Vaccine ready in a few weeks: Modi

Says health and frontline workers, elderly with comorbidities to be inoculated first

ADITI TANDON
TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

NEW DELHI, DECEMBER 4
Prime Minister Narendra Modi today said a Covid-19 vaccine was expected to be available in the next few weeks. The inoculation drive, he said, would begin as soon as scientists granted the necessary approvals.

"Experts believe we will not have to wait long now to get a Covid vaccine. It will be ready in the next few weeks. As soon as we get a green signal from the scientists, the vaccination drive will start. The Centre is working with states to determine priority groups for vaccination," the PM said. Around 1 crore health workers, 2 crore frontline workers and 26 crore people above 50 years with comorbidities are likely to get priority in vaccination.

He was speaking at a meeting of Parliament floor leaders of various political parties, including the Congress, TMC, NCP, DMK, YSRCP, JD, BJD, Shiv Sena, TRS, BSP, SP and AIADMK among others. Thirteen Opposition leaders spoke during the meeting. Pricing would be a key issue of discussion with states, the PM said noting that national good would be the top goal during price fixation.

Hailing Indian scientists, who, he said, were "reassured and brimming with confidence about vaccine progress", the PM noted that the world was watching India to deliver a low-cost, efficacious vaccine even though some global players had unveiled their candidates.

Listing eight potential Covid vaccine candidates to be manufactured in India, the PM said, "There are eight potential vaccines in different stages of development which are to be made in India. These include India's own three candidates." The reference was to two indigenous Covid vaccines (Bharat Biotech-ICMR and Zydus Cadila) and the Oxford University vaccine being manufactured by the Serum Institute of India that plans to apply for emergency use authorisation in two weeks.

On distribution networks, the PM assured the nation of ample national capacity for scale-up saying India's immunisation network was unparalleled in the world and assessment of additional need of cold chains and logistics was underway. He guaranteed transparency in vaccination rollout saying the government had developed a digital platform, Covid-19 Vaccine Information Network (Co-WIN), to provide real-time information on beneficiaries, stockpiles and distribution.

Roll back laws, insist farmers | Govt ready for MSP assurance in writing | Another round of talks today

TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

NEW DELHI, DECEMBER 4

A day prior to the scheduled meeting with the Centre, farmers' unions on Friday gave a call for a "Bharat bandh" on December 8. The agitating farmers will burn effigies of the Modi government and some corporate houses on Saturday even while talks between their representatives and Union Agriculture Minister Narendra Singh Tomar regarding the three contentious farm laws are underway.

The farm leaders have reportedly decided to sit through the meeting only if the Centre agrees to repeal the laws and guarantees MSP (minimum support price) for all 23 crops. The farmers also plan to gherao toll plazas. While the Modi government appears willing to make some amendments to the laws and give a written assurance on the MSP it is unlikely to agree to a rollback. It remains to be seen how much the government is willing to concede to buy peace. The Modi government had in 2015 made a U-

TRS leads in H'bad civic elections, big gains for BJP

HYDERABAD, DECEMBER 4

The ruling Telangana Rashtra Samithi (TRS) has maintained its lead in the Greater Hyderabad Municipal Corporation (GHMC) polls, but not without losing a large number of seats to the BJP that has emerged as the second largest party in the civic elections.

The biggest setback has been to the Congress that has managed to get only two seats. Trends showed TRS to be the largest party right from the beginning, but its seats fell from 99 in 2016 polls to just 56 this time, a loss of 43 seats.

Counter BJP 'propaganda', farmer unions tell cadre

Tribune News Service

CHANDIGARH, DECEMBER 4
Nothing will cow us down, say leaders of farm unions who are protesting against the three contentious laws at the borders of Delhi for eight days now.

During a marathon meeting of 30 farmer unions, the members joined hands to counter the 'BJP propaganda' against their agitation and keeping mischievous elements at bay. Fearing that certain persons could try to defame their peaceful agitation, the leaders have asked their cadres to report any unknown elements found at the stir sites.

Joginder Singh Ugrahan, president of the largest farmer union in Punjab, the BKU (Ekta Ugrahan), while talking to The Tribune over the phone, said, "If the laws are so good, as the BJP propaganda machinery is trying to say, why not repeat them, get a wider public consensus, and then implement them again? The government knows that these laws will never get public support."

