10 newborn die in hospital fire

SONU SHRIVASTAVA | DC MUMBAI, JAN. 9

At least 10 newborn babies died at the neonatal care unit of the district government hospital in Maharashtra, in the early hours of Saturday when a major fire broke out.

The incident took place at around 2 am on Saturday at the Bhandara district hospital. The babies lost their lives due to burn injuries and suffocation after fire and smoke engulfed the building. They were aged between one day and one month.

State health minister Rajesh Tope said that three of the 10 infants died of burn injuries while seven suffocated to death because of the smoke. All the 10 infants, including eight girls, were underweight and needed to be given oxygen, he added.

District civil surgeon Pramod Khandate said there were 17 babies in the unit and seven were rescued. A nurse first noticed smoke coming out from the neonatal section of the hospital and alerted doctors and other staff who reached there in five minutes, he said.

Fire brigade personnel rescued seven babies from the "inbound ward" of the unit but could not save the 10 other babies, he said.

Dr Khandate said the ward where newborn babies are kept requires a continuous supply of oxygen. "There were fire extinguishers and staff used them while trying to douse the fire. There was too much smoke," he added. The Maharashtra government has ordered a probe into the tragic incident.

The government has also announced a compensation of ₹5 lakh to the deceased's parents.

Former Maharashtra energy minister Chand-rashekhar Bawankule of the BJP claimed that relatives of the infants had complained about power fluctuations in the ward last week. "I spoke with relatives of the deceased infants. They told me that power fluctuations had been happening in the hospital ward since the last seven days. The relatives had asked the hospital staff to check electric switches etc, but apparently no action was taken," Mr Bawankule said.

Demanding a high-level inquiry, he also alleged that the hospital didn't have proper fire safety and electrical equipment in place.

According to him, a proposal to purchase fire safety equipment worth over ₹1 crore at the hospital sent to the principal secretary, health, and the director of health in the state government has been pending for approval.

Speaking to Deccan Chronicle, Sandeep Kadam, Bhandara collector, said, "We have called state electrical inspectors, forensic laboratory, Nagpur and National Fire College to investigate the case. Let the agencies' reports come, then we will know what exactly happened."

THE UNIVERSITY, for the first time, has to openly explain the procedure it followed for counselling colleges. The petitioners urged the court to scrap the counselling and hold it afresh in strict compliance with the G.O. Ms No. 114.

The Bench posted the case for next hearing on February 19. With the High Court directive, the university for the first time has to openly explain the procedure it followed for counselling and the same would be put to legal scrutiny. According to the petitioners — G. Apoorva and A. Harshita — the KNRUHS implemented the GO and filled the meritorious 'unreserved open category' first and later the 85

Petitioners' counsel Vedula Srinivas explained to the Bench that in any phase, irrespective of the students applying for Phase 2 or not, the merit

KAKINADA, JAN. 9

Jana Sena Chief K. Pawan Kalyan said that the Chief Minister Y. S. Jagan Mohan Reddy had promised people during the election campaign that he would submerge the proposed Divis Unit in Thondangi Mandal of East Godavari into Bay of Bengal. He demanded that Jagan should lift the criminal cases on farmers and stand firm over his promise on the pharma unit issue.

Pawan Kalyan visited the proposed pharma unit area and addressed the public meeting at Kothapakalu village in Thondangi mandal on Saturday evening. He came to the spot with huge procession from Madhurapudi airport near Rajamahendravaram. He showed a video of Jagan, where he was seen promising people during his election campaign.

He also clarified that his party was not against industrialisation, but eco-friendly industrial units should be set up and the livelihood of local people should not be adversely affected. He said that Divis Company was given more than 680 acres of land and promised 1500 jobs.

He questioned Jagan asking whether it was right to destroy thousands of lives and hatcheries industry, by giving permissions to the pharma unit. He said that the RAMKY Group has conducted Impact Assessment Report and the group was close to the ruling YSRC leaders and therefore, it's integrity was open to question.

Women and the farmers of the Thondangi Mandal complained to the Jana Sena Chief K. Pawan Kalyan that false cases have been filed against their family members and they were finding it difficult to eke out a livelihood. They appealed to Pawan Kalyan to exert pressure on the government to lift the cases.

In the meeting, the women said that Divis has given rift in the area in proposing Pharma Unit. They said that the police created a havoc in the area and booked cases against 160 persons and sent 60 persons to Jail. The police also torn the garland on Dr Ambedkar on the day.

Employees would be infected with Covid-19: APNGO

DC CORRESPONDENT
VIJAYAWADA, JAN. 9

The State Election Commission is experiencing hurdles in conducting local body elections in AP due to the opposition from the government employees, who decided to boycott election duties if the State Election Commission remained adamant on conducting the elections. AP government employees associations joint action committee and APNGO Association (APNGOA) leaders lamented that 150 government employees died due to Covid-19, and thousands of employees turned Covid-19 patients due to infections. They objected to the issuing of elections notification by State Election Commission in the present scenario when the whole world fears Corona strain and sought elections to be conducted after completing the vaccination process.

APNGOA president and JAC chairman N. Chandrasekhar Reddy stated that the decision of SEC to conduct the election in the present scenario shocked the government employees as earlier SEC Ramesh Kumar postponed elections when there were only a few countable cases in the state without consulting anybody but now decided to conduct elections amid the continuation of the surge in Covid-19 cases. He lamented that government employees would be infected from pandemic Covid-19 with the conducting of election and further common people also would turn victims to Corona hence the SEC should postpone elections till vaccination process. He expressed fear that the Covid-19 strain is also swiftly spreading, and with the bird flu spreading, it would surely put a huge impact on the public, including government staff.

Chandrasekhar Reddy warned that if SEC continues to be adamant on conducting the local body elections, the government employees will boycott election duties. He said that recently the polling percentage was hugely dropped in Telangana during the GHMC election and many government employees were infected from Covid-19 due to election duties. He questioned who is responsible for the lives of government staff and affirmed that they would knock the doors of the Court seeking justice if SEC adheres to its decision of conducting elections. He lamented that SEC issued the notification to create fear among the government, people and government employees.

APJAC secretary and STU president Ch. Joseph Sudhir Babu warned that if SEC fails to withdraw its election notification then government employees and teachers would boycott elections duties and stated that they would go to the Court to save the lives of employees and people. Meanwhile, Andhra Pradesh Police Officers' Association said they cannot risk the lives of the police personnel and the general public by conducting elections haste. APPOA president J. Sreenivasa Rao lamented that 109 police personnel lost their lives and 14,000 police personnel infected from Covid-19 in the state. He said, "The police department is crucial during Covid-19 vaccination for frontline workers, senior citizens and the general public. During the vaccine transportation and bandobast at vaccine storage centres and during vaccination process police personnel presence is very important. All the police personnel should undergo vaccination and attending election duties even before vaccination is done will push the lives of frontline workers into risk. In view of this, the police personnel cannot attend the election duties before the vaccination process is completed risking the family members".

VIJAYAWADA, JAN. 9

YSR Congress MLA and party official spokesperson Ambati Rambabu alleged that State Election Commissioner Nimmagadda Ramesh Kumar worked for Telugu Desam chief Chandrababu's interests hence announced election schedule amidst risk of Covid-19. Addressing a press meet on Saturday, he alleged that SEC Ramesh Kumar was obstructing the Covid-19 vaccination process.

Rambabu stated that as many employees and government machinery would be deployed for administering the Covid vaccine conducting polls is highly impossible, as it also poses a high risk for the transmission of the virus.

He further stated that even employees are also opposing the elections as they do not need the hour, unlike vaccination. He said that Chandrababu Naidu and Lokesh also did not step out of their homes for nine months fearing Covid.

Terming the conduct of SEC as biased, Rambabu said that he is playing to the tunes of opposition leader Chandrababu Naidu and thus released a schedule for local body elections, despite the prevalence of Covid pandemic and the state preparing for vaccination. He said that SEC took a unilateral decision even after the government officials explained that state machinery would be busy in administering the Covid vaccination for the entire population for the next few months beginning from January.

