Biden vows to reform H-1B visas

Washington: If voted to power in the November general elections, a Biden administration will reform the H-1B visa system and work towards eliminating the country-quota for Green Cards, his campaign said on Saturday, in a move to woo the influential Indian-American community. The H-1B visa is a non-immigrant visa that allows US companies to employ foreign workers in speciality occupations. ■ Full report on Page 9

Tanks brim, officials put on high alert

KCR orders setting up of two control rooms in Hyderabad to monitor situation

S.A. ISHAQUI | DC HYDERABAD, AUG. 15

With several areas in the state experiencing two days of rain and more downpours forecast, Chief Minister K. Chandrashekar Rao instructed the state administration to be on high alert to tackle any flood that may occur. Due to the continuous rains, several streams and rivulets were in spate and breaches to water bodies had been reported. Water-logging continued on the roads in urban areas at many places.

Reviewing the situation at Pragathi Bhavan on Saturday, the Chief Minister instructed officials to establish two control rooms in Hyderabad immediately to monitor the situation and press into service two helicopters, including one from the defence services, for rescue and relief operations. He said the State Disaster Response Force teams must be kept ready.

He told ministers to stay in their districts and monitor the situation along with the collector, the police and other officials. He interacted with several ministers, Chief Secretary Somesh Kumar and DGP M. Mahender Reddy over the telephone. He said there was a severe threat of inundation due to overflowing tanks especially in the erstwhile districts of Warangal and Karimnagar.

In Siddipet district, a lorry driver was washed away in a stream at Basavapur village when his lorry was stranded in flood waters. Locals rescued the cleaner. Ten farmers of Kundanpally village of Tekumatla mandal in Jayashankar Bhupalpally district who were stranded in floodwaters were rescued by an NDRF helicopter.

Interior villages in the erstwhile Warangal have been cut off with the roads inundated. At Medaram, the Jampanna Vagu is overflowing. Most of the village got inundated.

Heavy rains inundate many areas in Hyderabad

MADDY DEEKSHITH | DC HYDERABAD, AUG. 15

Several areas in the city, including Banjara Hills and Jubilee Hills, were inundated following two days of rain. The inundation was intense in Panjagutta, Ameerpet, Khairatabad, Basheerbagh, Hyderguda, Koti, Begum Bazar, Abids, Nampally, Himayathnagar, SR Nagar, Madhapur, Gachibowli, Raidurg, Kukatpally and Lakdikapul. Not only low-lying areas but even those on higher ground came under water.

Indian Meteorological Department-Hyderabad has predicted that incessant rains would continue for the next three days and the city seems set for a long haul. While this is so, this correspondent saw only a few officials out on the field to address public grievances and resolve the inundation problem.

With a poor drainage network, the city cannot sustain 2 cm rainfall in 24 hours. About 600 officially identified structures are listed unsafe and the ground has been dug to construct buildings in many areas, posing a grave threat to residents living in the adjacent buildings. Kumar, in the statement, communicated from the town planning department, said field visits must be undertaken to check dilapidated structures. In case of most dangerous structures, advanced precautionary measures should be about inmates being vacated.

AICTE: Colleges from Sept. 1

HARLEEN MINOCHA | DC HYDERABAD, AUG. 15

The All India Council for Technical Education (AICTE), the statutory body at the national level for technical education, has released its revised academic calendar for all AICTE-approved institutes and universities for starting online, offline or blended education while following the prescribed protocols and guidelines related to Covid-19.

As per this latest calendar, the last date for commencement of classes for existing students in technical courses, except PGDM/PGCM, is September 1. The date will be November 1 for commencement of classes for second year courses, including lateral entry of newly admitted students. The AICTE said the last date up to which students can be admitted against vacancies would be November 15. The first round of counseling and admission for allotment of seats should be completed by October 20 and the second round must be over by November 1. In case of cancellation with full refund, November 10 would be the last date for technical courses and August 17 for

P G D M / P G C M . Admissions to PGDM/PGCM will end on August 25.

The council said institutions that have already started classes as per the earlier calendar should either postpone their classes or conduct special classes for students, who will have to appear for final year examination of their graduation / diploma.

LJP CALLS MEET AMIDST RIFT WITH JD(U)

NAYEAR AZAD | DC PATNA, AUG. 15

Lok Janshakti Party chief Chirag Paswan on Saturday chaired an emergency meeting with party leaders in Patna to discuss political strategies, triggering speculation in political circles about the widening rift between the LJP and the JD(U).

"Every meeting is crucial as there are so many issues in Bihar that need to be addressed. This meeting was called to discuss floods and Covid-19 crisis," the LJP chief said ahead of the meeting. According to sources, however, LJP leaders were asked to strengthen the party's voter base in the state in view of Assembly polls slated to be held later this year. On many occasions earlier senior leaders have said that the party is preparing to contest on all 243 seats.

LJP insiders told this newspaper that party chief Chirag Paswan has been upset with JD(U) leaders for equating him with "Kalidas". They said "he discussed the issue with party leaders and may call another round of meeting soon where he will take some important decisions".

Contractors cite repairs, throw out wet, dry bins

DC CORRESPONDENT HYDERABAD, AUG. 15

Contractors tasked with repairing footpaths have removed the wet and dry garbage bins installed alongside roads in many commercial areas and dumped them aside as trash. As a result, garbage, including surgical masks, is being dumped on roads. The GHMC was supposed to install the twin bins at a distance of 50-100 metres along the roads in prime areas.

The corporation spent about ₹3 crore of corporate social responsibility funds to install over 3 lakh twin bins. It also laid about 240 km of footpaths.

The twin bins which were removed on Sarojini Devi Road in Secunderabad on Saturday.

Since then, the civic body, along with Hyderabad Road Development Corporation and TS Industrial Infrastructure

Corporation, decided to lay 1,100 km of roads at an estimated cost of ₹1,800 crore. It also decided to lay new pavements.

Captain Cool scored 17,266 runs in 538 matches, effected 829 dismissals

Dhoni, winner of 2 World Cups, retires

MOSES KONDETY | DC HYDERABAD, AUG. 15

Mahendra Singh Dhoni left the international cricket field just as he had arrived – in a flash. The hugely successful former Indian captain announced his retirement from the game on his Instagram page on Independence Day. The Finisher is finished with international cricket. No big pressers. No fanfare. No farewell game. He quietly walked out the door.

"Thanks a lot for ur love and support throughout. From 1929 hrs consider me as Retired," he wrote on his social media page. The 39-year-old last played in India's World Cup semifinal defeat to New Zealand at Manchester in July 2019. Dhoni had made a relatively slow 50 before he was ironically run out.

M.S. Dhoni

Post that performance, much of talk in cricket circles revolved around his selection for the now-postponed Twenty20 World Cup. The big event being pushed to next year may have influenced the ageing Dhoni's decision to call it quits after 14-and-a-half years of international cricket during which he played 538 matches and scored 17,266 runs, frequently finishing games with a flourish that earned him the nicknames – The Finisher and Captain Cool.

Dhoni lived up to those titles by winning the T20 World Cup on his captaincy debut in 2007, the ODI World Cup in 2011, the Champions Trophy in 2013 and leading India to the No.1 rank in Tests in 2009. As a wicketkeeper, he effected 829 dismissals. Dhoni rose to fame with his first century in Visakhapatnam in 2005, his whirlwind 148 in 123 balls which contained 15 boundaries and four sixes blowing Pakistan away.

The Chennai Super Kings captain will continue to play in the IPL though, as would his teammate Suresh Raina, who followed his good friend into announcing his retirement on Saturday, after 13 years of international cricket. Raina played his 322nd and last match for India (an ODI against England) at Leeds in July 2018.

LAC to LoC, forces firm in reply: PM

I-Day speech focuses on making nation self-reliant

DC CORRESPONDENT NEW DELHI, AUG. 15

"From LoC to LAC," India's soldiers have given a fitting reply to all those who have challenged the country's sovereignty, Prime Minister Narendra Modi said in his Independence Day address from the ramparts of the Red Fort, in what was a clear reference to China and Pakistan.

"From LoC (Line of Control) to LAC (Line of Actual Control), whenever India's sovereignty has been challenged, our soldiers have answered them in their own language," he said in his address to the nation on its 74th Independence Day. He did not name either China or Pakistan. Referring to the clash with China in June at Galwan Valley in Ladakh, Modi said, "India's integrity is supreme for us. What our jawans can do, what the country can do, the world saw that in Ladakh. I salute all those brave soldiers."

Twenty soldiers were killed in the clash with Chinese on June 15. With talks on de-escalation deadlocked, the PM's words were seen as a strong warning to China. Whether it is terrorism or expansionism, India is fighting both, the Prime Minister said. "Today the world stands with India and to get 184 votes out of 192 nations in the UN for a (non-permanent) seat at the UN Security Council is proof," he said.

Modi, wearing a saffron and white safi with a matching scarf that he used as a mask, signifying that the occasion was being celebrated amid the Covid-19 pandemic, addressed the nation from the Red Fort for the seventh consecutive year. The speech lasted almost 90 minutes.

While paying tribute to those on the front-lines of the fight against Coronavirus, he said as the nation fights the pandemic, Atmanirbhar Bharat has captured people's

Telangana and Andhra: Different struggles with one aim, Independence

N. Ramchander Rao

The struggle for Indian freedom which spans over 100 years is one of the momentous episodes in the history of human civilisation since the concept of India as a single political entity was new and, notwithstanding the cultural concomitance, to hold the people who were spread over different independent provinces was n't easy.

Given the geo-cultural complexities and diversities of the nation, many stories related to the freedom struggle did not get the prominence they deserve. For instance, the Indigo revolt of Bengal. On the same lines, the contributions of the two Telugu states did not get adequate focus commensurate with the efforts. A large chunk of Andhra was then part of the Madras province while Telangana region was part of the Hyderabad samsthan.

It is interesting to note that the East India Company started acquiring huge extant land between 1757 and 1857. The battle of Padmanabha in 1794 brought the Vijayanagara samsthan under the British rule. The zamindars of the regions mostly supported by the tribals (the present AOC area) fought the British. It is important to note that this region proved a thorn for the British, for the protests continued till 1947 although sporadically. One major revolt was recorded during the 1830s.

The inspiration was so intense that by 1892 Congress committees took root in almost all the districts of Andhra Pradesh although Krishna, Visakhapatnam and Nellore remained the epicentres.

The phenomenal Alluri Sitarama Raju unleashed one of the greatest revolts from this area. The issue may not have been complete freedom but it was certainly against foreign rule and British authoritarianism. That foreign rule created a sense of resentment was evident in the intensity of anger.

The formation of the Congress in 1885, which many historians feel is the beginning of Indian nationalism, impacted the Telugu region. There was a delegation from Andhra which took part in the first session of the Congress in 1885. The inspiration was so intense that by 1892 Congress committees took root in almost all the districts of Andhra Pradesh although Krishna, Visakhapatnam and Nellore remained the epicentres.

