TD harassed voters: Peddireddy

Minister charges TD with launching smear campaign against YSRC for political gains

DC CORRESPONDENT
TIRUPATI, APRIL 17

Panchayat Raj minister Peddireddy Ramachandra Reddy has fumed at Telugu Desam leaders for accusing the ruling YSR Congress of casting bogus votes using fake Electoral Photo Identity Cards (EPICs) in the Tirupati (SC) Lok Sabha byelection.

Speaking to the media here on Saturday, he accused opposition parties, including Telugu Desam and media members supporting it, of going to polling booths and intimidating voters. Ramachandra Reddy said he had already complained to the Election Commission about such harassment of voters.

"They (opposition) not only intimidated voters at polling booths, but intercepted pilgrims and passengers, especially women travelling in buses from far-off places, and terrorised them. The TD leaders have conspired to obstruct the polling process, which had been continuing on a peaceful note," he remarked.

Ramachandra Reddy said Telugu Desam complaining about bogus voters using fake EPIC is just a drama. He said TD is making false allegations against the ruling party, as its defeat in the Tirupati LS bypoll is imminent.

"Lokesh described in his tweet today as Andhra Veerappan.

In fact, it is TD that joined hands with former chief minister N. Kiran Kumar Reddy in smuggling precious red sanders. Prove me a smuggler and I'll quit politics," the minister said.

He charged Telugu Desam of launching a smear campaign against the ruling YSRC for political gains.

"We will complain to Election Commission about Telugu Desam's conspiracies and irregularities committed during the bypoll," he added.

"We all depend on farming and dairy animals. We are not in a position to pay taxes to municipalities. Despite several appeals, officials did not resolve our issues," villagers said. They questioned why Renigunta, which is a town, has not been merged in Srikalahasti municipality.

Though officials and leaders of various political parties tried to convince villagers into voting, they did not budge.

Meanwhile, there have been reports of electronic voting machines (EVMs) malfunctioning at a few polling stations, which resulted in a brief delay in starting the polling process.

Sajjala says 'bogus voters' claim is Naidu conspiracy

DC CORRESPONDENT
VIJAYAWADA, APRIL 17

The YSR Congress alleged that Telugu Desam chief N. Chandrababu Naidu was hatching a conspiracy to disturb the Tirupati Lok Sabha byelection polling through a "baseless drama of bogus voters" on polling day on Saturday.

Government public affairs adviser Sajjala Ramakrishna Reddy refuted the allegations of the TD about the YSRC deploying bogus voters into polling booths and claimed that the ruling party did not need to do anything like that for votes as victory was "inevitable due to people's support."

He claimed that 80 per cent of voters were supporting Chief Minister Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddy. Speaking to the media at the party office here on Saturday, Ramakrishna Reddy said Naidu knew that the TD was losing and was resorting to cheap tactics. The TD chief was "insulting the democratic process" which is being conducted in a free and fair manner, he said.

Ramakrishna Reddy stated that Tirupati is a world famous pilgrimage centre and people come in large numbers in buses and other vehicles. Naidu was dubbing these pilgrims as "bogus voters."

The government adviser slammed Naidu for writing to the Chief Electoral Officer at midnight mentioning bus numbers and alleging that fake voters were being brought into the constituency.

The YSRC leader asked what the BJP and TD's polling agents were doing in the booths if bogus votes were being cast.

He pointed out that the bypoll was being held by the Central Election Commission and was being monitored by its observers and the process was guarded by Central security forces.

Ramakrishna Reddy said Naidu had prepared his reaction to the poll result, and would blame the defeat of the TD on bogus voting.

BJP asks EC to conduct repoll in Tirupati cityDC CORRESPONDENT
TIRUPATI, APRIL 17

Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) candidate for the Tirupati (SC) Lok Sabha byelection K. Ratna Prabha has demanded the Election Commission to conduct a re-polling in Tirupati city, alleging large-scale of irregularities in Saturday's polling process.

She, along with BJP functionaries, including Samanchi Srinivas, staged a protest in front of the West Division police station here, demanding the police and officials to take action against the violators, who allegedly polled bogus votes with fake voter ID cards and voter slips. She demanded the ECI to cancel the polling process in Tirupati and conduct re-poll.

"Outsiders who were brought from neighbouring places were given bogus voter ID cards and voter slips by the ruling party and they cast fake votes. This has resulted in hundreds of genuine voters, who came to exercise their franchise, to return as their votes were found already polled", she alleged.

"Instead of taking action against the violators caught by BJP activists and booth agents, the police have arrested our activists and filed cases against them. The ruling party leaders have forcibly taken away our booth agents from the polling stations and handed them over to police. Election authorities and police have failed to respond to our complaints and no action was taken to check outsiders coming to the polling booths", she said.

Meanwhile, BJP leader and Rajya Sabha member G.V.L. Narasimha Rao took the issue to Twitter, alleging that the ruling party was resorting to bogus voting in Tirupati, while the state administration and police were mute spectators. "Bogus voting by ruling @YSRCParty reported on a large scale in Tirupati (SC) Lok Sabha bypoll. State administration, police are mute spectators to this subversion of democracy. Request @ECISVEEP to order repoll in all such booths," he tweeted.

CPI(M) leaders, led by party central committee member V. Srinivasa Rao, raised slogans against the YSRC, accusing them of resorting to large-scale bogus voting.

Speaking to media persons, Srinivasa Rao alleged that YSRC leaders have indulged in rigging by bringing in thousands of outsiders from Kadapa, Kurnool and Chittoor districts.

"The YSRC agents and leaders have threatened other party booth agents in the polling stations and cast bogus votes", he alleged while demanding the Election Commission of India to inquire into the issue.

ON NAIDU, AIDESDC CORRESPONDENT
VIJAYAWADA, APRIL 17

The YSR Congress on Saturday lodged a complaint against Telugu Desam president N. Chandrababu Naidu and TD leaders from the Tirupati parliamentary constituency for allegedly "disturbing the peaceful polling process" during the byelection.

YSRC general secretary Lella Appi Reddy lodged the complaint with the Chief Electoral Officer and sought action against Naidu and other leaders for "creating disturbances in the poll process."

Appi Reddy alleged that under Naidu's directions, former MLA Sugunamma, former Tirupati urban Development Authority G. Narasimha Yadav and other TD leaders attempted to disrupt the polling to mislead voters.

He claimed that a group of devotees who were on the way to Tirumala in private buses had stopped near the PLR convention centre in Tirupati for breakfast. When they were about to leave, a group of persons accompanied by Sugunamma and Narasimha Yadav created a scene by alleging that the devotees were bogus voters.

Appi Reddy alleged that the pro-Telugu Desam TV channels telecast the incident and levelled false allegations and tried to create fear in the minds of the public that the YSRC had brought bogus voters from outside to cast their votes in the byelection. If there was any truth about the TD's allegations, polling agents would have spotted them, the YSRC leaders said.

Appi Reddy sought action against Naidu and TD leaders for stopping the devotees, branding them as bogus voters and creating a ruckus.