He stated that although the Chief Secretary Adityanath Das and other top officials, clearly informed that elections could be held after completing the vaccination programme, the SEC has adamantly announced the poll schedule without considering the state government's views and that he is desperate to hold the polls before his retirement.

VIJAYAWADA, JAN. 9

Telugu Desam Party Chief Nara Chandrababu Naidu, on Saturday, stressed the need for conducting the local body elections in Andhra Pradesh in a fair and peaceful manner under the security provided by the central armed forces. He demanded that the State Election Commission accept nominations online considering the previous experiences of intimidation and threats. He further demanded that the grama volunteers not be involved in any aspect of the election and polling process in view of the severe political influence on them.

Naidu asserted that he would himself come to the field if required to counter the attacks of the YSRC leaders in these elections. The TD chief launched a scathing attack, saying that Jagan was suffering a split personality as this CM would not do what he says and would not say what he does. He alleged that Jagan was running a maniac's rule.

Naidu asked how the CM could make Adityanath Das the Chief Secretary of AP when he was also involved in the assets cases. He demanded that Jagan Reddy confine himself to his Tadepalli residence until the election code was lifted. He stated that there was no need for anybody to fear the YSRC leaders and no need to surrender to the ruling party's intimidation. He sought that it was high time for the police and officials to carry out their duties impartially.

However, the SEC had decided to go ahead with the conduct of polls without taking into consideration the opinion of the state government and also showing no respect to the process for consultations. The SEC announced the poll schedule in a gap of a few hours after consulting a team of three government officials led by Chief Secretary Aditya Nath Das. The petition mentioned that based on the circumstances leading to announcement of the schedule, the consultation process by the SEC appeared to be a farce as it had already prepared the schedule for conduct of polls in four phases.

The government also said in the petition that the SEC did not take into consideration even as it informed about the importance of taking up Covid-19 vaccination programme besides the Centre's direction to involve the entire government machinery for vaccination programme and also the scheduled video conference to be addressed by the Prime Minister with the Chief Ministers from several states on January 11.

The government also said in the petition that it would never interfere in the conduct of polls in a democratic manner as it was having utmost respect in the process of conduct of elections. However, it further said that as it was the responsibility of the state government to protect the health of the people and also the state machinery, it wanted the interference of the court on SEC's decision to go ahead with conduct of polls in the state.

Accordingly, as the State Election Commissioner announced the schedule for conduct of the said polls on January 8, and would be issuing a notification for the first phase of election on January 23, the MCC had come into force from Saturday onwards in compliance with the stipulation made by the Supreme Court in a judgment issued earlier in a case.

Referring to the guidelines of the MCC, the SEC said as the ordinary polls were notified to rural local bodies in the entire state, the MCC would be applicable to the rural areas only and not applicable to the urban areas in the state.

He clarified that there would be no objection to organise programmes in urban areas to extend benefits to the beneficiaries strictly belonged to the urban areas only and cautioned that no programme to be organised in the urban areas to benefit the people belonging to the rural areas as it would amount to clear violation of the MCC as such programme might influence the voter preference.

YSRC alleged opposition TD leaders are resorting to temple attacks to defame the government with jealousy, as they are unable to face the government directly which is gaining popularity by welfare schemes. Addressing a press conference on Saturday, MLA Jogi Ramesh said that Chief Minister Y. S. MLA stated that Chandrababu Naidu had become mentally weak, so he has been falsely accusing the government only to save his party, which seems to be on a ventilator. He claimed that humanity is the religion of Chief Minister while the entire state is celebrating the distribution of house site pattas, Chandrababu and his son Lokesh is trying hard to get people on their side. To get attention from the public, Naidu started Amaravati protests and dragged them for a year with paid artistes, paid media, and paid publicity. Since it failed miserably, Chandrababu had started another campaign using the religious card, he added. The MLA said that the opposition had become a useless party in the state and now by bringing the religion they are inciting religious hatred in this state. He criticised Chandrababu Naidu for caste politics while in power and using religion for politics in opposition.

Speaking on local body polls, MLA said that people need a vaccine, not elections. While all other states are making arrangements for vaccination, holding it for the sake of local body polls is not the right call.

CM SHOULD GIVE

CELEBRATE: LOKESHDC CORRESPONDENT
VIJAYAWADA, JAN. 9

Telugu Desam Party National General Secretary and MLC Nara Lokesh, on Saturday, asked the YSRC government to explain how the state's farmers could celebrate the festival season with joy and happiness when CM Jagan Mohan Reddy has not fulfilled any single election promise until now.

Lokesh said that even for the food grains already purchased by the government, no payments were being made to the farmers as there were a whopping Rs 2,574 crore pending dues to the paddy farmers. He slammed the CM's regime for 'its indifferent attitude' towards the issues concerning the cultivators and their crops from the beginning of its rule. He stated that a raw deal was given to the farmers even in the crop insurance, input subsidy and all such benefits. Mr Lokesh demanded that the CM should clarify whether the farmers had any reason to celebrate the festival with their families.

Lokesh mockingly said that the festival celebration was being seen abundantly in the Jagan Reddy family media but not in the farmers' eyes. In the name of every programme, multi-crore public funds were given to the YCP media through advertisements, but no remunerative prices were given to crops.

Lokesh recalled how the Chief Minister criss-crossed the whole state promising a massive price stabilisation fund but ignored the same after coming to power. The CM's statement that a good price would be given to every grain produced by the farmers had finally become an airy nothing and an empty promise. He deplored that the meaningless rules and scanty purchases by the government had dealt a severe blow to the cultivators of almost all crops in the state. He further deplored that the government regulations and guidelines had only become a curse for farmers and a blessing for the middlemen.

Poultry farmers fear
flu impact on exports

About 120 lorries carrying eggs move out from AP

DC CORRESPONDENT
VIJAYAWADA, JAN. 9

As the Centre confirms the spread of bird flu in six states in the country, poultry farmers fear its impact on the export of eggs from Andhra Pradesh to several states causing financial loss to them.

AP produces nearly four crore eggs daily from about five crore layer chickens and out of them, nearly 65 per cent of eggs get exported to states like Odisha, Bihar, West Bengal, Assam, Himachal Pradesh and others while the remaining 35 per cent of eggs go for domestic consumption. Each egg fetches ₹4.50 to the farmers at present, unlike earlier days of getting the highest price of ₹5.75 per egg from the traders. About 120 lorries carrying fresh eggs move out from AP every day to different states.

As the Centre confirmed bird flu in states like Kerala, Rajasthan, Madhya Pradesh, Himachal Pradesh, Haryana and Gujarat to the birds like crows, ducks and migratory birds and not to the poultry birds so far and AP is safe so far with no symptoms of avian influenza either among migratory birds or the poultry birds, the farmers' biggest worry is that if people stop consuming eggs apprehensive about getting infected with the virus, it becomes a big problem to them. They say that if people in the exporting states stop consuming eggs, traders will not lift stocks from them resulting in a huge loss to them as the eggs are highly perishable unless they are secured in cold storage facilities.

Farmers say that as they have to spend a lot of money to feed the birds and maintain the poultry farms, any cut in the export of eggs will badly affect the poultry industry. Farmers say that they had already suffered a huge loss of income during the imposition of lockdown due to Covid-19 during April, May and June last year and maintain that as their trade is picking up slowly, they can no longer afford to incur loss again.

AP Poultry Farmers Federation secretary Padala Subba Reddy said, "We want the concerned authorities to bring out awareness among the people that consumption of boiled eggs and cooked chicken meat will not affect the consumers with the virus that causes bird flu so that people will continue to eat them to help our trade survive."

MP ENFORCES 'LOVE JIHAD' ORDINANCE

RABINDRA NATH CHOUDHURY | DC BHOPAL, JAN. 9

Madhya Pradesh government on Saturday brought into force the contentious Freedom of Religion ordinance, known in political parlance as 'Love Jihad' law, providing a maximum jail term of 10 years for forcible marriage of a girl for the purpose of changing her religion.

