DGCA warns over in-flight photos

New Delhi: The Director General of Civil Aviation (DGCA) on Saturday warned all domestic airlines that their scheduled flights will be suspended for at least two weeks if anyone is found taking photographs or doing videography inside the plane. According to the DGCA order, as per Rule 13 of the Aircraft Rules 1937, no person is allowed to take any photos inside a flight except when permission is granted. This permission is, however, not applicable when the aircraft is landing, taking off or on ground on a defence aerodrome.

The Union home ministry has started preparing well in advance for any potential threat from the Chinese forces in the coming winter season. It has started rushing bulk supplies of essential commodities, like special winter tents and heaters, warm clothes, sunglasses and packaged food.

along the India-China border in the next 10 days. Sources claimed a large consignment of "good quality essential supplies" were being transported to all remote locations in the high-altitude region. In view of the increased tensions with China in Ladakh, the Indian forces are making unprecedented arrangements to ensure China doesn't attempt any border incursions during winter.

It has also been decided all security forces will remain at their respective locations all through the winter to deal with any Chinese threat. Earlier, during the harsh winter months, both Indian and Chinese forces used to withdraw from their patrolling locations, but this time the Indian forces will remain at their positions.

The MHA has already asked all border guarding forces to send in their specific requirements for winter deployment along the sensitive China border. It also directed these forces, particularly on the China and Nepal borders, to finalise their "winter deployment schedule" by this month and start deployment from next month to deter any Chinese mischief.

VAT ON NATURAL GAS UP, DOMESTIC GAS NOT AFFECTED

DC CORRESPONDENT
VIJAYAWADA, SEPT. 12

The state government on Saturday increased the Value Added Tax (VAT) on natural gas, from the present 14.5 per cent to 24.5 per cent, with immediate effect.

Rajat Bhargava, special chief secretary, revenue (commercial taxes) department, issued the orders, making amendment to the existing VAT slab.

He explained that due to Covid-19, there was a drastic fall in the revenue on one hand and the increased welfare schemes posed additional burden on public exchequer on the other. Hence, the 10 per cent increase became inevitable.

Affordable drugs help Covid patients recover

KANIZA GARARI | DC
HYDERABAD, SEPT. 12

The gap between the US and India in new cases is 50,000 on September 12 and, at this rate, experts predict that in 38 days (by October 18) India will be number one in Covid-19 cases in the world. The good news is that the strain is not as virulent and will not be fatal.

The total difference on September 12 was 1,978,868 cases. The US recorded a total of 6,636,247 cases while India recorded 4,657,379 cases on September 12.

The increasing number of cases in India is a fact but 90 per cent of them are mild cases due to the less virulent strain of SARS-Cov 2 virus. The virus is moving very fast from one person to another and the strain is not as strong as it was noted in the months from May to July 2020.

The present strain in India is less virulent due to which mild and atypical illness is noted in 82 per cent of the population, severe to moderate illness in 19 per cent and critical cases are only five per cent.

Recovery rate is 77 per cent according to the Union health ministry and that is one of the reasons that the demand for high-end antiviral drugs for patients has reduced. Patients are recovering with HCQs and mid-level antiviral drugs which are affordable for many.

Recovery has boosted confidence but it must not lower the guard as the infectious nature of the virus has not reduced.

Dr K.K. Aggarwal, president of the confederation of medical associations of Asia and Oceania, explained, "Human to human transmission is through large and small droplets. Surface to human transmission

TD changing its secular ideology to Hindutva

TD planning to restrain BJP from strengthening its base in AP by hijacking Hindutva ideology of saffron party: Analysts

MD ILYAS | DC
VIJAYAWADA, SEPT. 12

The Telugu Desam is changing its colours from yellow to orange.

The party which followed a pro-Telugu ideology for the past 38 years with a secular stand as a party that belongs to all communities with a pro-business/development attitude is turning a saviour of the Hindu religion, strongly protesting attacks on Hindu religious places for the past few days in AP.

Calling upon the Hindu community to perform a week-long devotional protest from September 13 against the Antaredi incident, the TD is seeking protection of the Hindu religion donning the role of Hindu protector and saviour.

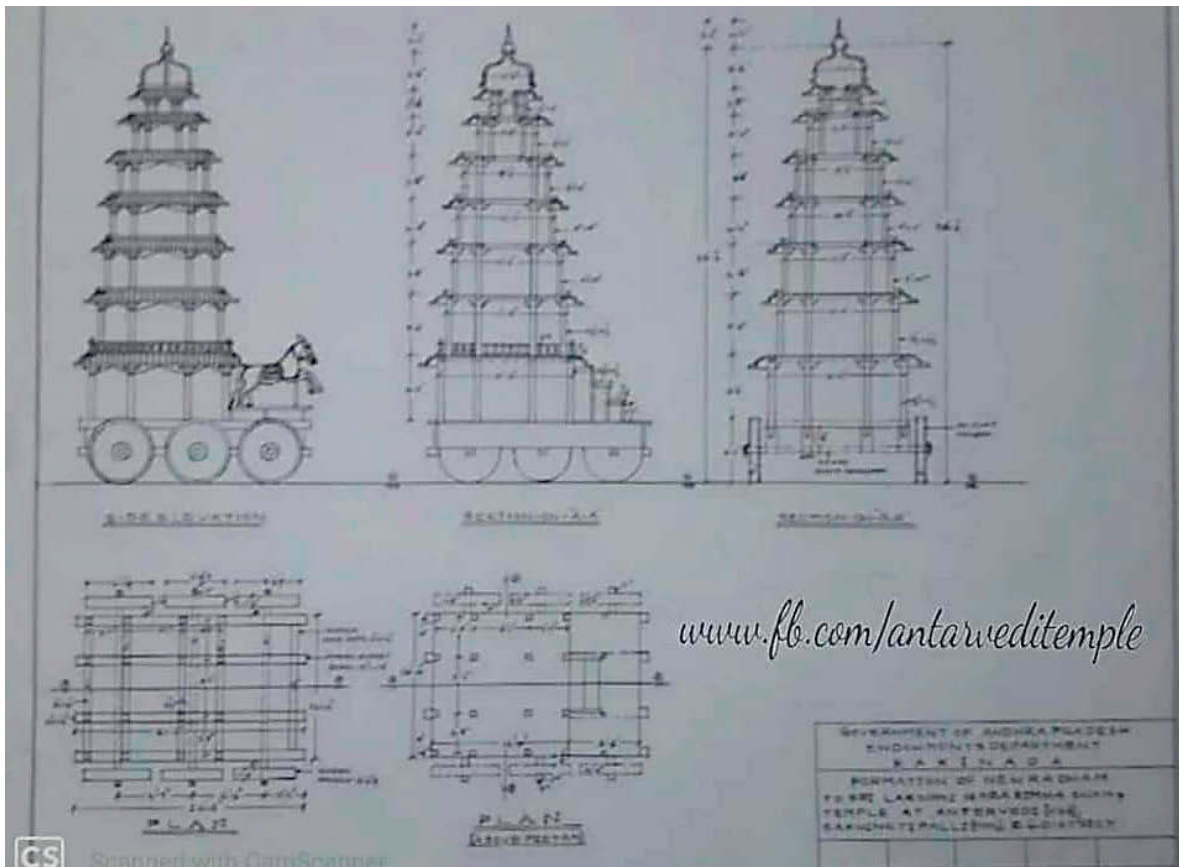

Senior political analysts maintain that the TD is planning to restrain the BJP from strengthening its base in AP by hijacking the Hindutva ideology of saffron party. They recall that TD launched a massive campaign on Antaredi by sending party leaders and cadres to the spot, appointed a fact-finding committee and further put the demand of CBI inquiry before the BJP started any agitation.

Analysts point out that Naidu, Lokesh and most party leaders have now called for week-long pujas to gather the support of the conventional Hindu community. They recalled that earlier there was no chance for the BJP to strengthen its base in AP due to its alliance with TD and further due to the secret cooperation of saffron leaders and the yellow party.

After Somu Veerajulu assumed charge, the BJP has started to grab the main opposition party position from TD, analysts feel that Naidu, with 40 years of experience, has started a counter-strategy by hijacking the Hindutva ideology of BJP claiming himself as the protector of the Hindu religion and damaging the saffron party by attracting Hindutva supporters.

TD politburo member, Varla Ramaiah, called Hindus to conduct pujas from Sunday to Saturday against attacks on Hindu temples and sought protection for Hindus. He lamented that 100 above incidents damaging Hindu sentiments have unfolded in the state after the YSRC assumed power.

Former TD MLA, Bonda Umamaheswara Rao, said that besides performing pujas, TD cadres will conduct protests in front of the surya devalayam (sun temple) on Sunday, Shiva temples on Monday, Anjaneyaswamy temples on Tuesday, Ayyappa temples on Wednesday, Sai Master plan for new chariot of Antaredi Lakshmi Narasimha Swamy.

Efforts are on to build new chariot

VADREU SRINIVAS | DC
KAKINADA, SEPT. 12

Efforts are on to build a new chariot for Lord Lakshmi Narasimha Swamy Temple at Antaredi in Sakshinetipalli mandal of East Godavari district in place of one that got burnt recently. Temple special officer K. Ramachandra Mohan and executive officer Bhadraraj have discussed designs of the new chariot with chariot manufacturer Ganapathi Acharyulu on Saturday.

"The new chariot will be similar to the old one – 20 feet in length, 16 feet width and 40 feet height. The chariot designs will be placed before district collector D. Muralidhar Reddy for finalisation," Ramachandra Mohan told Deccan Chronicle.

Meanwhile, BC welfare minister Ch. Srinivasa Venugopala Krishna,

Baba temples on Thursday, Ammavari devasthanams on Friday and Vishnu temples on Saturday. He demanded that the government explain why a series of attacks took place only after YSRC came to power. He further demanded that Chief Minister, Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddy, should explain why there were no arrests being made in connection with the attacks on the temples, hinting at the allegation that the YSRC is a pro-Christian party as Jagan is Christian.