The partition of Bengal and the Congress opposition to it found resonance as leaders like Komarraju Laxman Rao and Gadicherla Hanumatha Rao led the movement against the partition.

Alongside, the Andhra region, which witnessed rapid growth of English educational institutions, also saw the spread of newspapers. Andhra Patrika of Kashinaduni Nageswara Rao and Krishna Patrika of Mutmuri Krishna Rao played an important role in spreading the message of freedom and uniting the people. The influence of Gandhi on the minds of the people of Andhra was phenomenal compared to his impact in Telangana. The man and his message reverberated in every village. The people, singing Kollayi Kattitenemi (what if he wore a loin cloth), followed him.

Vijayawada hosted the Congress meet in 1920 where Gandhi was present and leaders like Duggirala Gopala Krishnaiah, Pattabhi Sitaramayya and Konda Venakatappaiah shot to prominence. The Congress grew stronger riding on the magic of the Mahatma. Gandhi's periodic visits sustained the momentum. He visited Nellore in 1921 for awareness against discrimination of Harijans as his strategy was multi-pronged, to fight the external enemy and cleanse the country of internal maladies.

The regions witnessed largescale protests against the Simon Commission in 1927 and the protests reached their crescendo in Ongole when Tanguturi Prakasham Pantulu dared the British to shoot him. The civil disobedience movement was also a huge success. The Quit India movement in 1942 witnessed enthusiastic participation. The 'Kurnool circular' issued by the Kurnool Congress office which defined a comprehensive action plan against the British in the region left a great impact. The momentum continued till 1947. The story of Telangana was slightly different. The focus was on fighting the discriminatory policies of the Nizam and to bring about awareness amongst the people to be part of the fight against the British. The initial strides came from Muslims. It was in 1857, Turrebaz Khan who protested against the British by hoisting the National Flag in front of the British Residency at Koti. He was subsequently shot by the British. He became popular as Turram Khan.

The Congress committee was formed in 1888 by Mulla Abdul Qayyum who was a rebel against the Nizam and the British. Nizam was a provincial Governor of the British. As the Nizam was supported by jagirdars, who held huge extents of land and villages, the anger was primarily against the jagirdars and the Nizam. So, it took a while for nationalist sentiment and the magic of Gandhi to percolate. In 1892, the Arya Samaj was started. The movement, although spiritual, spread the nationalist sentiment. The formation of Andhra Jan Sangham in 1924 led by Madapati Hanumatha Rao was explicitly to promote Telugu educational institutions but to actually unite the people against the Nizam and the British. It found impetus in the formation of Andhra Maha Sabha in 1930. Madapati and Ravi Narayana Reddy played a crucial role in spreading the nationalist sentiment. The Hyderabad Congress became active from 1938 led by Marri Chenna Reddy and P.V. Narasimha Rao. Vandemataram Ramachandra Rao, an activist of the Arya Samaj, courted arrest in Osmania University. Alongside, Ramananda Tirtha who attended the Bombay session of the Congress came back to launch the Quit India movement. From 1946 onwards, it was the people's revolt against the Nizam and the Razakars.

PV ran guns to fight against the Razakars

N.V. Subhash

P.V. Narasimha Rao, former prime minister of India, was always against autocracy and the feudal system prevalent during the Nizam's regime. He detested human right violations. He used to get disturbed seeing the rampant poverty, illiteracy and ignorance around him.

As a student, he was greatly influenced by the struggle for Independence against the British in other parts of the country. He wished for a similar struggle against the Nizam to liberate the people from tyranny.

As a student of Osmania University, Narasimha Rao along with a few others recited the Vande Mataram as a token of defiance against the Nizam. Since reciting the Vande Mataram was banned, he was rusticated from the college.

That was when he decided that he should move out of Hyderabad State. He pursued his education in Nagpur and Pune. He came in contact with national leaders and was greatly influenced by their call for defiance against the British. After he graduated in law from Nagpur University, he returned to Hyderabad. He worked in the office of Burgula Ramakrishna Rao, then a famous lawyer and later Chief Minister of Hyderabad State and Governor of Uttar Pradesh and Kerala, as his junior for a short period.

In 1938, the Hyderabad Congress Committee was formed and Swami Ramananda Tirtha took over as its president. He was a revolutionary and aggressively spearheaded the anti-Nizam movement. Narasimha Rao was attracted to the movement. As the Congress was banned in Hyderabad State, Narasimha Rao had to work undercover. He turned out to be a fiery revolutionary, supplying arms and ammunition to activists in the frontline.

Post-Independence, the Razakars created havoc in the villages, resorting to plunder, rape and murder. To fight them, Narasimha Rao shifted his operations to the Chanda camp, where training was imparted to activists in the use of arms and ammunition. Narasimha Rao was active in this camp for over a year.

Swami Ramananda Tirtha and other leaders of the state impressed upon Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel that Hyderabad State should be merged with the rest of India. A separate country could not be carved out as the Nizam had demanded. The autocratic rule of the Nizam should end and democracy should prevail. Police action was ordered and Hyderabad State was merged with India after Police Action. During this entire time, Narasimha Rao stood strongly with Swamiji.

Tanguturi Prakasam gave the rousing slogan, 'Simon, go back'

TANGUTURI PRAKASAM

Tanguturi Prakasam, a proud son of India, demonstrated exemplary valour by baring his chest and challenging soldiers of the British Army to shoot him, when they threatened to open fire if the surging demonstrators at a protest did not step back.

The British government, as part of its commitment to study Constitutional reforms, a decade after the Montagu-Chelmsford reforms, set up a commission headed by Sir John Simon and six British MPs. Indian freedom fighters were angered by the composition of the commission as it did not have a single Indian.

The commission faced hostility throughout India. When it reached Madras on February 3, 1928, the commission encountered protests led by Tanguturi Prakasam Pantulu. Prakasam coined the slogan "Simon, go back". His admirers felt the slogan was like a lion's roar and bestowed on him the title Andhra Kesari (Lion of Andhra).

Born to Subbamma and Gopalakrishnayya in Vonidarayunipalem near Ongole — the district is now named after him — on August 23, 1872, Prakasam went to Rajahmundry along with his teacher E. Hanumantha Rao Naidu.

He then went to England, trained as a barrister and returned to Madras. He became a successful lawyer. He also served as municipal chairman of Rajahmundry in 1904, when he was barely 31.

He travelled across the length and breadth of India and participated in many an agitation against British rule. He launched and worked as the Editor of Swarajya magazine. Its publication had to be suspended twice. Prakasam Pantulu was jailed for over three years for participating in the Quit India movement.

Prakasam Pantulu became Prime Minister of the Madras Presidency after the victory of the Congress in the elections, on April 30, 1946. He later resigned on the instructions of Mahatma Gandhi. After the formation of Andhra State on October 1, 1953, he became Chief Minister, served for a year and resigned.

Prakasam Pantulu died on May 20, 1957, in Hyderabad.

Pattabhi, doctor-turned-banker, helmsman in the Congress

DR PATTABHI SITARAMAYYA

Dr. Bhogaraju Pattabhi Sitaramayya was an Andhra leader who rose to prominence during the freedom struggle with his close association with Mahatma Gandhi and as a founder of financial institutions. He served as Congress president and worked as Governor of Madhya Pradesh. He founded the Andhra Bank, which is now being merged with the Union Bank of India, with Machilipatnam as its headquarters in 1923. He launched the Andhra Insurance Company, the Krishna District Cooperative Bank and the Bhagyalakshmi Bank.

Pattabhi, as he is popularly known, was born on November 24, 1880, at Gundugolanu in West Godavari district (then in Krishna district) and graduated in medicine (MBCM) from Madras Christian College and began practice in Machilipatnam. He was attracted to the freedom struggle in 1912 and gave up his lucrative practice to join the independence movement. With the support of Bal Gangadhar Tilak, Pattabhi realised his wish of having a separate Andhra Congress Committee, despite opposition from Mahatma Gandhi. Pattabhi served as president of the Andhra Provincial Committee of the Congress and as a member of the Congress Working Committee. In spite of Mahatma Gandhi's support, Pattabhi lost to Netaji Subhas Chandra Bose in the elections held for the Indian National Congress presidency in 1939.

Gandhiji owned up responsibility for the electoral loss of Pattabhi. Pattabhi, who was a staunch votary of a separate Telugu State and was in favour of reorganising states on linguistic basis, changed tack after India became independent. He was part of the committee including Jawaharlal Nehru and Vallabhbhai Patel that rejected the reorganisation of states on linguistic basis. In the post-Independence era, Pattabhi was elected president of the All India Congress Committee in 1948 with the support of Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru. He was a member of the Constituent Assembly headed by Babu Rajendra Prasad and he elected to the Rajya Sabha. Pattabhi was imprisoned for over three years during the Quit India movement and authored a prison diary, Feathers and Stones, and published it. He died on December 17, 1959.

Alluri's guerrilla warfare had British on tenterhooks

ALLURI SITARAMA RAJU

The tribes began rallying behind Sitarama Raju who launched a rebellion against the British, with trained activists looting British properties

Alluri Sitarama Raju was killed when he was just 26, but he lives on in the hearts of Indians. He kindled a sense of nationalism among the so-called 'primitive' tribal groups and led them from the front in the struggle against the British.

Born in West Godavari district of Andhra Pradesh to Venkatarama Raju and Suryanarayanamma, he inspired the tribals by demonstrating extraordinary skills of leadership. As he wandered in the forest area around the Godavari, tribal groups flocked to him.

Much before he was born, the British government had promulgated the Madras Forests Act, 1882, preventing tribals from free movement and cultivating forest land.

Tribals used to practise 'shifting agriculture' within the forest. The British government began to exploit the forests, leading to the loss of earning and starvation among the tribals.

People in the forests were engaged by the government for labour for a paltry remuneration. As the tribal landlords were stripped of their hereditary rights, they were reduced to being government agents to collect taxes. This led to the unification of the erstwhile haves and the traditional have-nots against the colonial regime.

Alluri Sitarama Raju mustered the support of both groups against the British. Even though the haves were not completely in agreement with the rules of Sitarama Raju, they agreed to comply with the tenets of the revolution he was spearheading.

The tribes began rallying behind Sitarama Raju who launched a rebellion against the British, with trained activists looting British properties and attacking police stations of Krishna Devi Peta, Chintapalli in Visakhapatnam district and Rajavommangi in East Godavari district. The looting of police stations helped the revolutionary groups acquire guns and ammunition.

This emboldened the tribals who began to flock to Raju and his private army gained strength. They killed a British police officer and challenged the supremacy of the British. Tackling Sitarama Raju and his army wasn't easy for the British as the spread of the tribal people in the forests and the hilly terrain made it difficult for them to identify the hideouts. Sitarama Raju adopted guerrilla warfare against the British police.