The ordinance was enforced 2 days after the governor Anandiben Patel gave her assent to it on Thursday.

Earlier on December 29, the state cabinet gave a nod to the ordinance in the wake of suspension of the winter session of the state assembly, scheduled to commence on December 28.

The state cabinet had last month given approval to the Freedom of Religion Bill, 2020, which was scheduled to see passage in the state assembly in the now-suspended winter session.

The ordinance has provided a maximum of 10 years' imprisonment for forcible marriage of a girl for the purpose of changing her religion.

It has been made mandatory for the bride and the groom to notify the local district magistrate 2 months ahead of their conversions, failing which the marriage would be nullified.

The ordinance has provided 5 years' jail term for the religious leaders and priests involved in the forcible marriages. Onus would be on the accused to prove his or her innocence.

FARMER ENDS LIFE AT PROTEST SITE

DC CORRESPONDENT with agency inputs NEW DELHI, JAN. 9

As stalemate continues over farm laws, with both government and farmer refusing to blink, a petition was filed in the Supreme Court on Saturday seeking removal of farmers from protest sites on Delhi border on the grounds that the protesters were blocking roads causing inconvenience to people.

The petitioner has also mentioned that violent protests have taken in place in some places and they have destroyed telecom towers causing inconvenience and financial loss to the public. The Supreme Court is expected to hear a bunch of petitions relating to the new Farm laws on January 11. The next round of talks between the farmers and government is to be held on January 15.

Meanwhile, a 72-year-old farmer allegedly died due to suicide at a protest site in Ghaziabad. "The deceased was found hanging at one of the mobile toilets at the protest site. He has also left behind a note which is written in Punjabi," said a police officer. Shamsher Rana of the Bharatiya Kisan Union (BKU) said that the farmer had blamed the union government for not accepting the demands of the protesters.

BJP LAUNCHES FARMERS OUTREACH DRIVE IN WB

Katwa (WB), Jan. 9: Amid ongoing protests over the new farm laws, BJP president J.P. Nadda on Saturday launched a new campaign to woo the farmers of West Bengal and said the BJP government at the Centre has increased the agricultural budget six-fold and the Minimum Support Price by 1.5 times.

Nadda, who launched the Krishak Suraksha Abhiyan and 'Ek Mutti Chawal' (a fistful of rice) to woo farmers in the poll-bound state, said the Modi government has worked more for the farmers community than the previous governments at the Centre.

He also mocked at West Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee for agreeing to implement the PM Kisan Yojna only after realising that her party is fast losing ground among the farmers in the state.

Nadda, said it is "too late" for the TMC government to agree to implement the PM Kisan Samman Nidhi.

"Since coming to power, the Modi govt has increased budget on agriculture by six times.

In 2013-14, the budget on agriculture was only ₹22,000 crore. Today, it stands at ₹1,34,000 crore," Nadda said here.

Nadda said its Prime Minister Narendra Modi who implemented the Swaminathan Committee report on Minimum Support Price (MSP) for crops.

"MSP according to Swaminathan Committee has been implemented only by PM Modi, increasing it nearly by 1.5 times," he said.

Later in the afternoon Nadda launched 'Ek Mutti Chawal' (a fistful of rice), a programme under which he would collect rice from farmers' homes and brief them about the benefits of the new agri legislations, as part of efforts to blunt the opposition "anti-farmer" allegations against the BJP-led Central government following farmers protests.

Soot and smoke telltale signs of fire that claimed 10 lives

Bhandara, Jan. 9: The families of some of the 10 infants killed in a hospital fire here had complained about power fluctuations but no action was taken, alleged a former minister, as the blackened walls and charred furniture inside the ward told their own story of the ferocity of the blaze that broke out early Saturday.

Access to the Bhandara district hospital was barricaded to keep the media away and restless crowds milled around outside, anxious for any information on the deaths of the 10 infants, aged between one and three months, inside the Special Newborn Care unit.

The scale and nature of the incident left the people of this east Maharashtra city shaken and condolences poured in from various sections of society.

While politicians, including current and former ministers, were allowed inside the building, scarcely anybody else was. Hospital authorities were tightlipped, refusing to divulge any information on the tragedy that had made national headlines.

As anxiety mounted, speaking to those allowed inside was the only way for reporters to get information and try and piece together a narrative.

Former Maharashtra energy minister Chandra Shekhar Bawankule of the BJP claimed that relatives of the infants had complained about power fluctuations in the ward for the last week.

"I spoke with relatives of the deceased infants. They told me that power fluctuations had been happening in the hospital ward since the last seven days. The relatives had asked the hospital staff to check electric switches etc, but apparently no action was taken," Bawankule said.

Demanding a high-level inquiry, he also alleged that the hospital didn't have proper fire safety and electrical equipment in place. According to him, a proposal to purchase fire safety equipment worth over ₹1 crore at the hospital sent to the principal secretary, health, and the director of health, in the state government is pending for approval.

While most people were not allowed inside, photographs from the ward gave an indication of intensity of the fire and its aftermath of soot and smoke.

The walls were blackened, only the occasional patch of yellow showing through, the floor was thick with ash and dust and much of the furniture was charred. The metal stretchers and a few other accoutrements of a special hospital care unit such as the drip stand survived the fire, which broke out around 1.30 am.

In the midst of the gloom shone a bright blue and white sign saying LED.

State health minister Rajesh Tope told reporters that at least three of the 10 infants died of burn injuries while seven were suffocated to death because of the smoke.

District civil surgeon Pramod Khandate said there were 17 babies in the unit and seven were rescued.

A nurse first noticed smoke coming out from the neonatal section of the hospital and alerted doctors and other staff who reached there in five minutes, he said. Fire brigade personnel rescued seven babies from the 'inbound ward' of the unit but could not save the 10 other babies, he said.

YUSUF JAMEEL | DC SRINAGAR, JAN.9

People's Democratic Party (PDP) youth leader Waheed Ur Rehman Parra was on Saturday released from over six week long detention after a special court of National Investigation Agency (NIA) at Jammu granted him bail.

The NIA had arrested Mr. Parra on November 25 for his alleged "close links" with Kashmiri lawyer Irfan Shafi Mir, who was arrested by the police along with Hizb-ul-Mujahideen commander Syed Naveed Mushtaq alias Naveed Babu, another militant Asif Ahmed Rather and tainted J&K police officer Davinder Singh.

Mr. Parra subsequently won this election with a significant margin of votes from a segment of home district Pulwama while still in NIA custody. Mr. Parra was on December 20 sent to a 30-day judicial remand by a special judge of the NIA. A team of Counter Intelligence Kashmir (CIK), a wing of J&K police, carried out a raid at his home in Pulwama on December 30.

Late Saturday night, PDP president and former chief minister, Mehbooba Mufti, informed that Mr. Parra has been detained by an Intelligence wing of the J&K police now and while questioning it's legality she sought Lt. Governor, Manoj Sinha's intervention in the matter.

She tweeted, "Despite NIA Court granting bail to @parawahid after thorough court proceedings, he has now been detained by CIK in Jammu. Under what law & for what crime has he been arrested? This is brazen contempt of court. Request @manoj-sinha_ji to intervene so that justice is served."

Earlier this week, the NIA had sought the details of his properties in Srinagar from the J&K police.

According to the agency, during the investigations into Singh's association with the Hizb militants, it came across phone records of Mir which showed that he was in close contact with Mr. Parra. The NIA sources had added that Mir had claimed during questioning that Mr. Parra sought his support during the 2019 Lok Sabha elections for his party candidate Mehbooba Mufti.

Idea of forming anti-BJP alliance in Assam fades

MANOJ ANAND | DC GUWAHATI, JAN. 9

The idea of forming a grand alliance of anti-BJP parties by Congress in Assam has started fading with two newly formed regional parties rejecting the offer and a month after contesting the Bodoland Territorial Council elections together the Congress has denied having any tie up with the All India United Democratic Front for assembly polls in April.