A number of activists and intellectuals are supporting them and guiding them in the course of negotiations with the Centre. As part of the stir, all sportspersons who have received government awards will be returning them to the Centre on December 7.

"We will win this fight with the Centre. The laws threaten not just our livelihoods. They will hit the consumers hard as prices of all commodities will be dictated by the corporates, in whose control the Centre wants to hand over the farming operations. Thus, the Punjab model of gheraoing toll plazas operated by corporates across the country will be launched," said Jagmohan Singh Patiala, general secretary of the BKU (Dakaunda).

'We fought against Khalistanis, media shouldn't defame us'

Kin of slain farm leaders condemn smear campaign

CHANDIGARH, DECEMBER 4
"It is even more painful than losing my father to Khalistani bullets," says Harinder Kaur Bindu, first woman leader of the farmers' movement in Punjab.

Her father, communist leader Megh Raj Bhagwan, was gunned down by the Babbar Khalsa when she was just 13. Reacting to the smear campaign by a section of media that Khalistanis are behind the farmers' movement, she says, "Before labelling us Khalistanis, please have a look at our history. At least show some respect to those who refused to bow down before the Khalistani Kalashnikovs."

She says their movement opposes any kind of fundamentalism, whether it is led by Hindu or Sikh communal leaders. "Our sacrifices have proved that in the past," she says.

She is not alone. The current farmers' uprising is being led by mainly those who fought Khalistani fundamentalists and 'state terrorism' with the same valour and lost many leaders in those days.

"Kirti Kisan Union's (KKU) Gian Singh Sangha and Jaimal Padda were some known faces who were killed by the Khalistanis," says vice-president of the KKU, Rajinder Singh Deep Singhwala, who is leading the movement at the Singhu border. In those days, celebrated documentary filmmaker Anand Patwardhan in his famous documentary 'In the Memory of Friends' had documented that epic battle by the farm leaders.

Talking to The Tribune, Dr

Arshdeep Singh said: "We stand with the protesting farmers in their just fight seeking revocation of the farm laws. We wanted to do our bit for the cause so we contacted people in our network and found volunteers. We will reach the Tikri border on Friday evening and start a free medical camp at the protest venue right away.

There have been a few deaths at the protest sites recently, so we believe that precious lives of farmers can be saved if they are given the required first aid and emergency medical services." Meanwhile, doctors of government and private sectors in Patiala have also announced to provide free medical treatment to the protesting farmers.

Warring said, "I think if the tractors will continue going to the Delhi border, it will build more pressure on the Centre. I am going as a farmer, not as an MLA, by driving a tractor-trailer myself. I have decided to spend two days in the vehicle there. Then I will come back, but those accompanying me will stay there. It will also help those who want to come back for some work as we can replace them at the protest site."

He further said more batches of farmers would go to the Delhi border in coming days as well.

Warring announced to give his six-month salary as a fund to farmers' protest. He also said the party workers would file criminal complaints against actress Kangana Ranaut for his comment against an old woman. "Kangana should apologise to all Punjabi women for hurting them with her recent statement," he said.

Why link stir to security issue, Sukhbir asks CM

Shiromani Akali Dal president Sukbir Singh Badal today asked Chief Minister Capt Amarinder Singh to stop his "dangerous efforts to sabotage" the farmers' agitation by linking it with national security.

After meeting Home Minister Amit Shah on Friday, Captain Amarinder said, "I came to meet the Home Minister to reiterate our position and to make a request to him and the farmers to resolve this soon because this (agitation) affects the economy of my Punjab as well as the security of the nation."

CHANDIGARH, DECEMBER 4

Chief Minister Capt Amarinder Singh on Friday virtually unveiled the logo of the state-level 400th birth anniversary celebrations of Guru Teg Bahadur to be held now in a single phase in April-May 2021, on account of the pandemic, instead of the two-phased celebration proposed earlier.

Chairing a meeting of the executive committee for the celebrations, the Chief Minister suggested dedicating the year-long celebrations to the 'Hind Di Chaddar' as 'Sarv Dharam' year to mark the secular character of the nation.