The private army led by the "manyam hero" (the hero in the forests is called manyam) fortified its support base through the attacks and killing of police personnel. Police stations in the East

British killed Hanumanthu for protesting against Pullari tax

KANNEGANTI HANUMANTHU

Kanneganti Hanumanthu shot into the limelight when he defied the Pullari Act of the British Raj. This Act was meant to collect tax from plain-dwellers, just as tax was levied on the 'primitive' tribal groups in the forests. He led the freedom struggle in Palnadu area of Guntur district.

Born in 1870, Hanumanthu lived for barely 50 years. He was born to Venkataiah and Achemma in Minchalapadu village of Durgi mandal in the Palnadu area. When people refused to pay the Pullari tax and agitated against the British rule under the leadership of Hanumanthu, the British collector Rutherford brutally suppressed it. Hanumanthu led the agitation in a peaceful manner, following the Gandhian principle of Ahimsa.

The British levied the Pullari tax on collecting twigs and grazing animals. Inspired by the non-cooperation movement of Mahatma Gandhi, Hanumanthu gave a clarion call to the people of the Palnadu not to pay the Pullari tax. He questioned the propriety of the British regime in levying the tax.

Enraged by the suppression of the agitation and oppression of the people by the British, Hanumanthu formed a small army, giving a quiet go-by to the peaceful agitation. The British lured some traitors to clandestinely track Hanumanthu's movements. However, people could foil the spies and protect Hanumanthu.

The British lured him with lucre and power by appointing him zamindar so that he could collect taxes at will, but Hanumanthu rejected the offer. However, when he learnt that Gandhiji had withdrawn the non-cooperation movement, Hanumanthu sent word to the British that he was ready to pay the Pullari tax on behalf of all the villagers.

When the villagers were heading towards a local festival at Kotappakonda, British troops surrounded them and began hitting them with the butts of their rifles. Hanumanthu reached the scene and urged the police not to torture the people and that he was ready to pay the tax.

The troops took orders from their bosses and opened fire. Hanumanthu was alive for six more hours raising the Vande Mataram slogan. Towards midnight, when he breathed his last, the British Army buried the bodies of Hanumanthu and two others at Kolaguntla.

Turrebaz Khan, Moulvi Allauddin set out to blast British Residency

ATHER MOIN | DC

Has pix of memorial, street named after him, british residency building. In Hyderabad, 'Turum Khan' is someone who shows unprecedented valour. Very few know how the term came to be. According to historians, the term refers to Turrebaz Khan, the unsung hero of the freedom struggle who was martyred by the British for attacking the British Residency, now the Women's College, in Sultan Bazaar.

Turrebaz Khan, son of Rustum Khan of Begum Bazaar, laid down his life fighting British occupation. His birth date is not known, but his death anniversary is observed on January 24 by a group of people who are aware of his valour.

After the Nizam signed the Treaty of Subsidiary Alliance with the East India Company in 1800, there were bouts of anti-British rebellions till 1857, led notably by Raja Mahipat Ram, Mubarez-ud-Dowlah, Moulvi Allauddin, and Turrebaz Khan. Within the Nizam's Army and the Subsidiary Troops of East India Company, men revolted against British officers.

Afzal ad-Dawlah Asaf Jah V Mir Tahniyath Ali Khan ascended the throne on May 18, 1857, after the death of his father; just days after the First War of Independence had started in the north.

There was an uprising amongst the Indian troops of the Hyderabad Contingent's 3rd Cavalry on their way to Aurangabad. The troops refused to go further, fearing that they would be asked to march north to fight against their fellow Indian soldiers. Subedar Cheeda Khan revolted and fled with 15 others to Hyderabad.

This uprising was overcome tactfully and a number of soldiers were arrested, put to trial by court martial, and given deterrent punishments including execution and transportation to the Andaman Island. Cheeda Khan was arrested within a few days by the Nizam's Prime Minister Salar Jung I, who handed him over to the Resident as he was a British soldier. He was imprisoned and tried inside the Residency building.

This incident inflamed the anti-British sentiment in Hyderabad and inflammatory placards appeared all over the city, exhorting people, especially Muslims, to rise in the name of God and his Prophet. They ridiculed the Nizam V and warned him and Salar Jung I that if they did not join the movement, they would be overthrown.

In July 1857, when the imam rose to deliver his Friday sermon in the Macca Masjid, he was heckled by some members of the congregation. Later, Moulvi Allauddin delivered a fervent speech. The congregation wanted to free Cheeda Khan. The crowd was about to break into a riot, but the Kotwal (the then police commissioner) managed to arrest the ringleaders and make good his own escape.

Later in the afternoon, Turrebaz Khan along with Moulvi Allauddin, led a band of soldiers, Rohillas of Afghan descent and Arab rebels, and mounted an armed attack on the Residency on July 17, 1857. At 5.45 pm, about 500 Rohillas marched towards British Resident Col. Cuthbert Davidson's 'kothi'.

They took positions in two houses belonging to moneylenders Abban Sahab and Jaigopal Das and opened fire at the Residency. They brought down the walls of one Azim Ali Khan's house and tore off the hinges of the entrance near Putli Bowli as their comrades gave covering fire from the two double-storey houses.

The Salar Jung had alerted the Resident that about 500 Rohillas had broken loose from the walled city and were headed for the Residency. Col. Davidson had taken precautions. The British troops who were led by Major S.C. Briggs opened up with their artillery guns, kept ready by the Resident. Soldiers of the Madras Horse Artillery continued firing their cannons from the walls of the kothi till dawn.

The Rohillas, not well-equipped with arms and ammunition, fled under the cover of darkness, leaving behind four bodies. According to some reports, 30 fighters were killed in that onslaught. Moulvi Allauddin was injured in firing from the Residency.

Turrebaz Khan and Moulvi Allauddin escaped and they were declared offenders. A prize of 5,000 rupees each was announced for information about their whereabouts. Turrebaz Khan was taken prisoner on July 22. He managed to escape from jail on January 18, 1859, before he could be sent to 'Kalapani ki saza'. He was once again captured near Toopran and shot dead by British soldiers. Historians believe that he was caught on January 24, 1859, in the forests of Toopran by armed men led by talukdar Mirza Qurban Ali Baig who was duly rewarded.

Turrebaz Khan's body was brought to the city and hung by chains on a tree near the Residency building to serve as a deterrent to the people at large.

Moulvi Allauddin was captured near Manglumpally and sentenced to deportation to the Andamans where he died in 1884. The houses of Abban Sahab and Jaigopal Das were blown up.

To mark the revolt of 1857, a memorial with the inscription 'Memorial to the martyrs of July 17, 1857' was erected near the Koti bus station. Turrebaz Khan's name is engraved on the plaque. The stretch from Koti Women's College to Osmania Medical College Road was named after Turrebaz Khan.

With inputs from Affan Quadri, secretary, Mehr Organisation, whose book, Muslim Mujahideen-e-Azadi on India's freedom fighters will be released next year.

NARASIMHA REDDY STRUCK TERROR IN BRITISH HEARTS

D. SIVA RAMI REDDY | DC

Uyyalawada Narasimha Reddy of Kurnool district rebelled against British with an army of 5,000 soldiers to protest the new revenue system that plundered the peasants. He was captured and beheaded on February 22, 1847, and his head hung at the Koilkuntla treasury for 10 years to deter others from following his path.

Son of a palegaadu, Mallareddy, and Seethamma, Narasimha Reddy was born in Rupanagudi village, Uyyalawada mandal, on November 24, 1806. He and his commander-in-chief Vadde Obanna were at the heart of the rebellion against the East India Company in 1847.

The Company had introduced changes to the traditional agrarian system by bringing in the ryotwari system to maximise revenue by exploiting cultivators, depleting their crops and leaving them impoverished.

Narasimha Reddy had a following among 68 villages in Nossam, Koilkuntla, Kadapa and parts of Anantapur areas.

After skirmishes with the British, Reddy was beheaded in 1847 at the Koilkuntla treasury for plundering it, 10 years before the 1857 War.

The British were so terrified of the rebellious nature of Narasimha Reddy and his followers that with a view to creating terror among the people, they publicly displayed his severed head at the treasury for 10 years.

Rupanagudi Prabhakar Reddy, a fourth generation descendant of Krishna Reddy, the brother of Narasimha Reddy, said the government should honour his memory.

Sarojini Devi: The Nightingale of India

Dr. MALLADI KRISHNANAND

Sarojini Naidu, one of the key leaders of the freedom struggle, was born and brought up in Hyderabad. Her house, Golden Threshold, is located near Hyderabad district collectorate, on the Abids-Nampally road, is a simple but elegant construction and has been dedicated to the nation.

Sarojini Naidu's father Aghoranath Chatopadhyaya served at the Nizam College, the first Indian professor there. Sarojini who was called the Nightingale of India was born in Hyderabad on February 13, 1879. Besides being a social activist and political leader, she was also a poet. Sarojini Naidu's poetry covers a vast range from children's rhymes to patriotism, romance and tragedy. She began writing at the age of 12 and her poem In the Bazaars of Hyderabad is one of the best known of her works.

She brought out a collection of 40 poems under the title The Golden Threshold, in 1909. When she built the house at Abids, she named it after her book. In those days, The Golden Threshold was the centre of many reformist ideas in areas like marriage, education, women's empowerment, literature and specifically nationalism.

Sarojini Naidu after matriculation left for England and joined the King's College and later the Girtton College, Cambridge, with financial support from Nizam VI Mahbub Ali Khan. After her studies, at the age of 19 she married Govindarajulu Naidu, a physician. She joined the Independence struggle in the wake of the partition of Bengal in 1905.

Sarojini Naidu participated in many of Gandhiji's satyagraha movements. She was the first Indian woman to preside over the 1925 session of the Indian National Congress at Sarojini Naidu with Mahatma Gandhi.

Kanpur.

She was imprisoned many times during the freedom struggle and spent about two years in various jails. After Independence, she was appointed as Governor of Uttar Pradesh and remained in office until her death on March 22, 1949.

Her daughter Padmaja Naidu dedicated The Golden Threshold to the nation on November 17, 1975, and the building was handed over to the Hyderabad Central University by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi. Some of the articles collected by Sarojini Naidu during her lifetime were donated to the National Archaeological Museum and the Salar Jung Museum.

English writer and philosopher Aldus Huxley said Sarojini Naidu was a woman with great intellectual power with charm, sweetness with courageous energy, and earnestness with humour.

The writer has written two books, Mana Telugu Peddalu, the biographies of 241 Telugu personalities, and Heritage of Hyderabad, a compendium of historical, cultural and heritage structures. He is Chief Public Relations Officer, Hyderabad Metro Rail Ltd.

Makhdoom called for armed struggle against Nizam in 1947

AZIZ PASHA

Makhdoom Mohiuddin was a multi-dimensional personality who served the masses, especially the working class.