Confusion over the proposed alliance between Congress and AIUDF started after AICC general secretary and party's state in-charge Jitendra Singh said that the Congress high command will not bypass the opinion of ground level workers before finalising an alliance with AIUDF for the 2021 Assam elections.

"There is nothing regarding the alliance. I have not met Mr. Badruddin Ajmal and nobody is in touch (regarding the alliance with AIUDF)," Mr. Singh told reporters. "I don't think there have been any talks between the Congress high command and AIUDF leaders. Any discussion on alliance politics has to go through the general secretary in-charge for the state," said Mr. Singh.

The remarks of the AICC general secretary came soon after AIUDF supremo Badruddin Ajmal said that an alliance between the two parties was going to be finalized soon.

"Talks on Congress and AIUDF ties are at the final stage," said Mr. Ajmal. In fact the idea of forming a grand alliance of all the anti-CAA forces was floated and stitched by late chief minister Tarun Gogoi. Two newly formed regional political parties - Assam Jatiya Parishad and Rajiur Dal have also rejected the idea of grand alliance with the Congress party.

"Since the beginning, our stand is clear. We will try to unite all regional forces and maintain distance from the national parties. We are firm on this and so we have decided to form an alliance with Rajiur Dal. An agreement in this regard will be signed very soon," AJP president, Lurinjyoti Gogoi told reporters.

Assam Jatiya Parishad (AJP) led by Lurinjyoti Gogoi, former All Assam Students' Union (AASU) leader and Rajiur Dal led by jailed farmers' leader Akhil Gogoi came into being following the anti-CAA agitation in December 2019, which turned violent.

Army says the apprehended soldier is being dealt with as per laid down procedures

Amidst stand-off, Chinese soldier captured in Ladakh

PAWAN BALI | DC NEW DELHI, JAN. 9

Indian Army apprehended a Chinese soldier on Friday morning in South bank of Pangong Tso lake in Eastern Ladakh where India and China are involved in a tense military stand off for last eight months.

The soldier was caught near Gurung Hill, which is one of the peaks in Kailash range, which Indian Army had pre-emptively occupied in August in tit for tat action against Chinese aggression on North bank of Pangong Tso. The move meant that Indian soldiers dominated peaks in the area and had choked PLA movement in the sector.

The Indian Army move had caught Chinese by surprise and they had made several unsuccessful attempts to occupy these peaks. The area had also witnessed firing incident for the first time in four decades between the two armies as tensions had escalated.

"The PLA soldier had transgressed across the LAC and was taken into custody by Indian troops deployed in this area," said Indian Army on Saturday.

In a strong statement Indian Army said that troops from either side are deployed along the LAC since friction erupted last year due to unprecedented mobilisation and forward concentration by Chinese troops.

"The PLA soldier is being dealt with as per laid down procedures and circumstances under which he had crossed the LAC are being investigated," said Indian Army.

Sources said the Chinese soldier is being questioned to know whether he accidentally crossed over or was trying to spy. Earlier in October Indian Army had apprehended a Chinese soldier in Demchok sector of Eastern Ladakh, who was returned.

Chinese state owned media Global Times said that China has called for an immediate return of the soldier, who it claimed went missing due to "darkness and complicated geography".

It further claimed that China had informed India as soon as the incident occurred, and sought help from the Indian side.

The incident has happened at a time when there has been no breakthrough in talks on disen-

C-virus funk? Relax, and respect the kids

Parenting is a thankless job except when your child flashes you an admiring look of appreciation and love or envelopes you in a warm, spontaneous hug. But most of the time, you — the parent — are under scrutiny, by your children, your parents and relatives, society and indeed the law — with everyone expecting you to trip up.

The job comes with perks. You get to make the rules — mostly. But more commonly parents are running up the down escalator — coping with their own personal disasters and ghosts, pretending to be in control of the situation or just making do with paying the daily bills.

The most challenging scenario is when “special children” are born. So steeped are most of us in the quicksand of the “norm” that anything out of that spectrum imposes extreme stress. The wonder is that most parents do eventually cope with the daunting task of loving and serving unconditionally.

But parenting is never easy. Nor does one fall automatically into it — at least not well enough. It is fairly straightforward to make babies. Sadly, it is never straightforward to nudge them to grow up to be humane, empathetic, caring siblings, mothers or fathers, responsible citizens and productive members of society.

Even in ordinary times, parenting is a formidable task. It becomes much harder in extraordinary times. Think long wars or extended violence — there are fifty-five such events happening across the globe. Add to that periodic drought, famine, economic distress or the pandemic we are struggling through.

What should parents do if carefully formulated plans collapse into mere physical survival? Look back to the “hunter-gatherer” age for role models? Is it even sensible to bring up a child believing in the “nice” social lessons of Liberty, Equality and Fraternity, learnt over the last century, when society itself seems to be hurtling back to where we began?

More than 90,000 people died in 2020 in continuing conflicts across the globe — some of these started as early as 1947 and continue glowing like the embers of a major fire. Covid-19 has devastated human life and social norms more decisively than any other calamity and more confusingly so since there is no one to blame but ourselves.

Perhaps there is a lesson there for us and our children. An old one. Just one rotten apple destroys an entire pile. We should change our rotten ways if our children are to identify and shun rot. The maxim of survival of the fittest is the “learned knowledge” born out of uncaring times. If society thrives so do, we. The impending disaster from climate change illustrates this truism.

The difficult part is how to embed these noble notions into a workable social ethic which preserves the spirit of competition without impeding collaboration; recognises the human impetus for acquisition but tempers it with a notion of relative equality; acknowledges that humans are not saints but nor are they Hobbesian creatures of dystopia.

When faced with a conundrum, parents assume that role modeling will do the trick — being the person you want your child to be. This is an honest way to go — you can’t expect your child to be honest, fair and just if you aren’t. But even this doesn’t guarantee success. No child is a clone of their parents. And force fitting them into narrow roles has an even chance of success or disaster.

Parenting is a high-risk venture. There are so many moving parts, any of which could pitch the game against the parent or the child. Covid-19 is one such. It has also taken away the relief that external actors — teachers, friends, extended family — gave hard pressed parents via “me time”. “Family time” is all we have for those working from home. This is what most parents wished for. Many might now be having second thoughts. Possibly children too feel similarly. Too much of a good thing is never as good as when it is rationed out in dribbles.

Here are three survival strategies to get you through Covid-19 with your sanity intact.

First, quit role modeling. It’s stressful to keep up an act 24X7. Being yourself can bring surprisingly good results. Children are very resilient. They know that adults are fallible and can be surprisingly responsible when asked for help. It is we, adults, who force them into infantile irresponsibility well beyond the initial years when this assumption is valid.

