'Revival uneven, fiscal relief to boost capex'

Rapid pace of vaccination and bridging of health infra gaps to support durable recovery: Finmin

FE BUREAU
New Delhi, July 9

THE FINANCE MINISTRY on Friday acknowledged that economic recovery remained "uneven" in June, with certain indicators — such as port and air traffic, PMI manufacturing and services — exhibiting "lagged revival" from the impact of the second Covid wave.

However, sustained momentum in capital expenditure this fiscal, particularly in the road and rail sectors, augurs well for growth revival, the ministry said in its monthly economic report.

The ₹6.29-lakh-cr relief package, announced by finance minister Nirmala Sitharaman last week, is expected to further oil the wheels of the capex cycle through the implementation of the production-linked incentive scheme (in electronics) and streamlining of processes for PPP projects and asset monetisation, it added.

Maintaining a rapid pace on vaccination and quickly bridging health care infrastructure gaps across both urban and rural areas would emerge as the most sustainable stimulus for durable recovery of the Indian economy, the report said.

IT rules: SC refuses to stay proceedings in high courts

FE BUREAU
New Delhi, July 9

THE SUPREME COURT on Friday refused to restrain various high courts from hearing the petitions questioning the validity of new IT rules 2021, as sought by the Centre.

The Information Technology (Intermediary Guidelines and Digital Media Ethics Code) Rules, 2021, notified and published in the Official Gazette on February 25, 2021, were challenged before different HC's on grounds that they enable the government to virtually dictate content to digital news portals, among others. It was also alleged that the Rules don't meet the requirements of placing curbs on freedom of speech and expression and so are unconstitutional and liable to be struck down.

A bench led by Justice AM Khanwilkar, while refusing to stay the proceedings before the HC's, tagged the Centre's transfer petition along with another similar matter pending before the apex court.

IT rules: SC refuses to stay proceedings in high courts

"We are not passing any other orders except tagging it (with pending case of Justice for Rights Foundation) and directing to list the same before the appropriate bench. Let the same come up on July 16," the bench told Solicitor General Tushar Mehta, who wanted stay on the proceedings before the HCs.

Meity had moved the SC seeking transfer of the petitions pending before the high courts of Delhi and Kerala to the top court so as to avoid multiplicity of proceedings and divergent judicial views.

It said transfer of the petitions are necessary as any orders which may be passed by the HC in variance to the SC directions "will create confusion and administrative issues across the entire country. Further, if such a petition is decided independently, the same may result in a likelihood of conflict between the decision of the HC and the SC. Therefore, in the interest of justice the writ petitions may be withdrawn from the respective HCs and be transferred to the SC and be tried and disposed of by the SC in the interest of justice".

Road min to seek Cabinet nod for townships along highways

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, July 9

Union minister Nitin Gadkari

THE MINISTRY OF Road Transport and Highways (MoRTH) will seek the Cabinet's approval for allowing construction of smart cities, townships, logistic parks and industrial clusters along the national highways, Union minister Nitin Gadkari said on Friday.

Addressing a virtual event, Gadkari said his aim is to construct world-class highway networks and the road transport and highways ministry has chalked out a plan for monetising existing highways projects for infra capital generation.

"And now we have prepared a Cabinet note for approval....for making roadside townships, smart cities, logistic parks, industrial clusters," he said.

"We are making 400 roadside amenities," Gadkari added.

He said the road transport and highways ministry is now submitting a scheme for the second phase of Bharatmala Parivarjan that is more than 65,000 km to 70,000 km, and resolution of claims worth ₹41,500 crore. "We are making parking plazas, logistic parks...we are now planning to make tunnels worth ₹2.5 lakh crore," Gadkari said.

Replying to a question on cost escalation of road projects, the minister said, "What you are telling me is correct, but I don't know what are the contractual terms. We will refer to the contractual terms and then we will consider all these issues."

Admitting that cost escalation of road projects is a serious issue, he asked contractors to submit their proposals to the ministry. "I am positive but we are also bound with the contract, we will try to find a way out for that," Gadkari said.

On the recent trend of highway contractors quoting less than the bid price in many projects, the minister said he knows that many big contractors are very much annoyed because of some relaxations of bidding norms by the ministry.

"There should be competition among contractors (for road projects). And this is also not true that those contractors who quote low prices for work, compromise with the quality of work," he said. According to the minister, contractors will have to reduce the cost of construction to survive.

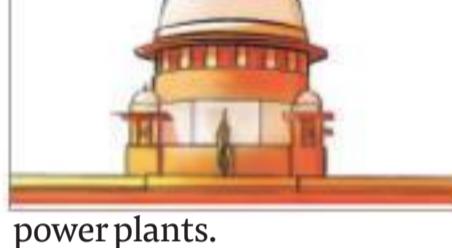

"Gone are days when there were 5-7 big (construction) companies, which used to make cartel and bag contracts... And I understand technical and financial qualification game plan," Gadkari, who is known for expressing views frankly, said.

SC refuses to entertain Delhi govt appeal against CPCB move

FE BUREAU
New Delhi, July 9

THE SUPREME COURT on Friday refused to entertain the Delhi government's petition seeking directions to 10 allegedly polluting coal-based thermal power plants in Uttar Pradesh, Punjab and Haryana to immediately stop operations till Flue Gas Desulphurization (FGD) technology is installed to reduce harmful emissions.

"We find it very amusing that a state has come in with a PIL against the Union of India," a Bench led by Justice Navin Sinha said, thus forcing the Delhi government to withdraw its petition. The plea also sought quashing and setting aside of an order passed by the Central Pollution Control Board order that extended the deadline for installation of FGD to the thermal power plants.

Senior advocate Colin Goncalves, appearing for Delhi government, said that sulphur dioxide and nitrogen dioxide are the "killer gases" and the matter relates to health of the citizens who are affected by pollution. The deadline for complying with emission norms should be closer as the problem of pollution is getting worse, he argued while seeking setting aside of the March 31 notification issued by the Union ministry of environment and forests amending/extending the timelines for complying with emission norms by coal-based power plants.

The petition also claimed that these power plants contributed about 5% to Delhi's air pollution and hardly been any progress had been made despite many directions issued by the apex court and the National Green Tribunal.

