DC CORRESPONDENT
HYDERABAD, FEB. 10

Chief Minister K. Chandrashekar Rao on Wednesday announced the launch of the CM Dalit Empowerment Scheme for the upliftment and development of Dalits.

Mr Rao, while addressing a public meeting at Halia, said that ₹1,000 crore would be sanctioned for this scheme in the upcoming state budget 2021-22.

"It is an irony that Dalits continue to lag behind in all sectors, even after the country attained Independence more than seven decades ago. Any country or society progresses only if all sections progress. The development should be inclusive. To empower Dalits in Telangana, I have decided to launch a new scheme in the upcoming budget. This scheme will be named after the Chief Minister. I will personally monitor its implementation and ensure the benefits of the scheme reach every Dalit across the state. We will sanction ₹1,000 crore for this scheme," he said.

Blaming the Congress party for the backwardness of Nalgonda district, Rao said if his government takes up projects, the Opposition parties level allegations that there are kickbacks.

He sought to know whether the Nagarjuna Sagar project, which was constructed during the Congress regime, was taken up for kickbacks.

Rao also announced a monetary aid of ₹186 crore to strengthen municipalities and local bodies in the erstwhile Nalgonda district.

He also announced that the state government would soon invite applications for new Aasara pensions as well as new ration cards across the state.

PM defends farm laws, slams Oppn

Angry Opposition walks out after Modi remark

DC CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI, FEB. 10

Prime Minister Narendra Modi's response to the motion of thanks on the President's address in the Lok Sabha Wednesday was overtaken midway by angry Opposition protests as he referred to the farm laws. The Congress, after a huge altercation, walked out shortly after he said the slogan-shouting "was a planned strategy to drown out reason and hide the truth".

The protests started as Modi, after speaking on Covid-19, switched to the farm laws, saying: "This government and Parliament respects farmers and will always continue to respect them."

The Opposition, which has shredded him over the past two days for comments like "andolan jeevi" and "parjeevi" (parasites) made during his last address, broke out in protests. As Speaker Om Birla repeatedly asked the members to calm down, Modi said: "The farm laws will not bring down any farmers. No mandi has been shut nor have minimum support prices (MSP) been stopped."

Modi again used the "andolanjeevi" jibe to target protesting farmers, which he had used in his speech in the Rajya Sabha earlier. There were strong words for the Congress, which the BJP has repeatedly accused of instigating the farmers. The PM said the Congress was a "divided and confused" party, saying it was adopting different positions on various issues in the Lok Sabha and Rajya Sabha as it had no clear-cut stand. He said: "Such a confused party cannot help the country or anyone else. You want to shout inside Parliament, just as you do outside, then please go ahead, but hiding behind lies will never get you anywhere."

4-HOUR RAIL ROKO ON FEBRUARY 18 BY FARM UNIONS

SANJAY KAW | DC
NEW DELHI, FEB. 10

Days after 'Chakka Jam', the protesting farmers' unions on Wednesday announced a four-hour nationwide 'rail roko' (railway blockade) on February 18 to intensify their agitation against the three farm laws.

The unions also decided to make a toll free movement of vehicles on highways in Rajasthan from Friday. Samyukta Kisan Morcha (SKM) leader Darshan Pal said a series of events were planned to intensify the agitation which was going on for over two months at Delhi borders.

The SKM is an umbrella organisation of 41 farmers' unions which has been negotiating with the Centre over the new laws. Just a month ago, farmers had stopped toll collection at Hanumangarh, Ganganagar and Bikaner.

National politics for KCR after polls to 3 states

L. VENKAT RAM REDDY | DC
HYDERABAD, FEB. 10

After his attempts to plunge into national politics after March 2018 failed to materialise due to unfavourable political circumstances, TRS president and Telangana Chief Minister K. Chandrashekar Rao has decided to wait till the first week of May before deciding his next course of action.

The reasons being cited by official sources in TRS for this wait are upcoming Assembly polls in West Bengal, Tamil Nadu and Kerala.

Though Assembly polls are due in five states, also including Assam and Puducherry, it is the results of Bengal, Tamil Nadu and Kerala in April and May that Rao is keenly watching.

These three states are bigger and politically more significant for regional parties, while the national parties — the BJP and the Congress — are playing relatively second fiddle, except for the BJP which fancies its chances in Bengal against Mamata Banerjee.

The Election Commission is likely to release the schedule for assembly polls in these five states by this month-end and results are expected to be announced by April-end.

Based on the outcome, Rao wants to take a decision on whether or not to plunge into national politics, around the first week of May.

MPs to keep off GHMC MAYORAL ELECTIONS

HYDERABAD, FEB. 10

Several Members of Parliament (MPs) have decided to stay away from the Greater Hyderabad Municipal Corporation's Mayoral voting in order to reserve their vote in any unforeseen situation in the vital Warangal and Khammam municipal polls, which would be held very soon.

Technically, the ruling TRS has no major numerical obstacle in the mayoral election. However, parties are keenly watching the movements of newly elected corporators, despite issuing a whip.

The strange rule is while voting in these elections is that if any corporator violates the whip issued by her or his party, the vote is valid.

HC allows male nurses to apply for Singareni posts

DC CORRESPONDENT
HYDERABAD, FEB. 10

Discrimination towards male candidates by way of restraining them from applying for nurse posts is unacceptable under the law and this amounts to a violation of the Articles 14 and 21 of the Constitution, the Telangana High Court has ruled.

The ruling was made in response to a writ petition alleging discrimination based on gender in recruitments by the Singareni Collieries Company Ltd.

Justice Ponugoti Naveen Rao said government recruiting agencies cannot take shelter under Rule 22 and 22-A (Special Reservations) of the Telangana State and Subordinate Service Rules, 1996, and exclude anyone in the filling of posts.

Unless and until a policy decision is taken to reserve the posts exclusively for some category, the recruiter cannot move forward on the basis of the existing rules, the court stated.

Social media firm shuts some a/cs, but refuses to comply fully

Twitter draws Centre's ire for defiance

New Delhi, Feb. 10: Twitter said on Wednesday it had blocked some accounts in India over comments on farmers' protests in Delhi, but the social media giant refused to shut down others despite the threat of criminal action by the government.

Officials last week demanded that Twitter block hundreds of users that have tweeted on demonstrations against proposed new agriculture laws, saying they were a "grave threat to public order".

Twitter initially complied by blocking a number of accounts — including those of a prominent news magazine and farmer groups — but unblocked them several hours later, prompting threats of "penal action" from the government.

In a blog post, Twitter said it did "not believe that the actions we have been directed to take are consistent with Indian law". "In keeping with our principles of defending protected speech and freedom of expression, we have not taken any action on accounts that consist of news media entities, journalists, activists, and politicians," the firm said.

"To do so, we believe, would violate their fundamental right to free expression under Indian law."

But the firm nevertheless said several accounts had already been "permanently suspended", while some others had been blocked but only "within India".

The Electronics and IT ministry tweeted later it would respond "soon", calling Twitter's blog post "unusual" and said that it had come before a meeting with the government requested by the company.

The ministry later tweeted a link to its profile on rival Indian social network platform Koo. Some local personalities including minister Piyush Goyal have opened Koo accounts.

Twitter's response comes as a tussle intensifies between India's authorities and social media services in the world's biggest democracy.

He also announced ₹30 lakh each for every mandal headquarters, besides ₹10 crore for the Nalgonda Municipality, ₹5 crore for Miryalaguda municipality and ₹1 crore each for the remaining six municipalities in the district for their development.

The Chief Minister vowed to end water woes of Nalgonda district forever by pumping water from Paleru reservoir under the Sitarama lift irrigation scheme in Khammam district to the Devulapally balancing reservoir in Nalgonda district.

He said that estimates had been prepared to take up the project at a cost of ₹600 crore to pump water from the Godavari River to Krishna River, which has unreliable water flow during some years. "As promised by me during the statehood movement, I laid the foundation stone for 13 lift irrigation schemes, which will be completed in the next one and half years, failing which, I will not seek votes in the next Assembly elections," he said.

POLICE ARREST
MAN FOR POSING
AS ARMY OFFICIALDC CORRESPONDENT
HYDERABAD, FEB. 10

The KPHB Police arrested a man who earlier failed to crack the army entrance exam and started duping the public along with his associates by posing as a military officer.

The accused were identified as Nagaraju Karthikeya Raghuvarma, 22, Deepak Kumar Bora, 23, and Gaddam Anil Kumar, 35, said the police, adding that Pyla Swamy Satyanarayana and one Srinu were absconding.

The arrests were done following a complaint from Timmireddy Dileep, who stated that he runs a business of purchasing second hand cars and selling them and he received a call from Pyla Swamy Satyanarayana on 27 January for mortgaging his car for ₹15,000. "On February 1, a gang of men posing as cops kidnapped him and took 50,000 along with his phone and car from him and further threatened him to pay ₹5 lakhs for not booking cases against before letting him go," said the police.

Karthikeya Raghuvarma, a native of West Godavari, failed in the army recruitment in the year 2017 and had purchased the uniform of an army man and went to his village to pose as an official. "He then collected money from the people by threatening them and following a complaint, the police realised that he was disguising as an officer and placed him under arrest. Post his bail, he continued to do the same in Hyderabad."

