HC order to ban crackers on Diwali dampens festive spirit

Dealers' association decries move, seeks 2-day time to sell firecrackers

T.S.S. SIDDHARTH | DC
HYDERABAD, NOV. 12

Following the Telangana High Court's decision to ban firecrackers in the city, one could see a very few stalls selling crackers. Some said that they had witnessed a dip in sales from the time they entered the market.

The Fireworks Dealers' Association of Telangana, though, has decried the move.

They demanded that the state government give them two days to sell the stocks and repay the loans that they took to procure crackers. These decisions were taken during a meeting at Sagar Society Grounds in Banjara Hills.

"We are not happy with the timing of the High Court's judgement. If it had been given ten days ago, the traders would not have stocked up. Now, there are customers who brought the crackers, what will they do with the crackers?" questioned J Manik Rao of the Fireworks Dealers' Association of Telangana. He added that the dealers were only selling green crackers, as prescribed. "We are in a confused state of mind right now. We will be approaching the state government asking for some kind of leeway," he said. In a hearing on the issue on Thursday, the court directed the state government to give wide publicity to the ban.

While the government informed the court that it was following guidelines by the National Green Tribunal on bursting of firecrackers, the court said that this could contribute to the further spread of the Covid-19 pandemic.

WHAT THEY SAID ABOUT CRACKERS BAN

Diwali means spreading joy and light. We should celebrate but we must also be mindful of the prevailing health situation. Comorbid conditions are always there and it is best to not make it more difficult for anyone.

— DR T. SWETHA, counselling psychologist

From an astronomer's perspective, there are joys that staring at the night sky brings you. Whenever it comes to Diwali, we tend to fill it with artificial lights, which I do not agree with as it plays with your Circadian Rhythm.

— N. Sree Raghunandan, director, Planetary Society

It's 2020, the year of compromise. So this year please try to celebrate in a different way with less pollution.

— PRIYANKA, homoeopathy student from Secunderabad

It's a good thing that the ban has been imposed. Street dogs and pets can be spared of unnecessary anxiety and the horrific way they're treated in the name of fun during festivals. Let's hope people will obey this ban.

— NITHIN RAJ, an advertising professional from Musheerbad

More than enough awareness was spread on the negative impact of firecrackers on environment, but the response from the general public hasn't been that encouraging. In such circumstances the ban is welcome. Diwali is a festival of lights and not noise.

— SRUTI RAJAN, Senior risk analyst at Amazon from Madhapur

Our family stopped bursting crackers on Diwali to avoid scaring our pet. Unable to tolerate the sound of crackers, pets have been known to refuse food out of stress. I hope people follow this ban.

— M. MANJU, Homemaker from Alwal

We are battling a major crisis that humans has ever witnessed, and tough measures are needed. Instead of causing severe damage to ourselves and our neighbours by bursting fire crackers, we can celebrate with lights and sweets. Just when the number of active Coronavirus cases are coming down in the country, our negligence will only reverse the trend.

— DR ANIL KRISHNA G. Chairman & MD, Medicover Group of hospitals.

The ban is welcome because this year every precaution taken for safety is a step to help hundreds of people and save them from danger. Children suffering from asthma and elderly persons from chronic lung diseases like are very much prone for exacerbations during Diwali.

— DR RAMANA PRASAD, Consultant Pulmonologist KIMS Hospitals says,

The rallies for by-elections didn't spread Covid but bursting crackers will? What about businessmen who have already stocked up? Why is it announced two days before Diwali? Their losses will now run into lakhs. Shopkeepers should protest.

— TITO GEORGE, Self-employed businessman from Bolaram

I purchased crackers worth ₹3,000 two days back. They should have announced the ban at least a week ago because all of my friends have also stocked up on crackers.

— A. PAVAN, Class X student from Venkatapuram

I was waiting and hoping for this to happen! Several Covid patients with breathing problems would have suffered more due to the air pollution. I hope the ban is carried through other festivals until New Year.

Phase-3 trials for

HYDERABAD, NOV. 12

Phase-3 trials of Covidshield vaccine are being carried out on 1,600 participants at 15 centres in India. The vaccine is being developed by Pune-based Serum Institute of India (SII) and Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR).

Development of Covidshield started at SII Pune Laboratory with a master seed from Oxford University / Astra Zeneca. ICMR has funded clinical trial sites in India while SII is taking care of other expenses being incurred on development of the vaccine. Phase 3 clinical trials will provide data on safety and efficacy of Covidshield vaccine. Testing on different populations in the country allows for a better understanding of how the vaccine works on various segments of people in varied regions.

Covidshield, made in the United Kingdom, is also being tested in trials being carried out within the UK, Brazil, South Africa and USA. Results of the trials have been positive, says SII, expressing confidence that the vaccine will turn out to be a realistic solution for the deadly pandemic. Evaluation of data by scientists across the world shows Covidshield is by far the most advanced vaccine.

SII has already manufactured 40 million doses of the vaccine under the at-risk manufacturing and stockpiling license from DCGI. The company, with help from ICMR, is working towards making the vaccine available to people in India at the earliest.

ICMR director general Dr Balram Bhargava observed, "At present, India is playing a prominent role in developing and manufacturing the vaccine globally. Buoyed by latest technology and well-equipped facilities, SII has continually proven its research and manufacturing prowess. Our partnership and expertise will bolster India's fight against the global pandemic," he stated.

SII CEO Adar Poonawalla says their institute and ICMR coming together testifies the importance of public-private institutes coming together for scaling up efforts to contain the spread of virus.

The Minister made this announcement during a review meeting with CCI, NAFED, FCI and state Marketing officers here. He directed the CCI DGM, Amarnath Reddy, to take stern action against officials, who were negligent during procurement of cotton, which he said should benefit farmers. Brokers or private traders should be barred from the process, he said.

Reddy said that CCI is educating farmers on the need to ensure that the moisture content in the cotton brought to the market is low.

"We are using Aadhaar-based cash transfers in cotton procurement and this will be a transparent process," he said. Kishan Reddy instructed the authorities to make available moisture measuring machine at every collection centre and assured farmers that there would be no delay in procurement. Despite lower cotton yields this year, Kishan Reddy assured the farmers that the authorities would buy cotton at a minimum supportive price with due diligence. He urged farmers not to hastily sell cotton to private traders at low prices.

The Union Minister reviewed with officials of Food Corporation of India (FCI) regarding paddy crop. He recalled that a large number of farmers in Telangana had cultivated paddy variety as per the instructions of the state government, which had also promised to collect the entire produce.

Stating that there is no situation to buy the grains at present, he urged the state government to take responsibility for it and render justice to farmers.

He said there was uniform national price structure and there would be no special rules for different states. He also said that there would be no discrepancy in the procurement of grains for the implementation of the Food Security Act and that the FCI would insist on quality and at a minimum sup-

Congress: TRS has not done much for farmers

₹10,000 per acre losses were incurred by farmers, says Jeevan

PULI SHARATH KUMAR | DC
KARIMNAGAR, NOV. 12

Adhering to the call given by the Telangana Pradesh Congress Committee (TPCC), party leaders along with farmers, staged a Rythu mahadharna programme in front of the district collectorates of Karimnagar, Jagtial, Peddapalli and Rajanna Sircilla districts on Thursday.

They demanded that the state and the Central governments help farmers who faced losses due to natural disasters.

They also asked the state government to procure fine variety rice by fixing ₹2,500 per quintal and submitted memorandums to the collectors in the respective districts.

Led by Jeevan Reddy, thousands of farmers in Jagtial along with Congress leaders took out a padayatra covering 3 km from the bus stand and reached the Collectorate. They sat on the road, which led to a traffic jam for three hours.

Mr Jeevan Reddy alleged that farmers across the state are facing problems, as paddy, cotton and corn crop got damaged. The government has not sent any official to probe the extent of damage to the crops.

The state's new agriculture policy directed farmers to cultivate the fine variety of rice. Following the directive, it was cultivated 25 per cent more, compared to the previous season by investing large amounts expecting good returns.

WARANGAL, NOV. 12

Farmers in the state are suffering due to the government's delay in purchasing the fine variety of paddy, alleged senior Congress leader V. Hanumantha Rao on Thursday.

He said, "The government encouraged farmers to cultivate fine varieties of paddy. As a result, 75 per cent of the farmers cultivated it despite investment in the crop increasing significantly. The recent heavy rains damaged most of the crops. The government should support the farmers."

He was speaking at the Ekashila Park in Hanamkonda on Thursday where the Congress held a protest demanding compensation of ₹20,000 to the flood-hit farmers and withdrawal of three farmer agricultural laws brought by the BJP government.