"Delhi is undergoing an unprecedented health emergency due to rising levels of air pollution, the major contributors of which are the 10 coal-fired power plants which operate within the 300-km radius of the capital region," it said, adding that "a large number of deaths are attributed to the emissions from thermal power plants."

It cited IIT Kanpur's 2016 report - 'Comprehensive Study on Air Pollution and Greenhouse Gases in Delhi' - to point out that 13 power plants in the radius of 300 km of Delhi, which also includes these 10 coal-fired thermal power plants, are expected to contribute significantly to air pollution in the city.

The plea also sought a direction to power plant operators and regulatory authorities, like Central Pollution Control Board (CPCB) and State Pollution Control Boards, to provide online continuous emission monitoring data in public domain.

CCI probe: WhatsApp tells HC new privacy policy is on hold

July 30 even as WhatsApp sought 15 days to file its reply to the CCI's notice.

Urging the bench to defer the hearing since a similar case is slated to be heard by the apex court on July 22, senior counsel Mukul Rohatgi, appearing for Facebook, questioned how can "sparingly used" suo motu jurisdiction was exercised by CCI when higher constitutional bodies were examining the issue. He pointed to pending cases on WhatsApp's 2016 privacy policy in the Supreme Court and various benches of the Delhi HC, submitting that CCI should exercise prudence by waiting for the outcome of court cases instead of jumping the gun.

Additional Solicitor General Aman Lekhi on behalf of CCI alleged that Facebook and WhatsApp were in violation of the Competition Act and mere non-implementation doesn't end the existence of the policy itself.

The single judge had earlier on April 22 rejected the petitions by Facebook and WhatsApp, saying though it would have been "prudent" for the CCI to await the outcome of petitions in the SC and the Delhi HC against WhatsApp's new privacy policy, not doing so would not make the regulator's order "perverse" or "wanting of jurisdiction".

seen before September, when firms usually scale up output to replenish inventory in the build-up to the festive season.

Several agencies have, over the past two months, slashed their FY22 growth forecasts for the country to 8.5-10%. The Reserve Bank of India, too, have trimmed its growth projection to 9.5% from 10.5%.

The finance ministry report suggested that, along with a boost to investment, the relief package could improve consumption sentiment, with further enhancement of employment support under Atmanirbhar Bharat Rozgar Yojana, a ₹7,500-crore credit guarantee scheme for on-lending by micro-finance institutions to small borrowers, and wider Bharat-Net digitisation coverage.

Similarly, free foodgrain until November and enhanced fertiliser subsidies under the package along with continued MGNREGA implementation would prop up rural demand in the coming quarters, the report said.

Of course, a sizeable chunk of the latest relief package (₹2.68 lakh crore of ₹6.29-lakh-crore package) comprised just credit guarantees. Also, the net fiscal impact stood at just ₹1.3 lakh crore in FY22, according to Nomura.

Chief economic adviser (CEA) Krishnamurthy V Subramanian recently said unconditional cash transfers might not be an appropriate tool to mitigate the blow of a crisis such as the pandemic. The minister participated virtually in the G20 High-Level Tax Symposium on Tax Policy and climate change, organised by Italy ahead of the 3rd G20 Finance Ministers and Central Bank Governors Meeting.

THE HEALTH MINISTRY has expressed serious concern over crowding at tourist destinations and markets across the country and has urged local administrations to enforce Covid norms. Ministry officials said that people's behaviour was an open invitation for the virus to spread infection.

V K Paul, member, health, Niti Aayog, said the second wave was not over and the country couldn't afford to lower its guard and behave irresponsibly. The war is not over and cases were still rising in Maharashtra, Kerala and the North-Eastern states, he said. Citing the rise in cases in Europe, Southeast Asia and 6 to 9,083 cases on July 9. Kerala's daily cases rose from 8,037 to 13,772 cases on July 9. Arunachal Pradesh, Manipur, Meghalaya, Assam, Tripura and Mizoram had large number of districts with positivity rate more than 10%. There are 66 districts in the country reporting more than 10% cases.

According to Paul, the country was still not safe and was far away from the baseline. This would be when daily cases would go under 10,000. The country was still reported 40,000 plus daily new cases with 43,393 cases reported on July 9. People were freely mixing and mingling without masks and social distancing, making it easy for the virus to spread, he said.

Govt: No case of SARS-CoV-2's Lambda variant found in India yet

THE GOVERNMENT ON Friday asserted that no case of the Lambda variant of SARS-CoV-2 has been found in India so far. Responding to a question at a press briefing, joint secretary in the health ministry, Lav Agarwal, said Indian SARS-CoV-2 Genomics Consortium (INSACOG) is closely monitoring the variant.

"Lambda was the seventh variant of interest identified by the WHO (World Health Organisation) on June 14 and it has been detected in 25 countries," he said. "In our country, no cases have been reported and INSACOG is monitoring it and we are watching. In Peru, 80% infections were from this variant. It has also been found in South American countries and also in the UK and European ones, and any public health impact will be monitored." — PTI ered 100 million doses. None of the manufacturers had prioritised COVAX and as a result supplies have been delayed. The target at present is to vaccinate at least 10% of the vulnerable in every country by September.

Large volumes of vaccines are expected to go out in the last quarter of this year and help achieve the two billion dose target. WHO's goal is 40% coverage in every country by end of this year and 70% of the population by the middle of next year, Swaminathan said. A short term quick win in supplies was possible with dose sharing by those who have excess doses and have achieved 30-40% coverage, she suggested.

Nearly 77% of all doses have been administered in top 10 countries and 41% in the top one. Low-income countries have received just 0.3% of doses, Swaminathan said on Friday at a Down to Earth webinar on vaccines - the global race between the virus, its variants and the vaccines. There were 105 Covid-19 vaccine candidates in clinical evaluation and out of these 27 coverage so any person in the 192 countries suffered an adverse event or death due to the vaccine, they would be eligible for compensation without having to go individually and fight legal cases.