SINGARENI TOLD TO ACCEPT

Justice Rao was dealing with a petition filed by Md. Fasiuddin from Godavarikhani of Peddapalli district challenging the employment notification issued by the Singareni Collieries. The company had called for applications to seven categories of posts, which included the post of junior staff nurse.

The notification had said only female candidates need send applications to fill the junior staff nurse posts. The petitioner argued that there cannot be recruitments based on gender.

J. Srinivasa Rao, counsel for the Singareni company contended that there was the practice in the company, since several years, that the posts of junior staff nurse were to be filled with women only. Counsel argued that Under Rule 22 and 22A of the Telangana State and Subordinate Service Rules, the company has the power to make special reservations for some posts.

Disagreeing with the contentions, Justice Rao stressed that, if so, a policy decision must be taken this way or necessary regulation be incorporated to allow exclusive reservation. The court directed the Singareni Company to receive applications from eligible male candidates also.

The court asked the company to extend the date of submission of application forms to make it convenient for eligible candidates to apply for the posts. However, the entire exercise of appointment for these posts shall now abide by the result of the writ petition, the court said.

MIM may enter mayoral fray

Owaisi-led party to have three options for mayoral elections

ATHER MOIN | DC
HYDERABAD, FEB. 10

An ally of the Telangana Rashtra Samiti for several years, the All India Majlis-e-Ittehadul Muslimeen is weighing its options on fielding its own candidates for the Mayor and deputy mayor posts in the elections scheduled for Thursday.

Some AIMIM leaders feel that if the BJP fielded its candidates for the two posts, the Owaisi-led party will have three options. One is to support TRS candidates, another is to abstain from voting, and the third is to field own candidates.

Having contested the GHMC Council elections sans an alliance with the TRS, the first two options are not advisable to the AIMIM. For, taking such stands during the voting would give the BJP an opportunity to blame the AIMIM of having a secret pact with the TRS. This is something the BJP has been alleging for long in order to consolidate its own base in local politics.

Hence the AIMIM is considering the option of fielding its own candidates for the two top posts. This line, some party leaders feel, would not only help keep the BJP at bay but also enthuse those among the Muslim community who are not happy with the TRS.

In the run-up to the voting, party president Asaduddin Owaisi chaired a meeting of newly elected AIMIM corporators and explained to them the party's strategy for Mayor, deputy mayor and standing committee elections. The AIMIM stand is to have at least five members in the 15-member standing committee. In the previous committee, AIMIM held six seats while the TRS nine seats.

BJP LIKELY TO FIELD
RADHA REDDY FOR MAYOR'S POSTDC CORRESPONDENT
HYDERABAD, FEB. 10

The BJP here is likely to field RK Puram Corporator Radha Dhiraj Reddy for the Mayor post. An announcement is expected on Thursday.

Party leaders including N Ramchander Rao and former MLA Chintala Ramachandra Reddy met 47 corporators at the party's state office on Wednesday. BJP leaders discussed the strategy for the Mayor and Deputy Mayor elections though the party might not win these seats based on the strength in the corporation.

Several corporators are seeking the floor leader post. A decision is delayed as party president Bandi Sanjay Kumar and Union minister of state for home affairs G Kishan Reddy were busy with the parliament session in Delhi.

After consultations with these leaders, the party will announce the official names for mayor, deputy Mayor and floor leader posts. Party sources said Union minister Kishan Reddy is not able to attend the council meeting and cast his ex-officio vote for the mayor election. BJP has two ex-officio votes — from Union minister Kishan Reddy and MLA Raja Singh.

Sanjay questioned as to why KCR did not speak on the TRS leaders' objectionable actions like land grabs from tribals in Nagarjunasagar. "It would have been better if the Chief Minister had answered the question as to why 40 people had been jailed for two months, and about TRS MLA's ninamis who encroached the lands of tribal farmers in Gurrampodu."

the Rythu Poru Bata at Bheemsari in Adilabad district a day ago. Bhatti Vikramarka said ‘a Delhi-like farmer’s agitation will be launched in Telangana soon to protect the rights of farmers and save them from exploitation by the corporates.

Addressing the farmers, Mallu Bhatti Vikramarka said many farmers were losing the right on their lands due to the flaws in the Dharani portal. “Dharani portal is not a reform, it rather pushed the farmers and the revenue system into a crisis,” he said.

“The Congress will not remain silent if the state government removed the crop purchasing centres in the state,” Bhatti Vikramarka said and added that the party leadership would stand by the agitating farmers. He appealed to the people and farmers to pose questions to the BJP leaders when they visit their villages.

Bhatti Vikramarka, MLC Jeevan Reddy, former MLC Premsagar Rao and Kisan Congress state president Anvesh Reddy visited the Kadam irrigation project and inquired about the present status of the project. MLC Jeevan Reddy, former MLC K. Premsagar Rao and Anvesh Reddy criticised the central government for putting the farmers to hardships via the three farm laws.

Cops postings along caste lines in Indur

NARENDER PULLOOR | DC
NIZAMABAD, FEB. 10

Postings of police officers appear to have been made along political-cum-caste lines in undivided Nizamabad district. This followed certain elected representatives giving consent only to officers belonging to their community for postings. Some of these politicians have even used their letter heads for transferring of officers from specific police stations.

This has led to a section of subordinate police officers being more loyal to elected representatives than their immediate or higher-level authorities. In the process, genuine and meritorious personnel are being denied plum postings. For instance, an important state leader from the district insisted on only his community police offi-

Minister for Transport Puvvada Ajay Kumar said that the irrigated area in Telangana has touched one crore acre because of two reasons.

“The government completed fifteen irrigation projects, including Kaleshwaram, and the crop area under irrigation increased. The second is the uninterrupted power supply to the farm sector,” he said. Referring to CLP leader Bhatti Vikramarka’s comments against Chief Minister K. Chandrasekhar Rao, he said that such a massive irrigation extent was achieved only because of Telangana statehood.

He said that Congress had never allocated sufficient funds for irrigation projects. Then Chief Minister Kiran Kumar Reddy did not allocate funds for Telangana region when MLAs had asked. Congress has no right to find fault with Rao or his government, he said. Ajay Kumar said that the farming community in the state is happy over the sector’s development. He said that farmers are raising various crops, including paddy, and the government is buying the entire crop from farmers.

CM calls women dogs, terms BJP men beggars

DC CORRESPONDENT
HYDERABAD, FEB. 10

TRS supremo and Chief Minister K. Chandrasekhar Rao lost his cool and spit fire against not only the opposition parties – the BJP and the Congress – while addressing a public meeting at Nellikal in Nagarjuna-sagar Assembly constituency on Wednesday, but also women in the audience, whom he termed ‘dogs’.

Rao warned sternly, “BJP and Congress parties are crossing all limits while criticising me and my government. We are tolerating all this nonsense. But there is a limit for everything. If we lose our patience, we will crush you under our feet. Keep this in mind. I warn BJP and Congress leadership... be in your limits.”

Rao lost his temper again a few minutes later, while addressing the public gathering, when some youth and women, allegedly BJP activists, obstructed him by raising slogans against him and displaying some papers.

He called them “dogs”, while directing police to “whisk away the dogs” from the venue. “I have seen so many dogs like you. I don’t care if dogs like you bark at me. If you have any concerns or issues, bring it to the notice of the government through a proper channel. You cannot disrupt a meeting being held by a leader like me,” he said. The TRS chief directed police personnel on duty at the venue to “catch” and take them away in the public address system.

He further said, “there are several dogs like you. Police... take them out. Take their papers... whatever they want to give. They are just a handful of people here. We are a huge gathering. If we retaliate, there will not be any trace of you. You will be reduced to dust.” Rao termed BJP leaders “new beggars”, quoting a Telugu proverb. He said these days BJP leaders are talking in a manner akin to a beggar, who is new to the profession and begging at odd hours, ignorant of when to beg. Rao also said, “don’t resort to senseless activities. If you have anything to say to people, you also hold a public meeting. People will decide. Coming to meetings of other parties and disturbing them is not good culture.

People will teach you a lesson. I am warning their leader to be careful. There is a limit to our patience. If you cross the limits, we know what to do.”

Raja Singh gets High Court relief in criminal case

DC CORRESPONDENT
HYDERABAD, FEB. 10

BJP MLA Raja Singh had a sigh of relief on Wednesday after the Telangana high Court suspended the one-year imprisonment awarded to him by the special court dealing with criminal cases against MLAs and MPs. Justice Gandikota Sridevi passed the order based on an appeal filed by Raja Singh challenging his conviction.

The trial court had, on 29 January 2021, declared him guilty in a case linked to provisions relating to assault or use of criminal force to deter a public servant from discharge of his duty, and criminal intimidation.

The case against the MLA was that he used foul language and criminal force against the police and prevented cops from discharge of duties during a protest staged by the BJP against the holding of a Beef Festival at Osmania University on December 10, 2015.

Challenging the lower court order, Raja Singh filed the appeal. In response, Justice Sridevi suspended the orders issued against Raja Singh and ordered that he will be on bail until the appeal is disposed of.

IJU FLAYS ED RAIDS ON NEWSCLICK

Hyderabad/Chandigarh, Feb. 10: The Indian Journalists Union (IJU) has condemned the Enforcement Directorate raids on the digital news platform Newsclick and described them as continuation of the government's ongoing efforts to silence the media critical of its policies.