He demanded that the state government give a bonus of ₹2,500 per quintal along with MSP for fine paddy. Coexistence between Adivasis, tigers affected

PILLALAMARRI SRINIVAS | DC
KOMARAM BHEEM ASIFABAD, NOV. 12

The tiger-man conflict is increasing and causing problems to Adivasis living in erstwhile Adilabad district.

On Wednesday a tiger killed an Adivasi youth Sidam Vignesh, 22, while he was grazing his cattle in the forests near Digida village in Dahegaon mandal. This has created panic among the people of Jilleda, Loha, Metlaguda, Rampur villages that surround Digida.

Komaram Bheem Asifabad district forest officer (DFO), Shantharam visited Digidi village and asked the villagers not to venture into the forests, but confine themselves to revenue lands.

Many Adivasis have got patta to forest land that they have been cultivating under the Forest Rights Act for decades, inside the forests. Podu lands that the Adivasis cultivate are inside the forests. The DFO advised the villagers of Digida to take the help of forest officials to know the boundaries of the forest and revenue lands.

Villagers said, "Shantharam gave the impression that the tiger killed Vignesh since he entered into its habitat." They alleged saying that Shantharam referred to them as encroaching the tigers' habitat by doing podu cultivation and growing cotton crop in these lands.

The fact is that there is no proper demarcation between the forest and revenue lands as they are located side by side in most cases.

Villagers said, "The forest department dug gigantic trenches as boundaries around the forests. Some of these trenches, are dug in podu lands to restrict the Adivasis, from entering the forests for firewood and minor forest produce." Adivasis depend on the forests for their livelihoods. They live on the fringes of the forests and inside the forests even today.

Sociologists and anthropologists say, the relation between the Adivasis, and the forest, is akin to that of fish and water. The fish will die if taken out of water.

Tiger conservation has Adivasis fume

DC CORRESPONDENT
KOMARAM BHEEM ASIFABAD, NOV. 12

Tiger conservation is posing a threat to the very existence of the Adivasis and their livelihood in erstwhile Adilabad district.

The forest department set up a gigantic iron gate at the entrance of the road leading to an Adivasi gudem, Malyal, located inside the Kawal Tiger Reserve. But, the villagers of Malyal removed the gate.

Venkatesh from Digida village said, "Many Adivasis have their patta agriculture lands and podu lands in the forests." Due to fear of movement of the tiger, they are unable to visit their agriculture lands and are losing their standing crops, as they cannot protect them.

Adivasis said, "Forest officials focus on tiger conservation, but they do not care about the lives and livelihoods of the Adivasis. It is we Adivasis who are victims of tiger conservation. We are traditionally forest dwellers and indigenous people of the country. Coexisting with wild animals including tigers, is not new to us. The people living in the towns and cities who talk about tiger conservation never have had to face wild animals."

The Central government is releasing huge funds for tiger conservation.

LOSING CATTLE

According to sources, tigers have killed 55 cattle in the last six months in Kagaznagar forest division and Chennai forest range in Mancherial district.

Of the 57 kills, 37 cattle belonged to Adivasis.

The forest department pays compensation from ₹7,000 to ₹10,000 for the cattle killed.

PROTECTING THE BIG CAT IS PART OF TRADITION

DC CORRESPONDENT
KOMARAM BHEEM ASIFABAD, NOV. 12

It is part of the Adivasis tradition to protect the tiger. Adivasis worship the tiger and can never harm it. The tiger is called 'Vagoba' or 'Duvval'.

Adivasis say, "Forest officials and staff are creating panic among the Adivasis, and other marginalised people and farmers whose lands are in the forest area." The Digida incident, of a tiger killing a youth, has created more panic among the Adivasis.

Tiger movement has been noticed in the forest areas in Bhupalapalli and Mulugu districts also.

TRACKING IS IMPORTANT

Dahegaon mandal is now under the Rebbena forest range, which is 80 km from Dahegaon.

The question arises is how can forest officials of Rebbena monitor the movement of the tiger in Dahegaon.

The forest department must bring the Dahegaon mandal under Penchikalpet or Kagaznagar forest range for better monitoring of Tiger movement.

Tiger movement is high for 10 km on the way to Karji village in Dahegaon mandal and near Gatladevara temple as the area is a dense forest.

YES BANK SCAM ACCUSED ROSHNI KAPOOR GETS BAIL

SHAHAB ANSARI | DC
MUMBAI, NOV. 12

A magistrate court here on Thursday granted bail to Yes Bank founder Rana Kapoor's daughter Roshni Kapoor, an accused in the Yes Bank fraud case linked to DHFL, after she appeared before the court in response to summons issued to her.

A non-bailable warrant could have been issued had she not appeared before the court on the summons issued to her. The court had issued summons to her last month at the time of taking cognisance of the charge sheet filed by the Central probe agency CBI. The agency has named her as one of the eight accused.

The CBI had filed charge sheet against Rana Kapoor and others under the provisions of the Prevention of Corruption Act and IPC. However, the charges of corruption were dropped by the special CBI court because the prosecution did not obtain the sanction needed to prosecute under the PC Act. As a result the case was transferred to the magistrate court for trial.

SCORPENE CLASS SUBMARINE LAUNCHED

PAWAN BALI | DC
NEW DELHI, NOV. 12

The fifth Scorpene class submarine Vagrir for the Indian Navy was launched in Mumbai on Thursday.

The submarine will now undergo comprehensive and rigorous tests and trials for more than a year to ensure delivery of a combat worthy submarine, capable of operation in all modes and regimes of deployment.

The crew will also, at some point of time, sail the submarine for "sea acceptance trials" after which the submarine will be delivered to the Navy. The addition of the submarine will be critical for the Indian Navy which is operating at a less than ideal strength given India's vast coastline.

The Vagrir submarine has the ability to launch a crippling attack on an enemy with torpedoes as well as tube-launched anti-ship missiles whilst underwater or on surface.

Vagrir has the ability to carry out multifarious missions typically undertaken by any modern submarine, which include anti-surface warfare, anti-submarine warfare, intelligence gathering, mine laying and area surveillance. Six Scorpene submarines were to be manufactured by Mazagon Dock Limited, Mumbai, under programme Project-75 with a $3 billion contract.

Nitish likely to meet Guv soon after meeting with NDA partners

NAYEAR AZAD | DC
PATNA, NOV. 12

After the victory of NDA in Bihar polls, Nitish Kumar is all set to take oath as Bihar Chief Minister for the next term.

On Thursday, he visited JD(U) office to greet party workers and said that the NDA was currently assessing the poll results and the dates for oath ceremony has not been finalised yet. Reports suggest that he is expected to meet Bihar governor after meeting with all four NDA partners soon.

While interacting with the media at the JD(U) office he said, "I have made no claim for the Chief Minister's post, the decision will be taken by NDA. It has not been decided yet when the oath ceremony is going to take place, whether after Diwali or Chhath Puja. At the moment we are assessing the poll results and all four NDA partners will also meet soon".

The NDA led by Nitish Kumar's JD(U) has won 125 seats, three more than the number required to form the government in Bihar. Reports suggest that Nitish Kumar has been upset over the performance of his party in the polls.

- THE NDA led by Nitish Kumar's JD(U) has won 125 seats, three more than the number required to form the government in Bihar.
- THE JD(U) has been holding Chirag Paswan responsible for the low tally and has been accusing him of 'cutting votes' on most of the seats fielded by the party.

This is the first time in 15 years that the JD(U) has slipped to number three position in the state after the RJD and NDA partner BJP.

The RJD with 75 seats has emerged as the single largest party followed by the BJP which has won 74 seats. The JD(U) got only 43 seats and two smaller partners Hindustani Awam Morcha and Vikasheel Insan Party won four seats each.

The JD(U) has been holding Chirag Paswan responsible for the low tally and has been accusing him of "cutting votes" on most of the seats fielded by the party.

On Wednesday, while talking about his party's performance in the Assembly elections Chirag Paswan had said that it was his party's goal to cause a dent to the JD(U) and make the BJP stronger. Sources said that the JD(U) leadership has urged the BJP to initiate action against Chirag Paswan and his party for aggressively campaigning against Nitish Kumar and fielding candidates on most of the seats where JD(U) had fielded its candidates.

As per an assessment, the LJP harmed the JD(U) on 20-30 seats during the polls.

"It's the BJP which has to decide whether any action is to be taken against him (Chirag Paswan) or his party. It's for the BJP to decide whether or the LJP should remain in the NDA", Nitish Kumar said.

Meanwhile, RJD leader Tejashwi Yadav in his first remark after the Assembly election raised doubts over the electoral process in the state.