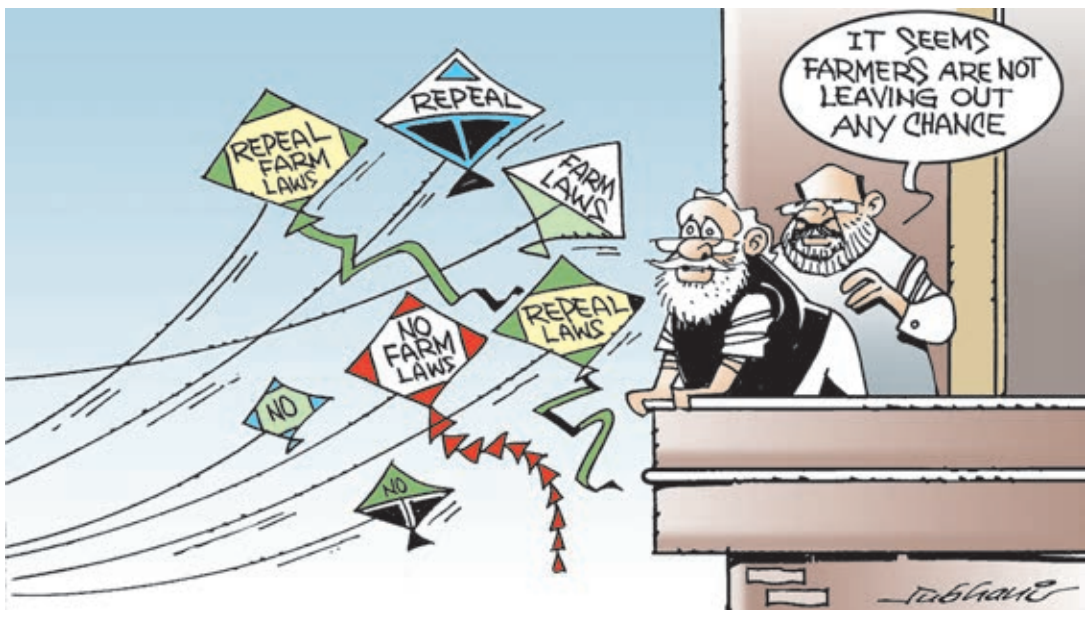

Second, imagine what you always wanted your boss to do — to quit micro-managing you. Become your ideal boss. Lay out fair rules on how your lives will run. Encourage your children to become equal partners in fleshing out what this means in practice — who does what, when and why. Things will probably not work like clockwork. The house will become messy. The kids may need time to discipline themselves about homework or time spent on social media. Your spouse might resent the change just as much as the kids. But in the end, there is a good chance everyone will sort themselves out per their natural inclinations and capacities.

Third, avoid dreaming of the future. “Que sera sera” remains the motto. The only thing real is the present — remain in it. This doesn’t mean that planning should be junked. But a future directed by you is as dead as the Planning Commission. Shape your children into commandos — street smart but equipped with the attributes for happiness and success — good health, a head for languages and code, music and art, digital capability and high social and human capacity. The rest will unfold as challenges and opportunities present themselves.

Children are born pure and unsullied. It is we who contaminate them with backward looking limitations. Now is a good time to shed the patrimonial legacy of parenthood and discover the joy of surviving together — the good news being — no one is watching, excepting you.

Why J. Khanna dissented from Central Vista ruling

Pavan K. Varma

Chanakya's View

The Supreme Court (SC) has in a two-against-one judgment given a conditional green signal to the government’s plans to massively rebuild the central core of the capital of the Republic. We have no option but to accept the view of the highest court of the land, but the dissenting judgment of Justice Sanjiv Khanna raises issues which, if brushed under the carpet, would sanctify the government’s predilection to rule by law rather than that by rule of law.

The old saying, the way to hell is paved with good intentions, has a new resonance to the manner in which our current government acts. The end goal is often good, but the manner in which it is sought to be achieved is sorely wanting. The recent farm laws provide an illustrative example. No one can question the proposition that the agricultural sector needs reforms. But there is something inherently undemocratic if the reforms are pushed through without adequate consultations.

The farm bills were passed by blatantly violating every procedure and protocol of Parliament; they were hurriedly cleared on a Sunday, without sufficient discussion, by a voice vote, and without referring them to a Select Committee where the views of stakeholders could be taken on board in an organized and transparent manner. The farmers massed on the borders of Delhi are basically saying that there was no conversation with them.

This is precisely what a great many concerned citizens, members of civil society, architects, town planners, environmental experts, landscapists, conservationists, and heritage specialists are saying about the rebuilding of New Delhi. Justice Sanjiv Khanna, in his dissenting judgment, used a very telling expression to describe the undemocratic opacity of the government. He said that there was a lack of “adequate and intelligible disclosure”. A project of this nature, he went on to elaborate, must involve the public as they are the real stakeholders of national heritage; the public must be given an informed voice; it should have had “fair participation” in deliberations, and given appropriate information and details.

This was especially important, Justice Khanna said, because the proposed changes to the heart of New Delhi’s heritage core are not only massive, but irreversible. Physical construction or demolitions cannot be undone, and have permanent consequences. The argument, it must be reiterated, is not against change. Cites are not fossilised in the past. The government is within its rights to make changes. Nor is Lutyens’ legacy writ in stone. In any case, as a person,

Why was an open design competition not held? On what criteria did the government’s in-house committee decide that a Gujarat based firm, which may have done the redevelopment of the Sabarmati river front, had the best design even when its bid was the most expensive?

Justice Sanjiv Khanna, in his dissenting judgment, used a very telling expression to describe the undemocratic opacity of the government. He said that there was a lack of ‘adequate and intelligible disclosure’.

Lutyens was an incorrigible racist, with a deep sense of contempt for Indians and all things Indian. But the city he designed with Herbert Baker has been part of our history for the last seven decades and more. If we wish to change our architectural past, should not that process be fully transparent, and informed by adequate and intelligible information put out in the public realm?

The answer, of course, is yes. But was this done? Many questions hang unanswered in the air. Why was the original brief for the project marked by such uncommunicative brevity? Why were all the drawings, layout plans and explanatory memoranda, inviting suggestions and objections, not put on a public website? Why was an open design competition not held? Why was a public jury of well-known non-governmental experts along with government nominees not constituted to decide the best bid? On what criteria did the government’s in-house committee decide that a Gujarat based firm, which may have done the redevelopment of the Sabarmati river front, had the best design even when its bid was the most expensive? Why have the criteria for this subjective and secretive selection not been made public even now? Why was the permission of the Heritage Conservation Committee not obtained? Why was the environment clearance granted by the Expert Appraisal Committee not a speaking order, clearly giving reasons, and as Justice Sanjiv Khanna observed, showing application of mind? Why was a detailed report showing why our current Parliament needs to be junked, and is beyond all retrofitting to suit future needs, not made public? Since the changes involved building a new Parliament, could not there have been a discussion in Parliament, rather than merely briefing representatives of political parties?

The BJP may have an absolute majority in Parliament, but that does not mean that the process of democratic consultation, and the imperative of transparency, can be dispensed with. When governments behave as if they know best what is good for the people, and treat the views of the people themselves as unimportant, the consequences lack credibility and legitimacy. On a TV debate the other day, Mohandas Pai said that democracy cannot mean checking out every decision with all the people. My only response to him is not to trivialise the democratic process. Obviously, not everyone can be consulted, but there are standard and institutionalised ways in which the government can attempt to gauge what is best for the people. When this is not done through intelligent and adequate disclosure, and a transparent process of consultations, the result is contentious and counter-productive. This is what the angry farmers are saying, and this is what those who are distressed at manner of the remaking of New Delhi, are reiterating. Their views are best summed up in this couplet: Yun dikhata hai aankhen mujhe baaghsabaan, jaise gulshan pe kuch haq har-mara nahin: The caretaker of the garden looks at me such, as though I have no say in the well-being of the garden.

LOCAL BODY POLLS

State Election Commissioner N. Ramesh Kumar has taken the right decision to hold the gram panchayat polls from February 5 to 17 in four phases (SEC calls 4-phase local polls in Feb, AP objects, DC, Jan. 9). The state government’s objections are not reasonable and it is better to proceed with the polls. Even if the government goes to Supreme Court, it won’t benefit the government but spoils its reputation.

P. Govardhana Rao
Kankipadu, Krishna district

The SEC’s decision to issue the election notification will be futile and ineffective. To conduct the polls smoothly, the SEC and the ruling dispensation need to be on the same page. It calls for coordination and consensus which is not there. By not taking the stakeholders into confidence, the mess that has been created with the new farm laws is a case in point.

FARMERS’ PROTEST

The failure of eighth round of talks between farmers and the Centre on the three farm laws is disappointing. With both the parties refusing to budge from their stand, the chance to find an amicable solution has become nearly impossible. Anyway the government has more responsibility to break the deadlock in the interest of farmers and the nation. Why can’t the well-intended government step back and win the hearts to find a solution with double benefits? The farmers’ income and the reformers’ image may improve.

Abdullah externed from J&K

NEW DELHI, JANUARY. 9 AN order of externment was served on Sheikh Abdullah early today for bidding him from entering the State of Jammu and Kashmir for a period of three months.

Sheikh Abdullah is currently in Delhi. A similar order was served yesterday on Mirza Afzal Beg, Plebiscite Front Leader.