Assembly segmentDC CORRESPONDENT
VIJAYAWADA, APRIL 17

The Telugu Desam has demanded cancellation of election process and re-polling in Tirupati Assembly segment of the Tirupati parliamentary constituency due to gross violations of model code of conduct, booth-capturing, rigging and bogus votes.

TD chief N. Chandrababu Naidu on Saturday alleged severe violation of norms in the byelection by the YSRC and inaction against violators by the poll panel. He demanded the Election Commission to immediately cancel the election in Tirupati Assembly segment and order re-polling.

Addressing a press meet here, Naidu recalled that the EC had assured 2,200 central forces, 800 micro-observers but it did not take any action against ruling party violators. He alleged that women from other areas were brought to cast votes illegally and TD had caught hundreds of people red-handed when trying to cast votes fraudulently.

Naidu alleged that check-posts failed to restrain bogus voters from entering Tirupati and the central observers remained oblivious despite complaints by all political parties. He mentioned that BJP leader Shanta Reddy caught fraudulent voters but there was no action from the police and officials.

N. Chandrababu Naidu

Naidu said that democratic principles were thrown out of the windows as police, volunteers and the YSRC leaders were colluded and turned the elections into a farce. He stated that police are behaving like henchmen of the ruling party.

Further, Naidu also wrote a letter to the Chief Election Commissioner explaining violations by the YSRC.

TD secretary and MLC Beeda Ravichandra alleged that the ruling party leaders have ridiculed democracy by resorting to rigging in the Tirupati Lok Sabha byelection.

Addressing the media in Nellore on Saturday, the TD MLC accused the ruling party of resorting to irregularities by creating bogus voter ID cards and shifting people from other constituencies to cast bogus votes in the Tirupati Lok Sabha byelection.

YSRC resorted to
bogus voting: TDDC CORRESPONDENT
TIRUPATI, APRIL 17

Telugu Desam leaders accused the YSRC of indulging in large-scale rigging in the polling held on Saturday for the Tirupati (SC) Lok Sabha seat. They alleged that a large number of fake votes were cast by outsiders, brought in by the ruling party, in the Tirupati Assembly segment.

The party candidate Panabaka Lakshmi, who visited a polling station in the 74th division in Tirupati, claimed to have caught three persons, who tried to cast votes with fake voter cards. Panabaka Lakshmi said that she had alerted a constable on duty at the polling station and he shifted them to the station for resorting to irregularities.

On the other hand, the TD leaders from Tirupati, including former MLA M. Sugunamma, Tirupati Parliamentary in-charge G. Narasimha Yadav, Sridhar Varma and others, staged protests at different locations in the city. They alleged that the YSRC leaders kept the 'outsiders' at a private convention centre.

Sugunamma and Narasimha Yadav also claimed to have intercepted some buses and cars, which were bringing outsiders into the city. The urban police took Yadav into custody when he staged a protest in front of the convention centre.

Telugu Desam on its official Twitter tweeted: "YSRCP is making a mock-

These photographs which were shot today morning at PLR Function Hall demonstrate their audacity and disregard of the law and Election Commission. We urge Election Commission to immediately take necessary measures to stop YSRCP's anti-social elements from breaking the law and code of conduct during elections".

Meanwhile, Congress contestant Dr Chinta Mohan along with party activists also intercepted a bus, which allegedly brought outsiders, near the DBR hospital. He complained to the election authorities, alleging that the ruling party has brought nearly 10,000 outsiders from neighbouring places like Punganur, Madanapalle, Thamballapalle in Chittoor district and also from Kadapa district to cast bogus votes.

Breaching the trust of customers, 1.3 kg of gold was found missing in the bank at Uyyalawada of Kurnool district. ## Vizag readies 6,500 Covid beds

DC CORRESPONDENT
VISAKHAPATNAM, APRIL 17

The district administration, on Saturday, designated 20 private hospitals with 2,023 beds and including government hospitals the total number of beds available would be around 6,500 in Visakhapatnam district.

"As of now we have 4,023 and gradually we are making it 6,500," district collector V. Vinay Chand told DC on Saturday. The CSR block at King George Hospital is full to the brim and the patients were being sent to Government Chest Hospital and VIMS. Together they have around 1,000 beds. The problem is a shortage of doctors specialised in lung diseases and general medicine, sources said. However, the corporate hospitals have medical professionals to meet the demand

"This is the reason why the corporate and some private hospitals are not accepting the private patients. Patients from Srikakulam, Vizianagaram and East Godavari are also looking at Visakhapatnam for better treatment but they were being denied admission," the leader said whom the relatives of the patients approached for help.

Local people are complaining that the newly elected corporators were not helping them in getting tests and vaccines. When approached, they have been claiming they were helpless since there was a short supply of testing kits and vaccines. However, an independent corporator from the old town area of Visakhapatnam Sadique Mohammed denied the allegation and said urban health centres in his ward are providing both.

"People have to understand that priority in testing is being given to symptomatic patients and not to those under panic," he said. Visakhapatnam district registered 470 positive patients on Saturday and the active cases have gone up to 3,804.

Water shortage looms large as reservoirs dry up

D. SIVA RAMI REDDI | DC
KURNOOL, APRIL 17

Water shortage seems to be on the horizon as storage levels in major reservoirs of Andhra Pradesh have fallen drastically.

Level of Srisailem reservoir has touched 808 ft against full reservoir level of 885 ft. Water availability is just 33.59 TMC, only 15 per cent of total storage capacity. Nagarjun-asagar, downstream of Srisailem, has storage of just 191.05 TMC against 312 TMC capacity. Priyadarshini Jurala and Tungabhadra each have mere 3.98 TMC of water.

Srisailem superintendent engineer M. Srinivasula Reddy said as of now there is nothing to worry about. But if the level falls below 780 ft, then it will be a problem to discharge water downstream or through Pothired-dypadu head regulator. Krishna water is being drawn into Penna through Owk and Mylavaram reservoirs and also through Kundu River to take it to Nellore district's Somasila reservoir. But Somasila too has 56.63 TMC feet of water against its storage capacity 78 TMC.

● Drinking water supply schemes, which had been formulated for almost all villages spending crores of rupees, have proved to be a failure

Dowleswaram circle irrigation superintendent engineer R. Shivarama Krishna said the current storage in barrage is 2.2 TMC against the total capacity of 3 TMC. There is no problem in supplying drinking water to Rajamahendravaram city as it requires just 0.22 TMC.

Kurnool Municipal Corporation (KMC) area depends on Sunkesula reservoir for drinking water. Corporation executive engineer Surendra Babu said the reservoir has storage of 1.07 TMC, which will be sufficient till the end of May. He reassured people that water could be tapped from Gajuladinne project too, which is presently having a storage of 2.61 TMC. He said normally rains fall even in April and May months. But if there is a dry spell even in June, then it may lead to water scarcity in the city. But that would be a rare case, he felt.

However, river beds of Tungabhadra, Kundu, and Handri have dried up. In the absence of alternative drinking water sources, villagers are digging up "chalimalu" (water pits) on river beds in search of water.