Born in Andol of Medak district on February 4, 1908, Makhdoom hailed from a religious family whose forefathers moved to the city from Azamgarh. He was four when his father died. His early childhood was one of poverty and he fed himself with three paise for breakfast and lunch was chakna-tandoori roti given by a mosque administration for cleaning the floor.

When he joined college, he lived in the basement of the Sultan Bazaar masjid along with his friend and earned his livelihood selling pictures of actresses. During his college days, he saw the British rule and got disillusioned with the Congress' non-violence.

The revolutionary poetry of Qazi Nazrul Islam brought a sea change in his outlook. Inspired by socialist ideals, he joined the Comrades Association which was a forerunner of the Communist movement in Hyderabad, and joined the party in 1939.

He started his trade union activity along with Raj Bahadur Gaur, mobilising workers in the Deccan Button Factory in Hussaini Alam. They used to earn two annas a day and Makhdoom called them satirically 'sehzade'. Within four years he had organised unions at Allwyn Factory, Asbestos Cement, Singareni mines, Charminar cigarette factory, Shahbad cement workers, Azamjahi Mills, Hutti gold mines, Nizam State Railways and RTC employees.

On August 16, 1946, the All Hyderabad Trade Union Congress was formed with Makhdoom as its first president.

When the Andhra Maha Sabha was formed to fight for civil liberties and against the tyrannical regime of the Nizam, Makhdoom along with Ravi Narayan Reddy and Baddam Yella Reddy gave a call for armed struggle in 1947. In his early days, Makhdoom wrote romantic poetry. After shifting to Hyderabad, inspired by Nazrul Islam and imbibing the class outlook, Makhdoom's poetry highlighted the injustices in society and exploitation in feudalism. His first collection of poems, Surkh Savera (Red Dawn), was published in 1944. After his return from Vienna, he wrote several poems which reflected the immense problems and exploitation faced by society. Jange-Azadi, Chand Taron la Bann, Haveli, Jahan-e-Nau and Chara Gar became very popular. He wrote Telangana in Bombay when he was underground.

LOW-KEY I-DAY IN TELANGANA DUE TO COVID-19

S.A. ISHAQUI | DC

HYDERABAD, AUG. 15

Chief Minister K. Chandrababbar Rao hoisted the National Flag at Pragathi Bhavan here on Saturday, in a low-key ceremony that did not have the usual State festivities.

Since the formation of Telangana state, the Independence Day festivities are customarily held at Golconda Fort, but that was not possible due to the Coronavirus pandemic.

There were a few guests at the event, including TRS Parliamentary Party leader Dr K. Keshav Rao, chief adviser Rajiv Sharma, Chief Secretary Somesh Kumar, DGP M. Mahendrar Reddy. The Chief Minister received a guard of honour from a small police force on the premises of his camp office.

The Chief Minister felicitated renowned poet (padya kavi) Tirunagari Ramanujam who was selected for the Dasarathi Krishnamacharya award. Rao presented him a shawl, a cash award of ₹1,01,116 award and a memento. Ramanujam, 75, has been active in the literary field for 50 years.

Rao described Ramanujam as a literary legend who made Telangana proud. "We believe that Tirunagari will continue the legacy of Dasarathi," he said. The works of Ramanujam such as Balaveera Satakam, Akshra Dhara and Tirungareeyam have found a permanent place in readers' hearts, he said.

"Tirunagari has knowledge about Sanskrit and traditions and is aware of the modern trends in literature. I wish and hope that he will remain in Telugu literature as an icon and also nurture it." The Chief Minister paid tributes at the Telangana Martyrs memorial at Gun Park opposite the Assembly.

RENOWNED POET (padya kavi) Tirunagari Ramanujam was felicitated.

Independence Day, through the eyes of a 12-year-old

BALU PULIPAKA | DC

For Mandhumula Narasimha Rao, all of 12 years on the midnight that ushered in the 15th of August in 1947, the radio broadcast was one that he will never forget. Now, 85 and retired, Narasimha Rao has "clear memories of that night."

"I heard Nehru on the radio that night. A radio was a luxury item those days. Few people had them and those that did had to get a licence to own one," he says. "I remember thinking 'from tonight I can do anything'."

Narasimha Rao lived in Narayanguda, and, that night, the place of choice to become a witness to history was the home of Baquer Ali Mirza, a friend of his father M. Narsing Rao, who later went on to become the first home minister of AP after Hyderabad State's merger with the Indian Union in 1950.

For Narasimha Rao, Mirza was a man who made a permanent impression. "I have not seen a more handsome man. He was tall, very fair and was from UP. And always with a cigar. Mirza was the intellectual type, reticent. Mirza later headed the Public Service Commission," Rao recalls. Though Mirza did not live very far away from where Rao did, Mirza had driven to his friend's house, picked up the family and drove them back to his house in an antique car. "We were witness to the Independence Day at his house," Narasimha Rao says.

M. Narasimha Rao

"I have very vivid memories of that day. And also, of the day Gandhi was killed."

Any thoughts of 'doing anything' he wanted, however, had to be put on hold for the time being. With his father running Ryot, a newspaper in Urdu that was vocal about Independence and against Hyderabad State continuing as an independent dominion inside India, life in the immediate years after August 15, 1947, were not the easiest. It was also the time when he "experienced terror" for the first time in his young life.

"It had become difficult to stay here. Father was friends with everyone. But Qasim Rizvi was different. The Nizam's government banned the paper because of its political stand. And it was the first time I experienced terror when at night, a group of people came and started pelting stones on our house," Narasimha Rao says.

The situation was getting worse by the day and his relatives used to come home every night so everyone could be together and feel safe.

"We moved to Vijayawada but father stayed back. Once we crossed the Hyderabad border, we felt safe," he recalls.

On how he felt when Hyderabad State merged with the Indian Union, Narasimha Rao says that the day did not feel as special as August 15, 1947. "By then we knew that India was independent. The fire was gone. It was an event that had to happen," Narasimha Rao says.

BRAVE RAIN TO
SAVE MANPULI SHARAT KUMAR | DC
KARIMNAGAR, AUG. 15

Huzurabad police late on Friday night saved the life of a person who was struck in the water flow following heavy rains that are continuing for the last few days.

Ginnarapu Mahendar (30), a resident of the Jupaka village of Huzurabad mandal, was stranded in the middle of the road and panic-stricken as there were no signs of any people to save him. But gaining courage he dialed Huzurabad inspector Madhavi and urged her to save him.

Braving the rain, she took a team and reached the spot and with the help of a rope they brought Mahendar from the water and dropped him at his house.

Meanwhile, learning the courageous feat of Madhavi and her team, Karimnagar Commissioner of Police V.B. Kamalasan Reddy announced rewards for them and assured to propose their names for selection of bravery award at state and national levels.

POLICE DENIES BEATING ADVASI,
ENQUIRY ORDEREDDC CORRESPONDENT
HYDERABAD, AUG. 15

Responding to a report in the Deccan Chronicle about an Adivasi being beaten up by the police on suspicion of helping Maoists, Adilabad superintendent of police Vishnu S. Warri-er said on Saturday that an investigation had been ordered. "A comprehensive enquiry is being conducted by police department for taking strict action if any police person misbehaved with the public," Warri-er said in a statement. He said the police was ready to conduct an open public enquiry based on the news report.

The report had said that Soyam Vikram, an Adivasi, had been beaten up by the police and then offered ₹10,000 for purification rituals as he had been kicked. The police had asked Vikram to wear an olive green uniform and run from his house. The womenfolk in the village had protected him.

Warrier also said that an enquiry was being conducted on the allegations of some persons of Chapral and Mattadiguda villages extending support to Maoists and warned that if the allegations are proved, "strict action will be taken against the violators of law and sympathizers of Maoist (sic)."

While denying any wrong doing on part of the police, Warri-er said that late in the night, the police had "observed some unusual movements around the village and they intercepted the person, who later revealed his name as Soyam Vikram, was questioned about his whereabouts and then released with no harm done to the individual."

He said Vikram, being an outsider, was not identified by "most" of the villagers. Warri-er said that the police "never enter any house of the Adivasi, wearing shoes."

No senior officer visited the village on this specific issue, he said, adding that the villagers were working closely with the department "on several fronts." The police is committed to the safety, security and welfare of Adivasi community, he said.

The police does not conduct fake encounters which are "completely against the professional standards" Warri-er said in the statement.

The police, he said, has taken up various "community policing" activities such as conducting medical camps, job melas, constructing bridges, conducting road repair works in interior villages to help Adivasis as well as to maintain cordial relations with the public.

WARANGAL, AUG. 15

Several interior villages got cut off across the old Warangal district due to the heavy rains since the past week.

All the water bodies have been overflowing and blocked the movement of vehicular movement on roads connecting villages.

In Mahbubabad district, all roads connecting Garla village were completely inundated.

Transport to Dornakal, Mahbubabad, Khammam, Bayyaram towns came to a standstill.

Six villages in Kesamudram and Gudur mandals were isolated as flood water is overflowing across the main roads.

The villagers were asked to remain indoors as the district administration takes up relief measures.

All water bodies in Mulugu and Jayashankar Bhupalpally districts are overflowing with water. Ramappa, Laknavaram and Ganapasamudram lakes are filled to the brim and breached their full capacity levels.

The water level at Laknavaram has risen as high as the hanging bridge. Several streams were fed flood water and they were overflowing across the roads.

At Medaram, the Jampanna vagu is overflowing with intensity. Most of the village is inundated and crops were completely drowned.

Movement of the villagers to other villages is obstructed.

Panchayat raj minister, Errabelli Dayakar Rao, asked villagers to remain indoors for the coming three days in view of the heavy rain forecast.

Meanwhile, the coal production by Singareni collieries Limited in Bhupalpally has come to a halt since the past five days. About 7,000 metric tonnes of coal production is affected.

Continuous heavy rainfall overnight in Warangal inundated several low-lying colonies in the tricity of Warangal, Hanamkonda and Kazipet on Saturday. Even the main thoroughfares got flooded obstructing the movement of traffic.

Several areas including Bhavaninagar, Nayeemnagar, Kishanpura, Ashoknagar, Underbridge, Sakarasiikunta, Kashikunta, SR Nagar, LB Nagar, Rangampeta, Mulugu road got completely inundated driving the residents out of their homes.

"We did not sleep the entire night. All our belongings including rice bags got wet due to the water. We had to spend the night on the terrace of the house shivering in the rain till morning," said

A huge neem tree got uprooted and fell on the road at the Circuit Guest House in Hanamkonda on Saturday.

Nagaraju, a resident of NTR nagar.

Locals blamed the construction of a new drainage canal near the Bhadrakali bund for the situation. The drainage passes through the colony got blocked and flooded the colony, they said.

Hundreds of residents in the low lying areas have been shifted to government relief centres on Saturday after water entered their houses due to the heavy rain overnight in Warangal.

Government Chief Whip Dasyam Vinay Bhaskar along with district collector Rajeev Gandhi Hanumanthu, on Saturday, inspected the flood situation in Warangal city and directed officials to take up relief measures. Accordingly, function halls were turned into rescue shelters and the locals were shifted to these centres and accommodated.