Sheikh Abdullah, it is clarified, is not under arrest. But, he cannot enter the State under the externment order issued under the Jammu and Kashmir Maintenance of Public Order.

The externment orders, under the Public Maintenance of Public Order Act of Jammu and Kashmir were served on the Sheikh and his son-in-law G. M. Shah, who is General Secretary of the Plebiscite Front, at the Sheikh’s New Delhi residence No. 3 Kotla Lane.

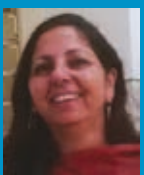

The order was served on Mirza Afzal Beg, President of Front, last evening while he was proceeding from Jammu to Srinagar by car.

attempts to move him out.

Though the election for the Congress president’s post is yet to be announced and there is no formal word from Rahul Gandhi about his future plans, it is being assumed that the Nehru-Gandhi scion will return as party chief again. Word to this effect is doing the rounds in the Congress. Consequently, everyone, including senior Congress leaders, has started courting Rahul Gandhi’s team members. There is no “Ahmed Patel” in his office but Kaushal Vidyarthi is among those who is said to be a member of the Congress leader’s core team. It is, therefore, not surprising that he is much in demand with the Congress leaders who vie to get a word with him. One leader went as far as to suggest that Mr Vidyarthi’s role in Rahul Gandhi’s office can be compared to that of R.K. Dawhan and V. George in the offices of Indira Gandhi and Sonia Gandhi, respectively.

Divide and win Sikh farmers; artist’s mighty snub to govt

The Akali Dal-controlled Shiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee has announced that it will not be inviting Prime Minister Narendra Modi for Sikh centenary events in protest against the Centre’s “anti-farmer” stand but it has not stopped informal contacts between the government and Akali Dal leaders as both sides attempt to resolve the ongoing farmers’ stir. Akali Dal’s Rajya Sabha MP Naresh Gujral is said to have called up urban development minister Hardeep Puri recently to draw his attention to the number of Sikh farmers who have died in the last month and urged him to find an early solution to the protests. Mr Puri apparently showed no remorse and instead asked the Akali MP to ensure that the Leftists are kept out of the picture. The BJP is convinced that the protests are being led and managed by Left-leaning activists and cannot countenance dealing with or yielding to their demands. In any case, Mr Puri is also said to have told Mr Gujral that the Modi government has no intention of repealing the farm laws but is willing to tweak certain clauses to provide a face-saver to the farmers.

As the only Sikh minister in the Modi government, Hardeep Puri has been fielded in the media regularly after farmers from Punjab and Haryana began their protest at the Delhi border. On his part, Mr Puri is doing his bit to appease and mollify the angry Sikh community. It was, therefore, not surprising that the minister made time last week, despite his hectic schedule, to release a coffee table book on the life and teachings of Guru Nanak Dev, authored by Harminder Kaur. Mr Puri later posted photographs of the release function held in his office with a short message mentioning the author’s name and that the paintings in the book were by artist Arpana Caur. However, Arpana Caur was missing from Mr Puri’s photographs. According to the grapevine, Ms Caur refused to attend in protest against the Modi government’s Central Vista redevelopment plans. Arpana Caur is among the large number of artists, architects and conservationists who have petitioned the Centre against the demolition of the buildings housing the National Museum and the Indira Gandhi Centre National Centre for the Arts.

Stand-up comedian Munawar Faruqui, who was arrested recently in Indore for allegedly making indecent remarks against Hindu deities, seems to have fallen victim to longstanding rivalry between BJP leaders. Mr Faruqui was taken into custody following a complaint by Eklavya Singh Gaur, son of local BJP legislator Malini Laxman Singh Gaur, who is a camp follower of Sumitra Mahajan, former Lok Sabha Speaker and former Indore MP. Ms Mahajan is known to be a long-time rival of BJP general secretary Kailash Vijayvargiya, also from Indore. According to reports from Madhya Pradesh Eklavya Gaur had been chafing ever since Kailash Vijayvargiya’s son and BJP legislator Akash grabbed headlines last year when he beat up a civic body officer with a cricket bat,

Not only did he get away with it but the incident enhanced Akash’s political profile. Eklavya Gaur is hoping Mr Faruqui’s arrest will win him brownie points with the BJP bosses.

It would seem that the BJP is playing a cat-and-mouse game with former Congress leader Jyotiraditya Scindia, who joined the saffron party last March. After making him wait for nearly two months, Madhya Pradesh chief minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan finally expanded his Cabinet last week and re-inducted two Scindia loyalists — Tulsiram Silawat and Govind Raju — in the ministry. While appeasing Mr Scindia, the chief minister was also quick to send out a message that the former Congress leader cannot dictate terms to him. Two days after the Cabinet expansion, the Chouhan government ordered the transfer of Commissioner, Gwalior Municipal Corporation, Sandeep Makin, known to be close to Mr Scindia. In fact, Mr Scindia has been so protective about Mr Makin that even Kamal Nath could not touch the officer despite several

EASTER ATTACKS:
U.S. CHARGES 3
SRI LANKANS

Washington, Jan. 9: The US has charged three Sri Lankan nationals for allegedly being part of a group of ISIS supporters responsible for the 2019 Easter attacks. Mohamed Naufar, Mohamed Anwar Mohamed Riskan and Ahamed Milhan Hayathu Moahmed are currently in custody in Sri Lanka.

The criminal case was filed on December 11, in the US District Court in Los Angeles. Naufar, the "second emir" for the group of ISIS supporters that called itself "ISIS in Sri Lanka" who allegedly led the group's propaganda efforts, recruited others to join ISIS and led a series of multi-day military-type trainings.

Riskhan allegedly helped manufacture the IEDs used in the Easter Attacks, and Moahmed allegedly executed a police officer in order to obtain the officer's firearm, shot a suspected informant, and scouted a location for a separate terrorist attack.

INTEL OFFICIAL
'HURT' AFTER
OUSTER BY DON

Washington, Jan. 9: The ousted inspector general of the intelligence community says he is "disappointed and saddened" that President Donald Trump fired him, but he also encouraged other inspectors general to continue to speak out when they are aware of wrongdoing.

Trump notified Congress late Friday evening that he intended to fire Michael Atkinson because he had lost confidence in him. On Saturday, Trump made it clear that the move had been retaliatory, telling reporters that Atkinson was a "disgrace" and had done "a terrible job" because he had provided an anonymous whistleblower complaint to Congress — a move that was required by law.

Atkinson was required by law to notify Congress of the complaint, which was written by an anonymous intelligence official and detailed Trump's pressure on Ukraine to investigate Democrats.

GOOGLE BANS
PARLER FROM PLAY STORE

Washington, Jan. 9: Internet giant Google has suspended US-based microblogging platform Parler — where most of the supporters of outgoing President Donald Trump are shifting their base — from its app store, citing posts inciting violence and demanding "robust" moderation for "egregious" content from the social networking service.

Simultaneously, Apple also warned Parler on Friday that it will ban the service from its app store if it doesn't start to moderate its content better.

The move by the two Silicon Valley companies came the day when Twitter permanently suspended Trump's account due to "risk of further incitement of violence".

"In order to protect user safety on Google Play, our longstanding policies require that apps displaying user-generated content have moderation policies and enforcement that removes egregious content like spots that incite violence," Google said in a statement.

FBI SEARCHES
LAWMAKERS'
OFFICES, HOMES

Nashville, Jan. 9: Federal prosecutors in Tennessee have said that FBI agents have searched the homes and offices of several state lawmakers.

US Attorney's Office of Middle Tennessee spokesman David Boling on Friday confirmed the searches included the homes of former GOP House Speaker Glen Casada, state Rep. Robin Smith and Casada's former chief of staff, Cade Cothren. The office of Republican Rep. Todd Warner also was searched, according to House Speaker Cameron Sexton.

Boling declined to provide any further information regarding the nature of the searches and how many lawmakers were involved.