All religious places will be geo-tagged, says DGPDC CORRESPONDENT
VIJAYAWADA, SEPT. 12

DGP Gautam Sawang has said that all the temples and other religious places in the state would be geo-tagged and orders have been issued for continues surveillance at places of worship.

Mr Sawang stated, "In a state like Andhra Pradesh which is known for communal harmony, certain sections with vested interests are trying to provoke people of different communities to drive their agenda."

The DGP warned that all such individuals as were indulging in anti-social activities would not be spared. Authorities of religious places were told to ensure that all the areas surrounding the temples were covered by CCTVs and make proper lighting arrangements to enhance visibility.

He said that the authorities should also ensure that adequate fire-safety equipment was in place.

Kothapet MLA Chirla Jaggireddy and endowment officials have visited some saw mills at Ravulapalem for choosing suitable wood for construction of the new chariot.

The minister said the government wants to make the new chariot ready for the celestial wedding of Lord Lakshmi Narasimha Swamy in February, 2021. He said that wood for the chariot has been finalised. The saw mill owner has agreed to supply wood on a cost basis, as it is for God's work.

Venugopala Krishna said construction of the new chariot is being entrusted to Ganapathi Acharyulu, who is an expert in manufacturing temple chariots. He has already built around 80 chariots for various temples throughout the state.

He said in keeping with sentiments of the people, Chief Minister Y. S. Jagan Mohan Reddy had decided to hand over the case related to burning of the chariot to the Central Bureau of Investigation.

The minister took objection to certain elements trying to provoke communal feelings over the incident.

Ganesh idol desecrated in East Godavari village

DC CORRESPONDENT
RAJAHMUNDRY, SEPT. 12

Even as the controversy over the gutting of temple chariot at Antaredi is rocking the state, another incident has been reported at the Lord Vinayaka temple, Pidimgoyy village in Rajahmundry Rural of East Godavari district.

According to sources, residents of Venkatagiri colony constructed a small temple of Lord Vinayaka ten years back and have been performing pujas every day.

Saturday morning, when some devotees came to the temple, they were shocked to find that the idol of Lord Vinayaka was desecrated and there was a bad smell all around.

Telugu Desam leader V.

Prasad Babu immediately informed Bommuru police station and lodged a complaint on the incident. Meanwhile, tension gripped the village with the locals demanding stringent punishment of the culprits.

Meanwhile, the police rushed to the spot along with dog squads and Clues teams.

Rajahmundry Rural

MLA Gorantla Buchaiah Chowdary went to the spot and sought prompt action from the police, who spent considerable time watching the nearby CCTV footage.

The East Zone DSP of Rajahmundry Urban A.T.V. Ravikumar, Bommuru Circle Inspector Lakshmana Reddy visited the spot.

Ravikumar told the reporters that the police are searching for the culprits and identified the suspected movements of six persons and had taken them into custody.

Meanwhile, BJP state executive member Duvvuri Subrahmanyam said that the ambit of CBI inquiry should be widened to include all such incidents and not only the Antaredi incident.

Minister questions
BJP, JS silence on '17
chariot burning caseDC CORRESPONDENT
VIJAYAWADA, SEPT. 12

In a bid to turn the tables on the opposition Telugu Desam, BJP and Jana Sena, which have been accusing the government of failure to prevent attacks on temples, the YSRC has questioned their 'silence' on burning of a 70-year-old chariot at Gopala Swamy temple at K Pentapadu of West Godavari district during the previous Chandrababu Naidu government.

Minister for endowments Vellampalli Srinivas Rao, addressing a press conference here on Saturday, released the video footage of the burning chariot on October 19, 2017, and alleged that neither BJP nor Jana Sena spoke a word on the incident nor did the TD government ordered an inquiry. The villagers had pooled funds to have a new chariot made when the TD government did not come forward to provide funds, the minister alleged.

Claiming that the CCTV cameras at the temple had not worked from 5.22 pm to 7.07 pm when the chariot was set on fire, the minister expressed the suspicion about the involvement of the then ruling TD in the incident.

He accused Mr Naidu of politicising the Antaredi mishap.

Mr Srinivas Rao wanted to know if Mr Naidu and state BJP president Somu Veerajulu take the responsibility for the Pentapadu incident and resign from their respective positions.

Even though the government ordered a CBI inquiry into the Antaredi incident, Mr Chandrababu Naidu, Mr Somu Veerajulu and Jana Sena chief Pawan Kalyan were politicising the issue and trying to create strife in the state.

Govt serious on security at temples

Barring Tirumala Tirupati Devasthanams (TTD), most temples are not following security arrangements and the government is very serious on the issue.

For instance, though there are 56 CC cameras in Sri Varahalakshmi Narasimha Swamy Devasthanam, many of them are not working. Meanwhile, officials failed to deploy technically qualified persons at the control room while in many temples the control room is maintained by ill-qualified security guards.

"Moreover, CC cameras are not covering all vulnerable areas. We have identified the need for 180 more such cameras to ensure round-the-clock security besides having qualified persons to man the control room. These will be achieved as soon as we get the consent of the endowments commissioner," said V. Trinatha Rao, executive officer of Sri Varahalakshmi Nrusimha Swami Devasthanam of Simhachalam.

He told Deccan Chronicle that the technical committee has estimated that installation of additional CC cameras would cost ₹52 lakh.

Meanwhile, a senior official from the endowments department from Amaratva said that there was information about threat to peace and harmony reportedly because vested interests were keen on damaging Hindu religious assets.

VAT hike to bring ₹300 crore

At present, the government is getting ₹350 crore per annum. After the VAT increase, it is expected to generate an additional amount of ₹250 crore to ₹300 crore per annum.

Meanwhile, keeping in apprehensions among the people about the adverse impact on them, the government clarified that LPG is different from natural gas. After introduction of GST in 2017, LPG, along with all other goods, is subsumed in the GST. The state governments have no power to revise the tax rates of GST subsumed goods including the LPG. It is the GST Council which decides the tax rates. The present GST rate on the LPG for domestic use is only 5 per cent. Further, it is clearly mentioned in today's GO that only five petroleum products are kept outside the GST. Natural gas is one of those five petroleum products.

The state government clarified that natural gas is used as input in certain industries and in power generation. It is also used as domestic fuel as "piped natural gas," in certain areas of metro cities but the rate of tax on "piped natural gas" for domestic purposes is only 5 per cent under VAT Act. The fresh notification does not change that rate. Piped natural gas for domestic use continues to be taxed at 5% only. The increased tax rate on natural gas is applicable only to the natural gas other than that used for domestic use.

PROJECT-HIT VILLAGERS CONTINUE STIR

Kadapa: Talla Proddutur villagers continued their agitation against the government's move to evacuate them to the rehabilitation centre. The village faces inundation by backwaters of Gandikota reservoir.

To convince them and allay their fears, Kadapa MP Avinash Reddy and Jammalamadugu MLA

Sudheer Kumar Reddy visited the village on Saturday morning and assured the people that the government would provide them all facilities as well as compensation very soon.

MLA Sudheer Reddy told the villagers that the MP and he did not visit the village on account of their ill health.

Chief Minister Jagan Mohan Reddy was prompt in ordering a CBI inquiry into the chariot torching incident, unlike Mr Naidu, who did not do any such thing after the death of several people in a stampede during Godavari Pushkaralu. It's absurd

In a separate press meet, TD official spokesperson P. Anuradha accused the YSRC government of giving money to the poor with one hand and taking it back with another hand. She alleged that the VAT hike on gas and petrol would undo the benefit to the poor under the YSR Aasara.

Mr Ramakrishnudu took objection to the SIT 'leaking' its report on the Amaravati lands even though the matter is pending before the court. He claimed by leaking SIT report, the YSRC government committed another contempt of court.

Mr Ramakrishnudu said CM Jagan launched a political witch-hunt against TD for exposing scams, illegal activities and atrocities on Dalits.

Alleging that the Cabinet Sub-Committee consisted of only Jagan's followers, Mr Ramakrishnudu questioned its propriety and legality. It was Jagan who got the alignment of the Outer Ring Road (ORR) in Hyderabad changed his father Y.S. Rajasekhara Reddy's regime and bought 80 acres of lands in Survey Nos 148, 25, 171 and 194(3) in Kolluru.

KAKINADA, SEPT. 12

A remarkable positioning of six planets in their own houses-the rarest of rare phenomena- will be witnessed for 51 hours, 48 minutes from 10.37 am of September 13 to 2.25 pm on Tuesday (September 15).

Such positioning of planets was not witnessed for centuries together. According to noted astrologer and Almanac writer P. Srinivasa Gargeya, he had verified 400-year-old positioning of planets, but he has never found such a positioning. Planets like moon (Cancer), sun (Leo), mercury (Virgin), Jupiter (Sagittarius), Saturn (Capricorn) and Mars (Aries) are in their own houses.

However, Gargeya said that such positioning will be witnessed again on July 3 (6.30 am) to 20 hours and 45 minutes. He said that the latter positioning will be better than the present positioning of the planets as the planets will be positioned like a string and that would be a good sign for the country. Speaking about Sunday's planet position, he said that it brings bad omens for mankind. It may result in outbreak of several viruses, imprisonment of prominent personalities, national calamities, among several such bad signs. However, he said that people should make a conscious effort to control their pride and egos and they should not take any hasty decisions during this period.

He said that people should cultivate a spirit of surrender and worship of the planets and then the beneficial impact of the moon on the mind and the impact of mercury on the intellect in particular can be felt.

Drukh Siddantha Almanac Writers President H. Subrahmanya Sarma said that though the six planets are positioned in their houses and symbolise bad signs, people need not worry as the planets are in a weakened position. He said that due to last December's eclipse, many of the planets were positioned in one Rasi, but now they are dividing each other and positioning in their houses.