He also alleged discrepancies in postal ballot count and demanded recounting in more than 20 seats where the grand alliance candidates lost by a thin margin.

Talking to the media after being declared as the legislative party leader of the Grand Alliance on Thursday, Tejashwi Yadav said, "They have hijacked the people's mandate once again. In 2015 also people's mandate was in favour of the Grand Alliance but it was the BJP which made backdoor entry to gain power".

Chief Electoral Officer H.R. Srinivas, meanwhile, submitted the list of winning candidates in the Assembly elections to Governor Phagu Chauhan at Raj Bhavan.

Tejashwi Yadav also announced that he would soon take out a "Dhanyawad Yatra" to thank the people of the state for voting in favour of the grand alliance.

He said that "The verdict was in our favour but the results were declared in their favour. I am confident that the grand alliance would have won at least 130 seats if the counting was done in a free and fair manner. We have also decided to demand video footage of the counting process. The grand alliance also wants to know that under whose pressure postal ballots were cancelled".

Shivraj rules out expansion of his ministry

RABINDRA NATH
CHOUHURY | DC
BHOPLAL, NOV. 12

Madhya Pradesh Chief Minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan on Thursday ruled out expansion of his ministry in near future indicating that he was in no hurry to accommodate the 2 former ministers who resigned from his cabinet on October 21 when their 6-month mandatory period to continue in their position as non-MLAs ended.

Former ministers Tulsi Silawat and Govind Singh Rajput were among 22 ex-Congress MLAs who had resigned from the Assembly and subsequently from their party in March to pull down the 15-month-old Kamal Nath government.

All the 22 former MLAs later joined BJP. 14 of them including Silawat and Rajput were later inducted in the Shivraj ministry.

As per the constitutional provision, a non-MLA can join a state ministry, but he or she needs to be elected to the House within 6 months of being inducted in the ministry.

Accordingly, Silawat and Rajput, who were inducted in the Shivraj cabinet on April 2, resigned from the Shivraj cabinet on October 21. Both of them were however elected to the Assembly in the November 3 by-elections in the state.

"Ministry expansion is not in my agenda right now", Chouhan told reporters here.

He also refused to commit as to when he was planning to expand his ministry.

Meanwhile, out of the 12 non-MLA ministers in the Shivraj ministry, three have lost the elections, while the rest nine have won the polls.

The three ministers who lost the polls are Imarti Devi, Anand Singh Kansana and Giriraj Dandotia.

Meanwhile, Kansana announced his resignation from the ministry immediately after he lost the polls.

The other two ministers who lost the polls were yet to announce their resignation from the ministry.

BJP SAYS DIDI IS PLAYING 'KHOONI RAJNITI'

DC CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI, NOV. 12

A day after Prime Minister Narendra Modi slammed the killing of BJP workers and supporters in TMC-ruled West Bengal and advised the state's ruling party that the "dance of death" will not help in winning a mandate, the BJP on Thursday accused the TMC supreme and chief minister Mamata Banerjee of playing "khooni rajniti."

On a day BJP's state unit and MP Dilip Ghosh's convoy was attacked in Alipurduar allegedly by TMC workers and one of its workers Gokul Jana was "murdered" in East Medinipur, the party claimed that these incidents are a proof that Bihar poll verdict has unsettled Banerjee.

High on the BJP's radar, West Bengal has crucial Assembly polls lined up early next year and former BJP president and Union home minister Amit Shah had recently visited the state to take stock of the party's poll preparedness. West Bengal is one of the few states where the BJP has never been in power and has been aggressively expanding its organisational and support base.

BJP's performance in the Lok Sabha polls, when it won 18 out of 42 parliamentary seats, had charged the party cadre and also helped it in expanding its support base significantly.

PM2.5 levels in Delhi will be lowest if no crackers burnt, says SAFAR

New Delhi, Nov. 12: The PM2.5 concentration in Delhi on Diwali is likely to be the "lowest" in the last four years if no firecrackers are burnt, a central government agency said on Thursday.

The ministry of earth sciences' air quality monitor, SAFAR, said pollution levels in Delhi during the Diwali period are likely to remain in the higher end of the "very poor" category in the absence of emissions due to fireworks.

"Under 'zero-firecracker' scenario, the level of PM2.5 is likely to be the lowest in the past four years as not so calm surface winds in Delhi will help in dispersion (of pollutants)," it said.

PM2.5 is particulate matter which is about three per cent the diameter of a human hair and can lead to premature deaths from heart and lung diseases.

An AQI between zero and 50 is considered "good", 51 and 100 "satisfactory", 101 and 200 "moderate", 201 and 300 "poor", 301 and 400 "very poor", and 401 and 500 "severe". SAFAR said stubble burning-induced impact on AQI is expected to increase from negligible to moderate in the next two days.

A spike in PM2.5 in the early hours of November 15 is likely in case of fire-related emissions, it said.

A special PMLA court on Thursday rejected the bail plea filed by Deepak Kochhar, husband of former ICICI Bank CEO Chanda Kochhar, in a money laundering case. Kochhar had sought default bail on the ground that the probe agency failed to file chargesheet against him within a stipulated time frame.

He had filed the bail application on merits too and his bail plea on merits is yet to be decided.

The Directorate of Enforcement (ED), while investigating the ICICI-Videcon money laundering case, had arrested Deepak Kochhar in September and since then he is behind bars.

Even though special judge Prashant Rajvaidya rejected the default bail application filed by Kochhar, he asked the ED to file its reply on the plea filed on merits and deferred hearing on it till November 23.

In its reply to Kochhar's claim that the charge sheet has not been filed in time, the ED claimed that the same was filed on November 3, but it is pending scrutiny by the concerned department, as there are five trunks full of documents that needed to be verified. Hence, the court is yet to take the cognisance of the prosecution's complaint.

Accepting this contention the court rejected his bail plea.

The prosecution has claimed that the Kochhars and their business entities illegally sanctioned loans amounting to ₹1,875 crore to the Videocon Group of companies. Based on these allegations, the central probe agency slapped money laundering charges against the accused.

The ED had earlier said an amount of ₹64 crore, out of the ₹300 crore loan sanctioned by a committee headed by Chanda Kochhar to Videocon International Electronics Ltd, was transferred to Nupower Renewables Pvt Ltd (NRPL) by Videocon Industries Ltd on September 8, 2009, just a day after disbursement of the loan by ICICI Bank.

NRPL was earlier known as Nupower Renewables Ltd (NRL) and is a company of Deepak Kochhar.

₹5L COMPENSATION TO TWO 'WRONGLY' ACCUSED OF MURDER

AKSHAYA KUMAR SAHOO | DC
BARGARH, NOV. 12

The Odisha Human Rights Commission (OHRC) has ordered compensation of ₹2.5 lakh each to two persons of Bargarh district who were 'wrongfully' arrested on charges of killing a boy in 2016 who was later found alive following his return to home after two years.

The panel has recommended that the compensation amount of ₹5 lakh be recovered from the salary of Prakash Kumar Karana, former inspector of Paikamal police station, who had arrested the two.

As per reports, one Jitu Dandasena of Piplipali village in Bargarh district went missing on Dec. 7, 2016. During the course of investigation, police arrested Halu Gurla and Raghab Naik of Bargarh town on December 24, 2016 on the charges of murder and destruction of evidence.

The two were later sent to jail. However, Dandasena returned home in 2018 and the two wrongly accused had moved the OHRC seeking justice after their release from jail.

As questions were raised over the carelessness of police in investigating the case, human rights activist Biswapriya Kanungo had moved the OHRC seeking justice for the arrestees.

Speaking to reporters, Jitu said he had fled his village after he lost his memory following an attack by miscreants.

"In 2016, I was attacked by some miscreants who hit my head and looted my mobile and money. I could not return home as I lost my memory and moved here and there. I returned home after regained my memory," he said.

Shots fired at Saudi embassy in Dutch

The Hague: Several shots were fired early Thursday at Saudi Arabia's embassy in The Hague, Dutch police said. Nobody was injured and police were investigating. Spokesman Steven van Santen said police were alerted around 6 am (local time) to shots being fired at the building on a stately avenue in the Dutch city. Officers found several bullet casings outside the building and local media showed images of bullet holes in windows. The motive for the shooting was unclear. Police appealed for witnesses. Calls to the embassy went unanswered early Thursday.