In a statement issued on Wednesday, K. Sreenivas Reddy and Balwinder Singh Jammu President and Secretary General of IJU respectively said that five journalists have been arrested in the country in the first month of 2021 creating a record of sorts. They also recalled the recent sedition charges against senior journalists who were covering developments on the Republic Day.

The news portal Newsclick has been closely covering the ongoing farmers agitation against the farm laws. The raids by ED on a small news portal and the immediate allegation of ₹30 crore money laundering betray the designs of the government, the IJU leaders commented.

Raids by obliging central agencies and FIRs by puppet police in various states against journalists are a clear and brazen effort to silence the critical media by creating fear psychosis, the IJU leaders said. They demanded the government to desist from this kind of tactics and help foster a media friendly environment crucial to the sustenance of democracy.

96 ARRESTS IN 93 SEDITION CASES IN 2019: GOVT

New Delhi, Feb. 10: As many as 93 cases of sedition were registered in different parts of the country in 2019 in which 96 people were arrested, the Rajya Sabha was informed on Wednesday.

Union minister of state for home G. Kishan Reddy said chargesheets were filed against 76 people while 29 were acquitted by the courts in 2019. The highest number of 22 sedition cases in 2019 was registered in Karnataka where 18 people were arrested, he said in a written reply to a question.

Reddy said 17 sedition cases were registered in Assam where 23 people were arrested.

A total of 11 sedition cases were registered in Jammu and Kashmir where 16 people were arrested. As many as 10 sedition cases were filed in Uttar Pradesh in which nine people were arrested, he said.

Replying to another question on whether any step has been taken to strengthen the sedition law (Section 124A of the IPC), the minister said the "amendment of laws is an ongoing process".

WILSON MOVES HC AGAINST 'PLANTED EVIDENCE'

SHAHAB ANSARI | DC MUMBAI, FEB. 10

Activist Rona Wilson on Wednesday filed a petition in the Bombay High Court seeking dismissal of the case against him in connection with the 2018 Bhima Koregaon violence. His lawyer submitted a digital forensic report from a Massachusetts-based forensic firm Arsenal Digital which mentioned that a hacker hacked Rona Wilson's laptop and planted 10 letters right before Wilson's arrest.

Advocate Sudeep Pasbola on behalf of Rona filed the petition and also attached a digital forensic report from a Massachusetts based forensic firm Arsenal Digital that mentioned that a hacker hacked Rona Wilson's laptop and planted 10 letters right before Wilson's arrest.

Advocate Pasbola had approached the Arsenal Digital to examine the electronic copy of his client's laptop.

These are the same letters which were first used by the Pune police and later by the National Investigation Agency (NIA) as evidence to show Rona's complicity in Bhima Koregaon case.

Relying on these letters the Pune police in the past had claimed that the arrested accused were planning to assassinate the Prime Minister Narendra Modi.

On January 1, 2018, the violence at Bhima Koregaon village in Pune district left one dead and injured several others, including 10 policemen.

Violence erupted after some people, reportedly with saffron flags, pelted stones at cars heading towards the village for the commemoration of the 200 years of Bhima-Koregaon war on New Year's Day.

Earlier on Monday, the Special Cell had arrested actor-activist Deep Sidhu, a "prominent player" behind the violence at the Red Fort from Haryana's Karnal bypass.

Tikait: Not aiming for change in power

New Delhi, Feb. 10: BKU leader Rakesh Tikait on Wednesday asserted that the agitating farmers were not aiming at any change in power at the Centre but a solution to their problems as he said many of their leaders will tour different parts of the country to spread the movement.

Tikait, who had earlier said that police should have shot those who unfurled flags at Red Fort during the tractor rally on Republic Day, defended the act saying it was not treason and youths were being framed.

The 25th edition of the International Film Festival of Kerala (IFFK) opened on Wednesday all masked up, with strict adherence to social distancing and to a note of warning.

The IFFK, whose fumigated and sanitised auditoriums are running at just 50 per cent capacity and all delegates had to undergo rigorous antigen tests — 70 out of 800 tested on Tuesday turned out to be "positive" and are in quarantine — has adjusted well to the Coronavirus-induced new normal, but it continues to strike a note of dissent through the films it picks.

The festival's opening film, Bosnia's Oscar entry Quo Vadis, Aida?, which had its India premiere on Wednesday evening after chief minister Pinarayi Vijayan inaugurated the film festival, is a cautionary tale about "what happens when we fail to react on time to warning signs".

Directed by Jasmila banic, Quo Vadis, Aida? is based on recorded facts and recalls in shocking detail the Srebrenica massacre of July 1995.

PLA, Indian troops start disengagement: China

PAWAN BALI | DC NEW DELHI, FEB. 10

In an apparent breakthrough in nine-month tense military standoff in eastern Ladakh, the Indian and Chinese armies have reportedly started the process of disengagement from the contentious Pangong Tso sector on Wednesday. This was announced by the Chinese defence ministry in Beijing, but there was no response so far from the Indian government.

"The Chinese and Indian frontline troops at the southern and northern banks of the Pangong Tso Lake start synchronised and organised disengagement from February 10," said Senior Colonel Wu Qian, the spokesperson of the Chinese defence ministry, in a written statement on Wednesday. This move is in accordance with the consensus reached by both sides at the ninth round of the China-India corps commander-level meeting, the statement said.

There has been no formal statement from India so far Wednesday since Parliament is in session, but sources said tanks and armoured vehicles are being moved back from the southern banks of Pangong Tso. There are also reports of small troop disengagement moves from the northern banks of the lake. The disengagement will happen cautiously in a phased manner and each move will be verified.

Defence minister Rajnath Singh is expected to make a statement in the Rajya Sabha on Thursday on the "Present Situation in Eastern Ladakh", according to a tweet from the defence minister's office.

The tanks of China's People's Liberation Army (PLA) and the Indian Army are placed in close proximity to each other on the southern banks of Pangong Tso in the Chushul sector. This is the area where the Indian Army, in a pre-emptive move in August last year to the surprise of the Chinese side, had occupied the strategic heights which allowed it to dominate the area. The sector also saw the first incident of firing in 45 years at the Line of Actual Control, as tensions soared in early September last year.

"The three laws are demonic. If voted to power, the Congress will scrap these laws," she said.

She said the party's fight will continue till the laws are scrapped.

The rally is the first in a series of such farmers' meetings planned the party in western Uttar Pradesh, a year before the assembly elections in the state.

US says will stand with its friends

SRIDHAR KUMARASWAMI | DC NEW DELHI, FEB. 10

Signalling a consistency in American foreign policy, the new Joe Biden Administration said on Wednesday that it is "concerned by Beijing's pattern of ongoing attempts to intimidate its neighbours" such as India, adding that the United States "would stand with (its) friends".

The US state department also described India as "one of the most important partners in the Indo-Pacific region" of the US, adding that it "welcomes India's emergence as a leading global power and its role as a net security provider in the region".

Describing its Comprehensive Global Strategic Partnership with India as "both broad as well as multifaceted", the US expressed "confidence that the strong and upward trajectory of our partnership will, in fact, continue".

Asked about human rights issues, the US state department said that "this applies not only to India but to every partner of ours across the board" and that the US is "committed to supporting democratic values, including a free and open civil society and the strong rule of law".

Pointing out that it "regularly engages with the Government of India", the US said the "shared commitment to democratic value is the bedrock for the U.S.-India relationship" which is "in keeping with India's own democratic values, its pluralistic values, and its history of tolerance".

Asked about the phone conversation late on Tuesday between US secretary of state Antony J. Blinken and Indian External Affairs Minister S. Jaishankar, the US State Department on Wednesday said that "Blinken expressed concern over the military coup and the importance of rule of law and the democratic process in Burma (Myanmar), adding that both foreign ministers "also discussed regional developments, including the value of U.S.-India cooperation across the Indo-Pacific" and "looked forward to expanded regional cooperation, including through the Quad, and to address the challenges of Covid and climate change".

It is learnt Indian troops have not been moved back from these strategic heights on Wednesday.

"If India cedes its sole bargaining chip — Kailash Range heights — before China begins to roll back all its land grabs, it will prove a big mistake," tweeted strategic analyst Brahma Chellaney.

As per reports, the Chinese soldiers will also move beyond the Finger 8 area on the northern bank of Pangong Tso and Indian troops will be placed between Finger 2 and Finger 3. Indian and Chinese troops had brutally clashed in the area in May 2020, with many soldiers suffering serious injuries.

The Indian and Chinese corps commanders had held the ninth round of talks on January 24, where both sides had expelled from the party to rejoin it. In an indirect reference to Sasikala, he said that they would not allow the domination of any family in the party.

Only a party worker could become Chief Minister and a single family's control on the party would not be tolerated, said Palaniswami, who had openly hit out at Dhinakaran on Tuesday night, pointing out that he was thrown out of the party by J Jayalalithaa.

There was a conspiracy to capture the AIADMK and whatever Dhinkaran did he would not be able to pull it off, he said and called upon the party cadre to help realise the dreams of MGR and Jaya.

Reacting to rumours that Palaniswami and Sasikala were planning to meet, fisheries minister D. Jayakumar clearly said that there was no scope for it in this lifetime. He was speaking to media persons at Saidapet on Wednesday morning.