It was tentatively decided at the virtual meeting that the main programme should commence on April 23, 2021, and culminate on May 1 in a grand event. A nagar kirtan will be held on April 23, starting from Guru Teg Bahadur birth place at Guru Ka Mahal in Amritsar and arriving at Baba Bakala to mark the launch of the event. Directing Tourism Minister Charanjit Singh Channi to prepare a proposal of works to be undertaken to commemorate the historic occasion, the CM said special developmental works should be undertaken in all 103 rural and urban areas of the state associated with Guru Teg Bahadur.

He suggested allocation of Rs 40-50 lakh for each of the 80 villages and Rs 1 crore for development of the 23 urban areas in this respect.

Randhir Singh Dhira Khudian was an aspirant for the party ticket from Lambi in the 2017 Assembly elections.

In the letter, Dhira cited "some personal reasons and other problems" for resigning from his post.

Dhira said, "The party leadership has completely ignored people like me in Lambi in almost four years of our regime. I even sold my agricultural land (spread across 3 acres) for the party activities. I never got favour from any party leader in the past. I have handed over my resignation letter to Jakhar today. Though he tried to convince me, I did not change my decision." — TNS

Action in 'goonda tax' case eyewash, says HC

SAURABH MALIK
Tribune News Service

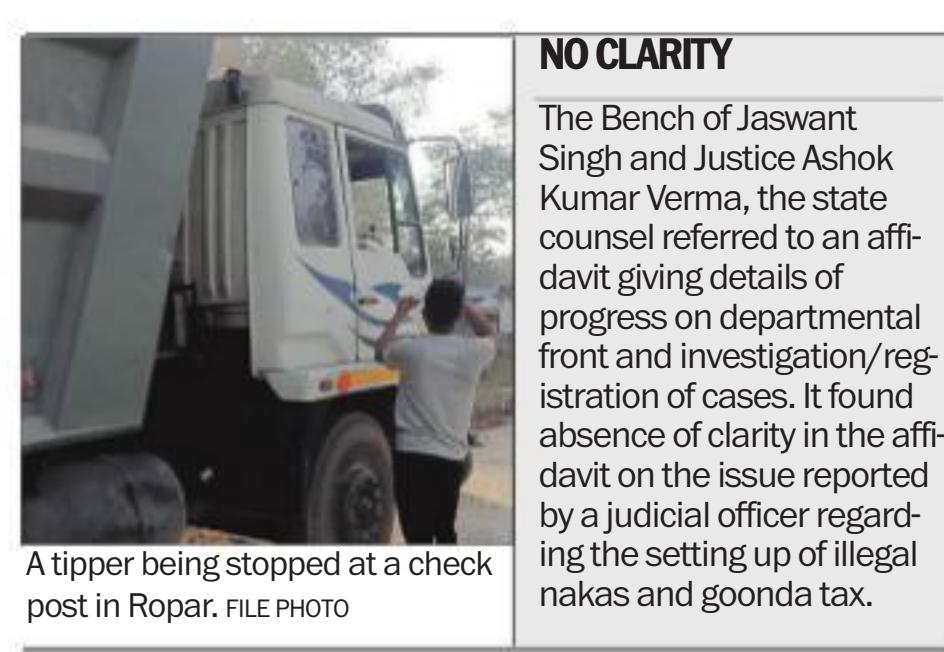

CHANDIGARH, DECEMBER 4

Finding an affidavit on illegal mining activities elusive about the setting up illegal check posts and collection of "goonda tax" in Ropar, the Punjab and Haryana High Court has asserted that the action taken till date in the matter appeared to be nothing more than an eyewash. The Bench also sought the state's response on six counts, including progress against erring officials.

As the matter came up for resumed hearing before the Bench of Jaswant Singh and Justice Ashok Kumar Verma, the state counsel referred to an affidavit giving details of progress on departmental front and investigation/registration of cases. It found absence of clarity in the affidavit on the issue reported by a judicial officer regarding the setting up of illegal nakas and goonda tax.

It stated four FIRs had been registered in Ropar district regarding illegal mining activities. But the Bench found absence of clarity in the affidavit on the issue reported by a judicial officer regarding the setting up of illegal nakas and goonda tax.

The Bench then directed the state to file an affidavit on the progress against persons found manning illegal check posts and their superiors/contractors and the provisions, if any, under which the state proposed to take action.