Radio Liberty scribe killed in bombing

Kandahar: An Afghan journalist working for a US-funded radio network was killed in a blast in southern Afghanistan on Thursday, officials said, just days after a former television presenter was murdered in Kabul. Radio Liberty reporter Aliyas Dayee was killed when a sticky bomb attached to his car exploded in the city of Lashkar Gah in Helmand province, said Omar Zwak, the spokesman for the province's governor. Targeted killings of prominent figures, including journalists, clerics, politicians and rights activists, have become more common in recent months as violence surges in Afghanistan, despite ongoing peace talks between the government and the Taliban. Dayee, 33, was on his way to the local press club with his brother when the car exploded, Radio Liberty's chief editor Rateb Noori said.

Democracy bloc set to resign in HK

Hong Kong: Hong Kong's legislature opened on Thursday ahead of the planned mass resignation of its pro-democracy bloc, one day after the government ousted four of its members. One of the pro-democracy lawmakers, Lam Cheuk-ting, unfurled a banner from a balcony of the legislative council building saying the city's leader Carrie Lam had brought disaster to Hong Kong and its people. The group had said they would hand in resignation letters on Thursday, but it was not immediately clear when they would do it or even what the proper procedure was. One said the removal of their four colleagues could sound the "death knell" for democracy in the semi-autonomous Chinese territory. The resignation of the 15 remaining pro-democracy lawmakers would rather put tensions over the future of Hong Kong, a former British colony, regional financial hub and bastion of Western-style civil liberties where China's government has increasingly tightened its control.

CARDI B SORRY FOR GODDESS DURGA LOOK

Los Angeles, Nov. 12: American rapper Cardi B has apologised for appropriating Goddess Durga's image for a magazine cover shoot. The 28-year-old musician recently appeared on the cover of Footwear News magazine, posing as Goddess Durga with shoes in her hands, while promoting her first line of sneakers with Reebok.

The singer was then slammed on social media with many Indian users claiming that she has insulted the Hindu goddess, while others took offence to her outfit. On Wednesday, Cardi B took to her Instagram story and apologised to her Indian fans.

In a video message, the musician said, "When I did the shoot, the creatives told me I was going to represent a Goddess; that she represents strength, femininity and liberation, and that's something I love and I'm all about."

"And though it was dope, if people think I'm offending their culture or their religion I want to say that was not my intent. I do not like offending anyone's religion; I wouldn't like it if someone did it to my religion," she added.

Cardi B maintained that her intention was not to disrespect anyone's god. "When people dress as Virgin Mary and Jesus, as long as they do it in a beautiful, graceful way it is ok". But I wasn't trying to be disrespectful; maybe I should have done my research. I'm sorry. I can't change the past but I will do more research for the future," she added.

Biden transition picks up, Klain chief of staff

Long road ahead for duo to fight Covid, heal divided nation

Washington, Nov. 12: US President-elect Joe Biden pressed ahead with his transition on Wednesday despite Donald Trump's refusal to acknowledge defeat, naming a seasoned Democratic operative as chief of staff in his first public White House personnel choice.

Biden tapped longtime aide Ron Klain, who previously served as his first chief of staff while vice president, acknowledging the two had a long road ahead in fighting the Coronavirus pandemic as well as healing a deeply divided nation.

"His deep, varied experience and capacity to work with people all across the political spectrum is precisely what I need in a White House chief of staff as we confront this moment of crisis and bring our country together again," Biden said.

He made the announcement after visiting the Korean War Memorial in Philadelphia earlier in the US military won't be used as political pawn, says Gen Mark

Washington, Nov. 12: The words spoken by America's top military officer carried a familiar ring, but in the midst of a chaotic week at the Pentagon, they were particularly poignant.

"We are unique among militaries," said Gen. Mark Milley, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. "We do not take an oath to a king or a queen, a tyrant or a dictator. We do not take an oath to an individual."

Milley was speaking

Wednesday at the dedication of an Army museum in a week that saw President Donald Trump fire Defense Secretary Mark Esper and install three staunch loyalists to senior Pentagon policy positions.

The abrupt changes have raised fears about what Trump may try to do in his final two months of office — and whether the military's long held apolitical nature could be upended.

Milley's comments, made as he stood alongside

Esper's successor, acting defense chief Christopher Miller, reflected a view he has long been passionate about: the military's unequivocal duty to protect and defend the Constitution — what he called the "moral north star" for everyone in uniform.

But his message in a time of turmoil — Trump has refused to concede his election loss — was unmistakable: The military exists to defend democracy and is not to be used as a political pawn. — PTI

ARMENIA DETAINS CRITICS OF KARABAKH DEAL

Yerevan, Nov. 12: Armenia on Thursday arrested 10 leading opposition figures for violently protesting against a Russian-brokered peace deal that ended weeks of fighting with Azerbaijan and sparked fury with Prime Minister Nikol Pashinyan.

Prosecutors announced the arrests hours ahead of a fresh demonstration called by the opposition against the accord that sees Armenia give up swathes of disputed territory in Nagorno-Karabakh to their long-standing foe.

$500 mn to be pledged at Paris forum for cure

Paris, Nov. 12: Several countries and foundations are set to pledge more than $500 million on Thursday for a global pool aimed at ensuring equitable access to coronavirus tests, treatment and vaccines for all nations, organisers of a French forum said.

The third edition of the Paris Peace Forum, which seeks to address governance issues with concrete projects, takes place Thursday and Friday in the French capital and is dedicated to finding ways to ease and get out of the Covid-19 pandemic.

It takes place as the number of cases is rising rapidly across Europe and beyond.

It also comes just days after American pharmaceutical giant Pfizer and its German partner BioNTech reported highly promising results for their vaccine candidate, raising hopes globally.

During the forum, several countries are expected to announce funding for the so-called ACT-Accelerator, a mechanism led by the World Health Organisation that aims to ensure access to tests, treatments and vaccines for all. According to a statement by organisers, France will be announcing a commitment of 100 million euros, Spain 50 million and the European Commission 100 million specifically for the vaccines part of ACT-A.

The British government is also set to declare a contribution of one additional pound for each four dollars announced.

Organisers added that the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation was also due to "announce an important commitment during the discussion." WHO Director-General Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus, French President Emmanuel Macron, Spanish Prime Minister Pedro Sanchez and Ursula von der Leyen, president of the European Commission, will take part in an online discussion due to be streamed online.

In September, the United Nations estimated that the ACT-Accelerator had only received around $3 billion of the $38 billion needed to meet the goal of producing and delivering two billion vaccine doses, 245 million treatments and 500 million diagnostic tests over the next year.

UK crosses 50,000 Covid-19 deaths

London, Nov. 12: The UK has become the first country in Europe to cross the grim milestone of 50,000 Covid-19 related deaths as Prime Minister Boris Johnson said, "we mourn everybody who's gone".

As per the official figures released by the government, 1,256,725 people have tested positive for the virus after 22,950 new cases were recorded this week.

A further 595 fatalities due to the deadly viral infection on Wednesday took the death toll to 50,365, making the UK the fifth country in the world to cross the 50,000-mark after the US, Brazil, India and Mexico. "We're not out of the woods yet. Every death is a tragedy, we mourn everybody who's gone and our feelings are with their families and friends," Johnson said. becoming clearer as the months have gone on," he said. — PTI

Turkey prohibits smoking in public

Istanbul, Nov. 12: Turkey's interior ministry has banned smoking in public places across the country to curb the spread of Covid-19.

In a statement late Wednesday, the ministry said smoking would be banned in busy streets, bus stops and public squares when necessary. It said the nationwide mask mandate in public spaces, which has been in effect for several months, must be followed at all times and smokers were routinely violating the mask rule.

The ministry also said provinces can decide to impose curfews on senior citizens above the age of 65 if they are seeing increases in the number of critical patients. The governors of Istanbul and Ankara have already reintroduced measures this week, allowing senior citizens to leave their homes only between 10 am and 4 pm. — AP

Today, "Jerusalem" has clocked more than 230 million YouTube views in less than a year — and lured an army of people into mimicking its dance moves.

"The feedback was crazy," says 24-year-old South African artist Master KG, who co-wrote and performs the disco-house track with Nomcebo Zikode. The viral "Jerusalem" dance challenge saw thousands across the world posting clips of themselves copying the video choreography. — AFP

Italian hospitals near breaking point as Covid-19 cases surge

Milan, Nov. 12: Dr Luca Cabrini was certain his hospital in the heart of Lombardy's lake district would reach its breaking point caring for 300 Covid-19 patients. So far, virus patients fill 500 beds and counting.

Italy, which shocked the world and itself when hospitals in the wealthy north were overwhelmed with Coronavirus cases last spring, is again facing a systemic crisis, as confirmed positives pass the symbolic threshold of 1 million. "We are very close to not keeping up. I cannot say when we will reach the limit, but that day is not far off," said Cabrini, who runs the intensive care ward at Varese's Circolo hospital, the largest in the province of 1 million people northwest of Milan.

