Ruling front scores big wins in Kerala local body polls

Kottayam, Dec. 16: Armed with support of the Jose K Mani faction of Kerala Congress (M), the ruling CPI(M)-led LDF has made inroads in UDF strongholds in central Kerala wresting power in Kottayam and Idukki district panchayats and winning several municipalities and panchayats in the civic polls.

This was the first election since the Jose K Mani faction of the KC(M) severed its decades old ties with the UDF over its differences with the Congress over sharing the Kottayam district panchayat president's post in the previous council. As the results of the civic polls came in, the UDF leadership was stunned to see the collapse of the Congress-led front in its citadels in the district including Kottayam district panchayat, Pala municipality and Puthuppally gram panchayat. Puthuppally is the stronghold of the Congress from where former Chief Minister and senior Congress leader Oommen Chandy has been elected to the state Assembly for the last five decades.

Buoyed by the stunning performance of his faction in the local body polls in many parts of the central Kerala districts including Kottayam and Idukki, Jose K Mani said the result clearly states the faction led by him was the real Kerala Congress (M). Recalling the contribution of his late father and Kerala Congress (M) founder-leader K M Mani in building base for the UDF in the state, Jose K Mani said the victory of LDF, in which his faction is a partner, is a "fitting reply to those who had backstabbed KM Mani." — PTI

Top court for Centre-farmers committee to resolve issues

SANJAY KAW AND PARMOD KUMAR | DC
NEW DELHI, DEC. 16

Noting that the Centre's negotiations with the farmers protesting against the agricultural reform laws have not yielded any results, the Supreme Court on Wednesday said it could form a committee to work out a solution between the two sides. The court said the proposed committee will comprise representatives from the government and farmers' unions across the country in an attempt to break the deadlock.

The protesting farmers described the court's suggestion on forming such a committee as their "moral victory" but remained firm on their stand that they will continue with their agitation till the three laws are repealed by the Centre. The ongoing protests, that are now in their third week, have seen thousands of farmers, primarily from Punjab and Haryana, gathering at the borders of the national capital.

"Even if a committee is formed, our agitation will continue until the three laws are withdrawn," the All India Kisan Sangarsh Coordination Committee, a pan-India organisation of 250 farmers' groups, said. The AKS-SC said the formation of the committee would be fruitful only if it has the representatives of all national and regional farmers' outfits.

The farmers' unions also sent a written reply to the Centre rejecting its December 9 proposal in which it offered significant concessions. In an email to agriculture ministry joint secretary Vivek Agrawal, Sanyukt Kisan Morcha leader Darshan Pal said: "With reference to the proposal and letter received from you, we want to inform the government that the farmers' unions had held a joint meeting on the same day and discussed your proposal and rejected it because it was the written format of the proposal verbally offered by the government representatives on December 5, 2020."

Mr Pal also asked the government to stop maligning the farmers' movement. "We want the government to stop maligning the farmers' movement and stop parallel negotiations with other farmer organisations," he said.

The written response from the protesting farm unions came a day after agriculture minister Narendra Singh Tomar said the government was awaiting a written response on its proposal sent to the farmers. Five meetings have taken place between the protesting farmers and the agriculture minister. Union home minister Amit Shah also met the farmers once, but the deadlock has persisted, with both sides sticking to their stance.

Hardening their stand further, the farmers' groups have now completely blocked the Delhi-Noida border at Chilla. Barricades were set up on the road, blocking vehicular movement from Noida to Delhi. Traffic was also diverted from the Dalit Prerna Sthal, another site of farmers' protests, to the Delhi-Noida-Direct (DND) flyway in the wake of the situation at the Chilla border.

'Representation of new India', says Virat Kohli

Adelaide, Dec. 16: India captain Virat Kohli on Wednesday declared himself a "representation of new India", forever ready to take up challenges with optimism, as he responded to Greg Chappell's view that he is "the most Australian non-Australian cricketer of all time".

On the eve of the first Test against Australia, Kohli was asked about his aggressive brand of cricket coupled with a fighting attitude that the former Australia captain, who also served as India coach, found similar to the mindset of his countrymen.