Bhuvaneshwari Peetam chief and prominent Almanac writer Chinta Gopi Sarma found fault with some of the suggestions of the astrologers about the stoppage of performing rituals to their ancestors. He said that the present days are considered as Mahalaya Pakshas' and this is auspicious for performing obeisance to manes for their ancestors. Former president of Drukh Siddantha Almanac writers G.M. Pattabhi Sastry said that the rare phenomena is not a good sign for the world as there will be an economic crisis and the problem of unemployment would worsen.

Congress leader Rahul Gandhi on Saturday hit out at the Central government for the decline in the Gross Domestic Product (GDP), job losses and the increasing number of Covid-19-related cases and deaths in the country.

The Congress has accused the Modi government of not handling the Covid-19 pandemic effectively.

Taking a jibe at the Modi government, he said its “well-planned fight against Covid-19 has put India in an abyss of 1.historic GDP reduction of 24%, 2. loss of 12 crore jobs, 3. On Wednesday, Mr. Gandhi had criticised the Modi Government for its mismanagement of the Covid 19 crisis, saying that Mr. Modi promised to end the crisis in 21 days but instead finished off small businesses and the livelihood of crores of people.

Seats to Manjhi’s HAM may be allotted from JD(U)’s quota

Nadda meets Nitish to discuss seat-sharing, rift among NDA allies

NAYEAR AZAD | DC
PATNA, SEPT. 12

BJP president J.P. Nadda on Saturday held an hour-long meeting with Bihar CM Nitish Kumar to discuss the prevailing political scenario in view of the Assembly elections due later this year.

The meeting assumes significance as it was held amid an ongoing rift between the NDA partners – Lok Janshakti Party (LJP) led by Chirag Paswan and the JD(U).

Both JD(U) and LJP have been sparring over the past few months on issues including the Bihar government’s handling of the coronavirus pandemic, guest workers crisis and flood scenario in the state.

Former Maharashtra Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis, who has been made in-charge for the Assembly elections, and BJP national general secretary Bhupendra Yadav along with Bihar Deputy CM Sushil Kumar Modi was among those present at the meeting with Nitish Kumar at his official residence 1, Anne Marg in Patna.

One of the key issues discussed during the meeting was seat-sharing among alliance partners of the NDA. Sources aware of the development said that Nitish Kumar wants the BJP to settle the issue before election dates are announced.

Political analysts keeping tab of the developments in Bihar believe that amid ongoing rift with LJP, Chief Minister Nitish Kumar is likely to persuade Mr. Nadda to first settle the seat adjustment issue with JD(U) and then allocate seats to the LJP from BJP’s quota.

Sources said, “seats to Jitan Ram Manjhi’s HAM will be allotted from the JD(U)’s quota”. After returning to NDA camp earlier this month Jitan Ram Manjhi had said that his party was in NDA to support Nitish Kumar who has been working for the development of the state.

BJP insiders, however, said that the party’s leadership would soon meet Chirag Paswan in Delhi to resolve the differences between the LJP and JD(U). Later while inaugurating “Aatma Nirbhar Bihar” and party’s campaign song for Bihar polls at BJP office in Patna Mr. Nadda said that, “Under the guidance of Prime Minister Narendra Modi and leadership of Nitish Kumar, the NDA comprising BJP, JD(U) and LJP will contest Bihar polls and win”.

“Since people want NDA to return, it is our responsibility to make Bihar self-reliant so that it gets includes in the list of other developed states. People are not going to get trapped by the conspiracy being hatched by opposition parties”, BJP national president JP Nadda said during his speech during the event.

Union Minister of State, Home affairs Nityanand Rai had said that the NDA under Nitish Kumar will retain power in Bihar by winning 220 seats. “NDA will form government in Bihar under the leadership of Nitish Kumar by winning 220 seats”, Nityanand Rai told reporters after attending the meeting of the BJP’s election chaired by J.P. Nadda.

2 Cong MLAs join JD(U) in Bihar

Patna Sept. 11: The JD(U) made fresh inroads into the Grand Alliance as two Congress MLAs, a former RJD minister and several other leaders including an RLSP spokesman joined the ruling party ahead of the Bihar Assembly polls due in October-November.

Congress legislators Sudarshan Kumar and Purnima Yadav, senior RJD leader and former state minister Bhola Rai, Rashtriya Lok Samata Party’s (RLSP) Bihar unit spokesman Abhishek Jha are among those who switched sides on Friday.

These leaders took the membership of the JD(U) state headquarters here in the presence of senior leaders such as Ashok Kumar and Rajiv Ranjan Singh alias Lalan Singh.

A total of seven RJD MLAs have so far quit the party to join the Janata Dal (United) in the past one month while five RJD MLCs joined the ruling party in June.

Those who joined the party on Friday reposed their faith in the leadership of Chief Minister and JD(U) president Nitish Kumar, saying that they want to work with him for states all round development.

by the time of the meeting about the seat-sharing arrangement between the two principal National Democratic Alliance parties, Chief Minister Nitish Kumar-headed JD(U) and the BJP.

They said the JD(U) has been working to undercut the LJP. They cited the ruling party’s decision to join hands with Dalit leader Jitan Ram Manjhi, who has a history of targeting the LJP, a party whose base is primarily among Dalits, as another attempt in this regard.

The Drugs Controller General of India (DCGI) has ordered the Serum Institute of India (SII) to suspend any new recruitment in Phase 2 & 3 clinical trials for Covid-19 vaccine candidate ChAdOx1 nCoV-19 till patient safety issues are resolved even as India recorded 97,570 new cases.

The DCGI also asked SII to increase safety monitors of vaccine trials. SII told the DCGI the trials will restart only after a review by the UK’s Drug and Safety Monitoring Board.

Bharat Biotech, which is making the indigenous Covaxin, announced the successful completion of its trials on monkeys. “The vaccine candidate was found to generate robust immune responses... preventing infection and disease in primates upon high amounts of exposure to live Sars-CoV-2 virus,” the study said.

India on Saturday had two records in a day.

On one hand it recorded the highest numbers of fresh coronavirus cases, with 97,570 new infections, but also had the highest number of recoveries in a single day after 81,533 patients were discharged, taking the recovery rate to 77.77 per cent.

Infighting in Cong to fore as first list for bypolls is out

BHOPAL, SEPT. 12

Infighting in Congress here on Saturday came to the fore with a senior party leader virtually questioning the first list of candidates released by the AICC for the upcoming by-elections to 27 Assembly constituencies in Madhya Pradesh, saying the Pradesh Congress Committee was not aware of it.

Former minister and Congress spokesman here P.C. Sharma, considered to be a staunch loyalist of party veteran Digvijay Singh, took Congressmen here by surprise when he said that the PCC was unaware of any such list. “PCC is not aware if any candidates’ list has been released by the AICC”, Mr Sharma told reporters here. He, however, refused to speak on the issue further.

The surprising remark by him comes in the wake of reports that the candidates’ list released by the AICC on Friday has caused consternation in a powerful faction of the party in the state. Sources said the powerful faction led by Mr Singh felt ignored in finalization of the first list of 15 candidates released by the AICC on Friday.

The list was released a day after MP PCC president Kamal Nath met Congress high command at Delhi on Thursday.

● CONGRESS SPOKESMAN Sharma took Congressmen by surprise when he said that the PCC was unaware of any such list.

● AT LEAST four candidates figured in the first list of candidates have joined Congress in the last couple of weeks from other parties such as Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) and Bahujan Samaj Party (BSP).

At least four candidates figured in the first list of candidates have joined Congress in the last couple of weeks from other parties such as Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) and Bahujan Samaj Party (BSP).

Incidentally, former BJP leader Satish Sikarwar who has quit BJP and joined Congress a couple of weeks ago with the hope of getting ticket for the by-elections to Ambah (SC) Assembly constituency has been left in lurch with the party deciding to field Satyaprakash Sikarwar in the seat.

This has dismayed the party faction that backed his candidature.

Meanwhile, Mr Nath on Saturday launched the campaign for the party for the by-elections to 27 Assembly seats in the state at Agar Malwa by leading a ‘padyatra’ or foot march of party workers and leaders there.

ALLY | SPEAKS UP Nirupam slams Shiv Sena for attack on a retired officer

6 Sainiks held for assault on retd Navy officer

SONU SHRIVASTAVA | DC
MUMBAI, SEPT. 12

Six suspected Shiv Sena workers were granted bail on Saturday in a case of assaulting a retired Navy officer resident of Malad for allegedly forwarding a cartoon of the party president and Chief Minister Uddhav Thackeray on social media, evoking allegations of political pressure from the BJP.

Denying any political interference, Joint commissioner of police (law and order) Vishwas Nangre Patil said the bail was granted to the accused in view of the Covid-19 situation.

The six persons were arrested after local BJP MLA Atul Bhatkalkar posted a video of Friday’s assault on the retired officer, Madan Sharma (62), on Twitter.

A complaint was filed against Sena workers at Kandivali police station.

Leader of opposition in the state Legislative council Pravin Darekar, Bhatkalkar and the victim’s family members staged an agitation outside the ACP’s office in Kandivali.

They demanded that the accused be booked under sections 326 (causing grievous hurt by dangerous weapons and means), and 452 and 450 (house-trespassing) of the Indian Penal Code, which are non-bailable.

Nangre Patil, who visited the site of the protest, told the protesters the accused were booked under section 325 of the IPC for causing grievous hurt and rioting sections, which was a bailable offence.

“Six persons arrested under section 325 of the IPC. They were granted bail in view of the Covid-19 situation. There is no political pressure. I don’t think section 326 can be invoked since that amounts to the use of sharp weapons. We will see the legal scrutiny of slapping trespassing clauses against them,” the police officer said.

The Shiv Sena heads the Maha Vikas Aghadi (MVA) dispensation, also comprising the NCP and Congress.

Congress leader Sanjay Nirupam slammed Uddhav Thackeray-led Shiv Sena over the attack on a retired Navy officer by the Shiv Sainiks for allegedly forwarding a cartoon of Mr Thackeray on social media.

Sena founder Balasaheb Thackeray was himself a cartoonist and had regards for the force, the Congress leader said.

The 65-year-old officer has been discharged from Shatabdi Hospital in Kandivali.

