jewellery sector has cut its outstanding debt by 26 per cent to $7.7 bn in 18 months. The industry has faced difficulties in securing credit in the wake of a few bank fraud cases, Gem & Jewellery Export Promotion Council chairman Colin Shah said. "The gross bank debt of India's gems and jewellery industry has reduced by a healthy rate of 26 per cent from $10.44 bn in March 2019 to $7.75 bn in October 2020."

Beer cartel faces
hefty CCI penalty

ADITYA KALRA
NEW DELHI, DEC. 11

Top executives of Carlsberg, SABMiller and United Breweries (UB) exchanged commercially sensitive information and colluded to fix beer prices in India for over 11 years, according to a government antitrust investigation report seen by Reuters.

The Competition Commission of India (CCI) in 2018 raided the offices of the three brewers and started an inquiry. The investigation's findings — which are not a final judgment of wrongdoing — cast a shadow on the brewers, which account for 88 per cent of the country's $7 billion beer market.

Senior CCI members will consider the report, drafted in March, as they decide on fines, which could exceed $250 million, two sources familiar with the case said. The CCI members could agree with or dispute the findings of its investigation team.

Executives' conversations, WhatsApp messages and e-mails contained in the report show the companies regularly and collectively strategised in seeking price increases in "several states", forging a cartel the CCI said gave them more bargaining power with state authorities.

The companies also used the All-India Brewers Association (Aiba) as a "common platform" to decide collectively on prices; and the local group then lobbied on the companies' behalf for price increases, the CCI report found.

At least thrice executives exchanged messages urging one another to keep their plans quiet, the report showed.

"We should avoid getting caught," Aiba's director general wrote in an e-mail in 2016 to executives of the three companies.

The brewers coordinated to "manipulate the government machinery" and "were well-aware that their collective approach through the association (Aiba) was violating" competition law, the 248-page CCI report said. The report concluded the cartel existed between 2007 and October 2018.

The CCI did not respond to Reuters queries. Aiba and Carlsberg declined to comment, citing ongoing CCI proceedings.

United Breweries, part-owned by Heineken, said it had cooperated with authorities and would make submissions to the CCI. Heineken didn't comment. The world's largest brewer, Anheuser-Busch InBev, which acquired SABMiller in 2016, said it takes "antitrust compliance very seriously".

The CCI raids in 2018 seized hundreds of files and more than 2 terabytes of data from laptops, pen drives and smartphones.

The case was triggered when AB InBev used CCI's "leniency programme" to disclose that it had detected a cartel while integrating SABMiller's operations in India. Later in 2018, UB and Carlsberg also filed leniency applications.

Under the programme, the CCI can reduce the penalties it imposes on companies depending on the cooperation they provide. In this case, 19 beer executives engaged in anti-competitive practices, the report says.

"The collusion... has been mostly through the highest level of management in these companies," the report said, including managing directors, vice presidents, and sales and marketing heads.

UAE's Lulu Group to set up food
unit in J&K

Dubai, Dec. 11: The UAE-based Lulu Group International plans to set up a food processing centre in Sri-nagar for sourcing agri products from Jammu and Kashmir.

The plan was revealed by Lulu Group chairman Yusufali M.A. on Thursday to a Jammu and Kashmir delegation led by principal secretary (agriculture production & horticulture) Navin Kumar Choudhary.

"As per the commitment made during the visit of Prime Minister Narendra Modi to the UAE in 2019, Lulu Group is fully focused on sourcing a wide range of agri products from J&K," Yusufali said.

Currently, Lulu imports apples and saffron from Kashmir and imports will significantly increase in the coming years. The group imported more than 400 tonne of Kashmiri apples till date, according to an official statement.

Yusufali said the Lulu group is one of the leading importers of food and non-food products from India and setting up a new food processing and logistics centre will further boost export of Kashmiri products to the Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC) and other countries.

Choudhary welcomed the Lulu Group initiative to host a J&K special fortnight at its super markets across the Gulf region on the occasion of Republic Day-2021. — PTI

Industrial output rises
3.6% in October

FC BUREAU
NEW DELHI, DEC. 11

With an upward growth in most sectors, especially manufacturing, electricity and consumer durables, the industrial output, or the Index of Industrial Production (IIP), for October registered 3.6 per cent growth, according to government data released on Friday.

This is the second consecutive month when IIP data remained in positive territory after six months of contraction. The IIP was up 0.5 per cent in September.

The manufacturing sector, which has a weightage of 77.6 per cent in the IIP, recorded a growth of 3.5 per cent in October.

In line with the Reserve

Bank of India's expectation, the October IIP number showed a sign of healing the economy. However, for the April-October period, industrial production contracted 17.5 per cent against 0.1 per cent growth in the year-ago period.

The October IIP growth was mostly driven by the electricity and manufacturing sector. The electricity sector grew 11.2 per cent, while the manufacturing sector jumped by 3.5 per cent year-on-year.