Swaminathan was worried about rise in cases and subsequent increase in deaths. In the last 24 hours there have been 4.84 lakh new cases and 9,391 deaths across the world. Brazil, India, Indonesia, US and UK accounted for the highest new cases. Europe had reported a 32.2% rise in new cases in the last seven days. There was a 21.2% rise in cases in Eastern Mediterranean and 18.2% rise in Africa. She attributed this rise to the case to the Delta variant which was very transmissible with one person infecting seven to eight people compared as opposed to the original Wuhan strain where one person would infect two to three people. The social mixing seen in many countries, relaxation of public health measure and inadequate vaccine coverage was also causing rise in cases.

Stock curbs on pulses necessary, says additional secretary

FE BUREAU
Pune, July 9

NIDHI KHARE, ADDITIONAL secretary, Department of Consumer Affairs, on Friday stated the imposition of stock restrictions was necessary to ensure availability of pulses in the market. The department has strengthened the daily price monitoring system, which has given a very accurate feedback on how wholesale, retail or even mandi prices are behaving, she said.

"We are now using more technology in predicting and monitoring of prices across mandis, which has given us the confidence to bring in stock restrictions. Though it is not a very popular step, it was required. This measure has been taken for few months while we are watching the market and our goal is to provide pulses which are very cheap food commodity without adversely affecting the farmer or miller," she said. Khare was speaking at a webinar organised by the India Pulses and Grains Association (IPGA) and India Myanmar Chamber of Commerce on the Tur, Urad and Moong scenario in both countries. Khare said the government in the middle of the Pandemic in May began asking stockists to declare their stocks to understand the availability of pulses in the market. Basically, it helped in checking the expected rise in the price, she said. Khare said that the government was in touch with all state governments and that steps would be taken to ensure that the imposition of stock limits do not affect farmers adversely for the next sowing season. "When we saw that the availability of pulses is a challenge and several other countries including Africa are willing to supply these pulses, we made a bold decision of entering into a relationship for over 5-year span so that farmers in those countries are assured to an extent that there will be a ready market in India," she said.

TCS plans to hire 40,000 freshers from campuses in FY22

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
Mumbai, July 9

INDIA'S LARGEST SOFTWARE exporter TCS will be hiring more than 40,000 freshers from campuses in the country in the 2021-22, a top executive said on Friday.

The company, the largest employer in the private sector with a base of over five lakh employees, had hired 40,000 graduates from campuses last year and will do better on that number, its chief of global human resources Milind Lakkad told reporters here.

He said pandemic-related restrictions do not pose any difficulties in hiring and added that last year, 3.60 lakh freshers had appeared for an entrance test virtually.

"From the campus in India, we hired 40,000 last year. We will continue to hire and hire 40,000 or more this year in India," Lakkad told reporters, adding that lateral hiring will also be "robust" this year.

Similarly, the company will also do better on the 2,000 trainees hired from American campuses last year, he said, without sharing an exact number.

Lakkad said a lot of planning goes into hiring from campuses and it is not just-in-time" hiring when a business deal gets signed up, and typically it takes over three months before a resource gets on a project.

The company's chief operating officer N Ganapathy Subramaniam said there is no dearth of talent supply in India and also disagreed with concerns about its cost. He termed Indian talent as "phenomenal" given their skill sets and the work culture.

Chief executive and managing director Rajesh Gopinathan said TCS often gets asked if the organisation is too large, but said the way it is structured makes it possible from a management and nimble-footedness perspective.

TCS has broken the organisation into small, autonomous entities with support from the top, which helps take care of challenges, he said, pointing out that several entities like the Railways, armed forces and political parties function with large pools of people.

Lakkad said the company expects the very low attrition level of 8% to go up once the situation normalises, adding that the normal levels are between 11-12%. Even if the attrition goes up, the company's operating model can ensure that the work or margins are not impacted, he said.

Its newly appointed chief financial officer Samir Seksaria said even though the company expects discretionary spending to normalise by the end of the fiscal, they are a small subset of its overall expenditure. There are other levers to compress costs as well, he said, stressing that structurally there are no deterrents to the aspired operating profit margin band of 26-28%, which was missed in Q1.

Speaking a day after the company announced its June quarter results, which showed a setback on its India business, Gopinathan said the 14% dip in revenues potentially does not represent any cyclical in business and was purely out of its businesses like online exams and passport making coming to a "standstill" because of the lockdowns.

He said the company had faced similar troubles during the first lockdown in the first quarter of 2020-21.

INTERVIEW: RAJEN VAGADIA, VP and president, Qualcomm India & SAARC

'5G will be leveraged on massive scale by start-ups, operators, industries'

US-based tech major Qualcomm, a key player in the 5G space, believes the technology can be a game-changer in helping industries leapfrog to the next level. Rajen Vagadia, VP and president, Qualcomm India & SAARC, tells Kiran Rathee how 5G technology can help cater to the needs of society and help industries prepare for the future. Excerpts:

The government has announced 5G trials. How do you see the development?

The recent approval on 5G trials is a very welcome development. When 3G and 4G were launched in India, spectrum was allocated to telecom service providers, leading to trials and small, commercial, city-wise launches followed by larger geographies, which took a few years. However, 5G is different from 3G and 4G as there will now be multiple industry and vertical use cases associated with it. 5G will be leveraged on a massive scale by everyone right from start-ups to operators to industries. Therefore, conducting trials is a good strategy.

The government wants telcos to use local 5G technology (5Gi) during the trials. What promise does the local technology hold when compared to the currently prevalent 3GPP standards for 5G?

With the Indian trials, there are two technology options: trials based on the globally harmonised 3GPP standard and the 5G standard that is unique for India. The 5G standard has been designed to address the typical Indian rural use case. With 5G trials operators, will have the opportunity to understand what works best for them, as operators have their unique way of designing their networks, leveraging standards and evaluating technology options.

Qualcomm is developing a 5G solution with Reliance Jio. Will the solution be tested during the upcoming trials, and how is it different from other available technologies?

We have a long-term collaborative relationship with Jio. We have been working with them on various fronts. With the shared goal of extending the benefits of digital connectivity to everyone and everything, we anticipate Jio Platforms to deliver a new set of services and experiences to India consumers. As they move forward in their 5G journey, we aim to also support them in rolling out advanced 5G infrastructure and services for India.

How do you see the opening of more spectrum bands like the millimetre band and the sub-1 GHz band for trials?