"I would like to say that I have always been myself," the skipper said during a virtual media conference ahead of the opening Test against Australia here starting Thursday. "The way my personality and character is, I am the representation of new India. For me, that's how I look at it," he asserted. — PTI

Shubhendu quits as MLA, abandons Mamata's TMC

RAJIB CHOWDHURI | DC
KOLKATA, DEC. 16

Dealing yet another blow to West Bengal chief minister and Trinamul Congress supreme Mamata Banerjee, her party's rebel leader: Shubhendu Adhikari quit as a TMC MLA of Nandigram a day before his possible visit to New Delhi and his induction to the BJP. Apprehending "political vendetta" against him by his party, the TMC heavyweight also sought governor Jagdeep Dhankhar's "intervention" in a letter to him for his and his aides' protection from implication by the police in false cases.

At around 4 pm on Wednesday, Mr Adhikari, accompanied by Congress MLA Sudip Mukherjee from Purulia, went to the West Bengal Assembly and handed over his resignation letter to Assembly secretary Abhijit Som in absence of Speaker Biman Banerjee.

peacefully at his native place along with wife Manjula Vijayan and lone daughter Shivani.

Since the Covid-19 pandemic derailed air travel across the world, the return of Chandran's family to Kerala was possible only in December. When he went to book the flight tickets, he came to know that his family was ineligible to fly to Kerala as none of the airports there had the facility to receive his "Candy", a five-year-old tortoiseshell Arabian mau (cat). He and his family members were allowed to fly to Kerala on condition of leaving "Candy" behind. It was a tough choice, as spending the rest of their life without "Candy" was unthinkable.

The family dropped their Kerala plan, and chose to fly to Chennai instead, where there was no restriction for foreign cats to land.

For the family, the goal was not easy as they required to catch a flight that has a special facility of accommodating pets, pay the additional duty at the airport, and a whole host of conditions of the airline. Besides, the family had to find a foreign pet-friendly apartment in the pandemic-hit city. Finally, they managed to find one at Ramapuram here where they live in a two-bedroom apartment with Candy peacefully for the next one month. Then they will transport "Candy" by road to Palakkad.

Bhajan groups may miss their date with Margazhi

CHENNAI, DEC. 16

A distinct feature of Margazhi is groups rendering bhajans on the Mada streets of Mylapore every morning. However, the pandemic has taken its toll on this age-old tradition. Groups singing carnatic and devotional songs, playing harmonium, mridangam and even chaplakattai and traversing the streets of Mylapore and Triplicane for a couple of hours braving early morning biting cold are missing this time. Papanasam Ashok Raman, who has been part of Sivan's bhajan group for several years, told DC, "My grandfather eminent musician-composer Papanasam Sivan would lead the early morning bhajans in Margazhi and several veteran and illustrious musicians have joined him those days. Musicians like Sanjay Subramanian, Gayathri Venkataraghavan, S. Sowmya and Vijay Siva were also part of our bhajan group. We used to sing Carnatic songs whenever we stopped at vantage points. While walking, we opted for namavali (chanting names of gods and goddesses)." But this year Si-

OOTY, DEC. 16

The year 2020 saw a new leaf in the annals of elephant conservation in Nilgiris as the Supreme Court finally gave its nod for restoration of the Segur Valley elephant corridor now located in the Mudumalai Tiger Reserve (MTR) buffer zone.

The final verdict came after a 12-year-long legal battle.

Mr. Elephant Rajendran, the Chennai-based advocate-cum-environmentalist, the petitioner in the public interest litigation on Segur Valley elephant corridor, whose tireless efforts yielded fruitful results this year, appreciated the role of Deccan Chronicle in the genesis of this case and its support for restoring the corridor.

On October 14, 2020, the Supreme Court upheld the Madras high court judgment of 2009, on restoring the Segur Valley elephant corridor that stretches upto 22 km between Singara and Segur reserve forests in MTR buffer zone limits. The corridor is interspersed with private lands and revenue lands. Due to mushrooming of concrete structures, including tourist resorts, in the private lands and encroachments in the revenue lands in the corridor, it led to frequent man-elephant conflict in the past.