The output of capital goods — a barometer of investment — grew 3.3 per cent in October. There was a contraction of 22.4 per cent in the year-ago month.

Home prices fall 2.4% in India

SANGEETHA G
CHENNAI, DEC. 11

Home have become more affordable in the Indian market in the last one year, with prices dropping by 2.4 per cent. The demand for housing units have also gone up during the period.

Property consultants Knight Frank India says India has come down seven places in the Global House Price Index, as residential prices have dropped 2.4 per cent for the 12-month period and six-month period to September end. Prices were down 0.5 per cent for the September quarter compared to June quarter. This led to India moving down to 54th place on the index in Q3 2020 against 47th rank in Q3 2019.

The demand for housing units jumped in India as well. Home sales volume jumped in top eight cities by 2.5 times to 33,403 units in Q3 2020 compared to 9,632 in Q2 2020. New residential unit launches increased by 4.5 times to 31,106 units in Q3 2020, compared to 5,584 units in the previous quarter.

Knight Frank said mainstream residential prices across 56 countries and territories worldwide saw an average 4.5 per cent price correction in the September quarter. Around 16 per cent of the surveyed global countries and territories registered a decline in yearly price growth.

In Q3 2020, India, Ireland, Spain and Hong Kong witnessed the weakest price growth year-on-year.

Turkey led the index for the third consecutive quarter with annual price growth of 27 per cent. New Zealand with 15 per cent price rise jumped from 11th to second place between Q2 and Q3 as the country saw demand increase post-lockdown.

SHORT TAKES

Verstappen is at maximum speed

Yas Island (Abu Dhabi): Max Verstappen posted the fastest time Friday in the first practice for the season-ending Abu Dhabi Grand Prix.

The Red Bull driver was 0.34 seconds ahead of Mercedes rival Valtteri Bottas and 1.14 seconds quicker than Renault driver Esteban Ocon. Formula One champion Lewis Hamilton returned for Mercedes after recovering from the Coronavirus and had the fifth fastest time. He struggled early in the session with a brake sensor issue which needed fixing in the team garage.

A second practice will be held later Friday at the Yas Marina circuit. — AP

Joshua, Pulev on the boil at weigh-in London: Anthony Joshua warned Kubrat Pulev he faces “the real one” in Saturday’s world heavyweight title bout in London as the pair almost came to blows at the weigh-in.

Former Olympic champion Joshua defends his IBF, WBA and WBO belts at Wembley Arena against the veteran Bulgarian in front of 1,000 fans due to Coronavirus restrictions. The two men have been scheduled to fight twice before but both times the bout was postponed — in 2017 Pulev was injured and Covid-19 put paid to a planned fight in June. But the 39-year-old, nicknamed “The Cobra”, boasts an impressive 28-1 record — his only defeat came in a world title fight against Vladimir Klitschko in 2014. “Many years I’ve been in boxing and seen a lot of fighters talk a lot of rubbish, then they get smacked up,” Joshua told Sky Sports. — AFP

England analyst Nathan Leamon was seen hanging a series of coded messages from the team balcony — in combinations of letters and numbers — for the players out in the middle.

Hyderabad hold Mohun Bagan 1-1

Margao: Hyderabad FC rode on Joao Victor’s second half penalty to hold ATK Mohun Bagan to a 1-1 draw, maintaining their unbeaten run in the Indian Super League, here on Friday. The duo of Roy Krishna and Manvir Singh looked threatening up front but missed a flurry of chances, while veteran Subrata Pal pulled off some fine saves under the Hyderabad post to keep a clean score-sheet in the first-half. Manvir finally broke the deadlock in the 54th minute capitalising on a defensive lapse by Odei Onandia. But the Mariners’ joy lasted just over 10 minutes as they conceded a soft penalty after Nikhil Poojary was brought down by Manvir with a faint touch. — PTI

Hitman is fit, set for Tests

Rohit clears fitness test at NCA, to leave for Australia on Dec. 14

New Delhi, Dec. 11: Senior India batsman Rohit Sharma on Friday cleared an eagerly-watched fitness test at the National Cricket Academy in Bengaluru and will leave for Australia on December 14, three days before the start of the marquee Test series against the world’s number one team.

Rohit had sustained a hamstring injury during the IPL, which led to him missing the white-ball leg of the ongoing tour. He is also out of reckoning for the first two Tests but can now be there for the last two games. “Rohit has cleared the fitness Test and will soon be flying out to Australia,” a senior BCCI official said on conditions of anonymity.

Rohit’s fitness test took place under the supervision of NCA director Rahul Dravid, who is entrusted with the responsibility of giving him his fitness certificate.

As per the Australian government’s rules, the star batsman will have to undergo a mandatory 14 days of hard quarantine before being able to train for the last two Tests in Sydney (January 7 to 11) and Brisbane (January 15 to 19). He is flying straight to

Rohit Sharma

Sydney and will get a week’s training there.