G. BABU JAYAKUMAR & D. SEKAR | DC CHENNAI, FEB. 10

The grandiose roadshow that marked the return of expelled AIADMK general secretary VK. Sasikala from jail on Monday and her clarion call for unity have not made any impact on the party leadership, who remain firm on not reinstating her or any of her family members without heading to her call.

Sasikala, on her part, is also silent though she has been meeting functionaries of the AMMK, the party launched by her nephew T.T.V. Dhinakaran after he was thrown out of the AIADMK, and others at the house of her niece Krishana Priya in T Nagar, where she is now put up.

But Chief Minister Edappadi K. Palaniswami, speaking at a campaign meeting in Krishnagiri on Wednesday, categorically stated that there was no scope for any one

Kerala film festival adjusts to the new normal

The festival's opening film, Bosnia's Oscar entry Quo Vadis, Aida?, which had its India premiere on Wednesday evening after chief minister Pinarayi Vijayan inaugurated the film festival, is a cautionary tale about "what happens when we fail to react on time to warning signs".

Directed by Jasmila banic, Quo Vadis, Aida? is based on recorded facts and recalls in shocking detail the Srebrenica massacre of July 1995.

After the traditional inauguration with the lighting of the lamp, legendary French filmmaker Jean Luc Godard received the Lifetime Achievement award. Greeting the audience from his home through videoconferencing, Godard said, "I am sorry for speaking in the tongue of the dominators (English). Thank you very much Kerala. Thank you to the Kerala festival for screening good and sensible films. It is great that five of my films are being screened there," and in his quintessential style, lit a cigar.

Quo Voids, Aida? (Where are you going, Aida?) leads a long list of foreign and Indian films at IFFK that have dissent as their central theme. This Is Not A Burial, It's A Resurrection, which is part of the festival's International Competition section, tells the story of an 80-year-old widow in Lesotho who is making arrangements to die when the forced resettlement of her village brings her to the forefront of a movement to stand for land rights.

Another "subversive" film in the International competition this year is There Is No Evil by Iranian director Mohammad Rasoulof. It tells the story of a nation that enforces the death penalty through four men whose destinies are loosely connected by their willingness or refusal to assist in state-ordered assassinations.

The IFFK is scheduled to run between Feb. 10 and 14 in Thiruvananthapuram, and after that all films will travel to Ernakulam (from Feb. 17-21), Thalassery (Feb. 23-27) and Palakkad (March 1-5).

TIANWEN-1 PROBE ENTERS MARS ORBIT

Beijing, Feb. 10: China says its Tianwen-1 spacecraft has entered orbit around Mars on a mission to land a rover and collect data on underground water and possible signs of ancient life.

The arrival of the orbiter-rover combo in orbit on Wednesday evening Beijing time makes it the second spacecraft in two days to reach the red planet. An orbiter from the United Arab Emirates led the way on Tuesday.

Next week, the US will try to land its Perseverance rover on the Martian surface. Only the U.S. has successfully touched down on Mars — eight times beginning with two Viking missions.

KPMG BOSS SORRY FOR ‘MOANING’ JIBE

London, Feb. 10: The UK chairman of global accountancy firm KPMG has apologised for telling staff to stop moaning about working conditions during the Coronavirus pandemic.

“I am sorry for the words I used, which did not reflect what I believe in, and I have apologised to my colleagues,” UK chair Bill Michael said in a statement.

“Looking after the wellbeing of our people and creating a culture where everyone can thrive is of critical importance to me and is at the heart of everything we do as a firm,” he added.

The Financial Times reported that during a virtual meeting on Monday, members of KPMG’s financial services consulting team told Michael about their concerns over potential cuts to pay and the ranking of individuals’ performance. Michael told staff to “stop moaning” and to stop “playing the victim card”, according to the FT which cited employees.

KPMG, along with Deloitte, EY and PWC, form Britain’s so-called Big Four accountants that are set for a shake up.

UN PRESSES EU OVER RISING MIGRANT CASES

Brussels, Feb. 10: UN agencies are pressing the European Union to end the growing practices of denying migrants their right to apply for asylum, collectively expelling them and using violence against people trying to enter the bloc without authorisation.

Border pushbacks and collective expulsions are illegal under international refugee treaties, which allow people fearing for their safety to apply for protection.

Greece and even the EU’s border and coast guard agency Frontex are among those accused of pushbacks or complicity in them. They deny using such methods.

The International Organisation for Migration said Wednesday that it continues to receive documented reports of human rights violations against migrants and refugees, including children, involving countries that are part of the 27-nation bloc.

POLICE BUST GANG HIJACKING CELEB PHONES

London, Feb. 10: Police have arrested 10 people in the UK, Belgium and Malta for allegedly hijacking mobile phones belonging to US celebrities including internet influencers, sports stars and musicians to steal personal information and millions in cryptocurrency, authorities said.

The European Union police agency Europol said Wednesday that the gang is believed to have stolen more than $100 million in cryptocurrencies by using so-called SIM swap attacks.

These attacks involve deactivating a victim’s mobile phone SIM card, either by tricking the phone company or using a corrupt insider, so that the number can be transferred to another card under the gang’s control.

The arrests were the result of a joint investigation by UK, US, Canadian, Belgian and Maltese police, Europol said. Europol didn’t specify the nationalities of those caught in the sweep, but the UK’s National Crime Agency said a day earlier that eight men were arrested in England and Scotland.

Two others were arrested previously in Belgium and Malta, Europol said.

Plane set ablaze in Huthi attack on Saudi airport

Riyadh, Feb. 10: A civilian plane was engulfed in flames Wednesday after Yemen’s Huthi rebels launched a drone strike on an airport in southern Saudi Arabia, days after the US moved to delist the insurgents as terrorists. Saudi authorities did not immediately report any casualties from the attack, claimed by the Huthis, the latest in a series of rebel assaults on the kingdom despite a renewed American push to de-escalate the six-year conflict.

“A cowardly criminal terrorist attack launched against Abha International Airport in Saudi Arabia by the Huthi militia,” state-run Al-Ekhbariya television quoted the Riyadh-led military coalition battling the rebels as saying.

“A fire that engulfed a passenger plane due to the Huthi attack on Abha Airport is under control,” it added.

The coalition did not say how the attack was carried out, but earlier in the day reported that it had intercepted two “booby trapped” drones in the south.

The Iran-backed Huthis, who control much of northern Yemen, said they had struck Abha airport with four drones. Yahya Sarie, spokesman for the Huthis’ armed wing, claimed the airport was used to launch attacks on Yemen.

But the coalition insisted that targeting the airport constituted “a war crime” and “put the lives of civilian passengers in danger”, according to the official Saudi Press Agency.

The rebels appear to be stepping up attacks on the kingdom and on Riyadh-backed Yemeni forces after the United States moved last week to lift a short-lived designation of the Huthis as a terrorist group.

The Huthis have resumed an offensive to seize the Yemeni government’s last northern stronghold of Marib, according to a government source, with dozens of casualties on both sides. — AFP

Military raids Suu Kyi’s party offices

Yangon, Feb. 10: Myanmar’s military raided the Yangon headquarters of ousted leader Aung San Suu Kyi’s party late Tuesday, officials said, as the United States joined the UN in “strongly” condemning violence against protesters demanding a return to democracy.

The latest assault on Myanmar’s civilian leadership came as anger at last week’s coup and the detention of Suu Kyi by the generals has driven hundreds of thousands of people into the streets, defying a junta ban on rallies. “The military dictator raided and destroyed NLD headquarters at around 9:30 pm,” the National League for Democracy announced on its Facebook page.

The party’s short statement gave no further details.

The raid came after demonstrations erupted for a fourth straight day Tuesday, with police using water cannon in several cities, firing rubber bullets at protesters in the capital Naypyidaw and deploying tear gas in Mandalay.

The rallies came despite a warning from the junta

The United States, which has led global censure of the coup, on Tuesday renewed its call for freedom of expression in Myanmar — and for the generals to step down.

“We strongly condemn violence against demonstrators,” US State Department spokesman Ned Price told reporters, adding that people in Myanmar “have rights to peaceful assembly.” “We repeat our calls for the military to relinquish power, restore democratically elected government, release those detained and lift all telecommunications restrictions and to refrain from violence,” he said.

Price has previously said US requests to speak to Suu Kyi had been denied. — AFP

US shows military muscle in Norway

Oslo, Feb. 10: The United States is deploying long-range B-1 bombers to Norway to train in the strategically important High North in a new show of force unseen in the region since the Cold War.

“High North, low tensions” goes an old saying, describing the relatively calm security situation and diplomatic relations in the Arctic for decades.

But mounting tensions between the West and Russia, particularly since the 2014 Crimea crisis, has led both sides to beef up their militaries even in the remote High North, an area believed to be rich in natural resources and where the ice melt has opened up new shipping routes.

This month, long-range B-1 bombers capable of carrying large amounts of air-to-ground weaponry will arrive at Norway’s Orland air base for several weeks of training missions with the Scandinavian country’s air force, which guards NATO’s northern border.

“This deployment comes in the context of global military activities in the High North, which have increased significantly in recent years, both from the West and Russia,” noted Kristian Atland, a researcher at the Norwegian Defence Research Establishment. — AFP

ADVANCED | TECH Scientists believe this could help farmers to prepare earlier for unexpected events

New model to predict Indian monsoon

London, Feb. 10: Scientists, including those of Indian-origin, have developed a new system which they say can provide farmers in India early forecasts of expected variations in the monsoon season, an advance which may help reduce crop losses.