The addition of millimetre wave is a brilliant and very welcome move by the government. It is one of the key spectrum bands for 5G, due to the availability of large bandwidths. Spectrum is an enabler of innovations, now also for the large tech start-up base of India, who can leverage it in different ways to create solutions benefiting not just India but also relevant for the world. But to ensure the optimal adoption of 5G spectrum, it is vital that it is made available in right quantity and cost.

Nowadays, telcos have started embracing open RAN. What future does it have, and does it mean the end of proprietary networks in India?

Open RAN (O-RAN) is a new methodology for rolling out disaggregated networks, which is like a prerequisite for the design of modern networks. As its architecture is more scalable and flexible, it allows participation of more companies and start-ups along with the conventional infrastructure partners of the network operators. It is also more cost-efficient when compared to traditional networks. Network operators will have a choice of designing their network architecture leveraging the conventional networks, which I call as monolithic network, along with O-RAN.

organisations need to re-skill and upskill the workforce to deliver new business models in the post-pandemic era. Edited excerpts:

When we talk about reskilling, which sector and what skills are you referring to?

Most industries were severely impacted by the global economic slowdown due to the pandemic. However, a few industries like telecom and pharmaceuticals really flourished. While IT and IT Services organisations are focusing on enhancing technology and developer skills, we are witnessing a spike in interest on leadership development, workplace safety and compliance across industries. Organisations in the post-pandemic era are also considering investing in digital dexterity, productivity and collaboration skills to be able to build a resilient, agile and adaptable workforce.

cation, critical thinking, teamwork, negotiation and time management.

What are the traditional ways of skilling and why are they becoming outdated?

The traditional ways of learning like classroom training and online content-led learning and development had a critical role in success pre-pandemic. However, the new models of virtual learning for skills and competency development are emerging to support the new digital workplace. Some of the critical reasons of this evolution are that more core processes are going digital, existing talent pipelines have been failing for some time and the rise of the new-collar worker that reflects the need to emphasise skills and ability versus someone's academic pedigree.

What are the new ways in which employees need to be re-skilled?

The value proposition of humans in the workforce is shifting to essentially 'human capabilities', such as curiosity and empathy. In this scenario, employers also need to consider not only how to attract top talent, but also potentially rethink learning and development and better cultivate the social and emotional skills that their workforce needs to add value in the future.

What are the challenges that companies face while looking to re-skill their employees?

Most organisations are not prepared to address the critical issue of gap in skills and competencies. To be able to succeed in current economic slowdown, organisations need to not only address the skills gap in the workforce, but also have a clear sense of how to address the problem. One critical path for success is to have the necessary resources to re-skill the employee pool — as it isn't just a matter of changing processes so HR and learning and development can keep up; it's a matter of equipping employees to ensure their companies' futures. This dynamic is about more than remote working...it's about how leaders can re-skill and up-skill the workforce to deliver new business models in the post-pandemic era.

HOPE VS FEAR

Nilesh Shah, MD, Kotak Mahindra AMC

This reminds me of theory of hope vs fear. Last year, we were engulfed with fear of Covid and markets slid to a low, but today we have hope in the form of vaccination and pick-up in economy. So eventually we have victory of hope over fear.

RBI signals tolerance for higher yields at auction

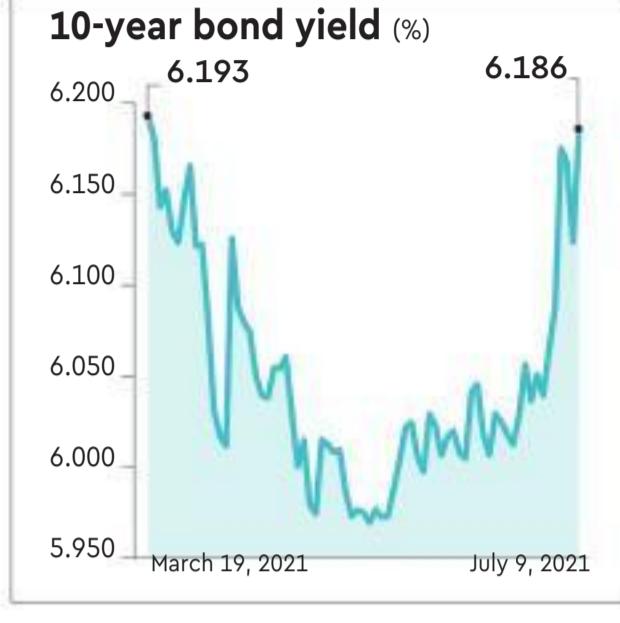

The yield on current benchmark 10-year note rose 6 basis points to 6.19% after auction results

SUBHADIP SIRCAR & RONOJOY MAZUMDAR Mumbai, July 9

THE RESERVE BANK of India set a coupon of 6.10% for the new 10-year bond sale, higher than that of the current benchmark, signalling a slight tolerance for higher yields after months of trying to cap them at 6%.

The government sold ₹14,000 crore ($1.9 billion) of the new bond as part of a ₹26,000-crore sale, the Reserve Bank of India said in a statement on Friday. They yield is higher than the 5.85% coupon for the current benchmark and 6.05% predicted in a Bloomberg survey. Bonds fell after the auction results.

The RBI has been locked in a tussle with the bond market as it strives to anchor yields to keep the government's borrowing costs low, despite rising inflation and supply concerns. The higher 10-year coupon rate rent benchmark 10-year note rose six basis points to 6.19% after the auction results.

Bond yields have started rising over the past few weeks as inflation held above the RBI's 2%-6% comfort zone and accelerating global oil prices stoked fears that the central bank will signal policy normalisation in August.

Governor Shaktikanta Das said in a recent interview that the RBI is committed to ensuring the lowest possible costs for the government's borrowings. Das also denied that the RBI is focusing only on the 10-year note.

"The RBI is realigning to the rising yields, but it will keep the pace gradual," said Debendra Dash, head of fixed income at AU Small Finance Bank in Mumbai. "I don't see much demand coming in the secondary market given inflation worries and fears of more borrowing."