Meanwhile, the BJP staged a protest against the attack near the additional police commissioner’s office.

Mr Nirupam, who was a former Shiv Sena leader and Rajya Sabha member, said, “Shiv Sena has not changed. It is still a party of goons. The government sponsored gundagardi (hooliganism)”. He said that the attack is a gross abuse of power. The state government and police are shielding the Shiv Sainiks. The Shiv Sena is showing off nationalism.

Balasaheb ji himself used to make cartoons and make political and social comments through the cartoons, Mr Nirupam said.

When asked why are you not speaking the language of BJP, Mr Nirupam said that he would say it is the other way round, the BJP is speaking the language of Sanjay Nirupam. He has been speaking against the Sena since he was a spokesperson. He had been raising the issues against the Sena since he was Mumbai Congress chief. When the MVA government was formed, he was against the coalition government in Maharashtra with the Shiv Sena.

Vijaysai Reddy back to controversy

After a lull, apparently caused by Chief Minister Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddy's snub, V. Vijaysai Reddy, YSR Congress general secretary, is back to his favourite activity of making controversial statements and landing his party in a tight spot. Recently, DGP Goutham Sawang wrote a letter to Opposition leader N. Chandrababu Naidu to furnish evidence to support his allegations that the government had been tapping the phones of political leaders and legal luminaries. Separately, the Chittoor district police issued notices to Naidu and his son Lokesh, asking them to furnish information in support of their allegations that an autorickshaw driver, Om Pratap, was killed by YSRC leaders. In the midst of this, Sai Reddy made the wild accusation that Naidu had a role in the recent gutting of the chariot at the Narasimha Swamy temple in Antarvedi, East Godavari district, inviting criticism as well as a demand from several quarters that he also be issued notices by the police seeking evidence to back his allegations, as had been done in the case of the Naidus. Watch this space for the next gaffe.

KCR: Salao for Telangana people's health

At the start of the classic novella, The Old Man and The Sea, which finally won Ernest Hemingway the Nobel Prize for literature, an entire village wishes to boycott Santiago, the old fisherman, because they fear he has gone 'salao' and can no longer catch any fish. Parents don't wish to let their children fish with him. Derived from the Spanish word salado, salao means extremely irredeemably unlucky. In Telangana state, ruling party circles are speaking in hushed tones whether an irreversible whisper campaign is sweeping across the population, especially the rural masses, that Chief Minister K. Chandrashekar Rao is 'salao'. If what common people are talking is an indication, yes, KCR is a great leader but ever since he was elected for a second term, health pandemics are raging the state. Such talk began last year, when malaria, dengue, chikungunya and typhoid spread during the rainy season. With Covid, the ill-reputation is firming up. As a villager from KCR's constituency summed it up, "whatever he gives us or not, like it would not rain when Chandrababu Naidu was CM, if KCR is in power we will fall ill. His reign means a divine curse of disease." TRS leaders are hoping their supreme leader can defy the superstition like the old man in Hemingway's epic.

Danam ashamed of flaying KCR, KTR while in Cong

It's not always that a politician faults himself while on record. That credit goes to Danam Nagender, the TRS legislator from Khairatabad who switched sides from the Congress. Speaking on the Revenue Bill in the Assembly, Danam began lauding Chief Minister K. Chandrashekar Rao. Suddenly, he said he was ashamed of his earlier stance against the TRS and his verbal attacks on its leaders while in the Congress. Danam was a minister from 2009 to 2014. It was Danam who had called KCR and his K.T. Rama Rao "galeju gallu" (nasty persons). His sudden confession took both the TRS and the Congress by surprise. An MLA was later heard saying that is all the magic of power.

Jagan gets 'rid' of Dr Ramesh, Kallam is back in action

The curtain has lifted on the mystery, though after some time. The real intention behind the drama to strip the powers off AP CM adviser Ajay Kallam and CM's additional CS Dr P.V. Ramesh was to get rid of the latter. The CMO took away all subjects being handled by the two, besides a junior officer, J. Murali. It was projected that the advisers, who are retired bureaucrats, shouldn't handle files and hence the action. Kallam and Dr Ramesh met the Chief Minister who, sources say, behaved like nothing had happened and remained non-committal to Dr Ramesh. Everyone thought it would be the same for Kallam. But, a few days later, Kallam returned to the thick of action. He began attending crucial meetings of the CM, coming to office regularly and addressing the media on critical issues like fixing meters to agri pumpsets. Dr Ramesh is nowhere to be seen these days. He has not been attending office as there is nothing to do, though on paper he is still working with the CM. What made Jagan get rid of Dr Ramesh, to whom he gave much importance initially, is the million-dollar question.

Akbar scores over Kalvakuntlas in Assembly

Talking of literary epics, K. Chandrashekar Rao undergoes quite a bit of metamorphosis not too dissimilar to Franz Kafka's protagonist Gregor Samsa when it comes to facing MIM floor leader Akbaruddin Owaisi. It is quite an unimpeachable dictum that KCR is Telangana state's greatest orator, a speaker with wit without peers, a man whose rhetoric ranges from scathing rebuffs to chilling rebukes. His whiplashing one-liners, smart squibs and snide retorts can destroy the courage of his opponents. Yet, the mighty KCR who waxes eloquent against most opposition leaders and gives an earful to journalists at press conferences, transforms a la Samsa into a reserved, timid and soft-spoken man on the back foot whenever he gets to face a barrage of questions or angry criticism of Akbar. Barely does KCR start giving a reply when Akbar, with his perpetually angry and vituperative harangue, interrupts. Getting on KCR's nerves with ease, Akbar succeeds in pushing Rao on the defensive — his legerity seems to vanish, he clambers for an answer and speaks in a soft diphthong of a tune, placating the angry young legislator from Chandrayangutta. Not just KCR, but even his son, the grandiloquent and unfailingly brilliant KTR, too, finds it hard to parry the frequent assaults from the frenemy. Why is KCR so wary or even afraid of Akbar, politicians and Assembly watchers wonder and ask. It is not the recent demolition of two mosques that seems to be the issue, because KCR is never defensive on such issues. It is just that Akbaruddin gets the better of the father-son duo as no one else can in the entire state.

SHABBIR SAYS KCR RUINING EDUCATION SECTOR

DC CORRESPONDENT HYDERABAD, SEPT. 12

Senior Congress leader Mohammed Ali Shabbir alleged that the state government, headed by Chief Minister K. Chandrashekar Rao, has completely neglected the education sector and ignored the problems being faced by teachers' community. He was addressing the Teachers' Day Programme organised by the National Solidarity Committee at Gandhi Bhavan here on Saturday. He said that Rao came to power in 2014 on the promise of providing free KG to PG education. However, his government has ruined the entire education system across all levels. He said over 4,000 primary schools were shut down while hundreds of junior and degrees colleges were closed. Universities were deprived of funds and none of them has had a full-time Vice-Chancellor in the last six years.

MISSING YAKS LED TO TENSION IN 1965

"A missing flock of 59 yaks and about 800 sheep had triggered tensions between the two countries in 1965. It led to a border conflict between the two armies in Sikkim in 1967. There were heated exchanges between the two countries over the PLA accused Indian forces of stealing the animals from Tibetan herds-men on the Sikkim border," a former army officer who worked along the Line of Actual Control (LAC) recalled. Though there have often been suspicions that the PLA sends yaks and sheep into Indian territory fitted with spying tools, the Indian army, wary of PLA's designs, has not found any concrete evidence of that.

Uttam demands laptops for poor across Telangana

SA. ISHAQUI | DC HYDERABAD, SEPT. 12

TPCC President N. Uttam Kumar Reddy on Saturday demanded that the Union and state governments must provide free laptops to all poor students belonging to Below Poverty Line (BPL) families across Telangana State. He was addressing District Development Coordination and Monitoring Committee meetings in Suryapet and Nalgonda districts, held to review all government-funded schemes in these two districts under Nalgonda Parliamentary constituency. He said that the Covid-19 pandemic has badly hit the education system across the world and it was difficult to impart education through conventional means. In view of the pandemic, and also to meet future exigencies, he demanded that the two governments should work out a strategy so that they could equip poor students with a free laptop, along with free internet connectivity, considering that online classes seem to be the only way out in the prevailing circumstances. He said, "They must focus on creating appropriate infrastructure for poor students to make a success of online education." He reiterated that the state government must utilise the entire Mineral Funds to upgrade government hospitals in the state. He said there was a lack of coordination between the Centre and the state government, which has resulted in farmers not getting insurance facilities for their crops.

GET TESTED AGAIN FOR COVID-19: TS ASSEMBLY SPEAKER

DC CORRESPONDENT HYDERABAD, SEPT. 12

Telangana Legislative Assembly Speaker Pocharam Srinivas Reddy and Legislative Council Chairman Gutha Sukhender Reddy on Saturday made it clear that all members allowed to attend the session will have to again undergo Covid-19 tests before the session of the two Houses resumes on Monday after a two-day break. In a statement here on Saturday, they asked all ministers, MLAs and MLCs to undergo tests at the special counters set up at the Assembly and Council before 9 am. They directed Legislative Secretary V. Narsimhacharyulu to arrange tests for Assembly and Council staff, marshals, media representatives as well as the police. It is stated that the tests for these categories of people will be conducted on Sunday afternoon at the special counters arranged in Assembly and Council premises.