A spokesman for the FBI referred all questions to the US Attorney's Office. Republican Gov. Bill Lee told reporters Friday that he had spoken to Sexton, a Republican from Crossville, about the searches, describing them as "FBI raids."

"It's certainly very concerning. I know very little about that. There's been no FBI outreach to us," Lee said.

15 charged over
Capitol violence

Legal action against Trump demanded

Washington, Jan. 9: The US Justice Department announced Friday that it has charged 15 people involved in the assault on Congress, including one man accused of possessing bombs made to act like "homemade napalm." But Ken Kohl, a federal prosecutor with the Washington US attorney's office, said they did not expect to charge anyone with "incitement" or "insurrection" in Wednesday's violence, amid calls for legal action against President Donald Trump, his lawyer Rudy Giuliani and others for encouraging it.

The department unveiled the cases against 13 people, including Richard Barnett, a Trump supporter who invaded the office of House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, and Lonnie Coffman of Alabama, who was found carrying two handguns and had 11 Styrofoam-enhanced Molotov cocktails in his truck.

Others whose charges were unsealed include Christopher Albert of Maryland, who allegedly entered the US Capitol with a loaded handgun; and Mark Leffingwell, charged with punching an officer. Most of the 13 were charged with illegal entry into restricted buildings of Congress, and violent or disorderly conduct.

They were also charged with impeding government functions after forcing the shutdown of a joint meeting of Congress to officially certify that Trump rival Joe Biden had won the November 3 election, which Trump had until Thursday refused to accept. Barnett, famously photographed with his feet on a desk in Pelosi's office, was charged with theft of stationery.

"The lawless destruction of the US Capitol building was an attack against one of our nation's greatest institutions," said Acting US Attorney Michael Sherwin in a statement.

Kohl said that not all the charges filed over Wednesday's violence had been unsealed, and that more were in the pipeline as the FBI investigates.

"This investigation has the highest priority," he said, with "hundreds" of Justice Department investigators working the case.

is for Congress to decide: Biden

Wilmington, Jan. 9: President-elect Joe Biden on Friday strongly indicated he does not back moves to impeach President Donald Trump, saying the quickest way to get him out of office is through the transition in two weeks. "The quickest way that will happen is us being sworn in on the 20th," said Biden, who will take the oath of office on January 20.

"What actually happens before or after, that is a judgment for the Congress to make. But that's what I am looking forward to: him leaving office."

The President-elect was addressing reporters in his hometown of Wilmington two days after Trump encouraged a mob of supporters to march on Congress.

Democratic leaders in Congress have growing momentum for attempting to impeach Trump for the second time in his presidency.

There is little support so far among Republicans, although they too have loudly condemned Trump's behaviour.

This was Biden's first extended reaction to the talk of impeaching Trump or trying to persuade Vice President Mike Pence to invoke the 25th amendment removing the president from office.

Biden's hesitancy to support his party on impeachment reflects the fact that he already faces a mammoth task in working to heal divisions in US society.

"We're going to do our job and Congress can decide how to proceed," Biden said.

"The idea that I think he shouldn't be out of office yesterday is not an issue. The question is what happens with 14 days to go, 13 days left to go?"

"I certainly would never justify any attacks on citizens, democracy or law enforcement," he wrote.

In the initial comments, he characterised participants as supporters of the president who believed that the election had been stolen.

Twitter permanently bans Don

San Francisco, Jan. 9: Twitter said Friday it has permanently suspended President Donald Trump's account, citing the risk of further violence following the assault on the US Capitol by his supporters.

"After close review of recent Tweets from the @realDonaldTrump account," Twitter said in a blog post explaining its decision, "we have permanently suspended the account due to the risk of further incitement of violence." Twitter — Trump's favourite megaphone — blocked him for 12 hours after the deadly attack on the US Capitol on Wednesday and threatened permanent suspension if he continued breaking its rules.

Washington, Jan. 9: Outgoing US President Donald Trump has slammed Twitter for permanently suspending him, vowing that he and his support base would not be silenced. The unprecedented move by the California-based microblogging site on Friday comes after Trump tweeted that he would not attend the inauguration of his successor Joe Biden on January 20.

At the time of suspension, Trump had 88.7 million followers and followed 51 people. In a statement after he was banned, Trump said: "I predicted this would happen. We have been negotiating with various other sites, and will have a big announcement soon, while we also look at the possibilities of building out our own platform in the near future. We will not be SILENCED!"

He acknowledged his presidency was ending and promised a smooth transition to Joe Biden, although he did not go so far as to congratulate or even say the name of his successor.

Twitter said at the time it was continuing to watch Trump's social media activity to determine whether further action was needed.

The decision to suspend Trump's account came after a pair of tweets on Friday, according to the one-to-many messaging platform. In one of the tweets, Trump vowed that none of his supporters would be "disrespected," and in another, he said he would not be attending Biden's inauguration on January 20, as is customary. "These two Tweets must be read in the context of broader events in the country and the ways in which the President's statements can be mobilised by different audiences, including to incite violence, as well as in the context of the pattern of behaviour from this account in recent weeks," Twitter said.

China WHO trip: No timeline

'Act like you have got it' drive in UK

Beijing, Jan. 9: China is ready to receive a WHO expert team to probe the origin of Covid-19 and has reached a consensus with the UN's top health agency, a senior Chinese official said on Saturday, but gave no specific timeline for the visit.

The exact time when the WHO expert team will arrive in Wuhan, where the virus emerged in December last, and investigate into the Coronavirus origin is still under negotiation, Zeng Yixin, deputy head of the National Health Commission, said. China and the World Health Organisation have reached a consensus on specific arrangements of the investigation with four video conferences, Zeng was quoted as saying by state-run Global Times.

Chinese experts are waiting for their WHO counterparts, he said. Once the WHO experts complete their procedures and finalise the schedule, Chinese experts will go to Wuhan with them to conduct the probe, Zeng was quoted as saying by the state-run Xinhua news agency.

Zeng stressed that China's position on the WHO investigation is positive, open and supportive, and the country hopes such joint efforts would help deepen the understanding of the virus and better prevent infectious diseases in the future. In a rare instance of criticism from the global body, WHO chief

London, Jan. 9: The UK government on Saturday began rolling out a series of stark advertisements as part of a new awareness drive that warns people to "Act like you've got it" because anyone can spread Coronavirus, especially the new highly transmissible variant that has seen hospitals being overwhelmed with Covid-19 patients.

The campaign — made up of television, radio and newspaper adverts as well as a social media blitz — comes as the latest daily death toll from the deadly virus hit a new peak of 1,325 deaths and infections rose to 68,053 cases. Around one in three people infected with the virus do not have any symptoms and could therefore be passing it on without realising, according to the government's messaging.

UK PM Boris Johnson took to social media to urge people to strictly follow the stay-at-home lockdown as the disease continues to spread at an "alarming rate". "Our hospitals are under more pressure than at any other time since the start of the pandemic, and infection rates continue to soar at an alarming rate," he said in a Twitter statement.

"The vaccine rollout has given us renewed hope, but it's critical for now we stay at home, protect the NHS and save lives," he said. The warnings came a day after London Mayor Sadiq Khan declared a "major incident" in the UK capital because the coronavirus cases are "out of control" as latest figures revealed the infection rate in London has exceeded 1,000 per 100,000 people.

Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus, often accused of being pro-China, in a media conference in Geneva on Tuesday had expressed disappointment over China not finalising the necessary permissions for the experts team's arrival. "I'm very disappointed with this news, given that

U.S. RECORD:
NEARLY 2.9 LAKH
CASES IN 24 HRS

Washington, Jan. 9: The United States hit a new record for Coronavirus cases Friday, notching nearly 290,000 in a span of 24 hours, according to a real-time tally by Johns Hopkins University.

The country, the hardest hit in the world by the Covid-19 pandemic, also recorded 3,676 virus deaths in the same day, the Baltimore-based university said.

The day before, the US had recorded a record of nearly 4,000 deaths in 24 hours. Some 131,000 people are currently hospitalized in the US for Covid-19, according to the Covid Tracking Project.