He said during the World Investors' Conference in 2019, MoUs worth ₹2,100 crore were signed for starting new industries in Karur district in which 800 people will get jobs.

He said a new check dam across river Cauvery will come up at Nanjai Pugalur village at a cost of ₹406.50 crore and under the Lower Bhavani improvement scheme renovation of water bodies and extending the infrastructure of irrigation will be taken up at a cost of ₹933.10 crore in Erode, Tirupur and Karur districts.

Under the Kudimaram-athu scheme, 90 works have been completed at a cost of ₹14.20 crore from 2016-2017 to 2020-2021, he added.

Kamal takes a swipe at ‘one nation, one language’

G. BABU
JAYAKUMAR | DC
CHENNAI, DEC 16:

Did traversing southern Tamil Nadu bring about a change of mind in Makkal Needhi Maiam founder Kamal Haasan? Going by his tweet on Wednesday it seems so, at least on the issue of Neet.

While the actor had said a few days back that he would plump for Neet, which is the common national level entrance for medical college admissions, he flayed the ‘one examination’ concept on Wednesday.

In the line of the ‘one nation, one law, one examination, one religion, one Hindi, one chappathi, one jibba’ hides the idea of ‘one Prime Minister,’ Kamal said, adding that wherever the ‘one’ came up autocracy and oppression would rear their heads as history had informed us.

“In an uneven society without equality and social justice, mentioning that ‘one’ is a great injustice,” he said, taking a standpoint diametrically opposite to that of the ‘nationalist’ BJP. The reference to ‘one Prime Minister,’ in fact, is a swipe at nationalism itself.

So, has the tour of the southern districts that started from Madurai opened his eyes to the ground realities and helped him understand local aspirations better?

For, in an earlier tweet, he bemoaned the inordinate delay in putting up a statue for Tamil writer Puthumaipithan in Tirunelveli and assured to set up a university in the name of the literary genius if his party came to power.

Prior to that he had exulted over the crowds at K Kamaraj's town (Virudhunagar) and his visit to the house of nationalist poet Bharathiyar in Ettayapuram, which he said had not seen any development.

But his mocking at ‘one religion, one Hindi and one chappathi’ was a surprise in that he seemingly expounds a view that is similar to that of the popular political parties in Tamil Nadu.

By referring to Hindi, chapati and jibba, he has directed his attack at the varied attempts from several quarters to impose north Indian culture and language on Tamil Nadu.

In a speech, Kamal that Tamils would learn any language if they are let free but would ‘spit out’ anything that was imposed on them.

He also speaks indirectly against Sanskrit, calling it a dead language, thus taking the line of the regional parties on the contentious language issue.

Kamal Haasan: MNM may lead third front in TN

DC CORRESPONDENT
TIRUNELVELI, DEC. 16

Makkal Needhi Maiam (MNM) founder-president Kamal Haasan has hinted at the possibility of leading a third front in Tamil Nadu, adding that the time is not yet ripe to finalise the parties joining hands with MNM for the 2021 electoral battle in the state.

Further clarifying that he has nobody behind him to operate to initiate a third front to split the vote-banks of other parties, Mr Haasan said that he took his long-awaited political plunge two years ago after deep thought. Declaring that his political strategy is his uncompromising honesty, the MNM leader said that he takes decisions of his own, whether in cinema or in politics.

Responding to the media reports about the MNM forging an alliance with Asaduddin Owaisi's All-India Majlis-e-Ittehadul Muslimeen (AIMIM), that is expected to set its foot in Tamil Nadu in the 2021 assembly election, Mr Haasan commented that he came to know about that message only through the media and added that he had not talked with any of the AIMIM leaders.

Speaking about the election commission denying his party the torch symbol, which was allotted to the MNM in the 2019 Lok Sabha election, Mr Haasan said that such a decision might have been taken because of his strong political stand against the present ruling government at the Centre.