KCR wants promotions for revenue staff in TS

DC CORRESPONDENT HYDERABAD, SEPT. 12

Speaking to representatives of the Telangana revenue employees' services association (TRESA) at Pragathi Bhavan Chief Minister, K. Chandrashekar Rao, on Saturday asked the authorities to take up the process for promotion of revenue employees in the state. Revenue staff who discharge 54 different duties and work round the clock during elections and natural calamities do commendable work, said Rao, while releasing ₹60 crore to improve facilities at the offices of tahsildars in the state and directing officers to ensure that there is no dearth of funds for protocol and other office maintenance expenditures in those offices. Urging revenue employees to strive for the successful implementation of the new revenue act, Rao asked the revenue staff to behave in a dignified manner when people come to their offices with grievances and give a patient hearing to them and resolve their grievances. Reminding them that in the past, people used to treat employees who worked efficiently as demi-gods, Rao said, "We must bring back such culture again. The department must consider the interests of the poor among SCs, STs, BCs and OBCs as paramount and strive for their betterment." Making it clear that the option will be given to village revenue officers (VROs) to join any other departments without causing any inconvenience to them, Rao reassured that the new Revenue Bill was not against anyone. Meanwhile, TRESA president, V. Ravinder Reddy, general secretary K. Gautam Kumar, members Manne Prabhakar, Ramakrishna, Banala Ram Reddy, Desya Nayak, Nagamani, Vani Reddy, Sailaja, Madhavi, Palnati Srinivas Reddy and Niranjan assured the CM that they will extend their full support for successful implementation of the new act. They demanded the appointment of a chief commissioner of land administration.

8 TELANGANA CANDIDATES TOP JEE EXAM

HARLEEN MINOCHA | DC HYDERABAD, SEPT. 12

Telangana topped the 100 percentile list of the NTA JEE (mains), the results of which were announced late Friday night. Eight out of the 24 students, namely, Chagari Kaushal Kumar Reddy, Chukka Tanuja, Deeti Veshash Chandra, Morreddigiri Likhith Reddy, Rachapalle Shashank Anirudh, Rongalla Arun Siddardha, Shiva Krishna Sagi, and Vadapalli Arvind Narasimha who topped the engineering entrance exam are from Telangana. The second cycle of the JEE (mains) in April/September 2020, conducted amid concerns and fears over the growing Covid-19 cases, recorded 6.35 lakh candidates appearing for the exam as compared to 8.41 lakh candidates who had registered across the country. Even though numerous instances of violation of safety guidelines were reported across the country and Telangana, the NTA in its official communication said that the exams were conducted without any glitch in 660 centres in 232 cities, including eight outside India.

Off the beaten track

JFK, yoga, and intermittent fasting

In every home that my wife and I have occupied since our marriage, and in all the homes my parents made while I grew up, there was a piece of furniture that held a group of airtight plastic or steel containers, placed fairly high up, outside the reach of a child. If you opened any one of those containers, you'd find a bunch of opened plastic bags containing biscuits or deep fried bits of joy, or junk food.

I call this bit of furniture, which you will find in practically every middle-class home, the JFK, for Junk Food Kuponboard. It has one branch in the fridge, in a box that contains pieces of cake, chocolate, and other sweets, and a second in the freezer, the home of ice-cream. The shop that supplies most of its contents, incidentally, is the JFP, or Junk Food Paradise, which we will visit shortly.

Yoga, I believe, is one of the forms of discipline that most people give up regularly. I believe this for two reasons. First, it was Google that told me, so it must be true, like everything else Google tells us. Second, I know how tough it is, for I very nearly gave it up some years ago. I managed to hang on to it despite the creaking of aged limbs and so on, so I even got a bit smug about continuing my practice in the face of all these difficulties. My weight stayed more or less the same for a decade or so.

The lockdown changed all that. Week after week of staying put, with large and regular meals and plenty of snacks in between, turned my waistline into a sort of coastline. By the middle of May, I had developed an equatorial bulge, and the effort of getting into my clothes left me breathless. Worst of all, the roundness was spreading. I upped my yoga practice, but to no avail, for it only made me hungrier and fatter.

At the end of May, when I discovered I could no longer shoehorn myself into my loosest pair of jeans, I decided to go on a diet. Wondering what kind of diet to go on, I turned once again to reliable old Google, which came up with something — after searching through a gazillion sites in a micro-second — that sounded about right.

Intermittent fasting. You restrict your eating to a six-hour period every day, during which you eat whatever you like. During the remaining 18 hours, you fast, your only intake being plain water or tea without sugar or milk.

I've been doing this for some weeks now: I eat only between eight in the morning and two in the afternoon. So let share with you what my day looks like.

I come awake, without an alarm of any kind, by half-past-five. Under the new scheme of time, this is 150 minutes AM (Ante Mealtime), with each minute feeling like an hour. I finish my ablutions, feed the pets, two dogs and a cat, and take the dogs for a walk. Back home, I prepare the next meal for the dogs. The clock now stands at 105 AM, and the minutes are getting longer.

I bring out the yoga mat and start on my regular practice, which used to take about 45 minutes before I started fasting. When I roll up the yoga mat afterwards, I discover that it's 75 AM, so I've finished my practice in 30 minutes. Amazing how supple fasting makes you!

Casting about for ways to fill in the remaining minutes, I clean out my desk, reply to emails and WhatsApp messages, and remove all the junk files from my laptop and phone. I go through the news channels, Indian and foreign, and am disappointed to find that none mentions my fast. It's now 45 AM. Amazing how efficient fasting makes you!

The remaining minutes pass like blocks of concrete. 1 AM finds me at the kitchen door, watch in hand, and when that last dreadful minute is past, I charge for the JFK, there being no time to cook a proper breakfast. Eleven minutes later, the JFK is sadly depleted, and needs replenishment.

After a short nap, still pleasantly full, I replenish the JFK. I hop onto the bike with an empty backpack and ride out to the JFP, a couple of kilometres away. The owner greets me with delight, tells me that he will give me a 10 per cent discount on all my purchases, and shows me three different kinds of savouries I haven't tried before. I take a packet of each, besides the regular stack. I buy another couple of packets of fried nuts. For unexpected visitors, you see. The backpack feels very heavy when I pick up. Great exercise for my shoulders, so it's all good.

Back home, I restock the JFK, and, needing refreshment, try one of the new savouries. Excellent! I return to my study and sit down to work, but spend most of the time wondering about lunch. Fasting certainly gives you an appetite!

After a long and pleasant lunch that would feed an Ethiopian family for a week, I return to the fridge. A couple of minutes before the end of my eating window, 2PM under the old scheme of time, there is still a cup of vanilla ice-cream in the freezer, and I manage to finish it just in time. Since I believe always in looking to the future, the time is now 1080 AM, of which I will spend 480 minutes sleeping, and dreaming of food.

After three weeks of this, when I still can't get into my jeans, I visit the weighing machine, and discover that I've put on four kilos! So now I'm wondering why they call it intermittent fasting and not intermittent feasting...

De-escalation in Ladakh: Mixed signals after talks

K.C. Singh

The Ladakh imbroglio has been a complex interplay between military jostling at the Line of Actual Control and talks at the official, military and political levels. The Galwan setback was followed by a military-to-military understanding on the PLA's pullback. Video conferences followed between external affairs minister S. Jaishankar and national security adviser Ajit Doval with Wang Yi, who doubles up as China's foreign minister and state councillor. However, till August's end, the Chinese were unwilling to fully restore the status quo. In fact, they consolidated their hold on the northern bank of Pangong Tso and other areas like Depsang Plains, threatening India's access to Daulat Beg Oldie and the Karakoram Pass.

Surprised by China's lightning deployment of heavily armed troops at multiple points on the LAC, India also needed time to mirror deployments, with troops needing acclimatisation for high-altitude duty. Even the threat of economic decoupling, with over 200 Chinese apps barred, left China's military posture unaffected. On August 28-29, the Indian Army dramatically seized the highest Kailash range mountaintops, overlooking Spanggur Tso and the Chinese military garrison at Moldo. Below them lies Spanggur Gap, between two lakes, through which Chinese troops attacked in 1962. India's positions were then overrun as they were at lower heights. Mukphari, now held, and to its northwest Black Top, perhaps contested, dominate the entire region from south of Pangong Tso to Spanggur Tso lake and beyond, overlooking Chinese roads and military installations.

This just preceded the meeting of the Indian and Chinese defence ministers on the sidelines of a Shanghai Cooperation Organisation meeting. China's rhetoric changed instantly, with allegations of India breaching agreements and the LAC, aping Indian allegations earlier. India was clear its forward push was pre-emptive and only up to Indian claim lines and understanding of the LAC. India was merely following the playbook the Chinese used since April. After the Galwan betrayal, the rules of engagement were changed with local commanders empowered to use all means at their disposal to protect their troops and defend Indian posts and territory. With three of five agreements — signed in 1993, 1996 and 2013 — breached by China, India also set them aside. India's countermove levelled China's first-mover advantage somewhat, giving India's diplomats vital negotiating chips.

It was against this background that Mr Jaishankar arrived in Moscow for an on-the-sidelines meeting with his Chinese counterpart. Most analysts were sceptical about a positive outcome as there was no consensus about Chinese motives. Was Chinese ire persisting over the constitutional and territorial changes made by the Indian government in Jammu and Kashmir in August 2019? Or was China paranoid over the India-US strategic convergence, symbolised by excessive bonhomie between Narendra Modi and Donald Trump at the "Howdy Modi" and "Namaste Trump" extravaganzas? Finally, was it India's rejection of China's Belt and Road Initiative or the perceived Indian sabotage of the Regional Comprehensive Economic Partnership? Alternatively, was the provocation more local over India's upgraded infrastructure, or misreading of jingoism of Union ministers threatening to seize Pakistan- and China-occupied Kashmir, or perceived threat to Chinese investments in the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor? However, there is no doubt over one overweening purpose, rekindled by President Xi, to create a China-dominated, Sino-centric Asian regional order. Cutting India, its only possible strategic rival, down to size has been a Chinese preoccupation since 1962.

China has chosen the moment well, with the world distracted by the Covid-19 pandemic, the US presidential election and a global economic slowdown. Chinese assertiveness over territorial claims and international affairs manifested after the 2008 financial crisis. It was sharpened as Xi took the presidency in 2013. Instead of moderating its behaviour and recognising its constructive liability for the pandemic, China has shamelessly and aggressively pursued narrow national interests. But globally China is facing headwinds as even Europe is beginning to see demerits of engaging China blindly. Whoever wins in America or succeeds Japanese PM Shinzo Abe, the decoupling from China will continue. Xi faces a major Communist Party plenary in October, where he wants his choice of the next PM endorsed. China's economy may have revived fast, but the developed world and larger markets are circling their wagons. Australia, India and Japan are discussing a "supply chain resilience initiative", while Japan is subsidising Japanese companies wishing to shift businesses out of China.