For residents of Mantralayam, Yamminagar and Kodumur Assembly constituencies, River Tungabhadra is the only source of drinking water. Alur, Pathikonda, Nandi-kotkur, Srisailem and Adoni Assembly constituencies are dependent on KC canal, Handri Neeva and low-level canal, which are not able to supply water regularly. In Kosigi, Aspari, Pedakadubur, Chippagiri, Nandavaram, Tuggali, Belagal, Guduru, and Kothapalli too, water supply has gone down drastically. Tube wells are either not working or giving water that is unfit for human consumption.

Being a sport! The story of my fitness journey

After you reach a certain age and size, in my case at least, your thoughts turn to another age and size, largely imaginary. For instance, when I was little, I was very thin. This is true. I have photographic evidence. I also had no actual talent as an athlete, but I was athletic enough to be made to run various races, jump over sandpits and poles and once, with luckily no major casualties, chuck a javelin. The third leg of the “house” team, if you will, and this carried on over three “houses” in three schools and two cities.

Once I was pushed into a race outside my training or comfort zone — 400 m, because there was no one else to make up the numbers. My preferred race was the 100 m sprint. The school’s sports consultant, of whom we were in awe because he had been to the 1976 Montreal Olympics and wanted Nadia Comaneci in person, said that my hamstring muscles were not long enough for my legs, so I had a funny stride. Not good for longer runs. Anyway, desperation made the house hamstrung. And in I went. After 300 metres, my heart burst out of my 13-year-old chest and I am not ashamed to say that a friend’s sister (in a similar situation for another house) and I, walked the last 100 m together, chatting. Since we finished the race, we were not disqualified. Heads, um, held high!

The one thing I could not do was swim except for an ungainly life-saving dog paddle. Luckily then no one ever threw me into a swimming pool for some greater sporting glory. The swimming coach, whom we called Bumblebee because he had a large yellow and black motorbike and kept bellowing at us in the CCI swimming pool in Bombay (1970s, that was its name then) managed to hammer a mediocre breaststroke into me before we buzzed off to a new school in Calcutta.

School finished and thus finished organised exercise. You may not believe it now but in the 1980s, hardly no one dedicated their lives to treadmills, yoga mats and smoothies. Plus, we were undefeatable. We worked hard and played harder. There was no time for dumbbells.

As it turned out, the dumbbells were us. All that confidence was highly misplaced. And by the time you realized that time and hormones were against you, the tyres on the cars on the roads had nothing on you and your stomach, arms, thighs, hips et cetera. That’s when you wake up at the crack of dawn and walked all over Aarey Milk Colony where the best exercise was running away from laughter clubs. I tried a few gyms. A friend found an excellent place in Ahmedabad where all you had to do was lie on a series of moving tables which exercised different parts of your body. Don’t laugh. It was brilliant and actually worked.

A couple of close friends and I, in our mid to late 40s, signed up for an exercise regime. This was zeal plus hubris. Also, when your vision goes a bit, you can’t really focus on the mirror any more and you miss all those wrinkles. So having scoffed at middle-aged ladies in salwar kameezes and sneakers huffing and puffing in suburban Mumbai’s parks, we joined a gym. Not the treadmill sort. But the calisthenics and exercise sort. Why humans put themselves through this is one of life’s mysteries. Anyway, we mountain-walked and pulled long rubber bands and cross-trained and then hobbled out after an hour with not one part of our bodies working.

The zeal was such that we were horrified when we attended an afternoon “old ladies” class — all the old ladies were at least five years younger than us — and saw that they spent all their time lying on their mats flirting with the young male instructors. We shuddered in self-righteous wrath as we finished all our exercises, and never went to an afternoon class again. Instead, we sacrificed lunch and went straight from yoga to the gym. Plus, we walked all over suburban Mumbai scorning every hopeful passing auto.

At the end of the year, all we had to show for it were collapsed muscles, dodgy knees, sprained ankles and broken toes. The only worthwhile part of this exercise was the yoga.

In between I did walk up and down some hills around my parents’ home, full of self-righteousness.

Now when 60 stares at you in the face and the tyres cannot be dislodged and who the hell wants to carry those dumbbells, and the hills are so pretty to look at, technology comes to the rescue! You install some free fitness app on your phone. You carry your phone everywhere. It counts every useless step you take. From refrigerator to chocolate cake to sofa to put the plate in the sink and at the end of the day, you have walked 5 km, used up 2,500 calories and done 9,622 steps. Or some such nonsense. You are happy. You smile beatifically at the phone. The phone is thrilled at the attention and you reset for the next day. I did away with the “heart points” or whatever because I never collected any.

When my sister and I were younger, teenagers, we used to watch Jane Fonda exercise videos and eat chips.

I am not so callous nor so arrogant now. I don’t eat while I watch those exercise ads on Instagram. I just switch to the food pictures after 10 minutes of fit young people contorting into some rebel poses.

Let my fingers do the walking?

Second wave gives the lie to Modi’s ‘decisive’ image

Pavan K. Varma

Chanakya’s View

The time has come to call a spade a spade. And, this spade is about the government’s spectacular unpreparedness in anticipating the second wave of the pandemic, and the woeful absence of strategy and planning to cope with it. It is not as if the unexpected happened. Global experience shows that a second wave — more vicious and infectious than the first — was to be expected. A responsible government, not lulled into complacency by its own propaganda of how well it had handled the pandemic, would have — beyond dramatic gestures — diligently prepared for it. The truth is that the government did not.

A key difference between the first and second waves is that now we have vaccines as a significant weapon to fight the onslaught of the virus. The government itself made much of the fact that India is the vaccine capital of the world. What then led to the deplorable condition that when we needed the vaccines the most, they were — and are — in short supply? The government squandered away the natural advantage India had by exporting or gifting millions of vaccines. It did not give the required monetary support in time to indigenous producers like the Serum Institute of India so that they could ramp up vaccine production, even when it had an earmarked budgetary allocation of Rs 30,000 crores to handle the pandemic. And, it unforgivably delayed the introduction of new vaccines like Sputnik and Johnson &

Johnson, by not speeding up or abridging trials and approvals. Where imports were planned there are reports of major mess-ups leading to cancellations of major contracts. What we are now seeing is incoherent and improvised action when the crisis is upon us, rather than a planned anticipation that was the need of the hour.

Contrast this with what other governments like the UK and the USA have done. In America the government not only gave credit liberally to vaccine producers, but guaranteed them an assured buy-back at remunerative prices so that they could pay back the loans extended to them. The result is there to see. One-third of Americans are vaccinated, and the entire country will be vaccinated by the middle of the year. The UK, too, imported vaccines from every source that it could. We, on our part, gave away what we had, and did precious little to boost production at home for which we had the capacity.

There is a shortage, too, of oxygen, ventilators, testing kits and hospital beds. While it is true that the demand has gone up exponentially, a wise government would have prepared for the demand in anticipation of the inevitable by increasing production and capacity prior to the second wave hitting us. There is little accountability in this bureaucratic muddling, and total opacity in how the money has been spent thus far in the PM Cares Fund.