The state was also asked to specify whether there was any provision under the Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Development) Act, the Punjab Minor Minerals Rules or any other rule in force which penalised a person for setting up illegal nakas and seeking royalty for minerals. It was also asked to specify the details of procedure, if any, for an aggrieved person to report the setting up of nakas and collection of goonda tax.

Directions were also issued to the state to apprise the court on method put in place by the government for reporting illegal mining in any area and provisions under which penal action was taken.

Considering subsequent events, especially the initiation of criminal proceedings by the state and other administrative inquiries initiated to investigate the matter, the Bench added it would be a wastage of resources by asking two agencies to look into similar issue. Consequently, the Bench directed the CBI to put on hold any further inquiry into the matter.

The matter was brought to the High Court's notice by Bachittar Singh through counsel Mansur Ali. In his report, CJM-cum-Secretary, District Legal Services Authority, Ropar, Harsimranjit Singh, had stated that local residents, passersby and the truck drivers unanimously confirmed no truck carrying sand and gravel was allowed to cross the points without paying royalty.

SC quizzes Centre over delay in decision on Rajoana's plea

Tribune News Service

NEW DELHI, DECEMBER 4

Maintaining that pendency of appeals by co-accused has no bearing on Presidential pardon granted to a death-row convict, the Supreme Court on Friday questioned the Centre over delay in sending proposal to the President for commuting Beant Singh murder case convict Balwant Singh Rajoana's death penalty.

Convicted of assassinating former Chief Minister Beant Singh in 1995, Rajoana has been in jail for 25 years awaiting his execution. His mercy petition under Article 72 of the Constitution is hanging fire for eight years. A Bench headed by Chief Justice of India SA Bobde said once the Centre had decided to recommend Presidential pardon for a death row convict, the pendency of appeals of his co-accused can't be a reason to delay the clemency proceedings.

Citing Devender Pal Singh Bhullar's case, the petitioner claimed that the "Delay caused by circumstances beyond the prisoners' control mandates commutation of death sentence." The inordinate delay caused agony and adversely affected his physical and mental health.

Asking Additional Solicitor General KM Nataraj to take instructions in two weeks on the issue, the Bench posted the matter for hearing in January next year.

The court's comments came after the Centre contended that the proposal to commute death sentence was not sent to the President as appeal of other co-accused was pending and the convict himself hadn't filed an appeal.

Farmers refuse to undergo Covid test

JHAJJAR/SONEPAT, DECEMBER 4 Farmer leaders have categorically rejected a proposal of the district administration to conduct the Covid test of all those protesting at the Tikri-Bahadurgarh border for a week against the three farm laws.

Their stance is: "Covid is not an ailment and we are not scared of it".

Bahadurgarh SDM Hiten-dra Sharma has been informed of our decision. All we ask from him is to deploy teams of doctors at the dharna spot. It is necessary because the Bahadurgarh Civil Hospital is far from the protest site," said Buta Singh, a farmer leader.

Sources say the administration has built five medical booths at the dharna spot. A majority of farmers visiting the booths are suffering from fever, cough, cold and body pain. It is because of this reason that the administration had planned to conduct the Covid test of all protesters, they say.

The Bahadurgarh SDM told The Tribune, "We held a meeting with farmers' leaders and tried to convince them to undergo the Covid test, but they refused. Hence, we have decided to conduct the test of only those who will visit the medical booth complaining of fever and cough."

Meanwhile, the farmers' agitation at the border entered the seventh day on Friday. The Delhi Police sealed the Bahadurgarh-Nijampur and Bahadurgarh-Jhajroda borders, leaving commuters high and dry.

Probe into Manesar land scam a case of pick & choose: Court

BHARTESH SINGH THAKUR
TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

CHANDIGARH, DECEMBER 4 CBI Special Judge Jagdeep Singh has termed investigation into the Manesar land scam as a classic example of pick and choose as some accused were initially left out of the charge sheet.

While summoning five more persons as additional accused, including Home Secretary Rajeev Arora and former Director, Industries,

DR Dhangra, who were left out by the investigating officer (IO) in the charge sheet, the judge said, "The IO was either adamant to extend benefit to the persons arrayed as accused or to extend benefit to the persons against whom there are clear-cut and prima facie circumstances, but have not been arraigned as accused."