Efforts to trap killer jumbo go in vain

B. RAVICHANDRAN | DC
OOTY, DEC.16

The efforts of the forest teams to capture a 50-year-old male wild elephant at the Nilgiris border went in vain on Wednesday as the jumbo, escorted by other members in its herd, moved further inside the woods after receiving a tranquiliser dart.

The teams could spot the jumbo at Dampalla in Cherangode limits after the use of drones and three kumki elephants from Mudumalai Tiger Reserve.

The jumbo killed three persons in three days in Kolapalli hamlet limits in Pandalur taluk in Nilgiris border along Kerala recently.

I. Anwardeen, the Additional Principal

Chief Conservator of Forests in Coimbatore circle, said that this jumbo, named Sullikomban or Othaikomban by local populace when it unleashed a rampage in 2016 in Pandalur limits, has been renamed as Shankar after the profiling of the wild jumbos in the Gudalur forest division recently. “After the forest veterinary team sent the tranquiliser dart in the afternoon, it joined its herd which included four other tuskers.

The other jumbos in the herd surrounded Shankar, moved little further in the woods and prevented the forest teams from approaching the herd. We will continue our operation on Thursday to capture it,” he added.

Facts don't back PM's theory on farmers' stir

Prime Minister Narendra Modi's speech in Kutch on Tuesday, in which he spoke of "a great conspiracy to mislead farmers, in and around Delhi", can be said to mark a new stage in the agitation of farmers of North India, in the vanguard of which are Punjab farmers. This stage bespeaks the hardening of the government's stand against the farmers knocking on the doors of the nation's capital for the past 20 days.

After six rounds of dialogue between the government and the farmers' representatives, including a session with Union home minister Amit Shah, the food growers maintain their opposition to the three controversial agri-laws, passed in controversial circumstances last September. The government is just as adamant and will not agree to their repeal, the farmers' key demand. The farmers have rejected the government's implied offer of amending specific sections of the three laws if farmers can pinpoint them.

In Parliament, and in various statements made by the government's representatives outside the legislature, not excluding the remarks of the PM at various forums, the government is yet to cogently explain to the need for the laws that have created a storm, other than to say that these represent much-needed "reform" that will benefit farmers and the farm sector, and will not leave them worse off. The agriculturists are not persuaded, however. The government's bland assurances have done nothing to reassure farmers that the real reason for these "reforms" was not to benefit big industry, rather than the owners of farmland.

Ironically, even as Mr Modi attacked the Opposition parties — and when he does that he specifically means the Congress since he says "they" were unable to bring reforms when in power — the real attack on the government has come from Akali Dal president Sukhbir Badal on the same day that the PM was accusing the Opposition of misleading farmers and playing politics in the guise of backing farmers. The Akalis depend principally on the votes of agriculturists.

Such was the force of the Dal's opposition to the three farm laws that its announcement of leaving the Narendra Modi government came on the floor of the Lok Sabha, in the course of the discussion on the controversial farm laws. Subsequently, the Punjab party left the ruling alliance. Therefore, the notion of innocent farmers being "misled" by the Opposition — assiduously propagated by the government and the BJP — does not square with the facts. In the first instance, this opposition to the agri-laws came from the Akali Dal when it was a member of the ruling NDA until three months ago. This was clearly a case of opposition from within.

In a newspaper interview, Union agriculture minister Narendra Singh Tomar said the BJP under Mr Modi came back with an increased majority in 2019 because of the "transformative" policies of demonetisation and GST. The extremely negative economic effects of these policies did not concern him and he equated more seats in Parliament with approval of these policies by the people. In the same way, he noted, the farm laws, that have triggered a tsunami of protest, will also be backed by the electorate.

The farmers seem to be up against the strength of ideology rather than economic logic.

Naked power grab

The fracas in the Karnataka Legislative Council may be par for the course in many a legislature, but it did nothing for the reputation of a House of Elders. The physical pushing and shoving of the deputy chairman, who was the presiding officer at the time and the kind of street language members used against each other made this a new low so far as meetings at the majestic Vidhana Soudha building in Bengaluru goes. The issue does run deeper and the incident only further illustrates the naked power grabbing politics gripping places reserved for people's representatives.