Mr Jaishankar and Mr Wang produced a five-point joint statement which recalled the "consensus" reached by Mr Modi and Mr Xi, reiterated the need to reduce tensions and abide by agreements and suggested the resumption of dialogue at civil, military and political levels. The only new element was a recognition that after the situation eases, new confidence-building measures are needed, allowing both sides to address strategic and local concerns. But the relief was shortlived as the individual statements by both sides seemed to undercut the feelgood joint statement. China asserted its "stern" position, said India must stop "provocations" like firing and recall all personnel and equipment that had trespassed to enable an enhanced dialogue. It claimed Mr Jaishankar accepted Chinese policy towards India had not changed and bilateral relations did not depend on "settlement of the boundary question". India contested China's claims, insisting that Mr Jaishankar had forcefully sought restoration of the status quo. What does this dissonance between an agreed statement and separate claims mean? Both sides may be posturing for home audiences, while agreeing in private to slowly restore normality. It could also mean Chinese unwillingness to exchange its cross-LAC territorial gains for India's vacating the heights south of Pangong Tso.

The next few weeks will show whether de-escalation will start or jostling for tactical gains and capture of vantage points, in a barren terrain littered with ridges, continue. If the latter, the possibility lingers of armed local action spiralling into the use of heavy arms or even air power.

BORDER CONFLICT

It is good that India and China agreed on a five-point course of action to disengage and reduce tensions along the LAC. Indian diplomacy has made rapid strides to make it happen (DC, Sept. 12). Now, it needs to strive hard to translate this consensus into de-escalation on the ground as the proof of the pudding is in the eating.

HEALTH CARDS

Although the government has brought regular staff of AP model schools under the employee health scheme, health cards are still not available. In May, government issued a directive regarding the government's order to bring all types of managements under the Employee Health Scheme (EHS). A letter was sent to the education department for generating health cards by the Arogyasri Health Care Trust. Still, health cards are pending at department level.

AP POLICE

The AP police force deserves a big pat for maintaining its standards and topping the forensics in India once again. It is a pride for all the people in the state. The utilisation of technical aids for solving tricky cases has become a part of police investigation these days. However, there is a gap in resolving several cases. The glaring example being that of Dr P. Ramesh Babu who remained underground without a trace for several weeks following the Swarna Palace fire mishap.

Swami who fought against BJP's Hindutva denied in death

Threat to Tomar

Union agriculture minister Narendra Singh Tomar is a worried man these days. On his home turf of Gwalior-Chambal, crucial Assembly bypolls are set to take place, which may establish the supremacy of Jyotiraditya Scindia as BJP's iconic figure on Mr Tomar's turf. Mr Tomar, who holds the additional charge of panchayati raj and rural development, was embarrassed when a well-known party spokesman fumbled and failed to name him as the country's agriculture minister. The spokesperson, having roots in the BJP's economic cell, reportedly took Radha Mohan Singh's name, who was agriculture minister in the previous Narendra Modi ministry. Sources close to Mr Tomar feel their leader needs more visibility if he has to counter Mr Scindia within the BJP.

Dissidents' new dilemma

Congress chief Sonia Gandhi turned out to be smarter than her detractors. The 23 Congress dissenters who wrote a letter seeking inner party democracy are now perplexed by Sonia's move to appoint the Congress

Working Committee nominating some prominent dissidents who were asking for CWC polls. Would Ghulam Nabi Azad, Anand Sharma and Mukul Wasnik muster the courage to turn down a CWC nomination? As per the party constitution, 12 members are required to be elected while an equal number can be nominated. Last time when CWC polls were held, the party was led by Sitaram Kesri in 1997. Sonia is travelling abroad for her medical check-up and likely to skip the monsoon session of Parliament. In her absence, a six-member panel [without Rahul or Priyanka Gandhi] would officiate.

How to protest

The monsoon session of Parliament is starting amid the Covid-19 pandemic. Ironically, when the House had met in March 2020, the chair had reprimanded members for wearing masks. Six months later, wearing masks has been made mandatory. The seating arrangement is also bothering the Opposition as members are spread to galleries in order to enforce social distancing. How would they protest if access to the well of the House is denied?

AAP in hills?

Though the Uttarakhand state Assembly poll is scheduled for early 2022, the BJP has begun preparation. Politically, the Trivender Singh Rawat government does not seem strong enough to return to power. So BJP strategists are looking for a "third front" to prevent the Harish Rawat-led Congress from edging the party out of power. The buzz is that Arvind Kejriwal's Aam Aadmi Party is set to contest the hill state poll in a big way. The presence of a third contender will be bad news for the Congress. The BJP is also reportedly promoting the Uttarakhand Kranti Dal, otherwise considered a defunct outfit. The calculations are that if AAP and/or Uttarakhand Kranti Dal get a few seats through cutting into Congress votes and anti-BJP votes, then a Haryana-like situation can bring the BJP back to power.

Silence, they said

Swami Agnivesh will be greatly missed. The Social crusader in saffron was a spare time politician who did not get his due even in death, as most English-language newspapers did not carry his obituary. Surprisingly, most Urdu dailies had news of his death on the front page with some editorials and lengthy obits. Perhaps it was due to Agnivesh's consistent opposition to BJP's brand of Hindutva. A Brahmin from Andhra, Agnivesh was a vocal Arya Samaji whose influence spread from Punjab-Haryana, Madhya Pradesh, Rajasthan to other parts of the Hindi heartland. Agnivesh had given up a career as a professor in Calcutta to be a full-time social activist. His mission was to resist the RSS at all levels.

China satellite can't reach orbit

Beijing: China's optical remote-sensing satellite Jilin-1 Gao-fen O2C failed to enter the pre-set orbit on Saturday, official media reported here. The satellite was launched aboard the Kuaizhou-1A carrier rocket from Jiuquan Satellite Launch Center at 1:02 pm (local time). The launch centre said the mission failed because of abnormal performance, state-run Global Times reported. Specific reasons for the failure are under investigation, it said.

250 guns seized in Germany

Berlin: German police said Saturday they have seized about 250 firearms and a few thousand rounds of ammunition from a man who is believed to be a far-right sympathiser. Police in the northwestern state of Lower Saxony said the weapons were found in the Seevetal area, just south of Hamburg, during a search on Friday evening. A police statement said investigators think the man has right-wing sympathies "because of the overall circumstances." The statement didn't elaborate or say why the man might have had the firearms, citing the ongoing investigation into a suspected violation of weapons laws.

50 die in Congo mine collapse

Kinshasa: More than 50 people are dead after landslides collapsed three artisanal gold mining wells near the city of Kamituga in eastern Congo's South Kivu province on Friday, officials said. Heavy rains for days led to the disaster. "The diggers and the transporters of the stones were swallowed up by the waters," said the Kamituga mayor, Alexandre Bundya. "A team of rescuers with motor pumps came to recover the bodies of the victims." Diwa Honoré, who survived the tragedy, said more than 50 people had been in the three wells, which are about 50 metres deep.

TANKER FIRE WARNING NEGLECTED

Colombo, Sept. 12: The authorities of the oil tanker that went up in flames off Sri Lanka's eastern waters seemed to have neglected warnings from the crew on possible fire on board, a Sri Lankan court has heard. The Panama registered MT (Motor Tanker) New Diamond, a Greek-owned vessel and under charter by the Indian Oil Corporation, was carrying nearly two million barrels of crude oil from Mina Al Ahmadi port in Kuwait to the Indian port of Paradip when it caught fire off the coast of Sangamankanda in Ampara district on Thursday last.

A Filipino crew member died and another was injured in the mishap. The fire was doused in a joint operation of the Indian and Sri Lankan forces on Sunday last. But a new fire broke out within hours due to extreme heat and strong winds. After the second fire was brought under control on Wednesday, the tanker was towed away from the site.

A narrow diesel patch was noticed and an Indian Coast Guard aircraft sprayed dispersants to minimise potential damage to the marine environment. The state authorities sought court's permission to obtain oil samples on board the vessel to carry out tests to verify that the oil leaks visible in the surrounding sea area were those from the tanker.

Recommended after a pause following an adverse reaction in one of the participants

London, Sept. 12: Biopharmaceutical giant AstraZeneca and the University of Oxford on Saturday said that clinical trials for their Coronavirus vaccine have resumed in the UK after the Medicines Health Regulatory Authority's (MHRA) confirmed that the trials were safe.

The human trials resumed days after a pause had been announced in the trials after an adverse reaction in one of the participants. AstraZeneca and the University of Oxford, as the trial sponsor, said that they cannot disclose further medical information but confirmed that independent investigations concluded that the trials were safe to restart. "Clinical trials for the AstraZeneca Oxford coronavirus vaccine, AZD1222, have resumed in the UK following confirmation by the MHRA that it was safe to do so," AstraZeneca said in a statement. "AstraZeneca is committed to the safety of trial participants and the highest standards of conduct in clinical trials."

"The company will continue to work with health authorities across the world and be guided as to when other clinical trials can resume to provide the vaccine broadly, equitably and at no profit during this pandemic," the company said.

On September 6, the standard review process triggered a voluntary pause to vaccination across all global trials to allow the review of safety data by independent committees, and international regulators.

The UK committee concluded its investigations and recommended to the MHRA that trials in the UK are safe to restart. All trial investigators and participants will be updated with the relevant information and this will be disclosed on global clinical registries, according to the clinical trial and regulatory standards, AstraZeneca said.

AZD1222 was co-invented by the University of Oxford and its spin-out company, Vaccitech. It uses a replication-deficient chimpanzee viral vector based on a weakened version of a common cold virus (adenovirus) that causes infections in chimpanzees and contains the genetic material of the SARS-CoV-2 (Covid-19 virus spike protein).