One of the farmers' leaders, Harvinder Singh Lakhwai, said the effigies of PM Narendra Modi and those of corporates would be burnt on Saturday across the country.

In a detailed order, the judge said the IO had chosen "to turn a blind eye to the role of some important public servants whose acts can be termed to be more culpable than the persons arrayed as accused". The order said, "Such isolated instances are enough to bring the sobriquet of 'caged parrot' to the agency." In case of Arora, the court directed the CBI to place

I was labeled useless. This (crime) was the only way I could make an identity for myself and earn easy money. I wanted to kill more men, but was nabbed," the accused reportedly told the police during the interrogation.

The police have seized a knife, with which he allegedly committed the murders on November 24, 25 and 26. "He had bought the knife for Rs 150 from a bicycle hawker near Sadar Bazar here," the police have said. All three victims were unknown to him. One of them was a security guard and another a labourer. The identity of the third victim has not been ascertained.

5 cremation grounds 'division' of society: HC

SAURABH MALIK
TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

CHANDIGARH, DECEMBER 4 A village in Ambala district apparently stands divided in death. Just about eight kilometres from Ambala, Panjokhara village has five cremation grounds belonging to different castes since inhabitation, an actuality that the Punjab and Haryana High Court has dubbed as splitting up of society.

The matter was brought to the High Court's notice after Jaswant Kumar (76) and seven other villagers claimed that Brahmins, Sikhs and Backward Classes had separate cremation grounds in the area.

Taking up the petition, a Division Bench observed in its order that five creation grounds were already existing and earmarked for different communities and as such, deemed it appropriate to seek response from Ambala Deputy Commissioner on "such divisions of society".

Petitioners in Ambala village without right to perform last rites

The Bench also directed

Haryana Deputy Advocate General Shruti Jain Goyal to do the needful before fixing the case for the second week of January for further consideration. Appearing before the Bench through counsel Ranjit Saini, the petitioners were, among other things, seeking directions to the Deputy Commissioner and another respondent to restore the cremation ground belonging to them and other residents belonging to the Brahmins and Backward Classes.

They were also seeking the quashing of an order dated September 11 passed by the Deputy Commissioner, rejecting their application in "complete violation of the principles of natural justice", based on the presumption that there was no cremation ground as mentioned in their complaint.

The petitioners added that the same stood "illegally demolished" with the help of earth movers.

The Bench was told that the petitioners and other members of the community were left without the right to perform the last rites of departed souls as all five cremation grounds in the village were "community wise".

CBI initiates 4 preliminary enquiries into Roshni scam

NEW DELHI, DECEMBER 4

Widening its probe into Roshni scam cases in Jammu and Kashmir, the CBI has registered four preliminary enquiries (PE) into the alleged non-compliance of high court directives by officials of the Jammu Development Authority (JDA) and others to "cover up" the complicity in illegal acts of encroachment of land.

The first enquiry registered by the CBI relates to the matter pertaining to the encroachment on 784 kanals, 17 marla land in Gole, Jammu tehsil, which was transferred to the JDA. A preliminary enquiry is the first step initiated by the CBI to assess criminality in prima facie allegations levelled by a complainant. If the allegations appear to be serious, the agency proceeds with an FIR or else the PE is closed.

On April 24, 2014, the Jammu and Kashmir High Court had directed the Deputy Commissioners of Jammu, Samba, Udhampur, Srinagar, Budgam and Pulwama districts to submit the compliance report on handing over the relevant record of the case to the vigilance director, who was enquiring the matter.

In spite of subsequent repeated directives of the High Court, no action was initiated by the competent authorities. "The above court proceedings establish the reluctance of these senior officers and all authorities to assist the inquiry. The reluctance in fact tantamount to obstruction and preventing disclosure of the truth to protect law breakers and facilitate misappropriation of public properties," the high court had noted. — PTI

Covid vaccine

The govt should ensure uniform protocols, smooth rollout

EVEN as India's Covid caseload crosses the 95-lakh mark and the death toll nears 1.4 lakh, there are finally some good tidings: the country's wait for a vaccine might end in a few weeks. A day after AIIMS stated that at least one of the five vaccine candidates being locally tested should get emergency use authorisation from the drug regulator by the end of this month or early January, PM Modi said at the all-party meeting that Indian scientists were very sure of success in developing the all-important shot. With a time frame being officially specified, the government needs to finalise the vaccination programme at the earliest. Pricing, production, supply, distribution and coverage—all aspects have to be factored in. The regulatory authorities must develop a foolproof mechanism to ensure that the priority groups get inoculated first, besides keeping tabs on the unscrupulous elements that will try to cash in on this huge opportunity to make a quick buck.