It appears the ruling party BJP was in a tearing hurry to pass the contentious Karnataka Prevention of Slaughter and Preservation of Cattle Bill 2020 and the Congress, afraid of losing the chairmanship and control of the council, was hell bent on stopping the proceedings and the Bill. But the Congress chairman had no right to duck legislative business in adjourning the House on December 10 even as the BJP and JD(S) had no right to forcibly occupy the chair through deputy chairman Dharmegowda to try and pass the Bill.

The Congress' fear of losing the last vestige of power in Karnataka it had enjoyed in its alliance of convenience with the JD(S) till 2019 may have led it to such subterfuge in blocking legislation the BJP is keen to enact. The cattle protection laws are in keeping with BJP's pursuit of Hindutva, to enable which it has been seen enticing the JD(S) into its sphere of influence by dangling the carrot of an alliance that may stretch into the next Assembly elections.

The JD(S) is a past master in the art of gravitating towards political power as evidenced in its supreme H.D. Devegowda once becoming Prime Minister of India in a large coalition with a minuscule number of MPs. Its effort to remain relevant in Karnataka politics today is understandable. However, the least expectation is presiding officers of legislatures will meticulously follow the rule book so as not to deny a majority from having its say, such majority always being on the floor of the House.

Child nutrition crisis may derail India's aspirations

It can be tempting to blame every crisis on the Covid-19 pandemic. But quite often, facts get in the way. Many things were bad enough even prior to the onset of the pandemic, that gutted so many lives and livelihoods.

The latest data from the National Family Health Survey (NFHS-5) is a case in point. It shows that several states across the country are doing worse since the last NFHS was conducted in 2015-16. They have reversed course and are showing worsening levels of child malnutrition despite improvements in sanitation and better access to fuel and drinking water.

Arguably, the first set of findings from the NFHS-5, conducted in 2019-20, four years after the last one (2015-16), relates to only 22 states and Union territories and does not include major states like Madhya Pradesh, Tamil Nadu and Uttar Pradesh. Data for these states will be released sometime in the middle of next year.

It is also true that not everything in NFHS-5 reeks of gloom.

Immunisation coverage has expanded in many states, the number of households using clean fuel has improved. Ditto with sanitation facilities. The total fertility rate (TFR) across most Indian states is also declining.

All this is good news. But we can't afford to take the eye off the ball and gloss over the heart-breaking reality of growing numbers of stunted and undernourished children in India.

In Maharashtra, the percentage of children in the 6-59 months group who are anaemic has shot up from 53.8 per cent (2015-2016) to 68.9 per cent in 2019-2020. Rural children are more severely affected. In the same period, the percentage of children under five who are stunted (low height for age) has gone up from 34.4 to 35.2.

What leapt out at me was the data from Mumbai. Children in the 6-50 months group who are anaemic has risen from 65.7 per cent in 2015-2016 to 72.8 per cent in 2019-2020.

Or take Gujarat, a relatively affluent state. The percentage of children under five who are stunted has risen from 38.5 (2015-2016) to 39.0 (2019-2020). In the same period, children under five who are severely wasted has gone up from 9.5 per cent to 10.6 per cent and those between 6-59 months who are anaemic has shot up from 62.6 per cent in 2015-2016 to 79.7 per cent in 2019-2020.

Nutrition experts point out that out of 22 states and Union territories for which we have data, there is a surge in severe acute malnutrition cases in 16 states/UTs, compared to NFHS-4 conducted in 2015-2016.

Even Kerala, that usually leads in social policies, has problems: anaemia is growing among children.

The underfed hugely outnumber the overfed but alongside the crisis of child under-nutrition, we are also seeing a rise in child obesity, perhaps due to more junk food consumption.

All this is exacerbated by widespread under-nutrition and anaemia among women, including those who are pregnant. What is going wrong and what has changed between 2015-2016 and 2019-2020?