The researchers, including those from the European Centre for Medium-range Weather

Forecasts (ECMWF) in the UK, used their long-term global weather forecasting system to predict when the summer monsoon will start, and how much rainfall it will bring.

In the study, published in the journal Climate Dynamics, they noted that the model provided accurate forecasts a month in advance for the timing of the monsoon in India’s

US keen to learn Covid origin to stop future catastrophes

Worst affected by pandemic, America wants China, WHO to be transparent

Washington, Feb. 10: It is imperative that the world learns as much as possible about the earliest days of the Covid-19 pandemic so that the world can understand its origins and prevent future biological catastrophes, the US has said after international experts investigating the origins of the disease have dismissed as unlikely a theory that the virus came from a laboratory in China.

The US, which is the worst affected country from the pandemic, is looking forward to receiving the report and the data from the investigation by the World Health Organisation’s (WHO) team of experts into the origins of the Covid-19 in China’s Wuhan city.

The WHO experts arrived in China last month for the long-awaited probe into the origins of the deadly coronavirus pandemic. On Tuesday, the team dismissed that the virus could have leaked from a Chinese lab, a theory strongly supported by former US president Donald Trump.

The team members said that the deadly virus was most likely to have transmitted from an animal to humans. “Broadly speaking, we have expressed our concerns regarding the need for full transparency and access from China and the WHO to all information regarding the earliest days of the pandemic,” State Department Spokesperson Ned Price told reporters on Tuesday at his daily news conference.

“It’s imperative that the world learns as much as possible about the earliest days of the Covid-19 pandemic so that we can understand its origins and so, importantly, we can prevent future biological catastrophes,” Price said.

“I think the jury is still out. Clearly, the Chinese, at least heretofore, had not offered the requisite transparency that we need and that just as importantly, again, the international community needs so that we can prevent these sorts of pandemics from ever happening again.

This goes back to one of the very first actions that President Joe Biden took as president when he re-engaged with the WHO,” Price said. China reported the first Covid-19 case in the central Chinese city of People wear face masks to help curb the spread of the Coronavirus and go shopping for the upcoming Chinese New Year celebrations at the Dihua Street market in Taipei, Taiwan, on Wednesday.

WHO slams US Covid intel as curbs tightened in Europe

Wuhan, Feb. 10: A WHO expert sent to China to probe the coronavirus hit out at US intelligence on Covid-19 as his team headed home with few answers about the origin of a pandemic that was forcing more clampdowns in some of the hardest-hit parts of the world.

German Chancellor Angela Merkel was set to seek an extension of strict virus curbs, as the European Commission chief accused the stumbling vaccination rollout on the continent — which accounts for a third of the 2.3 million Covid-19 deaths worldwide.

The Coronavirus has infected close to 107 million people, devastating the global economy, and questions over the handling of the initial outbreak in central China have sparked an intense diplomatic row between Washington and Beijing.

The WHO mission to the ground zero city of Wuhan wrapped up on Tuesday without any concrete answers, with Washington again expressing scepticism about China’s transparency and cooperation.

But WHO team member Peter Daszak tweeted: “Please don’t rely too much on US intel: increasingly disengaged under Trump & frankly wrong on many aspects.” He said they worked “flat out under the most politically charged environment possible”.

China had repeatedly delayed the WHO trip, and bristled at accusations of a lack of transparency.

Beijing warned Washington not to “politicise” the mission after the White House demanded a “robust” probe.

State Department spokesman Ned Price said Tuesday that the United States supports the investigation. But when asked if China had fully cooperated with the WHO, he said: “The jury’s still out.” The WHO team did not identify which animal transferred the Coronavirus to humans. — AFP

Wuhan and since then the disease has snowballed into a pandemic, affecting 1,06,880,652 people with 2,339,991 deaths globally.

According to Johns Hopkins Coronavirus tracker, the US alone has reported 27,189,188 cases and 4,68,103 deaths from the deadly virus.

Trump had repeatedly blamed China for covering up and not sharing information about the virus with the world, leading to a strain in relation between the two countries.

However, China has refuted the allegations. While denying that Coronavirus originated in Wuhan, China points to reports from Italy, Spain and the US about its prevalence to pre-dating its emergence in Wuhan. — PTI

Democrats set to detail case at Trump 2nd impeachment trial

Washington, Feb. 10: Democratic lawmakers prosecuting Donald Trump are set to detail their case against him Wednesday at his impeachment trial, in a longshot bid to convince skeptical Republican senators they should convict the former president.

Trump’s second impeachment trial opened on Tuesday with Democrats showing harrowing video footage of his supporters’ January 6 assault on the US Capitol, where they smashed down doors, broke into the Senate chamber and led riots that left five people dead.

Trump faces a single charge of inciting the insurrection after he told enraged Republican supporters near the White House to “fight like hell.”Securing a conviction is highly unlikely, as the Democrats would need 17 Republican senators to vote with them to make a two-thirds majority.

US Senator Josh Hawley talks with reporters as he leaves the Capitol after the first day of former US President Donald Trump’s second impeachment trial in Washington, DC.

So far, only six Republicans have agreed that the trial is even constitutional in the first place.

Following Tuesday’s opening statements from Democratic “impeachment managers” and Trump’s lawyers, both sides will flesh out their cases starting Wednesday, with the Democrats going first.

Under impeachment rules, each side is allowed up to 16 hours over two days to present their case, starting at noon (1700 GMT).

Senators will also be given a total of four hours for questioning.

On Tuesday, senators voted 56-44 in favour of the constitutionality of the historic trial, rejecting a bid by Trump’s lawyers to throw it out on grounds that a former president cannot be tried by lawmakers.

Earlier, both sides presented their opening cases, with Democrats arguing that Trump broke his oath in a naked bid to retain power after losing the November election to Joe Biden. Refusing to accept his defeat, Trump spread lies about vote rigging and repeatedly pressured officials, including then vice president Mike Pence, to try and stop the transfer of power. — AFP

EU LAWMAKERS OK $815 BILLION RECOVERY PLAN

Brussels, Feb. 10: European lawmakers on Wednesday approved a 672.5 billion euro ($815 billion) recovery package of loans and grants to help member states recover faster from the coronavirus pandemic.

The regulation for the Recovery and Resilience Facility was adopted with 582 votes in favour, 40 against and 69 abstentions. The RRF is the central pillar of the bloc’s 750 billion euro ($910 billion) recovery plan that was adopted by EU leaders last year.

“In the long-term, this money is going to bring about change and progress to meet our digital and climate goals,” said Eider Gardiazabal Rubial, a lawmaker closely involved in the negotiations.

“We will ensure that the measures will alleviate poverty and unemployment, and will take into account the gender dimension of this crisis. Our health systems will also become more resilient.” — AP

UN: N. KOREA STOLE $300M TO FUND NUKES

Seoul, Feb. 10: North Korea has stolen more than $300 million worth of cryptocurrencies through cyberattacks in recent months to support its banned nuclear and ballistic missile programmes, a confidential UN report said.

Compiled by a panel of experts monitoring sanctions on Pyongyang, the report said the country’s “total theft of virtual assets from 2019 to November 2020 is valued at approximately $316.4 million”, citing a UN member state.

Financial institutions and exchanges were hacked to generate revenue for Pyongyang’s nuclear and missile development, said the report, which was seen by AFP.

The North is known to operate an army of thousands of well-trained hackers who have attacked firms, institutions and researchers in South Korea and elsewhere.

It has also been accused of exploiting its cyber capabilities for financial gain.

The North is under multiple sets of international sanctions over its banned nuclear weapons and ballistic missile programmes, which have made rapid progress under leader Kim Jong Un.

A summit between Kim and then-US president Donald Trump in Hanoi in February 2019 broke down over sanctions relief and what Pyongyang would be willing to give up in return. — AFP

To save public money, start to disinvest fast

Finance minister Nirmala Sitharaman's announcement to privatise two public sector banks and a general insurance company marks a clear departure from a cautious approach adopted by the Narendra Modi government since 2014 over the disinvestment policy. This move reaffirms the government's intent, announced last year, to exit all non-strategic sectors.

Despite his stated belief in the concept of "less government and more governance", Prime Minister Narendra Modi had done very little in terms of reducing the government's ownership of companies. In fact, the Department of Public Enterprise's data shows that there are 339 CPSEs (excluding insurance companies) as on March 31, 2018, compared to 290 CPSEs on March 31, 2014.

Several attempts to sell state-owned companies that have become a burden on exchequer were skillfully scuttled by conditions framed by bureaucrats. If the political leadership becomes successful in implementing its plan, it could prevent taxpayer's money from being invested in running inefficient companies, and that money could be fruitfully used elsewhere.

The core issue at the heart of the demand for privatisation is not so much about the propriety of the government's role in businesses as it is about the uselessness of such presence. When the Jawaharlal Nehru government decided to set up large state-owned industries, it was more a need of the hour than an ideological statement because private industrialists had no financial muscle to bankroll such massive projects. This approach was also in tune with the recommendations made by the country's eight top industrialists of the day, which was referred to as the 1945 Bombay Plan.