There had been confusion around Rohit’s status over the past few weeks. Captain Virat Kohli spoke about a lack of clarity on the issue that has been full of intrigue ever since he injured his left hamstring during a league match while playing for Mumbai Indians in the IPL.

The injury, which forced him out of four IPL games, prompted the national selectors to not consider him for the Australian tour.

Omitted from the squad for the much-anticipated tour, he soon returned to lead his franchise in the remainder of the lucrative league, adding to the curiosity.

On November 9, the BCCI provided an update on his status, saying the selectors had kept Rohit out of only the limited-overs leg for him to “regain full fitness” for the Test series.

But the white-ball vice-captain came to Mumbai instead of travelling straight to Australia with his national teammates after leading Indians to IPL title triumph in the UAE.

The BCCI then issued another press release on November 26, a day after Kohli claimed he did not know why Rohit had not done his rehab in Australia, stating that the reason behind the opener coming back to India was his father’s illness. — PTI

Virat, Indian with Aussie trait: Greg

Adelaide, Dec. 11: Batting great and former India coach Greg Chappell has called Virat Kohli the “most Australian non-Australian” cricketer of all time and thanked the sport’s “most important” figure for championing the cause of the Test format with his “all-out aggression”.

Chappell invoked Mahatma Gandhi before crediting Kohli’s intensity for bringing about a paradigm shift in Indian cricket. “Many previous Indian cricket teams tended to play with undue deference to their opponents, as if in accord with the Gandhian principle. Sourav Ganguly was the first Indian captain to try to change that approach. It worked to a degree in India, but usually hit a hurdle overseas,” Chappell wrote in Sydney Morning Herald.

“Virat Kohli does not believe in passive resistance. He is a proponent of all-out aggression. His idea is to dominate the opposition. Kohli is the most Australian non-Australian cricketer of all time. He embodies the new India. As the premier player and captain of the world’s pre-eminent cricket power, he feels an abiding responsibility to the wider game,” he added.

“The fact that Kohli champions Test cricket is a huge plus for a format under pressure for time and space in a crowded schedule,” Chappell said.

“Test cricket has always been the pinnacle for him and it has driven him to be fitter and stronger to cope with its demands. It is why he drives his team in these areas because he wants India to be respected in the most demanding format.”

“If the captain of India is ambivalent towards Test cricket, some administrators would be happy for it to slide into ignominy, as they are seduced by the newer, shinier models,” he said.

On Kohli’s standing in world cricket, Chappell said the batting maestro is aware of that but not obsessed with it.

Bumrah blasts maiden 50 in India’s warm-up match

Sydney, Dec. 11: Pace spearhead Jasprit Bumrah headlined the opening day’s play with a maiden first-class fifty and then chipped in with a couple of wickets in an impressive bowling effort putting India in the driver’s seat against Australia in the pink ball warm-up game on Friday.

With his unbeaten 55 off 57 balls, Bumrah was the top-scorer for the visitors, who folded for a disappointing 194 in 48.3 overs at the Sydney Cricket Ground.

The Indians however came back strongly with the ball to bundle out Australia ‘A’ for 108 at stumps as 20 wickets fell on a curtailed when almost an hour was lost due to heavy rain.

Napoli play 1st match at Maradona stadium

Naples (Italy), Dec. 11: Napoli kicked off a new era, playing the first game in their stadium since it was renamed in honour of club legend Diego Maradona.

The match at the Stadio Diego Armando Maradona was a Europa League clash against Spanish club Real Sociedad which ended in a 1-1 draw.

Argentina football great and former Napoli star Maradona died two weeks ago aged 60. He led the club to their only league titles in 1987 and 1990 and the UEFA Cup in 1989.

“Being here, inside the Diego Armando Maradona stadium, is a great honour,” Napoli sporting director Cristiano Giuntoli said before kick-off.

A minute’s silence was also held before the game in memory of Italy 1982 World Cup winner Paolo Rossi who died early Thursday aged 64 years. Rossi inspired Italy in the 1982 tournament in Spain where he was the top scorer with six goals, including a hat-trick in the 3-2 defeat of Brazil. He also scored twice against Poland in the semifinals and the opening goal in the 3-1 win over West Germany in the final.

“Paolo Rossi was a great point of reference for me,” said Giuntoli.

City authorities and the club’s president had proposed renaming the San Paolo Stadium within hours of Maradona’s death. Napoli have already paid homage to Maradona, who played for the club from 1984 to 1991, in two home games.

NICHOLLS PEPS UP KIWIS WITH FINE CENTURY

Wellington, Dec. 11: New Zealand’s Henry Nicholls rode his luck to post a crucial century as the hosts, weakened by the loss of Kane Williamson, survived a shaky start to reach 294 for six on day one of the second Test against the West Indies on Friday.

Nicholls snapped a 21-month string of low scores with his sixth Test century. At stumps, he was 117 not out. From being on the ropes at 78 for 3, Nicholls said New Zealand now considered 400 would be “a good result”.