"We don't have granular data for all states and Union territories as yet but the first lot of data from NFHS-5 points to worsening malnutrition and anaemia in several states. From the data that's available, it's hard to pinpoint why malnutrition worsened even before the pandemic set in, but it's important to note that the period when it worsened coincides with the time India suffered economic shocks. We had demonetisation in 2016, which gutted much of the informal sector which dominates the Indian economy. We don't know to what extent those who took a severe hit during demonetisation have recovered. The GST rollout also affected small businesses and rural wages have stagnated," says Dipa Sinha, assistant professor of economics at New Delhi's Ambedkar University and a key figure in India's Right to Food Campaign.

"The other unknown for which we don't have much data is the impact of the weakening of the social protection framework with inadequate budgetary support and no expansion in response to the economic slowdown which could have affected affordability of diets. PDS (public distribution system) provides only rice and wheat in most states. Some states also give pulses and oil, but many poorer states don't," she adds.

Some experts point out that the work of the Narendra Modi government's flagship National Nutrition Mission and Anaemia Mukh Bharat (AMB) campaign, with an ambitious target of reducing anaemia by three percentage points per annum till 2022, are not really captured in the NFHS-5 data because they really got going only recently.

Even if that is so, it is vital to review what is actually happening on the ground. There are enough indications that all is not well with many programmes. Take the mid-day meals, for example — the Central government's flagship school-based feeding programme aimed at improving the nutritional status of students and promoting the universal isation of elementary education.

According to the Accountability Initiative of the Centre of Policy Research, only 14 states in India could utilise 100 per cent of the funds allocated to them for mid-day meals for the year 2018-2019, and states like Telangana, Assam and Goa used only two-third of the money allocated to them under this head. Gujarat and Haryana used only 40 per cent of the funds allocated to them for mid-day meals. All this goes to show that there is a lot that is dysfunctional on the ground.

India's child nutrition crisis should give policymakers sleepless nights.

Stunting is a marker of chronic or recurrent undernutrition, usually associated with poor socioeconomic conditions, poor maternal health and nutrition, frequent illness, and/or inappropriate infant and young child feeding and care in early life.

Children who suffer from stunting may not only not grow to their full height, there is also a risk that they would not develop their full cognitive potential.

Experts say mothers who suffer from under-nutrition are more likely to have children who suffer from stunting or wasting, perpetuating the cycle of poverty and undernutrition. Anaemia is also hugely debilitating. It can affect children's cognitive performance and physical growth. In women, anaemia can adversely impact the capacity to work and can lead to poor pregnancy outcomes.

Children are India's future, on whom the country's dreams rest, but they are paying the price of adult bungling and apathy. We can't afford that. Nor can we afford diversions like the needless hullabaloo over serving boiled eggs, a source of protein, to poor children in government programmes.

WHAT AN IRONY

Makkal Needhi Maia president Kamal Haasan has rightly said that 'Puratchi Thalaivar' M. G. Ramachandran, known as MGR and as 'Makkal Thilagam', is not the sole property or asset of AIADMK alone. He has rightly asserted that MGR is known as 'Makkal Thilagam' and not 'AIADMK Thilagam' and that some of the ministers would not even have met him. It is a matter of co-ncern and irony that the AIADMK leaders who were addressing their rule as 'Amma Aatchi' all along has now switched to the words MGR Aatchi (MGR rule) and started giving prominence to MGR in posters, banners and advertisements keeping in mind the forthcoming assembly elections.

APROPPOS REPORT Conspiracy afoot to confuse farmers: PM (Dec. 16). The economists cry that due to farmers' agitation the nation is losing ₹3,500 crores per day. And the Prime Minister and the Home Minister had assured that the government will amend the laws suitably. Yet the agitating farmers are not willing to withdraw their agitation. Regrettably the Centre too is intransigent against repealing the 3 farm laws. The moot question is why Yechury, Prashanth Bhusan, Yogendra Yadav, Kejriwal and their ilk who are lending support to the farmers did not sympathise nor visit the 29,000 agriculturists who had given 34,000 acres of their land for establishing Amaravati as AP's capital city, agitating for one year? In this regard, the Prime Minister's statement that "there is a conspiracy, confused and instigated the farmers" gains credence. It is time the farmers gave up their agitation and settled issues through negotiations.