This time around, the RBI is not only comfortable giving slightly higher yield, but also giving the entire stock to the market," said Harish Agarwal, a fixed-income trader with FirstRand Bank in Mumbai. It's encouraging that the RBI is likely willing to support the new 10-year around 6.1%, compared to their 6% focus earlier, he said.

The cutoff yield for the benchmark 10-year bond is closely watched by the market as it acts as a reference point for the entire gamut of borrowing costs. The yield on cur-

Sebi issues guidelines on valuation of securities with multiple put options

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA New Delhi, July 9

SEBI ON FRIDAY came out with a new framework with regard to valuation of securities, having multiple put options, held by mutual funds. The new framework will be applicable with effect from October 1, 2021, Sebi said in a circular.

In respect of valuation of securities with multiple put options present "ab initio", wherein put option is factored into valuation of the security by the valuation agency, Sebi has taken certain decision based on the recommendation of its mutual fund advisory committee.

Under the framework, if the put option is not exercised by a mutual fund while exercising the put option would have been in favour of the scheme, fund houses will have to give justification for not exercising such option to valuation agencies, board of AMC and trustees.

NEW FRAMEWORK

■ If the put option is not exercised by a mutual fund while exercising the put option would have been in favour of the scheme, fund houses will have to give justification for not exercising such option to valuation agencies, board of AMC and trustees

■ The explanation must be given on or before the last date of the notice period

■ Valuation agencies will not take into account the remaining put options for the purpose of valuation of the security

Trust AMC, said.

"These operational guidelines of Sebi will ensure that mutual funds have proper systems to update the fund management team, that there's a put option coming and they have to decide on whether to exercise the option or not, whichever is beneficial for the scheme holders," he said.

Valuation agencies will not take into account the remaining put options for the purpose of valuation of the security.

The put option will be considered as 'in favour of the scheme' if the yield of the valuation price ignoring the put option under evaluation is more than the contractual yield or coupon rate by 30 basis points, the regulator said.

The move will ensure that fund managers exercise their opinion properly and conduct the fund management in a proper way, Sandeep Bagla, CEO of Trust AMC, said.

"These operational guidelines of Sebi will ensure that mutual funds have proper systems to update the fund management team, that there's a put option coming and they have to decide on whether to exercise the option or not, whichever is beneficial for the scheme holders," he said.

CAR REVIEW: NEW MERCEDES-BENZ GLA

High on luxury, high on price

The smallest SUV made by Mercedes-Benz packs a luxurious punch, and yet it doesn't have some features buyers may expect in a car that costs over ₹40 lakh

VIKRAM CHAUDHARY

MY NEIGHBOUR, a proud owner of the Toyota Fortuner, gave me an interesting analogy when I offered him a quick ride on the new Mercedes-Benz GLA last week. "If my SUV is akin to a standard 5-BHK flat, this car (the GLA) feels like an ultra-luxurious 2-BHK apartment," he said.

The GLA is the smallest SUV made by Mercedes-Benz, but in its little cabin space it packs a luxurious punch. At the same time, it misses out on certain features that buyers may expect in a car that costs more than Rs 40 lakh. We recently drove it in and around Delhi.

Design

Unlike the previous generation GLA that looked like a 'raised hatchback', the new GLA looks more like an SUV—at least from the front and rear. The side profile, however, is still more hatchback-like.

Cabin

Space, both on front and rear seats, is very good. The boot space, however, is compromised by the spare tyre. Quality of plastics and fabric is top-notch. The huge interactive screen on the dashboard is a joy to operate, air vents look like jet engine turbines, and inside door handles look like pieces of art. And yet some features are missing (such as ventilated seats and rear-seat armrest, which even cars such as Hyundai Alcazar and Skoda Kushaq have).

Engines

The petrol is the 1,332cc (163 hp) engine mated to 7-speed DCT gearbox and the diesel is 1,950cc (190 hp) mated to 8-speed DCT. I drove the diesel (0-100 km/h in 7.3 seconds), and the claimed acceleration time of the petrol variant is good too (0-100 km/h in 8.7 seconds).

Ride

Ride and handling is good. One, minimal tyre or engine noise enters the cabin. Two, even on sharp turns the car doesn't appear to lose its line and tyres just don't seem to lose grip. Three, the view from the driver's seat is good. Four, seats have such a design that you may not feel uncomfortable on long drives. But on bad roads or loose gravel the ride turns a bit rough.

Price

The GLA 200 petrol is priced ₹43.6 lakh, the GLA 220d ₹45.2 lakh and the GLA 220d 4M ₹47.7 lakh, ex-showroom. It gets eight-year warranty on engine and transmission, in addition to three-year comprehensive warranty. The GLA is expensive, as far as space per cubic feet is concerned. But it comes across as a better buy as compared to the Audi Q2, and even compared to the A-Class Limousine that is slightly more affordable but has a relatively cramped rear-seating area. As far as cars such as the Fortuner are concerned (which aren't direct competitors), one can go back to the standard 5-BHK flat versus ultra-luxurious 2-BHK apartment analogy, and make an informed decision.

(For the record, the GLA costs about ₹10 lakh more than the Fortuner.)

How to make bus operators more profitable

Long-distance bus aggregation still has a long way to go in India

ILLUSTRATION: ROHIT PHORE

AMIT GUPTA

THE COVID-19 pandemic has hit travel and tourism hard. And with social distancing expected to be the norm, the way the world travels is also changing.

In India, almost 90% of travel is undertaken through trains and buses, of which bus travel has a lion's share. For short or intermediate distances (100-400 km), 60% of traffic moves through buses.

In this category, while trains have limited capacity—routes are congested and seat availability is low especially during festive seasons and in high population density geographies—flights are costly. Buses are the natural alternative, but the pandemic has put the brakes on buses.

According to last year's UITP World Bank survey, a mere 1-2% of bus operators were running normal services and 81% reported no ridership at all. Also, 38% said a major challenge was crowd management, a prerequisite during the pandemic. The survey covered government, private, urban and intercity bus operators.

Bus operators' agony had been accentuated by sky-rocketing diesel prices, coupled with low travel demand. So, what ails the sector?

Lack of tech-based solutions

Airlines have several resources to predict traffic and select routes; even railways have a centralised ticket issuance data and occupancy rate data to know which routes have higher demand. But when it comes to bus travel, given its unorganised nature, huge number of transporters and lack of pooled data, operators mostly rely on their own judgement. This leads to suboptimal and inefficient utilisation of assets.