Mr Vinay Bhaskar asked the people to maintain Covid-19 protocol in the shelters and assured them that food would be provided to them until the situation gets better.

Several business establishments along the Hunter Road in Hanamkonda were flooded and the goods were damaged.

Vaddepalli Naresh, who runs a sanitary shop said all the material in the shop has got damp as floodwater entered the shop.

"Plastic material was floating everywhere in the storage area. My car which I parked behind the shop was under water," he said.

Ten farmers of Kundanpally village of Tekumatla mandal in Jayashankar Bhupalpally district, who were stranded in flood waters, were rescued by an NDRF helicopter on Saturday.

Bhupalpally MLA Gandra Venkataramana Reddy, who monitored the rescue operation, said that the farmers went to their fields to bring their water pumps to prevent them from getting damaged following inundation of their crops.

However, while they were returning to the village, Chalivagu stream, which crossed their path, was flowing with increased intensity making it impossible to cross.

The farmers found shelter in a nearby temple and called the villagers for help. Police and local disaster management teams reached the location but their efforts to rescue the farmers with the help of a rope were in vain.

Venkataramana Reddy, who was monitoring the situation, informed IT minister K.T. Rama Rao about the situation. Mr Rama Rao spoke to aviation director Bharath Reddy and Chief Secretary Somesh Kumar and asked them to arrange a helicopter for rescuing the farmers.

An Indian Air Force helicopter, which was readily available, was rushed immediately.

The farmers thanked the MLA, district collector Abdul Azeem, superintendent of police Sangaram Singh G. Patil and ASP Srinivasulu for coordinating the rescue mission.

A posh resort in Vizag, a palace in Hyderabad

Even before the controversy over the lavish guesthouse at the Gandipet lakeside involving IT minister K.T. Rama Rao and Congress MP A. Revanth Reddy has died down, two more luxurious palaces, one each in Hyderabad and Visakhapatnam, are making news. Grapevine has it that a huge residential facility is being built at Jubilee Hills on more than an acre with state-of-the-art features. It will have a view of the Durgam Cheruvu. A company that claims to have committed to a "Green Cosmos" by, to start with, building only clean and green projects in India with loads of foreign funds, is believed to be the owner of the building but the prince residing in the palace would be known to the world once he occupies it. In the coastal city of Visakhapatnam, which is all set to become the executive capital of Andhra Pradesh, another massive structure on a mountain facing the Bay of Bengal is in the news. Chief Minister Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddy never hides his penchant to live in palatial buildings, notwithstanding rivals' criticism. Be it his Bengaluru residence, the one at Lotus Pond in Hyderabad or the one he is residing in now, they are grand. Taking advantage of this, rival forces have started spreading rumours that he has chosen the hill-top Bay Park Resort as his office-cum-residence in the new capital. With its grandeur and serene beauty, it's a paradise on earth, no doubt. After all, we read so much of history of the kings, princes and their palaces!

Ravindra's slot gets filled in AP

The curtains are really down, this time officially, for the Stephen Ravindra soap opera. After waiting for a year to have him as the intelligence chief, Chief Minister Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddy appointed K.V. Rajendranath Reddy as Director General, Intelligence, replacing the IG rank official Manish Kumar Sinha. Sources in the CMO said Reddy, a senior and low-profile cop, did a lot of digging into various misdeeds of the Telugu Desam government during the last one year when he was heading the Vigilance and Enforcement department. To continue the work, the Chief Minister left the V&E post with him and made Sinha the Vizag police commissioner. If the replacement of the intelligence chief has to be read as the CM's desire for better functioning of the department, Sinha is not to be blamed because he is no less when it comes to efficiency. His choice, again a pick of the Most Influential Bureaucrat (MIB), is a wrong one, feel bureaucrats in the state. For years Sinha was out of Andhra Pradesh and did not have much knowledge of the grassroots' happenings, a quintessential requirement for an intelligence chief. With Vizag being the next capital, the honest, tough and no-nonsense Sinha is a good choice indeed.

Lady luck smiles ever more benignly

In the climax of a recent Tollywood flick, Bheeshma, the villain, says from a hospital bed: "I can face the enemy if he is strong and intelligent but I couldn't do anything because sheer luck is his weapon." When it comes to luck, none beats AP Chief Secretary Nilam Sawhney. None including herself must have thought that she would land from Delhi one day to become Chief Secretary but for the bitter episode of Chief Minister Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddy shunting then incumbent L.V. Subrahmanyam. When she took over in November last, she hardly had a seven-month tenure. Then came the Covid pandemic in February-March, and her stay at the top of babudom got extended to more than one year. The Centre on the request of the state government extended her service first by three months and now by another three. Who knows her irreplaceable services may continue as Covid-19 is not going to vanish after three months! More than Covid-19, it's the power game of the Most Influential Bureaucrat (MIB) in the state that continues to shower luck on the incumbent. Apparently, he is buying as much time as possible to prevent Adityan Das, tipped to be the next CS, from taking over at the helm because of the latter's style of functioning.

Students hold out a lesson to Congress

The attempt by members of the Congress-affiliated National Students Union (NSUI) to lay siege to Pragathi Bhavan has come as a lesson to Congress leaders. Congress seniors in recent times have given calls to surround the Chief Minister's Camp Office but they did not succeed. They were either arrested at their houses or before reaching the Pragathi Bhavan. The NSUI activists on the other hand reached the entrance of the CM's camp office and even tried to barge in by scaling the railing. They were duly arrested and released from judicial custody on bail. Following this, a Congress leader said that maybe they they should not have announced their plans in advance. Will the seniors now indulge in 'flash' protests? Watch this space.

Bandi's bandwagon breaks hearts of seniors

Senior leaders in the Telangana state BJP are irked with new state president Bandi Sanjay for giving importance to the Backward Classes while making appointments to leadership positions in the party. The party cadres feel that Sanjay is trying to cash in on criticism against the TRS and the Congress of giving the BC communities a raw deal. Sanjay has given a lion's share of posts to leaders from the BC communities in the party's state executive which was reconstituted recently. Senior leaders found that their confidants did not make it to the committee. Sanjay was also looking for activists who had dedicated themselves to the party for several years through thick and thin. How the party handles this internal pressure remains to be seen.

LEISURE

BRIDGE | Susanna Gross

I am frankly repulsed by the latest cheats, exposed after the online invitational Alt and OBL tournaments. When F2F bridge became impossible, a few innovative bridge organisers came up with a sensational alternative that enabled world-class players to compete against each other online and the rest of the (bridge) world to watch and learn from their play. Sadly too tempting for Michal Nowosadzki and Sylvia Shi, respectively Polish and American World Champions, who, when investigated and confronted, 'voluntarily confessed' to self-kibitzing (seeing all four hands by logging on with two devices) throughout.

Dealer South	Love all
♠ A 7 4 3	♥ Q 10 6 5
♥ A K 10 8	♦ Q 4
♦ 7 3	♣ 8 5 4
♣ K J 9	♠ 7 5 4
♠ K 9 8 2	♥ Q 10 6 5
♥ J 9 7 2	♦ Q 4
♦ 9 6 2	♣ 8 5 4
♣ 3 2	♠ 7 5 4

Of course kibitzing was instantly banned (as were they), ruining the fun for thousands and making everyone else's results and efforts meaningless. Imagine playing today's grand slam double dummy (see diagram). After South opened 1♣ and reversed into 2♦, there was no stopping North, who propelled the partnership into 7♣. West led a small trump. There are several ways to play this hand. Declarer can play for ♥Q, J inside — a 25 per cent chance. With three strong trumps in dummy and the fact that he can ruff Spades in hand, a dummy reversal could be better? Or he could finesse in Diamonds, only needing one card right. South wins the trump and then plays the ♠Ace and ruffs three Spades in hand using one trump and A.K of Hearts as entries, draws the last trump in dummy and tries the Diamond finesse. That should work if trumps are 3-2 and the ♦Q is outside, altogether a 34 per cent chance. However, without any more entries to dummy, Declarer is only able to take one finesse in Diamonds, and so will need the Queen to be short. The correct way to play the hand — and congratulations if you found it — is to win the lead in dummy and finesse in Diamonds straight away. So much easier double dummy!

Off the beaten track

Who will I be when I look at Souza?

A couple of years ago, at an out-of-town gig I was bafflingly offered (and unwisely accepted), I had to spend time in a space that had a lot of Art. Art with an 'A'. In fact, the space was so filled with Art that, had I needed to thump my idiot head to a bloody puree, an urge I felt almost immediately after setting foot at said venue, there was no wall remaining to do it on.

All valuable, super-tasteful, painfully curated art, I was told. By everyone who had been there before me. Which was a rare privilege in itself, apparently, if one went by the paeans written about the place and its equally artistic owner almost like it was a rite of passage. (Not too many write-ups about his unyielding fist – judging by how much I had been paid, though – I noticed.)

So formidable was the arty reputation of the person, so admiring the intakes of breath at his mere mention that one couldn't be faulted for thinking his early morning efforts produced delicate art installations worthy of Sotheby's.

After about half-an-hour of inescapable, overpowering art inhalation, I excused myself for a minute, rushed out into the anything but artistic street on which the establishment was ironically located and took deep, life-affirming whiffs of the overflowing garbage bin nearby. So many artists, so much imagination, so much time, so much love, so much sacrifice. Nailed to those four walls. With apologies to Winston Churchill, never, I felt, had so much been created by so many for so few.

Call me middle-class, but I've always had a deep suspicion of art collectors.

At a very basic level, it is because I am yet to meet a man or woman (I include the tasteful, if 'careful', owner of the aforementioned establishment) who possesses valuable art who has struck me as, how do I put it, warm. And I have met many.

That got me thinking. Could it be because warmth (which is basically about giving) and a mindset that encourages hoarding (which is what collecting really is) rarely go together?

Because there is something cold, calculated and cynical about the collector's process: totally ignoring Saraswati in early life — for how else can one ingratiate oneself to Lakshmi — and using the ruthlessly acquired, jealously guarded, disposable Lakshmi later to side up to Saraswati, feigning affection, appreciation, understanding... only to grab her in a headlock and nail her to a wall.

The collector, as has recently come to light yet again (via Messrs Mehul Choksey and Nirav Modi, among others), is someone who equates art with imprisonment.

Art is to be possessed, he thinks. Maniacally. And held hostage in his many homes. Art is to be shown-off, to philistine buddies who know even less about it than he does, at exclusive cocktail dos. Art is a boast. Art is libido. Art is a side-dish. Art is a framed cheque. Art is a concubine in his harem. To be swapped perhaps for more attractive models. And in extreme cases, when space has run out, but the money hasn't, art is a sex slave, procured by whatever means, to be stuffed away remorselessly into secret basements, lockers and pits dug in the garden.

Whereas what else is art but the opposite: freedom.