The administrative listlessness of the government can be seen in its inability to take stern measures even in the face of the second wave. Why else would have permission have been given to the Kumbh Mela celebrations at Haridwar, where some 40 lakh sadhus and devotees took the plunge in the long-suffering Ganga? All norms of social distancing or masks were thrown to the wind, even as our netas smiled at the devotion of what they assume is their “vote-bank”. Hinduism certainly does not sanction this abdication from duty. Shri Krishna in the Bhagwad Gita tells Arjuna to do his duty irrespective of the consequences. Our theory of dharma also includes a particular category — aapad dharma — which kicks in times of crisis or emergency and allows individuals and leaders to take hard decisions for survival. The Modi government likes the label of a “decisive” government, but its actions are quite to the contrary.

The same lackadaisical approach holds true for the government’s defence of political rallies in the ongoing state assembly elections. Both leaders and the crowds they want so desperately to get seem to believe that Covid does not exist. The Prime Minister lectures to the nation about “do gaz ki doori” and “mask hai zaroori”, but when it comes to electioneering all such advice is thrown out of the window. There is no point in saying that other political parties do the same. If you are in the hot seat you have to set the benchmark for Covid-appropriate behaviour and uphold it through your actions. It also begs all rational thinking why the Election Commission is not agreeing to club the balance three phases of the Bengal Assembly elections and hold them on one day. Mamata Banerjee endorses this proposal. Why doesn’t the PM do so, too? If he does, I am convinced — for obvious reasons — that the EC will agree.

The second Covid wave has vividly shown the glaring gulf between image and delivery of the Modi Sarkar. This is not politicking over a crisis. This column is written in anguish at a crises that could have been mitigated by better preparation and handling, and anger at the long list of omissions and commissions that account for TV screens exploding with visuals of grieving citizens whose loved ones have died for lack of oxygen or a hospital bed, or who have returned empty handed from vaccination centres. Our health workers deserve our enduring gratitude, but what can we make of a health minister who expostulates that states are indulging in cheap politics when they ask for vaccines which are verifiably in short supply? Beyond a point, bluster does not work. It is time to call a spade a spade.

WHY ONLY TEMPLES?

In a pandemic, people of all religions are infected. The AP government must implement protocols on war footing to curb Covid at all religious places (All temples in AP may bar entry of pilgrims yet again, DC, April 16).

People are habituated to listen under intimidation and force. If protocols are not followed, we will have nothing but remorse.

POLITICAL TREND

Trying to demolish the entire Opposition may be an achievement for the ruling party in AP but it will be dangerous for democracy as there will be no one to question the ruling party and it would further give good scope to non-regional parties to play politics as we have witnessed in so many states. Political legends in the past were not foolish to suggest respect and protection of dignity of Opposition parties. Leaders and people of AP must understand this.

COURT STAYS

Ample proof was submitted by the CID (HC asks CID not act against TD boss for 3 weeks, DC, April 17). Yet the accused “manages” to obtain stay on further proceedings. This could as well be described as the power of politics. India has become notorious for this delay tactics when the accused are politicians. In this case I wonder why the HC is granting stay after stay. The message is loud and clear. Have connections and enjoy, come what may.

EC FAILED

The EC should take extraordinary decisions when a Goliath-like pandemic is unfolding. The WB CM’s suggestion to club the remaining phases of polls was extremely pragmatic to avoid super-spreading. Even parties should go for e-electioneering. It’s not the time to win elections but save the precious lives of voters. How can Modiji be so hard and immune to loss of lives caused by the second wave? Shouldn’t he appreciate his adversary’s pragmatism and go for it? The editorial is right (Bengal: EC misses chance to curb Covid during vote, DC, April 17).

Bangla Desh becomes Republic

KUSHTIA (BANGLA DESH), APRIL 17

The Sovereign Democratic Republic of Bangla Desh came into formal existence today with a historic proclamation of independence by the new nation’s acting President, Syed Nazrul Islam.

The proclamation was read out by Mr. Islam for the President, Sheikh Mujibur Rehman, at a simple and solemn ceremony under a mango grove at Baidyanathatala in Meherpur sub-division of Kushtia district.

known about its report.

The surprise victory notched up by the Tripura scion Pradyot Kishore Deb Barman’s fledgling party in the recent election to the Tribal Areas Autonomous District Council, proved to be a major embarrassment for the Congress. Not only did the party finish fourth but Mr Barman who had been the Tripura Congress president left following differences with the party’s Northeast in-charge Luizinho Faleiro. Apparently, Congress leader Rahul Gandhi had got in touch with Mr Barman last year when he was in the US and asked him to rejoin the Congress. Mr Barman was willing to do so but was unable to get in touch with Rahul Gandhi as he had changed his phone number on his return from America and his staff was not very helpful in organising a meeting with the Nehru-Gandhi scion. Mr Barman then decided to float his own party.

Modi’s ‘Didi’ jibe offends women; what AAP shares with Owaisi

Prime Minister Narendra Modi’s war cry “Didi O Didi, Arrey Didi” (referring to Mamata Banerjee) at all public rallies in poll-bound West Bengal has predictably angered the Trinamul Congress, more so as it has become a source of inspiration for eve-teasers. Roadside Romeos have apparently been mimicking the Prime Minister, using the same catcall, when they see women on the streets of Kolkata. Many of them have even been arrested by the police on charges of harassment. Five women have filed an FIR at the Amherst Street police station while the Bengal Citizens Forum has lodged a strong protest, saying the catcalls were a penal offence. The Forum also took out a protest march and submitted a complaint to the Election Commission, which is still pending. Women leaders belonging to the TMC have also slammed the Prime Minister, saying this was not just an insult to an elected chief minister but to all women.

Madhya Pradesh chief minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan was personally reluctant to impose a lockdown but he was literally pushed into doing so by his bureaucrats who did some plain speaking to him about the need for drastic measures given the alarming spike in Covid-19 cases in the state. Though Mr Chouhan did go by the advice of his officers, informal instructions were conveyed to the lower rung bureaucracy that the lockdown need not be implemented strictly and that people moving out should not be penalised. And the Damoh constituency where a bypoll was held last week, was deliberately exempted from adhering to the lockdown to allow political parties to organise their election rallies. They were helped in this effort by the local election commission officials who went to town with the slogan, “Corona se nahi darenge, maidan hum zaroor karenge”, urging voters to come out in large numbers on polling day. Incidentally, while Mr Chouhan was battling the alarming rise in infections, his health minister Narottam Mishra was busy overseeing the Assembly poll in West Bengal. Mr Mishra reached his home state a few days before the bye-election in Damoh which happens to be his stronghold.