The good news, however, is bus operators are realising the power of data and technology companies. In our experience, in the last few months we have observed a surge of 200% in our system from operators looking for our data-backed insights for selection of best routes to operate on.

Passenger mobility contributes around 6% to India's GDP, and it's time for key stakeholders to come together to sail through these challenging times.

Food for thought

Smart selection of routes on the basis of predictive demand analysis has been eluding the sector, resulting in overlaps and crowding of specific routes. The other challenge is limited presence of digital channels. During such times, operators can consider associating with data-backed tech companies to 'earn more'. Operators should also consider associating with tech platforms with end-to-end capabilities, which can assist them to 'save' up to 15% of their daily operating costs.

ing cash outflow of GBP2 bn; (iv) demand outlook is extremely strong with outstanding retail orders of 110 K units—highest in the company's history.

Will things normalise from Q4FY22? As new capacities are expected to come on-stream over the next 12-18 months, we expect some shortage of semiconductors to persist till then. However, we are assuming normalisation (as it existed till Q4FY21—JLR lost ~7K units of production). This is our base assumption and remains a key variable. It's pertinent to note that H2 and especially Q4 are generally most important quarters for JLR.

Outlook: Short-term pressure

India and JLR are on the cusp of a strong demand and product cycle tailwind. This should facilitate balance sheet improvement. Hence, we maintain 'BUY/SO' with a TP of ₹405 (earlier ₹436) as we roll over to Dec-22e. Sustained supply constraint is a key risk as H2 volumes are higher than H1.

We have assumed normalisation of shortage by Q4FY22. We expect JLR to accelerate its cost efficiency programme and focus on optimising its product mix to limit the impact.

Industry volumes expected to grow 45% y-o-y/decline 20% q-o-q during Q1FY22e to 85 mn t with pan-India utilisation at ~70%. West and South regions are likely to lead volume growth on y-o-y basis on a low base. Similarly, non-trade demand is likely to be better on a y-o-y basis led by higher infrastructure demand. JKCE is likely to lead with ~70% y-o-y volume growth while UTCEM/ACEM may see 50-55% y-o-y growth.

Average pan-India prices up 6% q-o-q during Q1FY22 led by 11% q-o-q rise in East and 6-7% q-o-q increase in South and West. Prices in North and Central regions are up 3-4% q-o-q. FAN-FREE GAMES FOR SAFETY

I've said all along I wouldn't rule out staging it without spectators in the case of a state of emergency. The administration would do its utmost to ensure safety, especially through border measures.

Elon Musk's China battery partner is now richer than Jack Ma

BLOOMBERG
July 9

ZENG YUQUN, THE founder of the world's biggest electric-vehicle battery maker, has overtaken Jack Ma in the wealth rankings, a symbolic moment in the rise of China's green billionaires.

Zeng's net worth has jumped to $49.5 billion, according to the Bloomberg Billionaires Index, as shares of Contemporary Amperex Technology surged this year. That exceeds Alibaba Group Holding co-founder Ma's wealth of $48.1 billion and makes Zeng one of the five richest people in Asia for the first time.

It's the latest sign of how a new generation of tycoons in China is amassing vast fortunes in the clean-energy boom. Investors have pushed up stocks such as CATL, a key supplier to Tesla, as the country leads the market for electric-vehicle sales and pursues an ambitious policy of reaching carbon neutrality in 2060.

"The billionaire ranking used to be dominated by real estate tycoons and later tech entrepreneurs, and now we are seeing more from the new energy sector," said

Hao Gao, director of Tsinghua University's NIFR Global Family Business Research Center. "As the industry leader for electric-vehicle batteries, CATL will benefit most from the carbon emission goal."

A spokeswoman for CATL declined to comment on Zeng's net worth.

Zeng, 53, who hails from a hillside village in Fujian province in southeast China, built CATL into a battery juggernaut in less than a decade, creating the largest global producer of rechargeable cells for plug-in vehicles.

Global electric-vehicle battery sales more than doubled in the first five months of this year from a year earlier, with CATL accounting for 31.2% of the market, the largest share, according to an SNE Research report. New-energy vehicle retail sales in China rose 9.8% in 2020 to 1.11 million units, according to the China Passenger Car Association.

BloombergNEF expects the company's global sales growth to continue, benefiting from economies of scale, a cost-competitive upstream supply chain and an established client base.

ATL's stock has surged more than 20-fold since the company went public in Shenzhen in 2018. It's up 55% this year alone as demand for EVs increases, countries work to reduce carbon emissions and costs tumble. Shares fell 2.4% on Friday.

In addition to Tesla, CATL counts BMW and Volkswagen among its customers. In an interview last year, Zeng said he and Tesla Chief Executive Officer Elon Musk text about technology, Covid-19 and Musk's main interest: cheaper batteries and cars.

Zeng, who earned a doctorate in condensed matter physics from the Chinese Academy of Science in Beijing, isn't the only billionaire who's benefiting from the surge in CATL's stock.

Washington, July 9

THE UNITED STATES on Friday added 34 entities to its economic blacklist, including more than 10 from China, a notice from the US Department of Commerce said.

Sources earlier told Reuters the additions were targeted over alleged human rights abuses and high-tech surveillance in Xinjiang.

The Chinese embassy in Washington did not immediately respond to a request for comment.

One of the sources said the department plans to add 14 Chinese companies to the Entity List over reported abuses in Xinjiang. The identities of the companies being added were not immediately known. Some companies from other countries are also set to be added to the department's blacklist as soon as Friday.

The White House declined to comment, while the Commerce Department did not immediately respond to a request for comment.

Generally, entity-listed companies are required to apply for licenses from the Commerce Department and face tough scrutiny. Last month, the Commerce Department said it was adding the five Chinese entities "for accepting or utilising forced labour in the implementation of the People's Republic of China's campaign of repression against Muslim minority groups in the Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region."

did not immediately respond to a request for comment. The latest action shows President Joe Biden aims to press China over what the administration says are worsening human rights abuses against the Uyghur population in Xinjiang.