Let's speak of Al Pacino for a bit. Because it's always good to speak of Al Pacino. In the 1970s, when a young Pacino was preparing to play the role of Frank Serpico, the New York cop who blew the whistle on a corrupt NYPD, he apparently met the man and asked him what he thought was a pretty straightforward question.

"Why didn't you just take the money, the bribes that were offered to you, for a while," the actor reportedly said, "and give it to charity?"

Story goes that the real-life Frank Serpico fixed his soon-to-be celluloid counterpart with a gimlet eye and said "Hell, if I did that, who would I be when I listened to Beethoven?"

So who are you, my dear art collector, when you look at the Souza? Or the Husain? Or the Sher-Gil?

PM's 'shopping list' had no substance, only words

Aakar Patel

Prime Minister Narendra Modi made the usual speech from the Red Fort for Independence Day. I think it was a good speech as his fans have come to expect from him; I can say with certainty that it was a long speech. He is an entertaining speaker for some (not for me, because I like intellectual material, and his style does not appeal to me). Certainly, he speaks a lot. A former Australian high commissioner to India, Walter Crocker, wrote a biography of Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru in which he observed that Nehru sometimes spoke three times a day. Mr Modi is like that in some ways, though the content is not the same. I stopped watching Mr Modi speak a long time ago but thought it was important to hear him on Independence Day. This is what I observed.

Mr Modi unfurled the national flag and saluted, which I didn't think he should have done. The salute is a military gesture and civilians should abstain from it. Defence minister Rajnath Singh did not salute with the Prime Minister, which I thought was the right gesture.

In his speech, Mr Modi made much about the freedom struggle though, of course, his Sangh Parivar had abstained from it. Perhaps he was speaking for the others who participated, though he did not mention the Congress or its leaders. He also made some historical errors in his explanation of the freedom struggle, which we can explain away as his usual lyrical flourish.

He said he bowed to the Covid warriors. I am not sure if Mr Modi knows that six lakh Accredited Social Health Activist (Asha) women are on strike, being paid only ₹2,000 per month and not given protective clothing while doing their contact tracing work. Last week, Amit Shah's police in Delhi filed an FIR against them for protesting. Perhaps Mr Modi does not know. Television news channels do not report such things as much as they do Bollywood suicides.

He spoke again of Atma Nirbhar Bharat, without explaining what it meant or how it was different from the licence raj and 1970s-style import substitution, which has demonstrably failed. The world is interconnected and interdependent, as he has himself said so often and he repeated on Saturday. He said something about finished goods and value addition (finance minister Nirmala Sitharaman looked suitably stricken when he said this). But there was nothing of any depth. But it is fine not to expect details and granularity from him because that is not Mr Modi's style.

I wish however that he had told us why our economic growth had been declining for 10 consecutive quarters and this year our GDP will contract. He said we were blessed with natural wealth but didn't say why his new environmental policy was eroding safeguards to protect this wealth. He spoke about India importing wheat in the past, which had changed. Perhaps he did not know that this was because of an American scientist, Norman Borlaug, and his work on dwarf wheat which led to the Green Revolution here.

He said that we would win against the coronavirus. But how would this victory be achieved and what would it look like? What happened to the 21-day Mahabharat he said we would need to fight? We are still fighting 130 days later, and in fact we have raced almost to the top of the global infected chart. Victory seems to be a hollow word.

At some point, I switched off because he was rambling about unconnected things — ports, airports, Jan Dhan accounts, highways, EMIs, RBI, middle class, GST, the MSME sector, carbon neutral model, national education policy, dolphins of two types, innovation, optical fibre, sanitary pads, gas pipelines, the Covid vaccine, houses for migrant labour — and it was hard to focus.

He said many times that this thing or that thing could never have been imagined by anyone in the past. Perhaps he should have said it could not be imagined by him.

There was something about another ID card to add to our Aadhaar, PAN, Voter ID — that would bring better health. He raised Kashmir but didn't speak about its people. He said some delimitation work was on there and that it would benefit Kashmir's chief minister and MLAs, but it may have slipped his mind that it doesn't have either MLAs or a chief minister or statehood. He said not one word about the Kashmiris he has locked up and denied connectivity.

He was evasive about China. He raised his voice even louder and began screaming about India's unity and sovereignty. He spoke about 20 jawans in Ladakh but he couldn't even name China. He said the world had seen what had been achieved, though even we Indians don't know because Mr Modi has himself said nothing had happened and nobody had come.

All in all, it was like reading a laundry list or shopping list. There was no substance and no focus on a subject that could have been spoken about at length. How will we manage the recession in which millions of us currently on the cusp are likely to slip back into poverty? How will migrants get back to cities when rather than 16,000 daily trains only 260 special ones are running? What will happen to middle class urban individuals who have to pay rent and school fees and have lost their jobs?

It may have been a lot better for him to spend time on that rather than just reel off a list. Perhaps he has left that for his next speech, though I don't really plan on listening to it.

FREEDOM MESSAGE

The author rightly highlighted that religious sentiments were used for political gains (Why Ayodhya was not like battle for freedom, DC, Aug. 14). I liked the proverb comparing trees to voters and axe to politicians elected by the voters. Ignoring the issues like Covid-19, unemployment, financial crisis, suppression of people in J&K and tension at borders with neighbours, the celebration of August 15, 2020, was in bad taste.

PRASHANT BHUSHAN

I am disappointed with the drastic verdict of the Supreme Court on Prashant Bhushan. It suggests its intolerance towards honestly expressed thought-provoking criticism. It is disturbing. Mopping up of Pak-trained Mizos renewed

SHILLONG, Aug. 15

After two years of comparative peace, the security Forces in the Mizo hills have renewed mopping up operations following the return of over 100 heavily and well-trained rebels from East Pakistan, according to authoritative sources.

Six rebels have been killed and 31 others captured in the mopping up operations in the last two weeks. The arms and ammu-nitions seized include Barrett guns, light machine guns, sten guns and a huge quantity of sabotage materials like plastic explosives.

The documents seized from the captured hostiles revealed that they had returned with specific instructions from Pakistan authorities to sabotage road communications, blow up bridges, ambush army convoys and stimulate the secessionists.

It's official: Equal credit must go to all for Rajasthan patch-up

Eggshell walk

The truce in Rajasthan has posed a piquant situation for Congress spokespersons. There were three Gandhis who were to be credited. In addition, Ashok Gehlot and Sachin Pilot were both to be praised. Randeep Singh Surjewala led by example.

Acknowledging Sonia Gandhi's leadership, the AICC head of media and communication attributed the resolution of the Rajasthan political crisis to Rahul Gandhi and thanked Priyanka Gandhi for her role in it.

In one single line. Next he went on to admire both Gehlot's large-heartedness and Sachin Pilot's prudence.

A template was set. Many Congress leaders, particularly in-house TV talking heads, are worried these days as fulsome praise for Priyanka Gandhi has the potential of upsetting Team Rahul, as her brother is all set to return as the 87th president of the Congress Party.

Restless Scindia

Jyotiraditya Scindia seems to be getting restless over the delay in his induction as a Union Cabinet minister. The Scindia camp is now mounting pressure in the guise of the Madhya Pradesh Assembly bypolls, arguing that the former Maharaja of Gwalior's induction in the Narendra Modi government would enhance the BJP's prospects in 27 Assembly seats. Some overenthusiastic supporters are even sending messages that Mr Scindia would get the railways portfolio.

An internal BJP survey has reportedly given the ruling BJP a mere 50 per cent chance of success in the Madhya Pradesh bypolls.

Overdue bypolls

The future seems tense for some BJP ministers in Madhya Pradesh. There is no sign of the bypolls in the state even as the clock is ticking. There are 14 ministers in the Shviraj Singh Chouhan Cabinet who are not members of the Assembly. If the polls are held by September-end or early October, senior ministers belonging to the Scindia camp, Govind Singh Rajput and Tulsi Selawat, may lose their ministerial berths.

Mahesh's 'grouse'

Filmmaker Mahesh Bhatt is an unhappy man these days. More than the controversy over Sushant Singh Rajput's death or various nepotism allegations, Bhatt is upset over the news of Sanjay Dutt's lung cancer. For him, Sanju has been like a son. What offends Bhatt the most is the venom and organised hate spewed against the trailer of Sadak 2 in which Sanjay Dutt is playing a lead role. Why can't Sanjay Dutt be spared in his vulnerable state?

Father figure

Pranab Mukherjee's serious illness has been become a cause of concern for many, cutting across party lines. He has been a towering figure in national politics from the days of Indira Gandhi to the Narendra Modi era. As former president, Bharat Ratna and a Union minister for decades, Mukherjee had a unique position to talk to Modi, Rajnath Singh, Sonia Gandhi, Mulayam Singh Yadav, Nitish Kumar, Sitaram Yechury, K. Chandrasekhar Rao, N. Chandrababu Naidu, and Mamata Banerjee with equal ease. For the Congress, Mukherjee remained a father-figure even after becoming "apolitical". His daily appointments used to have a heavy dose of visitors from the grand old party seeking his informal advice.

Sanjay Jha's prospects

Sanjay Jha is a worried man. Suspended from the Congress for speaking and writing out of turn, he was repeatedly counting a lot on Sachin Pilot and other dissidents. With Pilot's ghar wapsi, Jha's hopes are now with Shashi Tharoor and Manish Tiwari battling for internal party democracy.

PRANAB CONTINUES TO BE ON VENTILATOR

New Delhi, Aug. 15: The condition of former president Pranab Mukherjee remained unchanged on Saturday and he continued to be on ventilator support, doctors attending on him said.

They said his vital and clinical parameters are stable and are being closely monitored by a team of specialists.

The 84-year-old former president was admitted to the Army's Research and Referral Hospital in Delhi Cantonment on Monday and was operated upon for the removal of a clot in the brain.

He had also tested positive for Covid-19.

"The condition of Hon'ble Shri Pranab Mukherjee remains unchanged on Saturday morning. He continues to be on ventilatory support."

His vital and clinical parameters remain stable and are being closely monitored by a team of specialists," the hospital said in a statement.

Mukherjee's office also posted pictures of the former president unfurling the national flag on Independence Day in the past and wishing fellow citizens on the day.

"On behalf of #CitizenMukherjee, his office recalls some of the recent Independence Day celebrations, he so enthusiastically participated in and would have never missed. Today also the Tricolor flies high."

"As he recuperates, let us repledge ourselves to a free, democratic and plural India that he stands for and hope that he is back to celebrate these core values of our Nationhood at the earliest," his office tweeted on his behalf.

His daughter and Congress leader Sharmistha Mukherjee also tweeted pictures of Mukherjee unfurling the national flag in the past.

"In his childhood, my dad and my uncle would hoist National Flag at our ancestral home in village. Since then, he never missed a year to hoist tri-colour on Independence Day," she said.