Delhi chief minister and Aam Aadmi Party chief Arvind Kejriwal has a lot in common with AIMIM president Asaduddin Owaisi. Either it is deliberate or inadvertent, but the leaders end up helping the Bharatiya Janata Party by entering an electoral fray resulting in the weakening of the Congress. Mr Owaisi did so in Bihar and Mr Kejriwal in the Gujarat local elections. In fact, there is talk that the two parties even receive covert funding from the BJP. Currently, AAP is focusing on expanding its footprint in Uttarakhand. To that extent, it has initiated a vigorous recruitment drive and is positioning itself as a credible alternative in the hill state. Interestingly, Mr Kejriwal is concentrating on the Kumaon region, which is where the Congress has strong roots, and not on Garhwal which is known to be the BJP’s fiefdom. Given the anti-incumbency against the BJP in Uttarakhand, the Congress has a chance of coming back to power here. But Mr Kejriwal could well end up playing spoilsport, much to the BJP’s delight.

There appears to be no end to the raging battle in the upper echelons of the prestigious India International Centre even four years after eminent jurist Soli Sorabjee was forced to step down as the Centre’s president though he retains his position as life trustee on the IIC board. Mr Sorabjee’s tenure was cut short in 2017 following a spate of allegations of financial impropriety and bungling in the admission of members. A fresh attempt was made recently at the IIC annual general meeting to debar Mr Sorabjee and Justice Srikrishna from holding any office. It is not clear why this matter was raised after four years. The resolution was, however, not approved as several members pointed out that such a drastic action could not be taken in the absence of the two trustees and without giving them an opportunity to have their say. It must be mentioned that an enquiry committee was set up to probe the charges against Mr Sorabjee but little is

17 boxes containing 853 Remdesivir vials go missing; police suspect insider's job

RABINDRA NATH
CHOUDHURY | DC
BHOPAL, APR 17

With the cry for Remdesivir getting louder across Madhya Pradesh, unidentified miscreants on Saturday broke into the storeroom of a government hospital here and decamped with boxes containing the life saving drug, leaving the administration as well as police shell-shocked.

The incident came to light when the medical officers of the hospital found the iron gate of the storeroom of the government-run Hamidia hospital here cut open and some boxes containing vials of Remdesivir missing in the morning.

"The matter was immediately reported to the police", hospital superintendent I D Chourasia said.

Preliminary investigation suggested that it might be an "insider's" job. "It has been found that 17 boxes containing 853 Remdesivir vials were missing. But, no other drugs stored in the store-room were touched by the thieves. This gives rise to suspicion that the theft was committed with mischievous intention", a senior police officer said.

Joona Akhara ends
its participation
in Kumbh Mela

Dehradun, Apr 17: The Joona Akhara, one of the largest sects of seers in the country, announced the end of its participation in the Kumbh Mela on Saturday, hours after Prime Minister Narendra Modi's appeal that participation in the ongoing gathering in Haridwar be kept symbolic in view of the surge in coronavirus cases.

The people of India and their survival is our first priority. In view of the outbreak of the Coronavirus pandemic, we have duly immersed all the deities invoked on the occasion of Kumbh. This is the formal immersion-conclusion of Kumbh on behalf of Joona Akhara, Swami Avadheshanand Giri, the mahamandaleswar of the Joona Akhara, said in a tweet in Hindi.

An enclosed note signed by Giri, Joona Akhara patron Hari Giri and seretaries Mahant Mohan Bharti and Mahant Mahesh Puri said the decision to immerse the Kumbh deities had been taken in public interest after consultations with seers of the Akhara.

"Immersing the deities, we also pray to all 'teertha and siddhapeeth' and declare the immersion of Haridwar Kumbh Mela, 2021," it said.

The country on Saturday recorded a frightening single-day spike in Covid cases with over 2.34 lakh fresh infections, crossing the two lakh-mark for the third straight day, as demands for increased supply of oxygen cylinders, vaccine doses and Remdesivir were raised by 11 states and Union Territories, including Delhi, where the pandemic situation was described as "worrisome" by the chief minister.

CENTRE BLOCKING REMDESIVIR
SUPPLY TO MAHA,
CLAIMS MANTRISONU SHRIVATAVA | DC
MUMBAI, APRIL 17

Amid the shortage of Remdesivir injections in Maharashtra, the NCP leader and Maharashtra minister Nawab Malik in Saturday alleged that Prime Minister Narendra Modi led Central government has asked the companies that supply Remdesivir, not to supply the medicines to Maharashtra.

Mr Malik said that when Maharashtra asked the 16 export companies for Remdesivir, it was told that Centre has asked the companies not to supply the medicine to Maharashtra. These companies were warned that, if they did, their licenses would be cancelled, he claimed.

The Union ministers expressed shock over Mr Malik's claims. Terming Mr Malik's claim a lie, the Union ministers challenged him to disclose names of 16 companies and stock available with them.

Mr Malik said that while the country reported more than two lakh positive coronavirus cases, Maharashtra alone reported 60-62,000 cases every day.

The 16 export-oriented units in India have 20 lakh vials of Remdesivir, he said.

"After Maharashtra government's demand, the Government of India has imposed a ban on the export of the Remdesivir injection," the NCP leader added.

5 killed as fire breaks out in
Covid hospitalDC CORRESPONDENT
RAIPUR, APR 17

A major fire broke out in a private Covid hospital here, killing five patients. While one Covid-19 patient succumbed to burn injuries, four others died due to disruption of oxygen supply caused due to the mishap, officials said.

The fire broke out due to a short circuit, preliminary police investigation suggested.

Eyewitness accounts said smoke filled the two storied Rajdhani hospital in Pachpadi Naka in Raipur city when the fire broke out, causing suffocation to the Covid-19 patients.

The fire soon engulfed different wards of the hospital forcing the patients to run helter skelter. Several patients suffered burn injuries as they tried to escape the fire.

Relatives of the patients were seen breaking the glass windows to enter the wards to rescue the patients.

Many patients were brought outside the hospital and administered oxygen.

Later, all the patients were shifted to different hospitals in the city. Around 30 Covid-19 patients were undergoing treatment in the hospital when the incident took place.

This was the first fire incident in a Covid hospital in Chhattisgarh. "The fire broke out at around 4.30 pm," special superintendent of police of Raipur district Ajey Yadav said.

CHENNAI, APRIL 17

The untimely death of popular actor and social activist Vivekh at the age of 59 on Saturday after he suffered a massive heart attack left the Tamil film fraternity and fans in deep grief.

Vivekh breathed his last at 4.35 am. He was cremated with police honours.

The actor, a Padma Shri recipient and who has acted in over 200 films with top Tamil heroes, is known for his work on social issues and the environmental protection front. He actively campaigned and involved himself in planting saplings and afforestation.

He also collaborated with the government in disseminating significant social awareness messages to the public on TV including the latest on preventing coronavirus spread.

It was heart-wrenching to note that his tweets, which he had posted to condole Abdul Kalam's death, going viral. The post of Vivekh, which is in Tamil, roughly translates as, "A simple, selfless and clean life too will end someday. However, many die away! But only few will live on even after death".

An admirer of late president A.P.J. Abdul Kalam, he was actively engaged in planting one crore tree saplings through his Green Kalam initiative.