Though Indira Gandhi's decision to nationalise banks was dictated by her political agenda, it brought about confidence among people in the safety of their money deposited in banks. From the year 1934, when the Reserve Bank of India was established to the time of bank nationalisation in 1969, over 1,500 banks had failed in the country, eroding people's faith in the banking sector. An implied sovereign guarantee to people's money in banks resulted in the greater formalisation of public savings which helped in creating capital for entrepreneurs.

While the earlier government's intervention in critical sectors had helped the country in creating a strong industrial base, whereupon a new India was built, it is time for the government to move on and exit all sectors where private companies are strong. If there are no buyers, the government should give handsome compensation to employees and shut industries.

To protect itself from allegations of selling family silver and also to create the base for future high-tech industries, the government should chip in to create the ecosystem required for semiconductor fab factories or high-tech medical equipment companies or aircraft manufacturing using the Maruti model, where the government invests money and the private partner brings in the technology. If the government succumbs to pressure to continue with the status quo to please a few lakhs of PSU employees, it would be a great disservice to crores of Indians of the present and future generations.

Modi & Azad: Civility back

Not often in the recent past has Parliament been invaded by an outbreak of civility. But when it did, as in extremely emotional speeches by the Prime Minister Narendra Modi and the Rajya Sabha Opposition Leader Ghulam Nabi Azad of the Congress, it augured well for a sense of dignity and decorum to be ushered back into India's increasingly polarised polity. Before a Prime Ministerial image makeover, Modi was stately personified, as in his opening speech as PM to both Houses of Parliament. Since then, in a fractured political scene, he has been seen more in confrontational mode, attacking opponents in India and when he goes abroad and in the House too when he mocked Sonia Gandhi and her son Rahul.

The spirit of give and take seemed to have evaporated in Parliament with many sessions lost to the "in the Well" attitude of the Opposition ranged against the intransigence of the Treasury benches when it came to lending an ear to diverse points of view. Civil debates on national issues have been few and far between but the ruling BJP is not the only party guilty of reducing Parliament into a non-functional laggard. This could change, much as it should, during the debate on the farmers' stir and into the future when political parties on sharply divergent ideological paths can be expected to only drift further apart thanks to the compulsions of poll politics and the seeming need for harsh language at the hustings.

Clever interpretations of acronyms appear to be the current fad as politicians attack each other, which is why such fulsome praise of opponents, which Mr Modi and Mr Azad showered on each other on the eve of the former Kashmir CM retiring from Parliament, is to be seen as a breakthrough. Brushing aside cynical views of the use of words of praise being opportunistic and rare, we must wish that civility stays in Parliament where government and Opposition members meet most often and in debates that make the legislature one of the pillars of democracy. Politicians of all hues would do well to remember that cordiality costs nothing and that the nation and the Constitution always come first.

The siege within: India and the 'foreign hand'

Patralekha Chatterjee

Dev 360

Can tweets by international pop star Rihanna, teenage climate activist Greta Thunberg and other global celebrities in support of India's protesting farmers destabilise this country of over 1.3 billion people? Or should we look within? Is foreign meddling the real threat facing us or is India's real challenge the deepening domestic polarisation on just about every front?

Successive governments in India have pointed at the "foreign hand" in times of crisis. I entered journalism in the 1980s when one regularly heard of the invisible "foreign hand" that was out to dismember our country. In many of her public speeches, then Prime Minister Indira Gandhi spoke of the dark spectre of foreign forces out to destabilise India.

Rajiv Gandhi, who came to power in 1984 with a huge majority after his mother's assassination, also talked of the "invisible" foreign hand trying to derail India's development.

Back then, there was no Twitter or social media or troll armies, and no virtual slugfests. But on government-run Doordarshan and All India Radio and in sections of the print media, there was no escaping allusions to these dark, powerful and invisible forces out to get us.

Cut to the New India. The "foreign hand" is back. The ruling BJP sees comments from global celebrities in support of the ongoing farmers' protests as part of a deep conspiracy against the country. Prime Minister Narendra Modi says India has been seeing increased FDI but there is a new FDI that has emerged — "Foreign Destructive Ideology". Mr Modi says India needs to be protected against it.

Is the world really out to get us? Or should we get used to the fact that in a networked globalised world, nothing is local anymore? As protests erupted across the United States following George Floyd's death at the hands of the police on the streets of Minneapolis, the Black Lives Matter movement resonated around the world. Support for BLM led to demonstrations in a number of countries. In a more recent example, the coup in Myanmar has been denounced by individuals around the world, including in India.

There is really no way we can prevent the rest of the world from taking interest in our domestic affairs, especially if we wish to be at the high table of the international community. If we so eagerly lap up foreign praise, can we afford to be so prickly about the foreign gaze when the comments are adverse? If Indians rejoice at going up the World Bank's ease of doing business 2020 survey, they can't totally shrug off slipping in the Economist Intelligence Unit's 2020 Democracy Index's global rankings.

The problems will not go away simply if foreigners stop talking about it. And as for us, stopping and reversing the current trend of polarisation is vital, for the simple reason that no country or society can make real progress if social cohesion starts eroding.

Leaving aside the foreign gaze for a moment and looking within, we cannot but help notice a deeply polarised and fractured nation, with deepening domestic political divisions. That is the real challenge, and that challenge cannot be surmounted by simply choking protests or forcibly shutting up views that clash with those of the government of the day. There must be a dialogue. The government must stop its storm troopers — from ministers to those on the streets — from statements and actions that polarise further. Else, social cohesion will become even more fragile.

The Global Risks Report 2021 brought out by the World Economic Forum lists "social cohesion erosion" among the highest-likelihood and highest-impact long-term risks facing our pandemic-battered world. "As public health gaps, digital inequality, educational disparities and unemployment — risks that result from a complex combination of existing inequalities and the impact of the pandemic — affect vulnerable groups the most, they may further fray social cohesion," it says.

Too many people have little left to lose. The global recession, the report notes, is now expected to force as many as 150 million more people into extreme poverty, increasing the total to 9.4 per cent of the world's population. This setback in the global development agenda will heighten vulnerability to future shocks and threaten the erosion or collapse of states, it warns.

Our government also admits that the economic shock caused by the ongoing pandemic is severe. It is now hoping for a V-shaped economic recovery. No such recovery will be possible without the vibrant pluralistic democracy that is key to India's power. If democracy is our calling card, we must also listen to critical views and voices without feeling the need to link them with ulterior motives. Getting prickly about criticism will only worry the whole world even more.

"There is a debate about the potential impact of American concerns about the state of democracy and liberalism in India on the US-India relationship," pointed out Tanvi Madan, director of the India Project and senior fellow at globally renowned think tank Brookings, in a January 2021 essay titled "Democracy and the US-India relationship".

"Often commentators argue there will either be no effect because of India's utility for the US or major impact because of the incoming Biden administration's emphasis on values," Madan added. "The answer is likely to lie somewhere in between. A pragmatic Biden team will likely recognise that India will be key to their objectives vis-a-vis issues like the Indo-Pacific and China, climate change and global health security."

"However, questions about India's trajectory as a pluralistic democracy could directly or indirectly affect the pace and tone of the relationship — especially if they are accompanied by doubts about India's capabilities, economic growth and policies, and willingness to play a balancing role versus China."

India's handling of the ongoing farmers' protests has taken a lot of sheen off the country's image, coming as it does on the back of many other illiberal measures. This is unfortunate for many reasons, including the fact that India is getting a few things right even in these fraught, polarised times. Take India's vaccine diplomacy. India has supplied low-cost coronavirus vaccines to many countries across the world. "With the US and Europe preoccupied with Covid-19 and many nations looking to India for a Covid-19 antidote, Delhi can score valuable points," as G. Parthasarathy, a former diplomat, noted in a recent commentary.

The bottom line: we must get our act together. At the end, a country does not rise or fall because of the foreigner's gaze but because of what its insiders do or fail to do.

CRYING AT FAREWELL

While the PM has every right to get emotional at a farewell speech, we commoners are always in tears after a visit to the petrol bunk (Teary-eyed Modi praises Azad, will take his advice, DC, Feb. 10). Neither the ruling or Opposition party leaders are shedding any tears for us. It's a tear-jerker moment for them every day.

Farewell to Ghulam Nabi Azad was not just a special one. It was also an inspiration for current leaders and youngsters who would join this field. Appreciation for the good work should not just be restricted to farewell speeches. They must be cherished and appreciated irrespective of party.

Nithya Sarvepalli

Prime Minister Narendra Modi should have shed tears for farmers' deaths. They are protesting for more than two months for repeal of farm laws. Modi government should respect farmers. When farmers' sense the laws were not designed for their welfare, the government should have at least withdrawn the laws.

KHAP PANCHAYATS

It is ironic that kisan mahapanchayats that are protesting the three farm laws have all along been scorned by groups that called themselves progressive. These panchayats hold deeply regressive views about women, and even forbade girls from carrying mobile phones. These kulak's power structure is feudalistic and is based on caste. How could the so-called progressive parties and NGOs align themselves with them?

NGT hauls up Kerala govt for ignoring 'legacy waste' directive

Kerala's chief secretary Vishwas Mehta came under fire from the National Green Tribunal (NGT) over the continued ineffective solid waste management in Kochi.

According to sources, the tribunal made scathing remarks against the affidavit filed by Mr Mehta and threatened to prosecute officers responsible for ensuring that parameters of environmental safety are met. The tribunal lamented that the chief secretary's affidavit did not show any effective action being taken on the ground, despite several directives issued in the past two years.