ITBP personnel celebrate the 74th Independence Day on the banks of Pangong Tso, in Ladakh. Senior army commanders of India and China on Saturday held extensive talks in taking forward the disengagement process along the Line of Actual Control (LAC) at a number of friction points including in Pangong Tso and Depsang in eastern Ladakh, people familiar with the developments said.

AK: No schools in Delhi unless fully convinced

New Delhi, Aug 15: Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal on Saturday said that the Delhi government will not open schools unless it is "fully convinced" about the improved Covid-19 situation in the city.

Delivering his Independence Day speech at the Delhi Secretariat, Kejriwal said the Covid-19 situation in the city is "quite under control" as compared to what it was two months back and thanked all the stakeholders, including the central government, corona warriors and different organisations.

He said in view of reports that some patients collapsed due to drop in their oxygen levels even after recovering from the disease and testing negative, the Delhi government will start providing oxygen concentrators to them from next week.

The chief minister said the safety and the health of schoolchildren are very important to the AAP government. - PTI

Congress asks why was China not named by PM

In I-day speech, PM named neither Pakistan nor China

DC CORRESPONDENT NEW DELHI, AUG. 15

The Congress again trained its guns on Prime Minister Narendra Modi for not naming China in the Independence Day speech.

Speaking to reporters after Prime Minister's address on the Independence Day, Congress' chief spokesperson Randeep Surjewala said all Indians should ask the government this Independence Day what it was doing to protect the country and push China back.

He said, "Each and every Congress worker and all 130 crore Indians are proud of our armed forces and have full faith in them. We salute the armed forces for giving China an apt reply every time there has been an attack. But what about those who are sitting in power. Why are they scared of mentioning China's name?"

In his Independence Day speech from the ramparts of Red Fort, the Prime Minister delivered a sharp message to China and Pakistan, declaring that the armed forces deployed along the borders with the two countries have given a fitting reply to those who sought to challenge India's sovereignty. However, he did not take the names of the two countries.

Congress President Sonia Gandhi also released an Independence Day message. She said, "it has been 60 days since Col. Santosh Babu and 20 soldiers have been martyred. Our biggest tribute to their supreme sacrifice would be to end Chinese occupation of Indian territory."

In the last couple of weeks the Congress has been demanding that the central government comes clean on the "infiltration by Chinese army".

The opposition also criticised the government for its atmanirbhar (self-reliant) slogan and questioned how it will keep the country's freedom when it has sold 32 public sector undertakings, handed over the railways and airports to private hands.

ODISHA BEATS LOCKDOWN, GETS `20,000CR INVESTMENTS

AKSHAYA KUMAR SAHOO | DC BHUBANESWAR, AUG. 15

Despite Covid-19 crisis, prospective investors are coming to Odisha and have invested in the mineral rich coastal state. During this pandemic, the state has received investments to the tune of ₹20,000 crore.

In an exclusive interview with this newspaper on Saturday, Dr Nitin B. Jawale, Managing Director of Industrial Promotion and Investment Corporation of Odisha, said the state had emerged as the top most investment destination among all other Indian states last year.

The investments to the tune of ₹20,000 cr received during lockdown will create employment opportunities for 16,504 people, he said.

"Odisha is one of the fastest growing states and is a land of several opportunities. The state has performed well in the past few years and has marked itself as one of the most attractive investment destinations. Odisha has caught the attention of many companies which has led them to invest into various sectors in the state. These sectors include food processing, chemicals and petrochemicals, metal and steel, textile and garment, tourism and information technology and IT-enabled services (IT & ITes)," he said.

The Odisha government, in order to overcome the challenge of direct and physical interactions with the prospective investors, adopted tech-options, including video-conferencing and virtual meetings.

Fish kills angler in Australia

Sydney: A 56-year-old fisherman has died in Australia after being hit by a fish which jumped into his boat, police said on Saturday.

"The man had been fishing with family and friends on Darwin Harbour when he was struck in his chest by a large fish," Northern Territory police said. The party returned the man to shore, where paramedics administered CPR. "Sadly, the man passed away," police said. "This appears to be a freak incident which is hugely distressing for the people in the boat and other family and friends of the man." It was not immediately clear what type of fish was involved.

SURFER SAVED AFTER FRIEND PUNCHES SHARK

Sydney, Aug. 15: A woman has survived a great white shark attack on Australia's east coast after her surfing companion repeatedly punched it until it let her go.

Paramedics were called to Shelly Beach at Port Macquarie, about 400 kilometres (250 miles) north of Sydney, on Saturday morning after the 35-year-old woman was attacked while surfing. She was taken to a local hospital with serious leg injuries, but has since been flown to a nearby bigger hospital where she will undergo surgery.

New South Wales state police said the woman and a man were surfing when she was bitten on the right calf and the back of her thigh. Her companion then punched the estimated 3-meter (10-foot) shark until it let her go.

"We've had some really serious and tragic shark encounters over the past couple of months along the coastline, so to paddle out of your own safety zone, into an area where you know there is a large shark, I think is amazing ... a tremendous act of bravery," state Surf Life Saving chief executive Steven Pearce said.

Iran hails UN security vote on arms embargo

United States humiliated by rejection, says Prez Rouhani

Tehran, Aug. 15: Iran on Saturday hailed a UN Security Council vote rejecting a US bid to extend an arms embargo on the Islamic republic, saying its foe has "never been so isolated".

President Hassan Rouhani said the US had failed to kill off what he called the "half alive" 2015 deal with major powers that gave Iran relief from sanctions in exchange for curbs on its nuclear programme. "The United States failed in this conspiracy with humiliation," said Rouhani. "This day will go down in the history of our Iran and in the history of fighting global arrogance."

Only two of the Council's 15 members voted in favour of the US resolution seeking to extend the embargo, highlighting the division between Washington and its European allies since President Donald Trump withdrew from the

● ONLY TWO of the Council's 15 members voted in favour of the US resolution seeking to extend the embargo, highlighting the division between Washington and its European allies since President Donald Trump withdrew from the Iran nuclear accord in 2018.

Iran nuclear accord in 2018. Washington's European allies all abstained, and Iran mocked the Trump administration for winning the support of just one other country, the Dominican Republic.

"In the 75 years of United Nations history, America has never been so isolated," foreign ministry spokesman Abbas Mousavi tweeted.

"Despite all the trips, pressure and the hawking, the United States could only mobilise a small country (to vote) with them." People on the streets of Tehran had mixed reactions.

"This is an American political game. One day they give a resolution to the Security Council, the next they say they have taken" Iranian fuel, said a worker at the city's Grand Bazaar who gave his name only as Ahmadi.

A drugstore employee named Abdoli said she was happy Iran won, but added that it "should interact with the United States and establish relations". The result increases the likelihood the US will try to unilaterally force a return of UN sanctions, which experts say threaten to plunge the Council into one of its worst-ever diplomatic crises.

US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo, on a visit to Poland on Saturday, made it clear the United States would press on despite the defeat at the UN.

"It is unfortunate that the French and the United Kingdom... didn't support what the Gulf states have demanded, what the Israelis have demanded... I regret that deeply," Pompeo told reporters in Warsaw.

"The United States is determined to make sure that the Iranians and this regime, this theocratic regime does not have the capacity to inflict even more harm on the world". Israel's UN ambassador called the UN vote a "disgrace". "This decision will further destabilise the Middle East, and increase the spread of violence around the world," said Glad Erdan.

The embargo on conventional arms is due to expire on October 18 under the terms of a resolution that blessed the Iran nuclear deal, officially known as the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action.

TRUMP VISITS BROTHER ROBERT IN HOSP

Washington, Aug. 15: President Donald Trump on Friday visited his brother Robert who has been hospitalised in New York and who the president described as "having a hard time."

The details of Robert Trump's illness were not immediately clear. "I have a wonderful brother. We've had a great relationship for a long time," Trump told reporters on Friday. "He's in the hospital right now. He's having a hard time."

The president, who is expected to spend the weekend at his New Jersey golf resort, arrived at New York-Presbyterian Hospital in Manhattan on Friday afternoon.

Speaking about his brother in Washington earlier in the day, Trump did not answer why his brother had been hospitalised.

Biden promises to reform H-1B visa system

Washington, Aug. 15: If voted to power in the November general elections, a Biden administration will reform the H-1B visa system and work towards eliminating the country-quota for Green Cards, his campaign said on Saturday, in a move to woo the influential Indian-American community.

The H-1B visa is a non-immigrant visa that allows US companies to employ foreign workers in speciality occupations that require theoretical or technical expertise.

Companies depend on it to hire tens of thousands of employees each year from countries like India and China.

In a major policy document for Indian-Americans released on the occasion of India's 74th Independence Day, the Biden Campaign also emphasised its support to family-based immigration system and streamlining processing for religious workers visas.

The administration will also take steps to stem the rising tide of hate and bigotry, address the security needs of house of worship, eliminate language barriers and honour the diversity and contributions of Indian-Americans, it said.

This is for the first time that a Democratic presidential candidate has come out with an exclusive policy document for Indian-Americans. There are 1.3 million eligible Indian-American voters across eight battleground states. Democratic presidential candidate Joe Biden is scheduled to address the Indian-American community in a video message later in the day.

Biden will support family-based immigration and preserve family unification as a core principle of our immigration system, which includes reducing the family visa backlog, his campaign said. "He will increase the number of visas offered for permanent, work-based immigration based on macroeconomic conditions and exempt from any cap recent graduates of PhD programmes in STEM fields," the campaign said.

"And, he will support first reforming the temporary visa system for high-skill, specialty jobs to protect wages and workers, then expanding the number of visas offered and eliminating the limits on employment-based Green Cards by country, which have kept so many Indian families in waiting for too long," it said. According to the policy document, Biden will restore and defend the naturalisation process for Green Card holders.

Serena loses to player No.116

Lexington: Serena Williams has played 967 tour-level singles matches as a professional, with just four losses against opponents ranked outside the top-100 and none in eight years.

Well, it's time to add to that list: Williams was beaten by No. 116 Shelby Rogers 1-6, 6-4, 7-6 (5) in the Top Seed Open quarterfinals.

Rogers, who is from South Carolina, took six of the last eight points Friday after trailing 3-1 in the tiebreaker to collect only her third career victory over a top-10 opponent.

She also reached her first WTA semifinal since 2016. Need to go even further back in the record books to find this sort of tournament exit for former No. 1 Williams: The owner of 23 Grand Slam singles titles hadn't bowed out against someone so low in the rankings since No. 111 Virginie Razzano stunned her at the 2012 French Open.

Later on Friday, Coco Gauff reached her second WTA semifinal with quite a comeback. Gauff won 10 of the last 11 games to eliminate No. 8 seed Ons Jabeur 4-6, 6-4, 6-1. — AP

Sikki, physio test Covid negative

New Delhi: Shuttler N. Sikki Reddy and physiotherapist Kiran Challagundla on Saturday returned negative for Covid-19 in a second round of tests, clearing the decks for resumption of the national badminton camp in Hyderabad from Monday.