Prime Minister Modi, Chief Minister K. Palaniswami, DMK president M. K. Stalin, actor Rajinikanth, Makkal Needhi Maiam leader Kamal Haasan were among those who expressed shock and grief over his death and conveyed their condolences to the bereaved.

On Friday morning, an unconscious Vivekh was brought to the SIMS hospital in Chennai. He reportedly suffered a cardiac arrest due to a 100 per cent blockage in the heart vessel.

The hospital said in a statement that the actor was revived and underwent an emergency coronary angiogram followed by angioplasty.

SUPARNA SHARMA

Ajeeb Daastaans, from Karan Johar's little OTT production baby, Dharmatic Entertainment, tells four stories of people impaled in a life they don't want but can't get out of because of their caste, class, family compulsions or lack of choices. They are all similarly unhappy, seething and searching for something better.

As is the track-record of all Bollywood anthologies, Ajeeb Daastaans diligently follows the template. It has four twisted stories of which two are middling, one is good and one truly fabulous.

All the four films by four different directors are bristling with atmosphere and are marked by powerful performances by actors who are cast in compelling roles and placed in a dramatic situation that draws us in immediately. But three of the four are filmy, drawing a lot from their Bollywood predecessors, and only one seems to be informed by life. They are nice, but feel like stories we have seen or heard before. All except Geeli Pucchi.

Directed by Neeraj Ghaywan, Geeli Pucchi, that Ghaywan has written with Sumit Saxena, strips down the capricious innocence of caste privilege to its hard-wired mendacity. It also has a powerful and unsettling performance by Konkana Sen Sharma. If it weren't for this film, Ajeeb Daastaans would have been interesting but meh.

Geeli Pucchi, the title itself dripping with some afternoon obscenity, levitates Ajeeb Daastaans to a higher level.

It tells the story of Bharti (Konkana Sen Sharma), a factory worker, who wants a desk job and has all the qualifications for it. But she is a dalit and carries her anger and hunger for more in her slightly protruding jaw and her body that is at once thrust forward and withdrawn.

Bharti's curly hair is girly but the clothes she wears when she steps out into the world are manly. They are not a statement about her sexuality but an expression of the power she feels she has. Like the strip of cloth she wraps around her wrist to handle heavy equipment, Bharti's clothes too say that she's ready to take on any-one, anytime, anywhere.

But the power that Bharti thinks she has drains out of her body when she sees pretty Priya Sharma (Aditi Rao Hydari), so fragile and dove-eyed, take up the job she so wants. Bharti is at once repulsed by and drawn to the power that comes in a petite size of feminine fragility.

"Ajeeb-ajeeb log hote hain aur badboo bhi aati hai," Priya says in a friendly banter to Bharti, inviting her to share her tiffin at her desk and not on the factory floor, thinking Bharti is one of her. Bharti's reaction to Priya's casually racist remarks, prejudices is not visible on her face, but her body registers it as a hole in her armour.

And then one day, when Bharti suddenly senses that she has some power, she doesn't flinch using it as a gentle but sharp whip that's gripped tightly by her rage.

The film's last shot is so fabulous that I want to watch it again and again on a loop.

Ajeeb Daastaans, which explores women's desire through all its stories and lets them come up for air for a bit before pulling them down again, begins with Majnu, a story about a husband wife trapped in a loveless marriage.

Directed by Shashank Khaitan, it's set in a large mansion in a Hindi-speaking, gun-wielding world where Babloo Bhaiyya (Jaideep Ahlawat) rules. He is married off to Lepakshi (Fatima Sana Shaikh) for financial and political reasons but on the wedding night itself he tells her that he won't be able to love her but expects her to keep khandaan ki izzat.

Lepakshi's frustration coils around her everyday and she grabs every opportunity to humiliate Babloo and get some jollies for herself.

The threat of violence looms when Babloo Bhaiyya is around, even when Raj (Armaan Ralhan), the dashing, educated son of the driver, arrives to fan all sorts of desires.

Despite a pair of fried testicles, a cutesy twist that revisits masculinity, and the film's predictable end, Majnu is blessed by excellent acting by all, including Raj's angry mother. It also has a lovely song — Bagiya mein bhanwara...

Khilauna, directed by Raj Mehta, is a complex story about grey characters that is revealed through a police investigation. But what they are investigating is shared with us later, in a dark, gory, stunning moment.

Meenal (Nushratt Bharuccha) is a young, sexy maid who dotes on her little sister Binny (Inayat Verma). Sushil (Abhishek Banerjee) the istri-walla loves Meenal and Binni but has no power and bristles every-time injustice accosts him.

Meenal has a clear worldview — she knows what her place is in this world organised by caste and class. She knows she has no power except guile and the fact that she is very attractive. She uses both to curry small favours.

Smiling and winking at little Binni as she plays on the emotions of women she works for, bitching out one, pandering to the new officer in town, her circumstances and routine exploitation have brought a hard coldness to her heart that she unknowingly passes on to Binni. And when Binni acts on her own desires and feelings of jealousy, it leaves even Meenal stunned.

The film, also written by Sumit Saxena, is carried by Nushratt Bharuccha's charming but inevitable duplicity.

Ankahi, directed by Kayoze Irani, is the last film in the anthology and tells the story of Natasha (Shefali Shah), a mother who can't cope with husband's disinterest in their daughter who is losing her hearing. And then, a man walks into her life, all sparkles, warmth and sunshine. Though Ankahi is lit by lovely performances by Shefali Shah and Manav Kaul, it felt dull and clichéd.

Vivekh cremated with police honors

ANUPAMA SUBRAMANIAN

The untimely death of popular actor and social activist Vivekh at the age of 59 on Saturday after he suffered a massive heart attack left the Tamil film fraternity and fans in deep grief. Vivekh breathed his last at 4.35 am. He was cremated with police honours at the electric crematorium in Mettukuppam this evening.

The actor, a Padma Shri recipient and who has acted in over 200 films with top Tamil heroes, is known for his work on social issues and the environmental protection front. He actively campaigned and involved himself in planting saplings and afforestation. He also collaborated with the government in disseminating significant social awareness messages to the public on TV including the latest on preventing coronavirus spread. It was heart-wrenching to note that his tweets, which he had posted to condole Abdul Kalam's death, going viral. The post of Vivekh, which is in Tamil, roughly translates as, "A simple, selfless and clean life too will end someday. However, many die away! But only few will live on even after death". An admirer of late president A.P.J. Abdul Kalam, he was actively engaged in planting one crore tree saplings through his Green Kalam initiative. Prime Minister Modi, Chief Minister K. Palaniswami, DMK president M. K. Stalin, actor Rajinikanth, Makkal Needhi Maia leader Kamal Haasan were among those who expressed shock and grief over his death and conveyed their condolences to the bereaved.