The data have not been published, nor peer-reviewed. The vaccine makers said they expected to submit their findings to the Food and Drug Administration in the coming weeks, a step toward gaining authorisation for booster shots.

Pfizer and BioNTech also reported promising results from studies of people who received a third dose of the original vaccine. A booster given six months after the second dose of the vaccine increases the potency of antibodies against the original virus and the Beta variant by five- to tenfold, the companies said.

Vaccine efficacy may decline six months after immunization, the companies said in a news release, and booster doses may be needed to fend off virus variants.

The data have not been published, nor peer-reviewed. The vaccine makers said they expected to submit their findings to the Food and Drug Administration in the coming weeks, a step toward gaining authorisation for booster shots.

But the companies' assertions contradict other research, and several experts pushed back against the claim that boosters will be needed.

"There's really no indication for a third booster or a third dose of an mRNA vaccine, given the variants that we are circulating at this time," said Dr. Céline Gounder, an infectious disease specialist at Bellevue Hospital Center in New York.

"In fact, many of us question whether you will ever need boosters."

GROWING CONCERN THAT Covid-19 vaccines being deployed across much of the developing world aren't capable of thwarting the delta variant is prompting some countries to look at offering third doses to bolster immunity against more-infectious virus strains.

Though definitive evidence is yet to emerge backing the need for so-called "booster" shots, health officials from Thailand to Bahrain and the United Arab Emirates have already decided to offer the extra doses to some people already inoculated with vaccines from Chinese makers Sinovac Biotech, Sinopharm and from AstraZeneca.

Officials are being motivated by concerns that delta and other variants appear to be breaking down defences of vaccines not made from the super-effective messenger RNA technology, or mRNA. In places like Mongolia and the UAE, high levels of coverage with Chinese shots using the older, less effective inactivated vaccine platform hasn't stopped a surge in cases. In the Seychelles, five people fully vaccinated with AstraZeneca's shot have died.

Research shows that the delta mutation is powerful enough to make even mRNA shots from BioNTech and Moderna less effective, bringing down protection to below 90%. The effectiveness of AstraZeneca's viral vector vaccine against symptomatic infections caused by the variant was lower at 60%, a study showed, though it can still prevent more than 90% of hospitalisations.

Countries are hoping a booster, either mRNA or a dose of another shot previously taken, could bolster protection ahead of the return of colder weather that's optimal for the virus's spread. Unlike western developers, Sinovac and Sinopharm have shared little about how their vaccines could protect against variants. Shao Yiming, a researcher with the Chinese Center for Disease Control and Prevention, said in May that preliminary studies indicated Chinese vaccines were still protective against variants emerging from India, without elaborating.

The two inactivated vaccines produced by Sinopharm were 73% and 78% effective against symptomatic Covid in phase III trials.

Various results from Sinovac's clinical trials across Brazil, Indonesia and Turkey put efficacy at a wide range of 50% to over 80%, which has fuelled uncertainty about how well it works.

Biden targets top companies in competition order

PRESIDENT JOE BIDEN will sign a sweeping executive order designed to promote competition across American industries and in the labour market, calling on regulators to take steps to lower drug prices, toughen merger enforcement in technology and banking and give workers more power to change jobs and negotiate higher wages. While there's a long way to go from a presidential directive to final regulations, the president's directive seeks to address the sharp increase in consolidation of industries over the last two decades, which has raised worries that the biggest companies are choking off competition and innovation.

WHO's chief scientist warns the pandemic isn't slowing

BLOOMBERG

July 9

CORONAVIRUS INFECTIONS ARE rising across most regions of the world as the delta variant spreads, clear evidence that the pandemic isn't on the wane, said the World Health Organization's chief scientist.

While vaccination levels in some countries are reducing severe cases and hospitalisations, large parts of the world face oxygen shortages, a lack of hospital beds and higher mortality, said the WHO's Soumya Swaminathan in an interview with Bloomberg Television.

"In the last 24 hours, close to 500,000 new cases have been reported and about 9,300 deaths - now that's not a pandemic that's slowing down," Swaminathan said.

Cases are rising in five of six WHO regions, and mortality rates in Africa have jumped by 30% to 40% in two weeks, said Swaminathan. The main reason for the increases are the fast-spreading delta variant, slow vaccination rollouts globally and the relaxation of safety measures like mask mandates and physical distancing rules. The WHO this week urged governments to be careful when reopening so as not to put at risk the gains made. In England, remaining legal restrictions are set to be removed on July 19.

UK Covid cases surged, presenting Prime Minister Boris Johnson with more worrying data about the fast-spreading delta variant of the virus ahead of a planned easing of restrictions on July 19.

Germany reclassified Spain as an area of risk after coronavirus infections surged, raising the alarm about a country that's among the most popular destinations for German tourists.

The mayor of Johannesburg, Geoff Makhubo, has died after contracting the coronavirus. Makhubo was hospitalised after becoming infected with Covid-19 and succumbed to the disease on Friday, the city said.

The European Medicines Agency's safety committee (PRAC) recommended that people who have previously had capillary leak syndrome must not be vaccinated with J&J's Covid-19 vaccine.

The British public continues to see value in the current health measures to slow the spread of Covid-19 as the government prepares to end compulsory face coverings and social distancing on July 19.

IMF board backs $650 billion aid plan to help poor countries

THE INTERNATIONAL MONETARY Fund said on Friday that its executive board approved a plan to issue $650 billion worth of reserve funds, essentially creating money that troubled countries can use to purchase vaccines, finance health care and pay down debt.

The new allocation of so-called Special Drawing Rights would be the largest such expansion of currency reserves in the IMF's history. If given final approval by the IMF's board of governors, as is expected, the reserves could become available by the end of next month.

"This is a shot in the arm for the world," Kristalina Georgieva, managing director of the IMF, said in a statement. "The SDR allocation will help every IMF member country - particularly vulnerable countries - and strengthen their response to the Covid-19 crisis."

Oxfam: 11 people die of hunger each minute in world

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cairo, July 9

OXFAM says 11 people die of hunger each minute in the world and that the number facing famine-like conditions around the globe has increased six times over the last year.

In a report titled "The Hunger Virus Multiplies," Oxfam said Thursday that the death toll from famine outpaces that of Covid-19, which kills around seven people per minute.