After vaccination, the surface spike protein is produced, priming the immune system to attack the SARS-CoV-2 virus if it later infects the body. AstraZeneca, the biopharmaceutical giant in tie-up with the university to produce the vaccine, had described the pause as a "routine" one following what was "an unexplained illness". The Oxford University's Jenner Institute team started working to develop a vaccine against the SARS-CoV-2, or the virus which causes Covid-19 in January this year and says it has been working with "unprecedented urgency" in a race against the Coronavirus. — PTI

PoC beaten to death in Italy

Rome, Sept. 12: Hundreds of people in Italy walked in a funeral procession on Saturday for a young PoC whose brutal beating death has shaken up the country and drawn condemnation from the highest levels of government. Premier Giuseppe Conte and Italy's interior minister attended the funeral of 21-year-old Willy Monteiro Duarte, who was killed during a fight in Colleferro, a city on the outskirts of Rome, in the early hours of September 6. Four Italians have been arrested, including a pair of brothers with police records, but to date prosecutors haven't indicated if the slaying was racially motivated.

Italian news reports have quoted witnesses as saying Monteiro Duarte, who was born in Rome and whose family is from the African island nation of Cape Verde, intervened while seeing a friend get beaten up in the fight and was then fatally beaten himself. The funeral procession featured hundreds of people, most wearing white shirts and masks, walking toward the sporting stadium where Monteiro Duarte was honoured and then clapping in respect as his casket was carried out.

It was a strong show of solidarity for the young man, who was described as hard-working and upstanding by those who knew him. Italy's premier has displayed dismay over Monteiro Duarte's death. He called the family to express his condolences. In a statement, Conte demanded justice and asked rhetorically what it means that someone could be killed in Italy for having tried to help a friend.

"Will we tell our children to turn their heads away? Not to intervene to quell disputes or to try to protect weaker friends or friends in obvious difficulty," Conte said. — AP

Belarus president to visit Russia on Monday: Kremlin

Moscow, Sept. 12: Russian President Vladimir Putin on Monday will hold talks with Belarus strongman Alexander Lukashenko, who faces the biggest protest of his nearly three-decade rule, the Kremlin said.

Lukashenko's visit will be the first to Soviet-era master Russia by the Belarusian leader since protests broke out over his disputed election win last month. Putin has been keen to unify Russia and Belarus, and Moscow has accompanied its recent offers of military aid with calls for tighter integration. Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov said on Friday however there was no plan for the leaders to hold a news conference or sign any documents. The location of the "working visit" in Russia was yet to be announced, he said.

Lukashenko said last week that during his talks with Putin, he planned to "dot all the i's on issues that are very sensitive and delicate for the two states". Lukashenko, who has been in power for 26 years, has vowed that he will not give up power to the opposition, which claims its candidate Svetlana Tikhanovskaya was the rightful winner of the August 9 polls. — AFP

FILM | FEST Under the Open Sky showcases small joys, big disappointments and generosity of strangers

SUPARNA SHARMA | DC NEW DELHI, SEPT. 12

I have attended the Toronto International Film Festival (TIFF) twice in person, and am now, in these surreal Covid-times, participating in the festival digitally.

Today is Day 3 of the 11-day festival. And usually, for those who fly into Toronto from the sub-continent, this is when jet-lag really hits. There is no jet-lag this year, but there is Net-lag. For two days I have struggled with a crappy WiFi that keeps disappearing, only to make sudden, brief, special appearances. I am pleased that despite my annoying WiFi stretching the 126-minute Japanese film, Under the Open Sky, to almost four hours, I stayed with it.

I had to. It's that rarest of rare films — a yakuza (Japanese crime syndicate/gangster) movie directed by a woman.

Yakuza is, perhaps, one of Japan's most loved gifts to the world after sushi. It's a film genre that has not just inspired great directors across the world, but has also helped sustain many grindhouse talents and enterprises. But, yakuza movies have always been men's domain. Films about alpha men made by alpha male directors.

Director Miwa Nishikawa, who has also written Under The Open Sky's screenplay, has not made a typical yakuza film as they have come to be defined by its master-directors, though she uses many of the tropes of the post-retirement funk that ex-yakuza characters often struggle with, especially in Takeshi Kitano's stunning Sonatine (1993) and Yasuo Furuhata's Demon (1985).

Her film follows Mikami (Koji Yakusho), an ex-yakuza, as he returns to the world after serving a 13-year jail sentence for murder. But the world has mo-

Republishing Mohammed cartoons: Al-Qaeda threatens Charlie Hebdo

Paris, Sept. 12: Al-Qaeda has threatened French satirical weekly Charlie Hebdo with a repeat of a 2015 massacre of its staff, after it republished controversial cartoons of the Prophet Mohammed, the SITE observatory said on Friday.

Al-Qaeda in its publication One Ummah had warned that Charlie Hebdo would be mistaken if it believed the 2015 attack was a "one off", after the magazine printed the "contemptible caricatures" in a defiant issue that marked the start of the trial in Paris of suspected accomplices in the attack.

The comments came in an English edition of the Al-Qaeda publication that purported to mark the anniversary of the September 11, 2001 attacks on the United States carried out by the terror network.

It said it had the "same message" for the France of President Emmanuel Macron as it did for his predecessor Francois Hollande who was president at the time of the 2015 attacks.

It said France under Macron "gave a green light" to the republication of the cartoons. Twelve people, including some of France's most celebrated cartoonists, were killed on January 7, 2015, when brothers Said and Cherif Kouachi went on a gun rampage at the offices of Charlie Hebdo, whose no-taboo style, including publishing cartoons of the prophet, had divided the country.

The trial, which began on September 2 and is expected to continue until November; sees 14 suspected accomplices face justice even though all the perpetrators were killed in the wake of the attacks.

It had reopened one of the most painful chapters in France's modern history which heralded a spate of jihadist attacks on its territory that have claimed more than 250 lives.

Charlie Hebdo's director Laurent Sourisseau, known as "Riss", and who was himself badly wounded in the shoulder in the attack, told the court this week that there was nothing to regret in publishing the cartoons. "What I regret is to see how little people fight to defend freedom. If we don't fight for our freedom, we live like a slave and we promote a deadly ideology," he said.

Charlie Hebdo's republication of the cartoons drew new condemnation from states, including Iran, Pakistan and Turkey.

But Sourisseau, who now lives under round the clock protection, said it had to republish them.

"If we had given up the right to publish these cartoons, that would mean that we were wrong to do so" in the first place, he said. — AFP

RUSSIAN COPS SEEK TO GRILL NAVALNY

Moscow, Sept. 12: Russian police said Friday they were seeking to question opposition leader Alexei Navalny in Berlin after Moscow rubbished Germany's declaration that he was poisoned with a Novichok nerve agent.

The 44-year-old Kremlin critic and anti-corruption campaigner fell ill after boarding a plane in Siberia and was hospitalised there before being flown to Berlin.

Germany said there was "unequivocal evidence" that he was poisoned with the nerve agent but Russia says its doctors found no trace of poison. The Siberian transport police, who have been retracing Navalny's movements, said in a statement Russia would be preparing a request for its officers and an "expert" to shadow German investigators.

Navalny is now out of a medically induced coma and reacting to speech. Russia said it wanted its officers to be present as "German colleagues carry out investigative activities with Navalny". — AFP ved on, and it didn't leave a place at the table for him. A proud man with few usable skills and an expired driving licence, Mikami has to now live off state welfare. That's almost physically painful for the man who once thought nothing of venting his anger with his sword or fist at even a hint of an insult.

Though Mikami sometimes finds himself reacting in his old ways, there is no brooding, sulking, or bloody outrage in Nishikawa's film.

There is a very obvious touch of a woman in the film's rhythmic, everyday pace as Mikami experiences small joys, big disappointments, and the touching generosity of strangers.

Under the Open Sky is more than a genre curiosity. It's as if Nishikawa switched on a bright white light in what was till now a smoke-filled grimy world with an old, dim, yellow light bulb. And then she opened the windows and let some fresh air in.

The film has some lovely moments, but it's not a great film. Its plot meanders, and Nishikawa, at times, labours her point, even pausing the story to deliver flat, dreary speeches. And sometimes, when it's on Mikami's job search, it feels as if we are watching like a government-sponsored video on the reformation, rehabilitation and assimilation of ex-gangsters.

Yet I could not walk away from Under The Open Sky because of Koji Yakusho. He doesn't inhabit the character of Mikami. He creates it with a mix of humanity, a yearning for a mundane life even as he struggles with some remains of the raging gangster he once was. These emotions reside in his dialogue and expressions, of course, but also in the smallest of gestures.

Yakusho brings to the character of Mikami a complex mix of quiet humility, dignity and simple-minded naivety. It's a moving, measured performance but with the fluidity of an actor who creates an interiority and brings feeling and meaning to even stock scenes, like where he is just sitting and staring out of a window.

It's more than a stirring performance. It's an honourable one.

Hami takes pole as Merc dominate

Mugello, Italy: Lewis Hamilton claimed a record-increasing 95th pole position on Saturday when he outpaced Mercedes team-mate Valtteri Bottas to seize the prime grid position in qualifying for Sunday's inaugural Tuscan Grand Prix. It was the series leader and six-time champion's seventh pole in eight races this year as Mercedes continued their dominant run to nine poles out of nine this season with an eighth consecutive front row lockout. Bottas had been fastest in all three practice sessions, but he was unable to maintain his superiority over the Briton in the decisive hour albeit that his second run was affected by yellow flags after Esteban Ocon spun in his Renault. — AFP

Gunners on fire

Rampant Arsenal crush Fulham as Premier League returns

London, Sept. 12: Arsenal made a flying start to the new Premier League season as Gabriel Magalhaes grabbed a debut goal and Pierre-Emerick Aubameyang scored a stunner in Saturday's 3-0 win at Fulham.

Just 48 days after last season's delayed conclusion, the Premier League is back and Arsenal hit the ground running with the kind of confident display that has become their hallmark since Mikel Arteta took charge.