On Friday morning, an unconscious Vivekh was brought to the SIMS hospital in Chennai. He reportedly suffered a cardiac arrest due to a 100 per cent blockage in the heart vessel. The hospital said in a statement that the actor was revived and underwent an emergency coronary angiogram followed by angioplasty. He was then put on Extracorporeal Membrane Oxygenation (ECMO) support at the intensive care unit. Dr Raju Sivasamy, vice president of SIMS hospital, said Vivekh's condition was not related to the vaccine he took on Thursday. "He suffered an acute coronary syndrome with cardiogenic shock. This is a separate cardiac event. It may not be due to Covid vaccination." He also confirmed that he was not infected with the deadly virus. Vivekh is survived by his wife Arulselvi and two daughters Amrithanandini and Tejaswini.

In a special league of dreary, bad films

SUPARNA SHARMA

Bollywood is a star-driven film industry. What that means and often results in are films like The Big Bull where just the fact that a big star has been engaged is enough, all else be damned. "All else" includes writing — story, screenplay and dialogue, direction, production design, background score.

Star-driven enterprises serve a very significant purpose. Inept writers, directors, production houses remain gainfully engaged by riding on the power of a star.

Abhishek Bachchan is a star who can act. He has just been beset by too many bad choices after a few good ones initially. This time round, however, he signed up with a director and writer who are in a special league of their own when it comes to being bad. Bollywood has a large, prospering league of bad which ranges from films that are bad in unique, new ways — where it's obvious that some thought, effort went into making it — to woeful, listless films which are bad in ways that many other previous films have been bad.

The first kind of films can be fun-bad, while the other is dreary.

To illustrate, Ram Gopal Varma's Daud would fall in the fun-bad category, and Department in mournfully bad. Director Vijay Krishna Acharya's Tashan is in the first category, but his Thugs of Hindostan is in the I'd-rather-die-than-watch-this category.

The Big Bull is a pool of mournful stupidity. A life-sucking bad film. The sort that leaves you in need of a cold shower and cold beer to wash it all away.

Leading this turgid enterprise is Kookie Gulati the director. He was set off on this listless path by a story and screenplay that he co-wrote with Arijun Dhawan.

Mr Kookie had earlier directed an atrocity called Prince (2010) that still feels like a fresh scar on my brain. Now I have two scars courtesy Mr Kookie.

Based loosely and irresponsibly on the life and crimes of Harshad Mehta, The Big Bull opens with reporter Meera Rao (played by Ileana D'Cruz and based on Sucheta Dalal) talking about Hemant Shah (Abhishek Bachchan) to a hall full of millennial MBA students.

Cut to flashback in a chawl where Hemant, in full-sleeve printed shirts, used to live with his brother Viren (Sohumi Shah), mother (Supriya Pathak) and angst about not being rich. That feeling was made worse by the father of the girl next door he liked, Priya (Nikita Dutta). Her daddy wanted a well-settled son-in-law.

We are told two things about Hemant. Three, actually.

1. That Hemant had "the world's best bhai aur dost". We meet the bhai, but see the dost fleetingly.

2. Hemant keeps saying, "Mujhe dheere chalna aata hain hai" — and yet the film he is in is an excruciatingly slow crawl.

3. Hemant doesn't drink, but only till he can afford the best daru. Later in life, he drinks.

With these character traits, Mr Kookie & Co. try to stitch together a chronology of the rise and fall of the stock broker, but they remain vague on details and are often incoherent, as if a terrible arts student was suddenly asked to sit for an economics exam.

The film, neither clear nor really interested in what actually happened, tells us Harshad Mehta's story in the sort of sketchy way that the arts student would try to fill up the answer-sheet — with gibberish, throwing in some "economics sounding" words at random.

Hemant wants to become a stock broker and for this he gets a bank receipt in an underhand manner and starts playing the stock market. The amount of the bank receipts increases, and so does Hemant's game.

He then manipulates the price of a company's share price and uses union leader Rana Sawant (Mahesh Manjrekar) to tip him off about which auto plant will be shut so that he can make more money in shares.

This is insider trading and Mannu Malpani (Saurabh Shukla), chairman of SEBI, doesn't like it. But he can't do much.

The film conveys all this through dull generalities. To show that Hemant was a master manipulator and the king of the share market, it makes him stand, arms akimbo, staring and smiling at the trading floor often. To show that he is always planning his next move, Hemant has to keep tapping his fingers.

In between there is romance with Priya, which means that several songs arrive at frustratingly predictable moments.

Soon Hemant gets very rich, pays Rs 26 cr income tax and the CBI and I-T guys get after him.

Hemant suspects that it is one of his employees and so he invites them all to his house and then asks them to take off their clothes and jump into his pool.

Half-naked office employees covering their man-boobs as Hemant stares down at them with a sulky pout is, perhaps, when the film hits the high note of absurdity.

Kookie & Co seem incapable of taking facts and then turning them into a screenplay. If they were capable of doing that they would have just binge-watched Hansal Mehta's Scam 1992. They probably did watch it and decided it was all too much and that they'd rather go with a bullshit story and hero's pointless bluster.

Abhishek Bachchan's twitter handle is @juniorbachchan and so there is no getting away from the comparison. But, he has a personality that is entirely his own.

Chota Bachchan is all goodness, warmth and decency. So much so that when he tries to be evil or creepy, he has to ham it.

The film gives Abhishek a shitty start — a pouty, pretentious pose in a nightgown that seals his character's fate and tells us that we should not expect acting, just posturing.

The film is also confused between its love for Abhishek and the story it wants to tell. While The Big Bull wants to show Abhishek as a good guy, a "dreamer" who helped many people make money, the story of Hemant — a manipulator of people and money who had little regard for rules — keeps peeing on its party.

So the film can only muster the courage to make its star sit with a manspread and thrust his stomach out to convey indecency and greed. Sometimes it also makes him laugh out loud, without any reason or explanation.

Usually, even in bad films, there are actors who can act. No such luck here.

Sohumi Shah is a decent actor but he has been given nothing here except to be the voice of nagging worry.

Supriya Pathak has spent so much time in the world of Tarak Mehta Ka Ulta Chashma and Khichdi that she now seems incapable of doing anything else. Ileana D'Cruz has mastered the art of speaking without letting her lips move. Despite that she is not bad. It says a lot about a film and its actors if Ms D'Cruz is the one redeeming thing that comes to mind.

Sams in RCB bubble after negative test

Australian all-rounder Daniel Sams on Saturday joined the Royal Challengers Bangalore's bio-bubble after returning with two negative RT-PCR results more than a week after testing positive for COVID-19. The 28-year-old had arrived in India on April 3 with a negative COVID-19 report but tested positive during the second test on April 7 and was in quarantine since then. "We are pleased to inform that Royal Challengers Bangalore, all-rounder Daniel Sams, has joined the RCB bio-bubble on 17th April 2021 with negative reports for COVID-19," RCB said in a statement.

"RCB medical team was in constant touch with Sams to ensure his safety and declared him fit after all the required examinations as part of the BCCI protocols."