"The statistics are staggering, but we must remember that these figures are made up of individual people facing unimaginable suffering. Even one person is too many," said Oxfam America's President and CEO Abby Maxman.

The humanitarian group also said that 155 million people around the world now live at crisis levels of food insecurity or worse, some 20 million more than last year.

Around two-thirds of them face hunger because their country is in military conflict.

Facebook finds itself in strange faceoff with Faceparty founder

BLOOMBERG

July 9

A SOCIAL MEDIA pioneer tried to convince a judge there's a big mistake in how Facebook came to acquire the rights to the word "face" more than a decade ago.

Andrew David Bamforth, the co-founder of Faceparty, a British site that enjoyed a brief heyday in the early 2000s, claims he was mentally incapacitated for 12 years, including in 2008 when he signed a trademark rights agreement that Mark Zuckerberg's company relied on to build the world's biggest social network.

Bamforth finally went to court last year, alleging that his illness allowed him to be duped by Facebook's attorney into thinking he had no choice but to accept the company's terms. He also claims the 2008 transaction was faulty because CIS Internet, the operator of Faceparty, had transferred the trademark rights a few months earlier to a different business owned by Bamforth called Anarchy Towers.

Bamforth went to court last year, alleging that his illness allowed him to be duped by Facebook's attorney into thinking he had no choice but to accept the company's terms.

At a hearing Thursday, the allegations didn't get a particularly warm reception from US Magistrate Judge Donna Ryu in Oakland. Ryu suggested that Bamforth was "talking from both sides of his mouth," saying on one hand that he was mentally unfit to conduct business from 2006 to 2008, but also basing his lawsuit on a 2008 deal between CIS and Anarchy. "Those two things seem fundamentally at odds: I'm so incapacitated I can't do business versus I did business with myself such that they didn't get anything," Ryu said.

Bamforth told the judge he didn't even realize there was a CIS-Anarchy agreement until he discovered while reviewing paperwork that his accountant had "jumped in to solve the problem."

"I do understand that there is a difficulty here," Bamforth said.

Facebook's lawyer, Bobby Ghajar, made the point that the suit was filed many years after the company built a "multibillion-dollar brand." Ghajar also argued that the breakdown Bamforth suffered doesn't rise to the level of mental incapacity under California law.

When Bamforth asked the judge for a chance to redraft his complaint to address her concerns, Ryu said she's not sure it can be salvaged.

"If I look at this and think that there's something that could be fixed, I'm going to give you a chance to fix it, I have to, by law," she said.

'Golden age' for China brands bolstered by tech crackdown

BLOOMBERG
July 9

CHINA'S INTENSIFYING CRACKDOWN on technology companies is proving to be a cautionary tale for investors in the nation's start-ups, with one notable exception: consumer brands.

From cosmetics to bubble tea, Chinese ventures making waves among a new generation of shoppers are becoming a magnet for funds hunting for their next big hit. Investors may see such companies as a viable alternative to tech start-ups because the government, rather than clamping down, is pushing to foster domestic champions that can fuel spending and compete with the likes of Coca-Cola and Nike.

Beijing's tightening regulation is increasing barriers to invest in traditionally popular areas such as tech, said Mark Tanner, managing director of Shanghai-based marketing and branding firm China Skinny. "In contrast, consumer sectors from food, fashion to fitness and leisure are seeing increased interest from investors with more policy support," he said.

Chinese brands are grabbing market share from global rivals in the world's largest consumer market. Even before the tech crackdown, consumer-sector start-ups including healthy-beverage maker Genki Forest and KKK & Co.-backed dairy producer AdoptACow were drawing more funding -- about $62 billion since 2018, according to data provider Preqin. While that's dwarfed by the $112 billion put into tech, the number is expected to increase in coming years.

"The next decade will be the golden age for the rise of Chinese brands," said Frank Wei, co-head of Warburg Pincus China, which invested in Genki Forest, valued at $6 billion. "The rise of Generation Z reshapes the industry."

China's decision to curb business of ride-hailing giant Didi Global days after its US listing is the latest bombshell for tech investors, who have seen a months-long clampdown hurt shares of companies from Alibaba Group Holding to Tencent Holdings.

That's denting fundraising plans of tech start-ups. LinkDoc Technology, which provides healthcare services using artificial intelligence, halted its plans for a US initial public offering, Bloomberg reported on Thursday.

Authorities in Beijing are worried that tech firms listing in the US pose a security risk because of the vast troves of data they hold. So far they are focusing on internet companies -- which are most adept at harnessing and employing user information -- rather than those that provide everyday products.

The consumer sector is a good option for capital to shift to because it faces much lower policy risks than tech and education -- which has also faced a crackdown -- a person from a Shanghai-based private equity firm said, asking not to be identified because of the sensitivity of the matter. On the downside, consumer companies face fierce competition and uncertain growth prospects, the person said.

One Chinese venture capital business is considering shifting its focus to categories that are most likely to get government support and favourable policies, including local consumer brands and environment-friendly enterprises, a person at the company said.

Turmoil in Haiti could fuel humanitarian catastrophe

THE NEW YORK TIMES
July 9

AFTER 24 HOURS filled with intense standoffs and gun battles, the police said they had identified more than two dozen people involved in the assassination of President Jovenel Moïse this week, including 26 Colombians and two Americans of Haitian descent.

But the authorities offered no clue as to who might have organised the operation or a motive for the attack.

Political intrigue, gang violence, general lawlessness, a public health crisis driven by the pandemic and difficulties delivering essential international aid have conspired to create the worst crisis in Haiti in years.

The Caribbean nation's interim prime minister, Claude Joseph, says he has taken command of the police and the army. But the president, days before his death, had appointed a new prime minister, Ariel Henry. Henry told a local newspaper after the assassination that he was the rightful prime minister.

That constitutional crisis has been complicated by the pandemic. While there are many legal uncertainties, in the past the country's top justice has been expected to fill any void in the political leadership. But that justice, René Sylvestre, died of Covid-19 in June. Haiti, the only country in the Americas with no active Covid-19 inoculation campaign, has virtually no vaccine doses, and public health experts say that the coronavirus is far more widespread.