CORRUPTION IN RTO

IN A surprise raid in Virudhunagar RTO, sleuths of the anti-corruption wing are reported to have seized unaccounted cash of ₹25.66 lakh. Two motor vehicle inspectors have been suspended in this connection. About three months ago, the DVAC officials had seized nearly ₹4 lakh unaccounted cash in Sriperumbudur RTO. The cash was reportedly found concealed in the flush tank of the restroom, generator room and also inside the vehicles used by officials. When computerisation was introduced, the authorities had made a tall claim that transparency would be the hallmark of administration, and corruption and malpractices would be a thing of the past. Unfortunately, things have not changed a wee bit.

Gymkhana divided on suspension of ex-cop

Due to various complex rules around admission, the Delhi Gymkhana Club has maintained its exclusive "aura" for 107 years. Its governing body is comprised of various retired government and defence officials as well as other private citizens. Its elections are a hotly contested affair, often leading to accusations of use of "illegal" and "unlawful" means between the contestants.

These days the club is roiled by a letter written by 50 members collectively to the club president expressing their outrage at the "arbitrary decision" of the governing body. One of the issues that has riled members is the proposed suspension of a member, Dr Parvez Hayat, a retired IPS officer, for a day and further debarring him from contesting the club elections. Sources say that the member's suspension was the result of allegations levelled against him by vice-admiral B.S. Randhawa. The letter alleged that the club authorities did not observe the rules and due process before taking the decision to suspend the retired IPS officer.

Such controversies are not new. Earlier this year, the National Company Law Tribunal (NCLT) had ruled that the club was acting in a manner "prejudicial to public interest" and, therefore, must be probed. It said that a five-member central government appointed panel should investigate the affairs of the club, including land usage and its admission policy for members.

UPRIGHT BABU RILES UTTARAKHAND MINISTER

These days your average babu can rarely say "no" to a minister. Blind obedience is what is expected from them, leaving little room for independent decision-making.

But like always, there are exceptions to the rule. An instance from Uttarakhand has recently come to light. There is even a touch of the bizarre about it!

The state's minister of women and child welfare, Rekha Arya, reportedly wrote to the DIG of Dehradun, Arun Mohan Joshi, inquiring about her additional secretary V. Shannugam, who, she said, was "missing". And since the officer was "incommunicado", she feared he might have been kidnapped!

As it turns out, according to sources, trouble had been brewing between the minister and the IAS officer for some time. Matters came to a head sometime in September when Mr Shannugam awarded a contract in a tender possibly against the wishes of the minister. Subsequently, he went into a two-day "self-isolation" and did not take any calls from his office or the minister.

The irate mantri forced chief minister Trivendra Rawat to order an inquiry into the award of the contract, but additional chief secretary Manisha Panwar has reported that the probe did not find any misconduct by Mr Shannugam. Further, Mr Panwar has stated that the officer had followed due process while awarding the contract and while going on leave. This is where matters rest, for now. It remains to be seen whether the minister will pursue the issue further or let it fly. It would also be interesting to see if the babu manages to hold on to his post or gets transferred elsewhere.

Contrast this with a powerful babu in Delhi who did not vanish after his "gaffe". Immense sweeping powers and other capabilities were exercised in Delhi and his statement vanished instead. What was reported in the media (of course, the story was promptly withdrawn, though the video exists!) on questioning the credentials of democracy itself led to much speculation whether this was just a gaffe or something more!

One issue that has riled up members is the proposed suspension of a member, Dr Parvez Hayat, retired IPS officer, for a day and further debarring of him from the club elections. The member's suspension was the result of allegations levelled against him by vice-admiral B.S. Randhawa.

Moody is SRH director of cricket

New Delhi: Australian Tom Moody has been appointed director of cricket at Indian Premier League side Sunrisers Hyderabad, who are captained by his compatriot David Warner.