The hospital expanded its 20-bed ICU ward to 45 beds during Italy's deadly spring peak. It had 38 patients last weekend, and Cabrini was preparing to set up beds in an operating theater this week, "something we would have preferred to avoid." As dire as Italy's ICU situation is once again, it's not critical care that is most worrying doctors during the pandemic's autumn resurgence.

It's sub-intensive and infectious disease wards caring for less gravely ill patients, who are often younger and sometimes require care for longer periods.

The Italian doctors federation called this week for a nationwide lockdown to forestall a collapse of the medical system, marked by the closure of non-emergency procedures. — AP

China lays out tech roadmap to catch up with US: Report

Beijing, Nov. 12: China must apply cutting-edge technologies such as artificial intelligence if it wants to transform its military into a modern fighting force on a par with those of other leading powers, according to new guidelines and comments from President Xi Jinping and other officials.

The statements come from a booklet published this month by the state-run People's Publishing House, in which senior officials, including President Xi, outlined the latest five-year plan for the country's development.

The military modernisation is being pushed by 67-year-old Xi, who besides heading the ruling Communist Party (CPC) and the Presidency is also the Chairman of the Central Military Commission (CMC), which is the overall high command for China's 2-million strong military.

China this year approved about $179 billion defence budget, the second-highest after United States defence spending of $732 billion. According to Stockholm International Peace Research Institute (SIPRI) military expenditure figures, China defence spending in 2019 amounted to $232 billion. — PTI

DYNASTY | JUBILEE | Bashar Assad, has an unquestioned grip on what remainsSyria marks 50 yrs of Assad family rule

Beirut, Nov. 12: On Nov. 13, 1970, a young air force officer from the coastal hills of Syria launched a bloodless coup. It was the latest in a succession of military takeovers since independence from France in 1946, and there was no reason to think it would be the last. Yet 50 years later, Hafez Assad's family still rules Syria.

The country is in ruins from a decade of civil war that killed a half million people, displaced half the population and wiped out the economy. Entire regions are lost from government control. But Hafez's son, Bashar Assad, has an unquestioned grip on what remains. His rule, half of it spent in war, is different from his father's in some ways — dependent on allies like Iran and Russia rather than projecting Arab nationalism, run with a crony kleptocracy rather than socialism. The tools are the same: repression, rejection of compromise and brutal bloodshed.

Like the Castro family in Cuba and North Korea's Kim dynasty, the Assads have attached their name to their country the way few non-monarchical rulers have done.

It wasn't clear whether the government intended to mark the 50-year milestone this year. While the anniversary has been marked with fanfare in previous years, it has been a more subdued celebration during the war.

"There can be no doubt that 50 years of Assad family rule, which has been ruthless, cruel and self-defeating, has left the country what can only be described as broken, failed and almost forgotten," said Neil Quilliam, an associate fellow at Chatham House's Middle East and North Africa program.

After his 1970 takeover, Hafez Assad consolidated power. He brought into key positions members of his Alawite sect, a minority in Sunni-majority Syria, and established a Soviet-style single-party police state.

His power was absolute. His Mukhabarat — or intelligence officers — were omnipresent.

He turned Syria into a Middle East powerhouse. In the Arab world, he gained respect for his uncompromising position on the Golan Heights, the strategic high ground lost to Israel in the 1967 war. — AP

Digital oversight: Don't try to regulate, censor

The Central government's move to bring the digital space under the purview of the information and broadcasting ministry, with President Ram Nath Kovind approving the Government of India (Allocation of Business) 357th Amendment Rules, 2020, gives it the power to regulate policies and rules for online content, including news and creative material broadcast through over-the-top platforms. This comes soon after the Supreme Court expressed concern over the lack of oversight on OTT content and seeking the government's views on the subject.

At present, most content in India is regulated by statutory or autonomous bodies. The Press Council of India and the Central Board of Film Certification, both statutory bodies, monitor the print media and films respectively, while the News Broadcasters Association represents television news channels and the Advertising Standards Council of India regulates advertising. However, there is no law or body that governs online content, or OTT platforms. The attempt by a group of video streaming services to formulate a self-regulatory code that laid down a set of guiding principles for content on these platforms had failed to take off. In this background, the new rules fill in a lacuna, and thus welcome.

It is learnt that the programme code that governs content on TV and which found an outlet in the Cable Television Network Regulation Act, 1995 may serve as the template for guidelines, and the code lists several don'ts.

While it is necessary that there is a regulatory body which can oversee the content, there are too many apprehensions and challenges that such a body will face. This is basically because of two factors. One, it should work within the limits of Article 19 (1) of the Constitution, which guarantees the right to speech and expression. Any attempt to muscle information or opinion expressed online will fall foul of the Constitution, and hence untenable. The media is best left to regulate itself, and a statutory regulator should not take on the role of a censor or do the bidding of the government in power. There are laws in our statute book to punish those who break them; and thus it must function solely as an overseer and not as a regulator, in the strict sense of the term. Second is the role that technology plays while trying to regulate online platforms. In the case of the press, television, advertisements or films, the products are made and/or distributed physically within the territory of India but when it comes to online, none of this is applicable, thanks to technology. One can produce content sitting anywhere in the world and make it available in the country, and imposing restrictions on them would be a tough, if not impossible, task. At the same time, those from within the country are easy to be brought under control. It is incumbent on a regulator to ensure that every player gets a level-playing field.

A knowledge society demands an open and free exchange of ideas. Regulators do have a role, but only a very limited one. The government must ensure that the new regulator promotes India's transformation into a knowledge society, and not impedes it.

A fitting finale for IPL

The smiles on the faces of not only the record winners of the Indian Premier League said it all. There was an immense sense of satisfaction to the event having been held as a glorious tribute to the sporting spirit of mankind with the popular multi-billion IPL 2020 season transplanted in the UAE desert and gone through virtually without a hitch. Five-time champions Mumbai Indians may have pulled one more away from the pack but they were just one great part of a wonderfully uninhibited final in which bright cricket of the enterprising T20 variety was served as entertainment in the face of one of humanity's greatest challenges in the form of the Covid-19 pandemic.

The super hero frame may have frozen prematurely on Marcus Stoinis as Delhi Capitals' opening gambit backfired, but denied by one of the great weapons of the 2020 season — pace attack. Even on Asian pitches there was plenty for quicks like Trent Boult to show the way. A methodical thoroughness may have exemplified the extent to which Mumbai Indians have revolutionised the format but they displayed that long after attacking batsmanship saw the likes of Kagiso Rabada being toyed with. This was not a nail-biting final, but an almost clichetic DC captain had realised that setting a target is as much a way of trying to win in this format. The flow of then attacking game was owed primarily to getting on with it rather than complicating it excessively.

The slow bowlers held their own too, so too did athletic fielders who bring excitement in their new gravity-defying, boundary riding ways even as the batsmen went through the vicissitudes, sometimes run ragged by just the thought of winning when near enough to the threshold. Many of the youth of India embellished the competition in unfolding their unique talents while the experienced often left us marvelling at how they reproduce skills as if from muscle memory. The public, drawn even more into interaction with the Dream XI IPL fantasy games, was laughing too as a great IPL edition went by.

New insights on Rajiv, but questions remain

Karan Thapar

As I See It

Biographies written by friends can be both revelatory and exasperating. Because the author knows the subject intimately there's a lot you can learn from them which otherwise you might never have found out. But, equally, for the same reason the book is likely to ignore or gloss over incidents that could embarrass the subject. Such books are fascinating but not always satisfying.

That is largely true of Wajahat Habibullah's recent book My Years with Rajiv. First, however, a word about their relationship. Habibullah and Indira Gandhi's two sons, Rajiv and Sanjay, studied together at Doon School and earlier at Welham. Their families knew each other and Habibullah's mother even served as a Congress MP. Later, the adult Wajahat served in both Rajiv Gandhi's and his mother's office. As he reveals, Habibullah accompanied Mrs Gandhi "on every tour within India, from Kashmir to the Andamans". Consequently, he got to know and, perhaps, understand the Gandhis better than any other civil servant.

Now, let's come to the book. The new bits suggest that a lot happened when he was Prime Minister of which Rajiv Gandhi knew very little. In fact, he was often kept in the dark. By politicians, by generals and even, it seems, by his close friends. If true — and I'm prepared to accept Habibullah's word — it's hardly a flattering portrait of India's youngest Prime Minister.