The world's largest economy has recorded 21.8 million Coronavirus cases and more than 368,000 deaths since the start of the pandemic.

The country, where health restrictions vary drastically between localities, is ultimately counting on a massive vaccination campaign begun in mid-December to bring the health crisis to an end.

But the effort is running behind, with just under six million people having received the first of two injections in the country of 330 million.

Lahore, Jan. 9: UN designated global terrorist Masood Azhar, chief of the banned Jaish-e-Mohammad (JeM), should be arrested by January 18 in connection with a terror financing case, an anti-terrorism court in Pakistan has asked the Punjab Police, a court official said on Saturday.

The Anti-Terrorism Court (ATC) Gujranwala issued an arrest warrant against Azhar in the terror financing case instituted by the CTD in the previous hearing on Thursday. ATC Gujranwala

Following the Palwama terror attack in February 2019, Pakistan's Punjab police had launched a crackdown on terrorism financing and arrested six militants of the JeM in Gujranwala, some 130 kms from Lahore.

Spain sees heaviest snowfall in 50 yrs

Madrid, Jan. 9: Heavy snow continued to fall across much of Spain on Friday, causing chaos on the roads, particularly in the centre of the country, with the capital Madrid seeing its heaviest snowfall in 50 years.

By nightfall, the extreme weather brought by Storm Filomena had left many areas under a deep blanket of white in a rare bout of wintry weather not seen in decades to the Iberian peninsula.

As the snow showed no signs of letting up, Madrid's Barajas airport halted all incoming and outgoing flights. "For safety reasons, operations have been stopped at #Airport AS #Madrid-#Barajas, until visibility is improved. The work to clear the runways continues in order to resume operations as soon as possible #BorrascaFilomena," it tweeted.

The blizzard also caused havoc on the roads, with nearly 400 affected across Spain and hundreds of vehicles stranded in the snow and ice.

The worst-hit regions were Castilla La Mancha, Valencia and Madrid, with the capital seeing its heaviest snowfall since 1971, Spain's public television said. Hours of intense snow which was still falling by 2100 GMT cut off the city's two main ringroads, the M30 and the M40, and a red alert was declared in the city centre where police struggled to help people stranded in vehicles.

The transport authority said the snow had disrupted traffic on almost 400 main roads, where in many cases lorries and heavy goods vehicles were unable to pass, while many roads were only passable with snow chains.

On the secondary road network, more than 50 roads were impassable and around 170 roads required chains. And hundreds of lorry drivers were held up across the country.

The AEMET weather agency described the situation as "exceptional and most likely historic".

Earlier in the day, children in Madrid could be seen hurling snowballs or playing under snow-covered palm trees, while others snapped photos of the rare whiteout which began in earnest the day after Spain celebrated King's Day — or Epiphany.

AEMET had earlier warned another 20 centimetres (eight inches) of snow was expected in Madrid, the high central plains and the nearby mountain ranges, which could rise to 50 centimetres in higher areas. High-speed trains between Madrid and Valencia were cancelled.

SLOW & UNSTEADY

Pujara's slowest Test 50 derails visitors momentum

Sydney, Jan. 9: Cheteshwar Pujara's singular lack of intent pushed an injury-ravaged India into a deep hole as Australia tightened the noose with a substantial 197-run lead on a forgettable Saturday for the visitors in the third Test here.

Pujara's slowest Test half-century, a painstaking 50 off 176 balls, was soon followed by India being bowled out for 244 on the third day with the other batsmen feeling tremendous pressure of a dormant scoreboard.

A first-innings lead of 94 runs provided by the bowlers and some good fielding did help Australia's cause.

By stumps, Steve Smith (29 batting) and Marnus Labuschagne (47 batting) gave an exhibition of how to bat on slow tracks with Australia reaching 103/2.

Labuschagne, in particular, showed how to bat positively on a dead track hitting six boundaries in 67 balls.

As Shane Warne pointed out during commentary, it would be very difficult to chase any score in excess of 250 with variable bounce and the odd balls keeping low.

India's Jasprit Bumrah (right) is run out as Australia's Will Pucovski watches during play on the third day of their third Test at the Sydney Cricket Ground on Saturday.

Pat Cummins (4/29 in 21.4 overs) was brilliant on an unresponsive track with some effective short-pitched bowling and got good support from Josh Hazlewood (2/43 in 21 overs) and Mitchell Starc (1/61 in 19 overs), having set up a leg-side trap.

To make matters worse for India, there were run-outs and two batsmen — Rishabh

While both might come into bat in the second innings, Jadeja, with a swollen left thumb, will find it difficult to even grip the ball.

Earlier, Pujara's ultra-defensive approach put tremendous pressure on his colleagues and India never quite got the momentum going as Cummins, Hazlewood and Starc continuously attacked the batsmen — first with a leg-side field and short-ball strategy and then on the corridor of uncertainty.

Pujara doesn't play the pull or hook shot well and he wasn't allowed room to either cut or drive.

While he never tried to rotate the strike, the likes of Ajinkya Rahane (22 off 70 balls) and Rishabh Pant (36 off 67 balls) felt the urge to break the shackles in the absence of any such intention from the other end.

"It may have looked like a flat pitch but it wasn't easy to score runs," Pujara told host broadcasters Channel 7 during post match snap interview.

Bumrah & Siraj racially abused

Sydney, Jan. 9: The BCCI on Saturday lodged a formal complaint with ICC match referee David Boon after Indian team players, Jasprit Bumrah and Mohammed Siraj, were allegedly racially abused by a drunk spectator here during the third day of third Test against Australia.

According to BCCI sources, Siraj was allegedly referred to as a "monkey" by a drunk spectator in one of stands at the Sydney Cricket Ground, reliving the infamous Monkeygate episode of the Indian team's tour of Australia in 2007-08.

"BCCI lodged a formal complaint with ICC match referee David Boon about two of their players Jasprit Bumrah and Mohammed Siraj being abused by a drunk spectator," a Cricket Board source said.

Incidentally, the Monkeygate episode also took place during the Sydney Test when Andrew Symonds claimed Harbhajan Singh called him a monkey multiple times. But the Harbhajan was cleared after a hearing on the matter. It is learnt that a long discussion was

JADDU INJURES THUMB, IS OUT OF FOURTH TEST

Sydney, Jan. 9: Depleted India's injury woes worsened on Saturday with Ravindra Jadeja sustaining a left thumb dislocation and fracture which is likely to rule him out of the final Test in Brisbane.

"Ravindra Jadeja has suffered a dislocation and fracture on his left thumb. It will be very difficult for him to wear those gloves and bat," a senior BCCI source said.

However, Rishabh Pant's elbow injury is not serious and he will probably be available when India bat to save the Test match.

The abuses were directed at the Indian duo while they were fielding.

Agnes Keleti, former Olympic gold medal winning gymnast, blows out the candles on her birthday cake in Budapest, Hungary, on January 4.

Oldest living Oly champ turns 100

Budapest, Jan. 9: For Agnes Keleti, the oldest living Olympic champion, the fondest memory of her remarkable 100 years is simply that she has lived through it all. The Holocaust survivor and winner of 10 Olympic medals in gymnastics including five golds celebrates her 100th birthday on Saturday in her native Budapest, punctuating a life of achievement, adventure, tragedy and perseverance which, she says, passed by in a flash.

"These 100 years felt to me like 60," she said at a celebration in Budapest on the eve of her birthday.

Leafing through a copy of a new book about her life

"The Queen of Gymnastics: 100 Years of Agnes Keleti" her trademark modesty was on full display.

"The queen of gymnastics," she said, switching to English. And in Hungarian: "That's an exaggeration."

Keleti, who was born Agnes Klein in 1921, had her illustrious career interrupted by World War II and the subsequent cancellation of the 1940 and 1944 Olympics.

Forced off her gymnastics team in 1941 because of her Jewish ancestry, Keleti went into hiding in the Hungarian countryside where she survived the Holocaust by assuming a false identity and working as a maid.