The 26-year-old Sikki, a Commonwealth Games bronze medalist, and Kiran had, on Thursday, tested positive for the highly contagious disease at the SAI Pullela Gopichand academy, which was immediately closed down for sanitisation and the camp suspended for a few days.

However, the duo on Friday decided to get themselves tested again in a private hospital. The reports showed that Sikki and Kiran are both negative.

"Shuttler Sikki Reddy and Physiotherapist Kiran C, who were part of the Badminton National Camp at Pullela Gopichand Badminton Academy in Hyderabad and had tested positive for Covid-19, took the RT PCR test again, and both have tested negative," SAI said in a statement. — PTI

Golfer Aman in US Amateur semis

Oregon: Indian-American golfer Aman Gupta's dream run at the 120th US Amateur continued as he beat the younger but higher-ranked Michael Thorbjornsen 1-up in the quarterfinals at Bandon Dunes here.

The 21-year-old Gupta trailed Thorbjornsen till the 13th, but tied at the 14th and went ahead on 15th. Thorbjornsen pulled level again on 16th, before Gupta won the 17th with a par and they halved the 18th and that sent Gupta into the last four.

He will now meet Tyler Strafaci, World ranked 56th from Georgia Tech. Strafaci won 1-up over 2016 US Mid-Amateur champion Stewart Hagestad. "I feel great about my game. I'm still hitting it good. Chipping was a little bit of a struggle but I kind of found my rhythm last night after the round, and I've been putting good all week," said Gupta.

"I'm just going to go hit my game plan tomorrow and hopefully pull out a win and get to the final," he added. — PTI

HAMILTON ON POLE FOR SPANISH RACE

Barcelona: Lewis Hamilton roared to a record-increasing 92nd Formula One pole position of his career on Saturday when he outpaced Mercedes teammate Valtteri Bottas in a sizzling qualifying session for the Spanish Grand Prix. The championship leader and six-time world champion clocked a best lap of one minute and 15.584 seconds to take the prime starting slot ahead of title rival Bottas by 0.059 seconds.

It was Hamilton's fourth pole of the year and fifth in Spain and brought with it his 150th front row start. — AFP

OVER AND OUT

Dhoni calls time on limited overs cricket too

New Delhi, Aug. 15: What do they know of Dhoni who only Dhoni knows.

There seems nothing wrong in customising the most epic CLR James line from his seminal work Beyond a Boundary. It fits Mahendra Singh Dhoni to the 'T'.

He could force one to throw the MCC cricket manual in the trash bin with his daredevilry in unorthodox strokeplay.

He could be a role model for all shy and reticent people on how to become an assertive leader. Two world titles meant he didn't do too badly.

And then one fine afternoon, he could stun the world by relinquishing Test captaincy with 10 short of landmark 100 games.

And after another five years and seven months, he literally punches one in the gut on a balmy August 15 evening to say, "from 19:29 hours, consider me retired".

Just like that. Just like that Lieutenant Colonel Dhoni says over and out, adding to the sense of loss and chaos that 2020 has come to symbolise.

A legend in art of chasing, who became a megastar in finite cricket bringing in Sachin Tendulkar's poise and Virat Kohli's aggression in optimum proportions, one can never pinpoint what Dhoni actually was.

He was a bit of everything and still a bit more but no one could actually comprehend what.

Everyone thought they knew Dhoni, but no one knew him.

There's a compartment that possibly remains shut. It's for none to see, it's where he probably computes, processes his raw thoughts and emotions while taking a decision.

Retirement may be one such decision, it was his own but he needed to come to terms that the change room is no longer the place where he belongs.

Dhoni, despite being a cricket star like no other, was never entirely a cricket story. He was, still is and will always remain a social story.

A reflection of times when India's hinterland started shedding its fears and its inferiority complex while knocking on the doors of an aspirational India.

He wasn't a social reformer by any stretch of imagination but most certainly, hinterland's biggest icon after economic liberalisation. Remember his 70 odd at Lord's in the first Test of a 2007 series. He showed doggedness and guts with limited technique on his first England tour.

With S. Sreesanth at the other end, it was the rain that rescued India. But then fortune favours the brave.

Just like the World T20 final in Johannesburg, where lack of bowling options turned into a great punt as Haryana Police's Joginder Sharma earned his Wikipedia page with an over no one can forget.

But this man, who arrived with a flowing mane, insanely powerful wrists and a smile that was endearing but gave away nothing, redefined the dynamics. — PTI

Every cricketer has to end his journey one day, but still when someone you've gotten to know so closely announces that decision, you feel the emotion much more. What you've done for the country will always remain in everyone's heart. But the mutual respect and warmth I've received from you will always stay in mine. The world has seen achievements, I've seen the person. Thanks for everything skip. I tip my hat to you @msdhoni. — VIRAT KOHLI

It is the end of an era. What a player he (MS Dhoni) has been for the country & world cricket. His (MS Dhoni) batting in one-day cricket in their early stages made the world stand up and notice his flair and sheer natural brilliance. Every good thing comes to an end and this has been an absolutely brilliant one. — SOURAV GANGULY

Your contribution to Indian cricket has been immense, @msdhoni. Winning the 2011 World Cup together has been the best moment of my life. Wishing you and your family all the very best for your second innings. — SACHIN TENDULKAR

Seeing Dhoni's journey from a small town boy into a match-winner and one of the most astute leaders the world has seen was remarkable. Thank you for the wonderful memories, Mahi. It was my privilege to play alongside you and I will always cherish the memories we shared together. — VVS LAXMAN

To have a player like him, Mission Impossible. Na Koi Hai, Na Koi Tha, Na Koi Hoga MS ke jaisa. Players will come & go but there won't be a calmer man like him. Dhoni with his connect with people having aspirations was like a family member to many cricket lovers. — VIRENDER SEHWAG

MSD — Chennai's adopted son

C. SANTHOSH KUMAR | DC CHENNAI, AUG. 15

Mahendra Singh Dhoni is, in many ways, Chennai's adopted son. Though he had to work his way into the Indian team starting out as a small-town cricketer from Ranchi, his elevation to cult status ran parallel to his association with the southern city. And he couldn't have picked a better place to announce his retirement, than the city where he is fondly referred to as Thala — Chief.

Dhoni was quietly sweating it out at the M.A. Chidambaram Stadium, away from media glare and frenzied followers, when the scheduled Instagram post took the cricketing world by surprise at 7:29 p.m. No one would have seen it coming. When Dhoni landed in Chennai on Saturday to kickstart the Super Kings' training camp ahead of IPL-13, experts were still raving about his fitness.

For IPL fans, it's difficult to imagine Chennai Super Kings without Dhoni. N. Srinivasan, MD of India Cements, has already made it clear that Dhoni will be retained even if he goes back to the auction pool.

"People keep saying when will he... how long will he play, etc. He will play. I can assure you. He will play this year. Next year he will go to the auction; he will be retained. So there is no doubt in anybody's mind," Srinivasan said.

Dhoni's bond with Chennai doesn't end with being the skipper of one of the most successful IPL franchises. It was here at Chepauk that his Test career took off under grey skies. He may have made only 30 in a rain-ruined match against Sri Lanka in 2005, but it was only the beginning of a great innings in India colours for the champion.

Chepauk has witnessed many a Dhoni blitzkrieg in the IPL, but the knock that stood out was the one he scored in whites. His 224 — Dhoni's highest in Tests — against Australia in 2013 bailed India out from a precarious position on a pitch that resembled the French Open surface.

His match-winning knock came at a time when his captaincy was under fire and his tactics ridiculed by several former cricketers. Some had even questioned his place in the Test team back then.

Following the footsteps of his favourite captain and mentor Mahendra Singh Dhoni, Suresh Raina, one of India's prolific white ball players, also quit international cricket.

Captain Cool is in my heart, says Super fan

DC CORRESPONDENT CHENNAI, AUG. 15

Saravanan Hari, a.k.a. the 'MSD Superfan', knew it was around the corner but he was hoping and praying that his 'God', M.S. Dhoni, would continue to don the blue jersey for a while longer.

When the announcement came like a bolt from the blue on Saturday, Saravanan, for a moment, thought it was "routine rumour". "In the past, there have been many speculations. So I couldn't believe it. He has once again proved that he is different and does things in his own way. People had expected him to announce his retirement when India's campaign came to an end in the semifinal of the 2019 World Cup," said Saravanan.

Saravanan said he would continue to paint Dhoni's name on his body whenever he watches India matches.

"I wish he played the T20 World Cup. I won't say I'll miss him. He is in my heart. I just hope he continues to play for Chennai Super Kings or remains associated with the franchise in some capacity," added Saravanan.

BARCA WIN BETTER THAN BRAZIL ROUT: MUELLER

Lisbon, Aug. 15: Record-breaking Thomas Mueller said Bayern Munich's 8-2 thrashing of Barcelona in the Champions League quarterfinal on Friday topped the 7-1 hammering Germany handed Brazil at the 2014 World Cup as he stole the limelight from Robert Lewandowski and Lionel Messi.

Man-of-the-match Mueller netted twice in Lisbon as Barcelona conceded four goals in the first-half of a Champions League game for the first time as Bayern led 4-1 at half-time.

Substitute Philippe Coutinho, on loan from Barcelona, also scored twice after the break, alongside goals from Joshua Kimmich and Lewandowski, as Barcelona suffered their heaviest defeat in Europe.

"When we (Germany) played against Brazil we were not as in control as we were tonight," insisted Mueller who also scored in the historic World Cup semifinal.

"You can never completely turn Barcelona off, but we gave their midfield practically no room, we did what we wanted to do," Mueller added.

Bayern stun Barcelona with eight goals

Lisbon, Aug. 15: A merciless Bayern Munich inflicted a humiliating, record defeat on Barcelona on Friday, recording a scarcely believable 8-2 victory in their Champions League quarterfinal in Lisbon to leave Lionel Messi forlorn and surely hastening in the end of an era in Catalonia.

Thomas Mueller scored twice either side of goals from Ivan Perisic and Serge Gnabry in a stunning opening 31 minutes at an empty Estadio da Luz, with a David Alaba own-goal having briefly brought Barcelona back level.

Luis Suarez pulled it back to 4-2 at one point in the second half, but

Barcelona then caved in, with Joshua Kimmich getting Bayern's fifth before three more goals in the final stages, one for the prolific Lewandowski and two for substitute Philippe Coutinho. That was the really humiliating part for the beaten side, with Coutinho on loan in Bavaria from Barcelona, who spent 160 million euros on signing the Brazilian but never got the best out of him.

It is Barcelona's worst European defeat and the worst of Messi's career. The game was eerily reminiscent of Germany's 7-1 destruction of Brazil in the 2014 World Cup, a game in which Mueller also played and scored.

Germany went on to win that World Cup and Bayern look a good bet to win this Champions League, although they will surely face a sterner test in the semifinal regardless of facing Manchester City or Lyon.