Habibullah reveals that Rajiv was totally clueless when, in February 1986, the gates of the Babri Masjid were unlocked. "Was Rajiv Gandhi involved in the decisions leading up to this unlocking?" he asks. This is the answer that Rajiv Gandhi gave him: "I had not been informed of this action and have asked Vir Bahadur Singh (then chief minister of Uttar Pradesh) to explain. I suspect it was Arun (Nehru) and Fotedar (Makhan Lal) who were responsible, but I am having this verified. If it is true, I will have to consider action."

Unfortunately, Habibullah does not explain how a Prime Minister could be ignorant of something as important as this, or what that suggests of his leadership and of his control of events. Yet Habibullah does write of himself that he was "completely taken aback". Therefore, it's a mystery why he doesn't dig deeper to find an explanation for Gandhi's ignorance. Or ask how Rajiv's cousin, Arun Nehru, could have placed the Prime Minister in this predicament.

Even more surprising is what Habibullah has to reveal about Operation Brasstacks. In 1986-87, this operation was viewed as unwarrantedly provocative and many feared that it could spark a conflict with Pakistan. Although Habibullah says that it involved "the entire Indian Army", it emerges that Rajiv Gandhi had no idea of its planning or that it was actually happening. Habibullah reveals he only found out as a result of a casual comment to Lt. Gen. P.N. Hoon, then Western Army commander, at an Army Day reception.

Habibullah's account of Rajiv's conversation with Lt. Gen. Hoon is both funny and frightening. "When Rajiv saw him, he sauntered up to him and asked cheerfully: 'How is the Western Front?' " Lt. Gen. Hoon then started to speak about Operation Brasstacks. "Rajiv looked taken aback and asked Hoon what he was talking about." As Habibullah adds, it soon become crystal clear that "the Prime Minister of India had in fact no inkling of an exercise that had brought India and Pakistan to the brink of war".

Once again, Habibullah does not bother to ask the obvious questions. What does Rajiv Gandhi's ignorance of Brasstacks reveal of his relationship with the Army Chief and, more importantly, Arun Singh, the minister of state for defence and Rajiv's closest friend? Indeed, what does this sorry state of affairs reveal of Rajiv Gandhi's hold on the government? Habibullah's silence doesn't mean the questions don't exist or that they can conveniently not be answered.

The third revelation is from Rajiv Gandhi's brief term as Leader of the Opposition. During Operation Desert Storm, launched by a 35-nation coalition led by the United States in 1991, to liberate Kuwait from Saddam Husain's control, Rajiv Gandhi "launched a tirade against the USA focused on refuelling permissions given by India to US planes". Gandhi claimed this was a surrender of Indian sovereignty.

However, Habibullah points out that such criticism overlooked the fact "India itself was routinely given such permission by a host of countries".

The author goes a step further to reveal Gandhi's hypocrisy was a lot worse.

Behind closed doors he was in touch with the US embassy to convey a very different message. "Rajiv was at pains to quietly explain to the US embassy in New Delhi the domestic compulsions behind his actions and stressing that he had no desire to undermine India-US relations that he had himself so caringly wrought". Once again, Habibullah has no comment to make on this distressing two-facedness.

However, where this book falls horribly short is in its discussion of the massacre of Sikhs in Delhi in 1984.

It has very little to say of the killings and almost nothing of the enormity of what happened. There's no attempt to assess the response of the new Prime Minister or the failure of his government to act effectively.

In fact, Habibullah describes the gathering at Teen Murti House, where Presidents and Prime Ministers queued up to pay their last respects to Indira Gandhi, but seems to ignore what was happening outside. Over 3,000 Sikhs were killed but his account suggests Rajiv Gandhi, standing beside his mother's body, was unaware or uninformed of the pogrom taking place in his capital. Habibullah as good as admits this when he writes: "We were later to learn that Sikhs were assaulted on the streets".

Habibullah quotes Rajiv Gandhi's November 2, 1984 broadcast: "As Prime Minister of India, I cannot and will not allow this". But it happened and most people believe he did little to stop it. Yet this is not a subject Habibullah pays any attention to.

I guess when a Dosco writes about another Doon School boy, friendship comes in the way of an honest and objective account.

Between chums that might be understandable, but for a biographer it's less forgivable. But then Habibullah doesn't hide his enormous admiration for his subject. That's apparent from the introduction. Quoting what Marc Antony said of Brutus in Julius Caesar, Habibullah says of Rajiv Gandhi: "This was a man".

DEATH OF SOLDIERS

The funerals of Ryada Mahesh and Praveen Kumar Reddy made a very sad reading (Tearful farewell to jawan Mahesh, DC Nov. 17). Two more young lives are lost due to our inability to resolve border disputes. Providing cash and offering jobs to a family member is too little when compared to what the families have lost.

GROWTH BOOSTERS

It is good that the Centre is releasing ₹1.45 lakh-crore to industries as Production Linked Incentives (PLI) (Centre's sops for more production, DC, Nov. 12). It is indeed the right step to make our country a manufacturing hub. There should be a monitoring cell in the finance department to ensure that these organisations will use these incentives for productive purpose.

DUBBAK RESULT

The BJP should not be complacent after the Dubbak bypoll result. At the same time it is for the TRS to introspect what went wrong. It is not fair for the BJP leaders to ask the CM to step down. BJP has lost bypolls in some states. Does that mean the concerned CM should step down? TRS must take this defeat seriously and the CM must ask all MLAs to spend time understanding people's pulse.

Man becomes woman

TORONTO, Nov. 12

A 24-year-old Toronto office worker who flew to New York as a man and as a woman said here, "It is like being born again." The office worker underwent a four-hour operation in New York which changed her sex physically and legally.

"Sometimes I still find myself waiting for a woman to step out of an elevator, opening a door for a woman or getting up when a woman enters the room. I attract a lot of puzzled looks," she said.

She said she would like to marry some day but would tell the man about her history beforehand — because she can never have children.

Sanjiwan Sahni

An idea whose time has come". This was among the responses following my earlier article in these columns, which proposed the creation of a forum comprising the chief ministers and Leaders of the Opposition in states not governed by the ruling party.

The fulcrum would be to reinforce the federal structure, with national issues getting a collective voice, rather than individual efforts. Over time, it was hoped, with more credibility, a potential challenger would emerge.

The second dominant response was over implementation, which is even normally problematic and would be a challenge.

Let us look at the proposed alternative in these contexts.

First, the establishment of a forum, if it finds acceptance by even a few CMs or LOPs, will help to create an enabling structure as a first step. Not having to negotiate alliances to join a larger collective would be an advantage. Its membership will be limited to CMs and LOPs, and participation voluntary. This would extend to issues as well.

In other words, there need not be a consensus on all issues. There could be a consensus on major national issues, where the forum will allow the CMs' viewpoints to get wider national acceptance than in their areas of influence. Success could be reinforcing.

The point is that this would be a democratic forum as all members would be representatives chosen on the basis of their success in the electoral process in their states. Collectively, the forum would be representative of 60 per cent of the electorate that had not voted for the ruling party. This is a small attempt to address the lacuna in our first-past-the-post system. The majority vote gets divided and permits even a minority to get majoritarian power. A collective forum for the voice of 60 per cent seems worth exploring.

There is enough expertise available in the system to put a structure together that would incentivise and promote collaboration. At the same time, it will leave scope for dissent. Dissent by abstention from issues isn't acceptable to some.

How could the forum's voice be more effectively disseminated?

The CMs and LOP will be supported by experts selected by them in multiple domains including but not limited to economics, law, diplomacy and even politics. Ideally, this forum will have a fair measure of younger people, who not only have the relevant domain knowledge but are also articulate and have acceptability at an individual level, that will be enhanced by their collective credibility. Some names that come to mind include Mahua Moitra, Kanhaiya Kumar, Prashant Kishore, Sachin Pilot, Chetan Bhagat, Priyanka Chaturvedi and Raghav Chadha.

Another key question: It is all very well to find fault with the government's viewpoint but what is the alternative vision. Currently, different state-level politics brings out the relevant issues, but restrictively. Nobody has the mandate to credibly propagate an all-India national vision. Besides policy, the administrative capabilities of the states are only well known where they are in power.

Many states have demonstrated progress in multiple but limited spheres of activity. If this experience is pooled in the forum, the likelihood of national issues gaining acceptance will probably increase exponentially. The forum could generate shared experience. It could also incentivise a competitive streak. Both of these are positives.

Where the advisory team can be helpful is in focusing and bringing to the CMs' and LOPs' attention, in a structured way, key issues that should be taken up on a priority basis. Its mandate should be to:

a) Segment — economic, defence/foreign affairs, political, administrative reforms, technology, etc. Identify — key issues in these segments.

b) The effort should be to try and arrive at a consensus on three (illustrative) issues in each segment. This would become the core alternative agenda to propound collectively.