The tribunal, quoting a report by the State Pollution Control Board, noted that the municipal authorities in Kochi were continuing unauthorised operations and were yet to start work for bio-mining.

The directive came while the tribunal was hearing a case seeking direction to take effective steps for infrastructure development for collection, storage, segregation and disposal of tonnes of waste, termed legacy waste, that has accumulated over the years in Kochi's Brahmapuram area.

Ironically, the adverse comments come at a time when the state government claims that it is strictly following the "green protocol" and chief minister Pinarayi Vijayan declared more than 11,000 government offices and public sector undertakings as "green" on Republic Day!

INITISH TO WEED OUT HOME DEADWOOD

The Nitish Kumar government in Bihar is moving ahead with its announcement last year of retiring identified "inefficient" employees. The state home department headed by the chief minister has set up high-level committees to implement the order.

According to sources, a committee headed by additional chief secretary of the home department Amir Subhani will deal with Group A employees of the department. The panel also includes special secretary Vikash Vaibhav, among others. The other committee will be headed by secretary of the home department, K. Senthil Kumar, and include joint secretary Bimlesh Kumar Jha, among other senior officials. It has been tasked with identifying the deadwood from among Group B, C and D employees. Both committees will meet every year in June and December to consider the proposals to retire identified officers. Further, the department has instructed all offices and directorates under it to set up such panels at their level.

Previously, in 2017, the state government had announced to compulsorily retire non-performing education department officials, school headmasters and teachers after disappointing Matric and intermediate exams. But the decision was not followed through, say sources. Will it be any different this time?

RETURN OF THE PRIDGAL?

Is Shah Faesal, the former IAS officer from Jammu and Kashmir, contemplating a return to the civil service that he had quit in protest against "unabated killings" in Kashmir? A tweet by the ex-babu, who was the first Kashmiri to top the civil service exam, in response to Prime Minister Narendra Modi's "Mann Ki Baat" program seems to hint at a change of mind, say some observers. In his tweet,

Mr Faesal praised the PM's radio programme and wrote that "communication can build solidarities..."

The buzz around Mr Faesal's plans has only grown, especially when he quit Jammu and Kashmir People's Movement, the political party he had set up barely a few months later.

Interestingly, his resignation as an IAS officer in January 2019 has been kept in abeyance all this while. The government has not accepted it, pending the investigation into some of his social media posts. That it was never accepted means that the door is still open for him to rejoin the IAS. Gold bond demand rises 4-fold in FY21

SANGEETHA G
with agency inputs
CHENNAI, FEB. 10

Despite rising prices of the yellow metal, sovereign gold bond purchases have grown four-fold in this fiscal compared to the previous year.

In the 10 tranches of sovereign gold bonds issued in FY21 till January, investors purchased a total of 27.86 tonnes. This marks a more than four-fold increase in purchases against 6.13 tonnes bought by investors in FY20. This fiscal has accounted for close to half of the total purchases made since the launch of gold bonds in 2015.

In these six years, investors have purchased a total of 58.8 tonnes of gold through the primary market in the form of bonds. Each of the 10 issues of gold bonds in FY21 saw investors purchasing more than one tonne of gold. In the fourth series, investors bought more than four tonnes and in the fifth series, more than six tonnes.

Prior to FY21, only once had the aggregate purchases moved up beyond one tonne in a series.

The issue price of gold bonds remained above Rs 4,500 per gm for all the series in FY21. The issue price was the highest in the fifth series at Rs 5,334 per gm and the same series saw the largest purchase at 6.3 tonnes. This shows that higher prices were not a deterrent for gold bond buyers. In fact, the demand was higher when prices went up.

According to Somasundaram P. R., managing director, India, World Gold Council, several investors bet on the bullish trend in gold during the pandemic. "While there are pockets of distress due to Covid-19, there are pockets of surplus as well. People who have uninterrupted income have not spent much during the lockdown time on vacations and luxuries and they are left with investible surplus," he pointed out. This surplus found its way into select investment instruments, including gold, he added.

Increased investor appetite for gold had reflected in the demand for gold ETFs as well. Gold ETFs largely saw inflows during most of the months in FY21. Despite the lockdown in the June quarter, investment demand managed to stay just 11 per cent lower in 2020 compared with a 42 per cent drop in jewellery demand.

Last month, investors put in Rs 625 crore in gold exchange traded funds (ETFs), which was 45 per cent higher than the preceding month. The inflow pushed the asset base of gold funds by 22 per cent to Rs 14,481 crore at the end of January from Rs 14,174 crore at the end of December; data from the Association of Mutual Funds in India showed.

Himanshu Srivastava, associate director manager research, Morningstar India said the gold prices have come-off its all-time highs touched in August last year. The month of January also saw fair bit of correction in its prices.

"This, along with expectation that gold may do well going ahead provided a good buying opportunity to investors, which resulted in net inflows for the category in January."

According to him, gold functions as a strategic asset in an investor's portfolio, given its ability to act as an effective diversifier and alleviate losses during tough market conditions.

NITI AAYOG STUDY TO ASSESS IMPACT OF SUPREME COURT,
NGT DECISIONS

New Delhi, Feb. 10: Government think-tank Niti Aayog has commissioned a study to assess the "unintended" economic impact of select decisions of the Supreme Court and the National Green Tribunal and to review if the stated objective behind the judicial pronouncements was met, according to a project brief document.

Jaipur-based CUTS International has been asked to examine the apex court rulings in halting consultation of Mopa Airport in Goa, stopping iron ore mining in Goa, and shutting Sterlite Copper's Tuticorin plant in Tamil Nadu.

CUTS International director Amol Kulkarni confirmed receiving the mandate.

"This study will ex-post examine the unintended economic consequences of key judicial/ quasi judicial decisions and review if the objective of the judicial decision was met," according to the CUTS International project brief document.

To highlight the economic impact, five cases have been selected, of which three were decided by the Supreme Court and two by the NGT.

"Judicial decisions have far-reaching economic impacts which are often not taken into account at the time of decision making. Some of the recent judgments/orders... indicate that the economic impact analysis of judicial decisions is yet to gain broader acceptance." —PTI

Sebi fines NSE, former chiefs in co-location case

New Delhi, Feb. 10: In the high profile co-location case, markets regulator Sebi on Wednesday imposed a penalty of Rs 1 crore on the NSE for failing to provide a level-playing field for trading members subscribing to its tick-by-tick (TBT) data feed system.

In addition, the regulator levied a fine of Rs 25 lakh each on NSE's former managing directors and chief executive officers Chitra Ramakrishna and Ravi Narain.

Alleged lapses in high-frequency trading offered through NSE's co-location facility came under the scanner of the watchdog after a complaint was filed in 2015.

The National Stock Exchange of India co-location facility allows stock brokers to take on rent specific racks and co-locate their servers and systems within the exchange premises.

The primary objective

Chitra Ramakrishna

of co-location services of the NSE is to reduce latency for connectivity to the exchange's trading systems for Direct Market Access, algo trading and Smart Order Routing.

In its 96-page order, the Sebi said unequal access was apparent at different stages of the technology process and the NSE as a stock exchange failed to ensure a level-playing field for trading members subscribing to its TBT data feed system.

TBT data feed provides information about every change in the order book.

According to the regulator, many trading members had repeatedly resorted to accessing the secondary server without any checks and balances and actions on the part of the first-level regulator except for certain emails or advisories.

The NSE flouted the principles underlying the conduct of business of a stock exchange, pertaining to fair and equitable access to information, it said. —PTI

Hyderabad to get 1.5 GW solar plant

S. UAMAHESHWAR
HYDERABAD, FEB. 10

Secunderabad-based solar equipment maker Premier Energies said it would set up a new manufacturing facility at E-City on the outskirts of Hyderabad.

Speaking to reporters on Wednesday, Chiranjeev Saluja, the managing director of Premier Energies, said the green-field factory would be built with an investment of Rs 483 crore and would produce 1.5 gigawatt of solar photovoltaic cells and modules.

The plant would be spread across 25 acres and is expected to be commissioned in the next two months. The current manufacturing capacity of the company is 500 megawatt.

"The new manufacturing unit will produce MCCE textured multi-crystalline cells as well as Mono PERC cells. The new plant facilities are designed to produce the latest generation products by incorporating Monocrystalline PERC technology. This technological change, along with the increase of wafer size to 182 mm and 210 mm, will drive the industry towards a greener society.

"With the increased adoption of automation and robotics, our new factory will be on par with some of the leading companies in Asia, Europe, and the US," Mr Saluja said.

Aramco readies $10 bn loan for pipeline buyers

DAVIDE BARBUSCIA & SAEED AZHAR
DUBAI, FEB. 10

Saudi Aramco is preparing a financing package of up to $10 billion that it could offer to buyers of its pipeline business unit, three sources said, as the oil giant seeks to extract value from its assets in an era of lower oil prices.

Aramco is in talks with banks to provide "staple financing", which is a financing package provided by the seller that buyers can use to back their purchase.

International investors including BlackRock, KKR and Brookfield Asset Management, which could invest in the pipeline business, are also in talks with lenders on possible financing, said the sources, speaking anonymously because the talks are private.

The loan could be up to $10 billion, said two of the sources, covering much of the value of the assets.

Aramco and Brookfield declined to comment. BlackRock and KKR did not respond to comment requests.