Arsenal's free-flowing attack was too incisive for promoted Fulham and Alexandre Lacazette gave the visitors an early lead at Craven Cottage.

Brazilian defender Gabriel scored Arsenal's second after the break in his first appearance since his close-season move from Lille.

Aubameyang added the final flourish with a typically eye-catching strike that emphasised why Arsenal are so desperate for the Gabon forward to sign an extension to the contract which expires at the end of the season.

Arteta has said that fans concerned Aubameyang will leave can "relax" because he is "very optimistic" his captain will agree a new deal soon.

With former Chelsea winger Willian providing a pair of assists on his debut, it was the ideal way for Arsenal to start a season that appears full of promise after last season's FA Cup triumph.

Although their eighth-placed finish in the Premier League ranked as Arsenal's lowest final position since 1995, Arteta had little to do with that after taking charge in December following the dismal reign of Unai Emery.

The former Manchester City astant coach has been a much-needed breath of fresh air for Arsenal and pushing for a place in the top four should not be beyond his revitalised team this term.

While the continued absence of fans due to the coronavirus and shorter than usual break has taken a little anticipation away from the new campaign, Arsenal were keener than most to get back in action after beating Chelsea in the FA Cup final.

NEYMAR BACK IN SQUAD AFTER QUARANTINE

Paris, Sept. 12: Brazilian star Neymar is back in the Paris Saint-Germain squad for Sunday's Ligue 1 match against Marseille after serving a Covid-19 quarantine, PSG coach Thomas Tuchel has confirmed.

Neymar tested positive for coronavirus on September 2, having contracted the virus holidaying in Ibiza following the 1-0 loss to Bayern Munich in the Champions League final in Lisbon last month.

The Brazilian, along with the likes of Kylian Mbappe, Angel Di Maria and Leandro Paredes, were all quarantined, with Neymar making his return to training on Friday.

LYON HELD AT BORDEAUX

Champions League semifinalist Lyon were held at Bordeaux to 0-0 in a tepid French league encounter.

In a game of rare chances on Friday, Lyon almost stole a win 10 minutes from the end when highly rated midfielder Houssem Aouar hit the post after skipping past center half Laurent Koscielny.

Bordeaux remained in second place with five points from three games, while Lyon was third with four points having played one game less. Lyon lost to eventual winner Bayern Munich 3-0 in the Champions League semis last month. — Agencies

Thiem, Zverev in new-look Slam final

New York, Sept. 12: Dominic Thiem of Austria will play Germany's Alexander Zverev in the US Open final for their first Grand Slam titles after they won their last-four matches in contrasting styles on Friday.

Second seed Thiem ousted third-seeded Russian and last year's runner-up Daniil Medvedev in a closely fought three-setter that was packed with powerful baseline rallies and impressive serving.

The 27-year-old Thiem won 6-2, 7-6 (9/7) 7-6 (7/5) in 2hr 56 min inside Arthur Ashe Stadium to reach his fourth Grand Slam final.

Earlier, Zverev came from two sets down to complete a remarkable comeback against 20th-seeded Spaniard Pablo Carreno Busta and reach his first tennis major final.

Germany's Alexander Zverev reacts after defeating Pablo Carreno Busta of Spain 3-6, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3 during their US Open semifinal in New York on Friday.

The 23-year-old German won an error-strewn, scrappy encounter 3-6, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3 in 3hr 23min.

It marked the first time in Zverev's career that he came from two sets behind to win.

"I actually looked at the scoreboard when I was down two sets to love," Zverev said.

"I was like, 'I can't believe it. I'm playing in a semi-final, I'm supposed to be the favourite and I have no chance, I'm playing that bad."

Zverev made 36 unforced errors in the first two sets compared to just 12 for Carreno Busta as the nerves of the occasion seemed to get the better of him.

FIRST-TIME DUO TAKE DOUBLES CROWN

First-time doubles duo Laura Siegemund and Vera Zvonareva won the women's doubles title, defeating China's Xu Yifan and Nicole Melichar of the United States in straight sets in the final.

Germany's Siegemund and Russian partner Zvonareva had never played doubles together before this year's US Open.

However, the unseeded pairing romped past the third-seeded Xu and Melichar 6-4, 6-4 to cap a fairytale victory. — AFP

Djoker's US Open ouster shows rules are paramount

Ayaz Memon
Over The Top

It's turning out to be an eminently forgettable year for Novak Djokovic. He suffered a major setback when the Adria Tour he had organized mid-year had was called off for violating the protocol to prevent the spread of Covid-19. Four players tested positive including Djokovic himself, and the tour was kaput.

The world no.1 tennis player's attempt to form a parallel tennis players body, while it has made some progress, has invited deep controversy too.

However, the worst blow was his ouster from the US Open last week, which wrecked his chances of winning an 18th Grand Slam title.

Djokovic was 'defaulted' from the tournament for breaking the rules. The incident happened in the 11th game of the first set of the fourth-round match against Pablo Carreno Busta when he was broken. Busta now led 6-5 and would have served for the set.

Before play could resume, however, Djokovic hit the ball in frustration, which struck the line judge behind him. She collapsed, and with this, also went Djokovic's hopes of winning another Slam and edge closer to Rafael Nadal (who has 19 titles) and Roger Federer (20).

With Nadal (because of Covid fear) and Federer (recovering from surgery) both skipping the US Open, Djokovic was odds-on favourite to win. He had looked in impressive form too, dropping just a single set in three matches before the unhappy incident in the fourth match.

Sport can be gloriously or cruelly uncertain, of course, so one can only speculate how the tournament would have panned out. But with his major rivals missing, Djokovic's path to the title seemed relatively easy. A momentary lapse of reason, one impetuous action, and his hopes came crashing down.

Sensing immediately that what he had done was wrong, Djokovic, to his credit, immediately apologised to the line judge and inquired of her well-being. But the damage had been done. Within minutes, the decision had been taken. Djokovic would have to forfeit the match.

US Open Tournament Referee Soeren Friemel explained later why the harsh punishment: "Based on the facts that the ball was hit angrily, recklessly; that it went straight at the line umpire's throat; that the line umpire was clearly hurt and in pain, the decision was made that Novak [Djokovic] had to be defaulted."

Was such a punitive action against him justified, more so when Djokovic did not intend to hit the line judge? The tennis world has been in turmoil since the incident. Djokovic's supporters have been livid, claiming he was being victimized. An equal, if not more, number of aficionados think the punishment fair.

I believe the action against him was not only justified, but necessary. It also sends out a strong message of how rules must be held paramount in sport, which is particularly relevant in our part of the world where prima donnas can get away with anything.

For this, the ATP and the US Open tournament officials deserve credit. Think of it. In a year where sport

RCB are in great shape, says Kohli

Dubai, Sept. 12: Back into the thick of things after five months of coronavirus-forced break, Royal Challengers Bangalore skipper Virat Kohli is happy with the fitness level of his team members, saying "everyone is looking in great shape" ahead of the IPL beginning on September 19.

Kohli, a fitness freak, also said that he himself felt good from the first training session after landing in the UAE.

"From fitness point of view everyone is looking great, everyone is in good shape. It's a matter of feeling good and I think I felt good from the first session onwards," Kohli said in a video posted on RCB's twitter handle.

"Obviously, there are few things that you try and rectify along the way and once you reach your optimum mind set and you enter competition you just want to stay in that as much as possible."

The India captain said the team management's focus during the two-week training period in the UAE was a balanced approach to avoid injuries to players.

"We don't want to push anyone into a niggles or an injury because we understand it's been a while away from the game. So I think we moved ahead in a balanced manner.

"We don't want to be a maniac like doing 6 sessions in six days. We gave ample off time to the boys which will continue to do along the course of the these next few training sessions also," Kohli said.

Kohli said after the long break, the need of the hour was to start slowly and increase the intensity of training sessions gradually, which the RCB has now managed to attain.

"First few days we are just getting our eye in, getting back in thick of things after 5 months, it's a bit different, try and get into the frame of mind which you usually want to be. It takes a bit of time, in these session now we are mostly batting in the middle, trying to figure out hitting angles, understanding the pace of wicket and all these."

Khan to be first American in IPL

Abu Dhabi, Sept. 12: The IPL is set to see participation of a player from the USA for the first time with Kolkata Knight Riders roping in fast bowler Ali Khan for the upcoming 13th edition of the league.

The two-time winners will pick the 29-year-old fast bowler — pending IPL approval — as a replacement for the English seamer Harry Gurney, according to an ESPNcricinfo.com report.

Gurney is scheduled to have surgery related to a shoulder injury, and has pulled out of both the IPL and England's Vitality Blast last month.

Khan's signing will make him the first USA player to feature in the IPL.

Khan was part of the Trinbago Knight Riders' squad which remained unbeaten on the way to their CPL title win on Thursday. He picked up eight wickets from as many matches with an economy rate of 7.43.

He was on KKR's radar last season as well but no deal could be worked out.

The pacer burst out to the limelight during the 2018 Global T20 Canada, where he was spotted by star West Indies all-rounder Dwayne Bravo, who brought him to the CPL. Khan returned a haul of 16 wickets from 12 matches for Guyana Amazon Warriors that year, the second-most by a fast bowler in the season.

Bravo, in one of his Instagram stories, posted a video with Khan, Brendon McCullum and a few more inside a plane with the caption 'Next stop Dubai'.

AUSSIES OPEN ODI SERIES WITH WIN AGAINST HOSTS

Manchester, Sept. 12: Australia beat England by 19 runs to win the first one-day international at Old Trafford on Friday. World champions England, set 295 for victory, finished on 275-9 as Australia defeated their arch-rivals for just the third time in 14 ODIs.

Fast bowler Josh Hazlewood reduced the hosts to 22-2 on his way to 3-26 before leg-spinner Adam Zampa (4-55) struck twice in two overs to leave England in dire straits at 57-4. But Sam Billings hit 118 — a maiden ODI hundred — after his fifth-wicket partnership of 113 with opener Jonny Bairstow (84) gave the hosts hope of an unlikely victory. — AFP