This would be a combination of political, managerial and technological prowess. Segmentation and prioritisation would put the focus on what must be done with immediacy across the country. The powerful team of spokespersons using the best technologies, carrying credibility with the bulk of voters, should make an impact.

For clarity, the team will be required to focus on the positives that need to be done. Political parties will be left to fight their battles independently, as is currently the norm.

The intention is to "cut the clutter" and bring forward issues that pass the test of experiential and intellectual rigour, including multi-disciplinary analysis.

Electorally, in a Utopian world, the 60 per cent of the electorate outside the establishment would be incentivised to vote together. However, in a real world, that is not going to happen. But, it is hoped this proposed forum will enable better communication, understanding on several issues, a collective desire to effectively reinforce the democratic process, the federal structure, as well as formulate policies relevant to alleviate poverty, to ensure India's progress in many respects. To summarise, there is a distinct hope and possibility that at least at the national level, not necessarily at state level, even electoral solidarity will become more visible.

The hope is that we could help create an institution for the voice of 60 per cent of the non-establishment electorate, create a direction for an alternative vision, bring closer multi-party state leaderships and employ multimedia technology to disseminate positive possibilities.

All this will enable an alternative leadership to become more visible across India. From among this leadership, it is hoped a challenger would emerge.

Measures likely to increase fiscal deficit of central govt Incentives seen costing ₹1.2 L cr

SANGEETHA G CHENNAI, NOV. 12

Though the government has estimated that the benefits of Atmanirbhar Bharat 3.0 will amount to Rs 2.65 lakh crore, the measures are likely to cost the exchequer Rs 1.19 lakh crore to Rs 1.2 lakh crore, find analysts. The measures are likely to increase the fiscal deficit of the Centre.

According to Barclays India, the measures announced on Thursday will cost the exchequer Rs 1.19 lakh crore, or 0.6 per cent of the GDP. Ica said the cost would be around Rs 1.2 lakh crore.

Among the measures announced, the enhancement in the outlay for fertiliser subsidies is Rs 65,000 crore. This will directly raise fiscal spending, says Aditi Nayar, principal economist, Ica.

The Rs 1.46 lakh crore production-linked incentive scheme for ten sectors will be spent over a period of five years. If at all it is evenly distributed across five years, the cost will be around Rs 29,000 crore in FY21.

The government also raised allocations for urban affordable housing by Rs 18,000 crore in order to offer some relief for construction and infrastructure companies. The government has also promised an equity injection of Rs 6,000 crore for the National Infrastructure and Investment Fund (NIIF) to encourage greater debt financing.

The government has also added an extra Rs 10,000 crore for rural employment assistance, and is looking to provide Rs 10,200 crore for capital

ECONOMY SEEING STRONG RECOVERY: FM

New Delhi, Nov. 12: Finance minister Nirmala Sitharaman on Thursday said the Indian economy is witnessing a strong recovery after a long and strict lockdown. Addressing the media, she said macro-economic indicators are pointing towards recovery.

She noted that Covid-19 active cases have declined from over 10 lakh to 4.89 lakh with case fatality rate (CFR) at 1.47 per cent. Giving out details of recovery, she said composite purchasing managers index (PMI) rose to 58.9 per cent in October versus 54.6 per cent in the previous month, registering strongest increase in output in close to nine years. Energy consumption growth trended higher in October at 12 per cent year-on-year, while GST collections have grown 10 per cent to over Rs 1.05 lakh crore. Daily railway freight tonnage grew by an average 20 per cent year-on-year versus 12 per cent, she said adding bank credit has improved 5.1 per cent. Also, FDI inflows in April-August at $35.37 billion was a 13 per cent year-on-year.

equipment spending. It may also release Rs 3,000 crore for the Export-Import Bank of India to boost exports.

However, there is no indication that the borrowing programme will remain unchanged at Rs 12 lakh crore, or estimated 6 per cent of GDP, says Barclays.

"While activity indicators are improving, government revenues continue to significantly trail estimates. The finance minister indicated that the new fiscal projections remain a work in progress. But we believe that Thursday's extra spending will raise the deficit. As such, we raise our consolidated deficit forecast to 13 per cent of the GDP for fiscal year 2020-21, from 12.4 per cent previously. Of this, we expect the centre's fiscal deficit to rise to 7 per cent of GDP, from 6.4 per cent earlier," said Rahul Bajoria, chief India economist, Barclays.

Financing pressures should remain manageable, in our view, with the RBI supporting market yields through sustained Open market purchases, he added.

"At present, our forecast for Indian real GDP in FY2021, is of a contraction of 11 per cent. We will revisit this projection in early December 2020, after the data for Q2 FY2021 is released by the NSO. By then, there will be greater clarity on the likelihood of the endurance of the festive season uptick, as well as the pace of new covid-19 infections domestically and in major trading partners during the colder months," said Nayar.

Moody's raises forecast, sees 8.6% growth in 2021

MADHUSUDAN SAHOO NEW DELHI, NOV. 12

Global rating agency Moody's Investors Services on Thursday revised India's GDP growth forecast for the calendar year 2020 upwards to -8.9 per cent contraction from -9.6 per cent contraction forecast earlier. Similarly, GDP forecast for calendar year 2021 has been revised upwards to 8.6 per cent from 8.1 per cent projected earlier. In September, the agency had forecast the economy to shrink by 9.6 per cent in 2020.

The revision comes in the backdrop of slowing spread of novel coronavirus cases in the country and gradual pick up of economic activity after seeing a 23.9 per cent contraction in April-June. The country, however, saw a worst phase of economic slowdown when consumer spending, private investments and exports collapsed during one of the world's strictest lockdowns.

"India's economy to shrink by 8.9 per cent in the 2020 calendar year due to the Covid-19 pandemic, compared to an earlier forecast of a 9.6 per cent contraction. The steady decline in new and active (Covid-19) cases since September, if maintained, should enable further easing of restrictions. We, therefore, forecast a gradual improvement in economic activity over the coming quarters," Moody's said in a note, adding that there is limited room for further rate cuts in emerging markets like India.

The agency also noted that the global economic recovery over the coming year will be highly dependent on the development and distribution of a coronavirus vaccine, effective pandemic management and government policy support. However, Moody's expects pandemic management will continue to improve over time, thereby reducing fear of contagion and allowing for a steady normalisation of social and economic activity. As a result, the virus is expected to become a less important macroeconomic concern throughout 2021 and 2022.

The report further said the geopolitical and trade risks will remain a key focus in the year ahead, as the relationship between the US and China, has deteriorated. "The agency does not believe that the Biden administration would differ materially from the current administration with regard to these issues. Decoupling of the Chinese economy from the US is likely in the areas of trade, technology and investment," it said.

Tax sops to help clear unsold homes; realtors may cut prices

New Delhi, Nov. 12: Home developers facing a liquidity crunch may reduce rates to clear their unsold inventories following the government providing income tax relief, realty industry said on Thursday even as they pointed out that overall housing prices are unlikely to come down as builders are already working on thin profit margins. The Centre on Thursday relaxed income tax rules to allow primary or first sale of housing units of up to Rs 2 crore at a price that can be 20 per cent below the stamp duty circle rate.

Currently, the law restricts differential between circle rate and agreement value at 10 per cent.

This relaxation, which is applicable till June 2021, is aimed at helping builders clear their unsold stocks, estimated to be around 7 lakh in major eight cities.

"We do not anticipate overall reduction in housing prices. Rates are already low and margins are low. But, the income tax relief will allow those developers who are facing liquidity challenges to clear their unsold inventories by reducing prices," Credai national chairman Jaxay Shah said.

He said the housing prices have already gone down below circle rates.

Naredco and Assocham president Niranjan Hirani welcomed the tax relief. "Differential above 10 per cent between circle rates and agreement value translates into tax penalties under Section 43CA of IT Act. This has been a major stumbling block for price rationalisation. This pinches when it comes to liquidating unsold inventory," he said.

RBI may keep rupee weak to boost exports

FALAKNAZ SYED MUMBAI, NOV. 12

Despite positive factors such as foreign portfolio investors returning back to domestic equities, stronger Asian currencies and weak dollar, the rupee continues to be the one of the worst performers against the dollar.

According to traders, the central bank continues to aggressively buy dollars to keep the rupee weak in order to boost exports. Experts said that 75 level would be a crucial resistance for the rupee.

A trader said, "While the RBI maintains that it intervenes only to remove volatility and has no targeted level for the rupee, we have been noticing aggressive dollar buying whenever the rupee touches 73.90 level. The RBI aggressively intervenes and heavily buys dollars through the public sector banks. Since the last one month, the RBI has been aggressively buying dollars. Even yesterday, there was an aggressive intervention by the RBI."