Moody, 55, was the Hyderabad coach for seven years and led them to their only IPL title in 2016. He was replaced by another Australian, Trevor Baylis, last year and late on Tuesday the franchise announced that Moody would be returning. The former batsman switched to coaching and TV commentary after retiring in 2001 and helped Hyderabad reach the play-offs five times during his stay as coach.

Hyderabad, who also have New Zealand skipper Kane Williamson and Afghanistan spin ace Rashid Khan in their ranks, failed to reach this year's final when they lost to DC in the playoffs in November. —AFP

Shuttler Foo Kune banned for doping

Geneva: Mauritian badminton player Kate Foo Kune, her country's flag-carrier at the 2016 Rio Olympics, was banned for two years for doping on Wednesday after failing to prove her drink was spiked. Foo Kune tested positive for a banned steroid last year but she escaped a ban when the Badminton World Federation's anti-doping panel accepted her explanation that she was the victim of sabotage. But after a BWF appeal against its own panel's decision, there was no evidence of foul play. — AFP

Prez candidate wants Leo to stay

Barcelona: Barcelona presidential candidate Jordi Farre said on Tuesday he would work to make sure Lionel Messi stays at the Catalan giants should be elected next month, and hinted at a improbable bid for Neymar by the cash-strapped club. Farre was promoter of the motion that led to previous club chief Josep Maria Bartomeu's resignation.

Also, Umesh Yadav predictably, after his good show in the practice game, got his place in the side as the third pacer.

Prithvi to open as Saha keeps

Adelaide, Dec. 16: India have kept faith with opener Prithvi Shaw while opting for Wriddhiman Saha ahead of Rishabh Pant as wicketkeeper for the opening day-night Test against Australia in Adelaide starting Thursday.

Selectors also confirmed Umesh Yadav as the third seamer alongside Mohammed Shami and Jasprit Bumrah in the absence of the injured Ishant Sharma, while Ravi Ashwin won the race to be their frontline spinner ahead of Kuldeep Yadav.

The flamboyant Shaw was under pressure from another young talent — Shubman Gill, also 21 — to open the innings alongside Mayank Agarwal after just one decent knock in four warm-up innings.

But he will take the field for his fifth cap on Thursday while Gill continues his wait to earn a first.

“Prithvi has performed at the Test level, but he would be playing in Australia for the first time. I think it is very exciting to see his progress as well,” the Indian captain Kohli said.

The dogged and experienced Cheteshwar Pujara will come in at number three, followed by Kohli in his only Test of the tour before heading home for the birth of his first child. —PTI

City held; Wolves peg back Chelsea

THE RESULTS

Manchester City (Gundogan 30)	1
West Bromwich Albion (Dias 43-og)	1
Wolverhampton (Podence 66, Pedro Neto 90+5)	2
Chelsea (Giroud 49)	1

against the side sitting second bottom of the table.

Ilkay Gundogan opened the scoring for Pep Guardiola's men but Ruben Dias's own goal just before half-time proved costly as City's problems in front of goal continued in a goalless second-half despite a siege on the West Brom goal.

A point edges City up to fifth on goal difference, while West Brom move to within two points of safety at the other end of the table. West Brom had the first big chance of the game when the ball ricocheted off Joao Cancelo into the path of Karlen Grant and he forced Ederson into a fine save low to his left.

City's probing was finally rewarded on the half hour as Raheem Sterling got to the by-line and his cut back was fired home from the edge of the area by Gundogan.

Guardiola's men shot themselves in the foot by conceding for the first time in seven games two minutes before half-time as they failed to clear a free-kick into the box and Semi Ajayi's shot was deflected into his own net by Dias.

It was one-way traffic after the break as City set up camp in the West Brom half but lacked the imagination or pace to open the Frank up.

Frank Lampard believes Chelsea have become complacent after the Blues blew a lead to lose 2-1 at Wolves and suffer back-to-back Premier League defeats for the first time during his reign in charge.