The planned pipeline sale would be similar to infrastructure deals signed over the last two years by Abu Dhabi's national oil company ADNOC, which raised billions of dollars by leasing its oil and gas pipeline assets to investors, sources have previously said.

Aramco, the world's biggest oil company, completed the largest initial public offering yet in late 2019, raising $25.6 billion. It later sold more shares, taking the total to $29.4 billion.

Those funds were transferred to the Public Investment Fund (PIF), Saudi Arabia's sovereign wealth fund responsible for transforming the economy, as society grapples with climate change and shifts from fossil fuel towards lower carbon energy.

The pandemic has dealt a further blow to the fossil fuel industry by destroying demand.

NEW CEO TO CUT
8,000 JOBS AS HEINEKEN FEELS
PANDEMIC EFFECT

PHILIP BLENKINSOP
BRUSSELS, FEB. 10

Heineken NV plans to cut about 8,000 jobs, the Dutch beer group said on Wednesday, seeking to restore operating margins to pre-pandemic levels after a sharp decline in profit because of coronavirus restrictions.

The world's second-largest brewer, which makes Europe's top selling lager Heineken as well as Tiger and Sol, said it would save 2 billion euros ($2.4 billion) over the three years to 2023 under CEO Dolf van den Brink's "EverGreen" plan.

Savings will be achieved by redesigning its organisation, reducing the complexity and number of its products and identifying its least effective spending, Heineken said.

The review of its operations will result in about 8,000 job losses—equating to 9 per cent of its workforce at the end of 2019—and a related 420 million euro charge. Personnel expenses will be cut by about 350 million euros, it added.

The brewer said ongoing restrictions on social gatherings and hospitality venues meant 2021 revenue, operating profit and operating profit margin would be below levels in 2019.

It expects market conditions to improve gradually in 2021 and more into 2022, with a slow recovery in European bars and restaurants, less than 30 per cent of which were open at the end of January.

The operating profit margin before one-offs should rise to 17 per cent by 2023, the company said, versus 12.3 per cent last year and 16.8 per cent in 2019.

Made-in-India tyres get a fillip from import restrictions

Bridgestone running 3 shifts to meet demand

MICHAEL GONSALVES
PUNE, FEB. 10

Bridgestone, the world's second largest tyre maker, which reached the pre-Covid sales level last year, is running on full three shifts at its two factories in Indore and Pune.

The Indian arm of the Japanese tyre manufacturer said in the October-December 2020 quarter it had clocked a sales growth of 15 per cent.

Bridgestone, which is among the top three passenger car tyre makers in India, competes with market leader MRF, Apollo, JK and Ceat, among others.

"The worst is behind us and we are betting big growth for our brand as well as the tyre industry in the country," Parag Satpute, managing director at Bridgestone India told Financial Chronicle. The company produces 41,000 passenger vehicle tyres and 2,000 tyres for medium and heavy trucks and buses daily. It has invested Rs 2,000 crore over the five year between 2017 and 2021.

He said even during the Covid pandemic its off-the-road, or OTR, business of supplying tyres for the mining and construction business remained steady.

"This momentum of growth is continued in January and February of the first quarter of this calendar year," Satpute pointed out, adding that both replacement market and retail were growing.

He said both its factories in Pune and Indore, employing more than 3,000, were running on three shifts to cater to growing demands.

He said since all tyres were placed in restricted category by the central government since June 2020, banning import of any tyres from China and other countries, it had given fillip to made-in-India tyres.

"Our passenger vehicle tyre business is growing fastest as the replacement tyre market is seeing strong growth after imports were banned," Satpute said. "In fact, normally returned in our business last September."

Satpute said as agriculture was least affected during Covid pandemic, rural economy grew faster, fuelling vehicle growth in tier-II and tier-III towns and cities. "Now there is more growth here which is higher than the Metros," he said, adding that it would likely grow faster than the urban market.

Bridgestone has launched its first concept store, Bridgestone Select+. With these concept stores, the firm aims to create higher engagement with consumers at tyre services.

Starting with Pune, Bridgestone plans to introduce these stores in multiple cities by the end of this year.

The process is enabled through an interactive digital kiosk where customers can pick between Bridgestone's array of choices. The store also offers customer demonstrations to understand the impact that each of the tyre services provides and helps customers get the best out of their tyres, he added.

Advances to Oz Open 3rd round; Djoker on a roll

Melbourne, Feb. 10: Serena Williams strolled into the third round of the Australian Open on Wednesday but former US Open champion Bianca Andreescu's emotional comeback from 15 months out ended at the hands of Taiwanese veteran Hsieh Su-wei.

Williams, 39, continued her quest to equal Margaret Court's all-time mark of 24 Grand Slams with a 6-3, 6-0 romp past 99th-ranked Serbian Nina Stojanovic in just 69 minutes on Rod Laver Arena.

But eighth seed Andreescu, playing her first tournament since October 2019 after a serious knee injury, could never cope with Hsieh's quirky range of shots and lost 6-3, 6-2 in one hour 23 minutes.

Kvitova, the former Wimbledon champion and Melbourne runner-up in 2019, committed 44 unforced errors in her 6-4, 1-6, 6-1 defeat to Romania's Sorana Cirstea.

But seventh seed Aryna Sabalenka was little troubled in going through 7-6 (7/5), 6-3 against Russia's Daria Kasatkina.

In the men's draw, eighth seed Diego Schwartzmann of Argentina wasted little time in reaching the last 32, brushing aside Frenchman Alexandre Muller 6-2, 6-0, 6-3 in an hour and 32 minutes on 1573 Arena.

Djokovic demolished young American Frances Tiafoe 6-3, 6-7 (3/7), 7-6 (7/2), 6-3.

US Open champion Naomi Osaka, who is seeking her second Australian Open title in three years, got better of France's former world number four Caroline Garcia 6-2, 6-3.

Germany's volatile US Open finalist Alexander Zverev will close out the night session against America's Maxime Cressy.

The fifth seed is known for a short fuse and it showed on Monday as he smashed a racquet during a 6-7 (8/10), 7-6 (7/5), 6-3, 6-2 win against another Marcos Giron.

The tantrum-prone Nick Kyrgios could also provide fireworks out on his favourite John Cain Arena against France's

Kohli free falls to No. 5 as Root rises to No.3 in Tests

Dubai, Feb. 10: India skipper Virat Kohli was on Wednesday pushed to the fifth spot by his English counterpart Joe Root, who rose two rungs to third in the latest ICC Test rankings for batsmen, even as Jasprit Bumrah and R. Ashwin moved up in the bowlers' chart.

Kohli, who had had scores of 11 and 72 in the opening Test against England, has 852 points and down one spot in the latest chart issued on Wednesday.

Ashwin and pacer Bumrah have jumped a rung each to be seventh and eighth respectively.

Root has reached 883 rating points. It is his highest position since September 2017 after a fabulous run in the sub-continent saw him accumulate 684 runs in three Tests, two of which were in Sri Lanka.

Ahead of Kohli for the first time since November 2017, Root is now 36 points behind Kane Williamson and trails Steve Smith by only eight points. With Marnus Labuschagne also in the mix, competition for the top five slots is intense with all of them above 850 rating points.

For India, Rishabh Pant's knock of 91 in the first innings has helped him become the first full-time wicketkeeper from his country to reach 700 rating points as he retained the 13th position among batsmen.

STAR SPRINTER BLAKE ALL PRAISE FOR VIRAT

Kingston, Feb. 10: Star Jamaican sprinter Yohan Blake admires India captain Virat Kohli for not offering excuses when his team does not perform well and taking the blame on himself.

India suffered a 227-run defeat after England set them a target of world record 420 in the opening Test in Chennai on Tuesday. After the match, skipper Kohli admitted that his side put up an underwhelming performance.

"What I really love about Team India is that Virat Kohli doesn't find any excuses. That's what I really love about his captaincy, he took the blame for everything," Blake said.

"He said the bowlers didn't find the right areas and that the batsmen were not as consistent. He said 'we got to go back to the drawing board and come back'. And that's what I love about Virat Kohli and his captaincy. Test cricket is absolutely the best," the star sprinter said.

Second Test should be interesting, India was 1-0 down in Australia, they are 1-0 down at their home ground now. The second Test, I'm looking forward to it," Blake further added.

NASSER SAYS ROOT ONE OF ENG GREATS

London, Feb. 10: Former England captain Nasser Hussain feels incumbent Joe Root is "arguably" the country's best ever player of spin and can break all the Test batting records accumulated by the nation's batsmen.

Root struck 218 in England's first innings to lead his side to a 227-run win over India in the first Test in Chennai on Tuesday.

"Root sure is one of England's greats. He will probably end up breaking all records, he will probably go past Sir Alastair Cook's 161 Test matches and probably tally of runs as well," Hussain wrote in his column for Sky Sports.

"He is in great nick, only 30 years old, and if you did a list of all-time England batting greats — the ones I have seen anyway — you'd have to have Root with Cook, Graham Gooch and Kevin Pietersen.

"I would say he is arguably England's best-ever player of spin, the way he sweeps spin away is outstanding to watch. People were writing England off, saying this series could be 4-0 to India. No one really gave this side much of a chance. India had won in Australia, Kohli was back and India is a very difficult place to go and win in 'Test match cricket,' the column added. — PTI