During the calendar year, the rupee has been one of worst performers having depreciated by 4.5 per cent. In comparison, the Thai baht and the Korean won have appreciated, with the yuan trading at a 28-month high at 6.6. On Thursday, the rupee continued its losing streak to the fourth straight session and dived 28 paise to end at 74.64 against the US dollar.

Darshit Purohit of IFA Global said, "The domestic equities are trading at an all-time high but the rupee has continuously remained weak. The primary reason for the rupee remaining weak vis-a-vis other Asian currencies is the aggressive RBI intervention as reflected in the robust build-up in forex reserves. The motive

Anti-dumping duty on acrylic fibre removed

SANGEETHA G CHENNAI, NOV. 12

Close to the heels of announcing production-linked incentives (PLI) for man-made fibre (MMF) products, the government has revoked anti-dumping duty on acrylic fibre exported from Thailand. The industry feels this will give a major fillip to the MMF segment that employs more than 10 lakh people.

Acrylic fibre, known as poor man's wool, is used for making sweaters and shawls for domestic and international market. The anti-dumping duty had made the fibre costly and stunted the growth of the sector for more than two decades.

"Removing the anti-dumping duty on acrylic fibre, which was long overdue, will be a game changer for the Indian AF sector and it will go a long way in boosting the growth of the MMF industry. The move will act as an impetus to this labour-intensive sector by generating additional employment and increasing the competitiveness of the entire value chain," said Sanjay Garg, president, Northern India Textile Mills Association (Nitmra).

According to Nitmra, only three players in India produce acrylic fibre and due to the high anti-dumping duty on imported fibre, the downstream industries were forced to buy it from them. This made the fibre-made products expensive in both domestic and export markets.

The value-add industry has more than 1,500 unorganised players, employing over 10 lakh. The move will make the fibre cheaper for them and make Indian products competitive in the export market.

The government had earlier removed the anti-dumping duty on purified terephthalic acid, a raw material of polyester staple fibre, thus providing a boost for the production of polyester products. The industry has been asking the government to remove anti-dumping duty on viscose staple fibre (VSF) as well in order to make Indian MMF competitive in the global market.

Nitmra expects that the government will soon remove the anti-dumping duty on VSF as well.

Federal Bank, said, "While going by the macro economic indicators, green shoots are visible and we may see the current account becoming positive by the end of the financial year. But the RBI will remove the excess supply of the dollars as the government wants to boost exports. So, the intention of the policy makers would likely be prevention in the appreciation of the rupee."

"The rupee would trade between 74 and 74.25 in the short-term and between 73.75 and 74.50 in the long term," added Khajuria.

The country's foreign exchange reserves rose by $183 million to touch a record high of $560.715 billion in the week ended October 30, RBI data showed.

Industrial output leaves contraction zone in September

FC BUREAU NEW DELHI, NOV. 12

The country's industrial output moved back to positive territory after six months contraction to clock a modest 0.2 per cent year-on-year (YoY) growth in September, while retail inflation inched up to 7.61 per cent in October, over elevated food prices, government data released on Thursday showed.

The rise in industrial output, measured by the Index of Industrial Production (IIP), is significant when contrasted against 8 per cent contraction in August and 4.6 per cent contraction a year ago in September 2019.

"With the gradual relaxation of restrictions, there has been a relative improvement in economic activity by varying degrees as well as in data reporting," the government said in a statement, adding that it may not be appropriate to compare the IIP in the post-pandemic months with the IIP for months preceding the Covid-19 pandemic.

"The September IIP growth was marked by a positive rise in both electricity and mining whilst the key category of manufacturing is still in the negative territory, registering a decline of 0.6 per cent. The speedy recovery is cushioned by a turnaround in the core sector output which shrunk at its slowest pace at 0.8 per cent this fiscal," the release said.

As the core sector output constitutes over 40 per cent of the IIP, the output of mining and power segments grew by 1.4 per cent and 4.9 per cent, respectively.

Joseph Thomas, head of research, Emkay Wealth Management, said, "The IIP is almost flat at 0.20 per cent, from a deeply negative number for the period before that there is some economic recovery happening at present, but the price level too is rising. To sustain the early gains in recovery, control of the price level is critical."

As per data, the retail inflation stood at 7.61 per cent in October against 7.27 per cent in September. It was at 4.62 per cent in October 2019.

In October, inflation in meat and fish rose to 18.7 per cent while vegetable prices rose 22.51 per cent.

"This may have an impact on the trajectory of interest rates, and RBI may have to continue to focus on liquidity provision rather than rate action... Persistently high inflation could invite action from the RBI by way of even reducing the free liquidity," Thomas said.

SINGAPORE PLANS NEW VISA TO DRAW TOP GLOBAL TECH TALENT

YOOLIM LEE NOV. 12

Singapore is rolling out the red carpet for top talent, launching a program to initially attract 500 individuals with a proven track record of contributing to the global technology ecosystem.

Under the so-called Tech.Pass programme, qualified individuals will be able to secure a new type of visa, allowing them to start and operate more than one company and become an investor; consultant or mentor for local startups, according to the Economic Development Board. This offers more flexibility than current government regulations, which require firms to sponsor an employment pass for talent they want to bring in.

The two-year visa isn't designed for mid-tier tech workers who might compete with locals for jobs, a political issue that has prompted the government to tighten its framework for issuing employment passes to foreigners this year. It's targeted at highly accomplished entrepreneurs and technical experts who can bring in capital, networks and knowhow, as Singapore aims to become the region's technology and innovation hub.

"Tech.Pass will add to the critical mass of established tech talent in Singapore and create a flywheel effect to further strengthen our position as a leading tech hub for the region," minister of trade and industry Chan Chun Sing said.

Finland pip France

Forss, Onni spoil Thuram's party; Portugal rock Andorra

Paris, Nov. 12: Finland spoiled Marcus Thuram's party on Wednesday after beating France 2-0 on the day the Borussia Moenchengladbach attacker emulated his father Lilian Thuram by making his debut for Les Bleus.

Thuram was picked by Didier Deschamps for the friendly at the Stade de France over 22 years after his dad won the World Cup at the same ground, but despite a strong performance on the left wing could not stop the Finns from coming out on top.

The 23-year-old hit the bar with less 15 minutes gone and soon after flashed a difficult volley over as he and Lucas Digne caused continual problems down the left flank for the away side.

However, Marcus Forss stunned the hosts when he collected the ball after a Moussa Sissoko mistake and rammed home at Steve Mandanda's near post.

France barely had any time to react before Onni Valakari doubled the away side's lead with a stunning effort after being left to stroll towards goal.

RONALDO CONTINUES GOAL QUEST

Cristiano Ronaldo continued his quest to snatch the all-time record for most international goals when he struck his 102nd Portugal goal in their in a 7-0 win over Andorra.

Pulinho netted brace as Pedro, Sanches, Felix scored one goal each to get past Andorra.

France's opponents on Saturday in what could be a Nations League 'A', Group 3 decider strolled past their weak opponents in Lisbon despite not starting a single player from the team that beat Sweden 3-0 last month.

Ronaldo missed that match after testing positive for Coronavirus and was introduced at half-time on Wednesday, but had to wait until there were only five minutes remaining to boost his record bid with a close-range header.

Former Iran striker Ali Daei holds the record on 109 goals.

Leuven (Belgium), Nov. 12: Striker Michy Batshuayi scored twice to help a makeshift Belgium side come from behind to beat Switzerland 2-1 in a friendly game.

Batshuayi showed clinical efficiency to convert Belgium's two best chances in the second half after Switzerland deservedly took the lead with an early goal that rewarded its intense pressing.

Ahead of upcoming Nations League matches against England and Denmark, Belgium coach Roberto Martinez played mostly his backups and handed debuts to youngsters Dodi Lukebakio, Hannes Delcroix and Charles De Ketelaere.

Regular starters Kevin De Bruyne, Dries Mertens and Romelu Lukaku were rested. FIFA's top-ranked team was also without Real Madrid star Eden Hazard, who remained quarantined in Spain following a positive Covid-19 test. Switzerland pressed high in the early stages and took the lead in the 12th minute following a defensive error from Sebastiaan Bornauw, who failed to control a long ball and headed it back into the path of Admir Mehmedi. — AFP

Team India reach Sydney for series

Captain Kohli, who will return home after the opening Day/Night Test in Adelaide (from December 17 - December 21) for the birth of his first child in early January, is set to get a special treatment during quarantine period, according to a report in Daily Telegraph.

The Pullman Hotel where the Indian team would put up for next two weeks was also the base for rugby side New South Wales Blues, who have now shifted to another hotel.