Chahar earns rich praise from Shastri

Deepak Chahar's best IPL performance 4-1-13-4 on Friday earned rich praise from national head coach Ravi Shastri. "Proven fact. Genuine swing both ways with control can undo the best. Super variations. Brilliant," Shastri tweeted. Chahar recalled how a random fan's social media comment hurt him. "Expectations are high here and you have to perform in every game. so this is for that man, who made the comment, if I would not have played, this performance might have not come," Chahar said.

Padikkal is great talent, says Lara

Devdutt Padikkal needs to "iron out" a few technical things but the legendary Brian Lara is confident that the RCB left-hander would better his performance during this IPL with a few Man of the Match awards. The 20-year-old Padikkal was one of the finds of the last IPL, scoring 474 runs with five half-centuries and contributing handsomely to RCB's campaign. "A few little things to iron out. I hope he did that in the break and comes back really storming hard for this IPL. What I want to see in 2021 IPL is for him to go on and get a few man of the matches and get a couple of triple figures under his belt. Such a great little player," Lara said.

FIELD DAY FOR MI

Hardik hits bull's eye twice as Mumbai run Sunrisers out

Chennai, April 17: Sunrisers Hyderabad's middle-order continued to misfire as spinner Rahul Chahar and pacer Trent Boult fashioned Mumbai Indians to a 13-run win in their IPL match here on Saturday.

Defending 150, leg-spinner Chahar (3/19) stifled the middle-order before Boult (3/28) polished off the tail as SRH were bowled out for 137 in 19.4 overs.

Opting to bat, MI had a good start but Vijay Shankar and Mujeeb Ur Rahman claimed two wickets each as SRH stemmed the flow of runs in the middle overs.

However, Kieron Pollard managed to lift MI to 150 for 5 with the help of a 22-ball 35 which included two sixes of the last two balls of their innings.

Chasing 151 for a win, Jonny Bairstow smashed a 22-ball 35 to give SRH a rollicking start, while David Warner too managed a 36 off 34 but once the duo were back in the hut, the middle-order again failed to come to the fore.

Back at the top with his opening partner Warner, Bairstow amassed 18 runs from Trent Boult in the third over with the help of three fours and a six.

Adam Milne was then treated with equal disdain, sending him for two maximums and a four as he bled 19 runs.

Krunal Pandya was then handed the ball but the result was the same as he conceded 13 runs with Bairstow and Warner smashing a six and a four respectively as SRH amassed 55 in 5 overs.

Bumrah then bowled a tight over but Warner sent Milne for a six as SRH reached 57 for no loss in powerplay.

Lady luck smiled on MI

Chahar handed SRH a twin blow in his last over, dismissing Virat Singh (11) and Abhishek Sharma (2).

Vijay (28 off 25) cracked two sixes off Krunal to keep SRH in the hunt but he kept losing his partners as Abdul Samad (7) was sent packing by Hardik with another direct throw and then Boult produced a perfect yorker to rid get of Rashid (0). Vijay too perished in the next over as SRH fell short once again.

Earlier, Rohit Sharma (32 off 25) and Quinton de Kock (40 off 39) scored 53 in the powerplay after Mumbai opted to bat.

BCCI hopeful of domestic season

New Delhi, April 17: The BCCI plans to kick-start its 2021-22 domestic season in September this year with the Syed Mushtaq Ali T20 tournament and has also allocated a three-month window to the Ranji Trophy from December after the marquee event had to be cancelled last season due to the Covid-19 pandemic.

However, the Duleep Trophy, Deodhar Trophy and Irani Cup are not a part of the tentative calendar prepared by the cricket operations team.

Apart from this, five women's competitions have also been dropped from the roster.

The 2020-21 season was a severely truncated one with only the National T20 (Mushtaq Ali) and ODI (Vijay Hazare Trophy) championships being held in the wake of pandemic.

Amid a second wave of Covid-19 cases across India, the BCCI is still hopeful of conducting the domestic season across age-groups in men and women's categories after a curtailed and troubled last season.

With India playing the T20 World Cup in October and the mega IPL auctions in the offing next year, it is understood that all stakeholders want to start off with two white ball tournaments — Mushtaq Ali T20 between "mid-September to October" followed by the Vijay Hazare Trophy in November.

The BCCI has also slotted the U-23 tournaments for men and women along with the U-19 events which weren't held during the last season.

Women's T20 as well as ODI Challenger Trophy will not be played along with these events' under-23 versions.

The under-19 women's T20 Challenger Trophy will also not be played.

Bangalore look to continue fine run

DC CORRESPONDENT CHENNAI, APRIL 17

Royal Challengers Bangalore are riding on a crest of a wave after winning two out of their first two games this season. They would be keen on posting a hat-trick of wins when they lock horns with Kolkata Knight Riders here at the M.A. Chidambaram stadium on Sunday afternoon.

With RCB finding an unlikely bowling hero in left-arm spinner Shahbaz Ahmed and 'million-dollar' Glenn Maxwell ending his five-year drought for an IPL half-century, Virat Kohli's team appear to have the right combination in their playing XI.

Maxwell's dramatic change in IPL fortunes has been credited to Kohli's admirable leadership. Kiwi Kyle Jamieson, who has added teeth to RCB's pace bowling unit, too praised Kohli for helping him adapt to Indian conditions. "He (Kohli) is such an experienced leader. He is a skilful leader and the way that he approaches the games certainly complements the way I like to go about things. He is competitive, he is aggressive and likes to take the game on, which is something I like to adopt as well," Jamieson said.

The afternoon game (3:30pm start) is expected to change the dynamics at Chepauk which proved to be a nightmare for chasing teams in the previous games. However, vir will

DELHI CAPITALS HOLD EDGE OVER PUNJAB KINGS

Mumbai, April 17: Delhi Capitals skipper Rishabh Pant will aim to display better tactical acumen in Catch-22 situations against a 'blow-hot-blow-cold' Punjab Kings in what promises to be a battle of brittle middle-orders in an IPL match here on Sunday.

Both teams are coming into the 'Northern Derby' of IPL after enduring defeats in their previous games but Delhi Capitals are definitely a better side on paper.

Pant, relatively inexperienced in terms of IPL captaincy, lost the plot in the last game where he didn't finish his best bowler Ravichandran Ashwin's quota and instead used Tom Curran's friendly medium pacers.

Punjab Kings, on the other hand, suffered an inexplicable batting collapse against Chennai Super Kings with Deepak Chahar's extra bounce and slight seam movement causing the damage.

This was after a healthy 200 plus total in the opening game. The nature of the Wankhede track is posing a few questions under lights for top-order batsmen as the last two games have shown with underlying moisture aiding quality fast bowling.

Kolkata are coming off a disappointing result after dominating the game for a major part of it. KKR would be eager to see skipper Eoin Morgan hitting the top form. He hasn't touch the double-digit this season. West Indian all-rounder Andre Russell who was brilliant with the ball hasn't performed well with the bat for KKR either. Having scored back-to-back half-centuries, left-handed opener Nitish Rana is KKR's biggest contributor.

Kolkata's spin trio of Harbhajan Singh, Varun Chakravarthy and Shakib Al Hasan managed to keep the opponent batsmen at bay in powerplays.