Be it wholesalers, retailers or quacks, there are several vested interests who could jeopardise the vaccination drive by resorting to unfair practices such as overpricing, hoarding and the sale-purchase of unapproved drugs. There is also an urgent need to address the ills that plague our pharmaceutical system—misbranding, non-conformity to standards, inefficient or non-existent quality control. There should be no compromise on the safety and efficacy of the vaccine, whose success (or failure) will have a bearing on the country's economic recovery.

It's laudable that the Centre has sought suggestions from states on who all will get the inoculation first. Centre-state coordination, which has been largely conspicuous by its absence during the pandemic, is a prerequisite to streamline the programme and make it reach all sections of society. It will be imperative to appoint nodal officers at state, district, and block levels to encompass all urban and rural areas. The nation has waged a grim battle against the pandemic so far, but the next couple of months are critical. Eventually, India's Covid-19 campaign will be defined by whether the vaccine rollout is smooth or chaotic.

Ranjitsinh Disale

An exemplary global ambassador for teachers

THREE cannot be a better global ambassador for teachers. In honouring Ranjitsinh Disale, the passionate teacher of a primary government school at a village in Maharashtra, from among thousands of candidates from the world over for the $1-million Global Teacher Prize 2020, a private foundation, partnered by UNESCO, has been spot on. Indeed, the devotion with which the 32-year-old educator has been working on his vision of promoting education among the category of students most in need of a push in India—the underprivileged and girls—is a rarity and worthy of recognition. Since 2009, when he started his career by taking on the task of turning around the dilapidated school building, the talented teacher has overcome all odds to contribute to the profession and add multi-hued feathers to his cap.

Realising that language was the major hurdle in the humble setting, Disale used his creative and scientific mindset to ensure that the poor pupils did not suffer. He translated the textbooks into their mother tongue and embedded the books with unique QR codes to give students access to audio poems, video lectures, stories and assignments. With this, the twin challenges of our society were taken care of: his school boasted of 100 per cent attendance of girls and the village recorded zero teenage marriage. Not resting on local laurels, Disale has been using international online platforms to connect young people with the aim of advocating peace across conflict zones in India and Pakistan, Palestine and Israel, Iraq and Iran, and the US and North Korea. Through another project, he helps students from schools lacking in resources by taking them on virtual field trips.

Even in receiving the coveted award, the teacher has set a new 'teach, don't preach' goal: Disale has announced that he would share half of his reward money with the other finalists to support their 'incredible work'. With such exemplary people and their inspiring acts, as the foundation rightly said, there is yet hope for a safe tomorrow, one that will better tackle critical problems like climate change, conflict and pandemics.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

The farmer buys everything at retail, sells everything at wholesale, and pays the freight both ways. — John F Kennedy

ON THIS DAY...100 YEARS AGO

The Tribune.

LAHORE, SUNDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1920

The Present Situation in India.

WE published the other day "a statement and appeal" by the National Missionary Council of India, Burma and Ceylon with reference to the present situation in India. We are told that the statement was issued by the Council after full deliberation at the annual session of that body held at Calcutta from the 11th to the 16th November. After enunciating eight principles "which must be taken into account in any Christian view of the present situation in India," an appeal, based on these principles, is made for "just and sane judgements, both of men and things." We are in hearty agreement with the spirit underlying the appeal, although we are constrained to remark that its utility from a practical point of view is questionable. Most of the appeal consists of vague generalisations which are familiar enough. Thus: "The history of every Imperial Power contains pages stained and disfigured; we do not pretend that the history of the British Empire is an exception to this rule. But the fact is beyond controversy that now for a long time it has been characterised by an ever-growing tendency to grant to its component parts increasing measures of self-government. The Empire is becoming a commonwealth of nations and these nations are learning to regard themselves as a family. The attention of the British people is now turned to India, and we believe that there is a sincere desire among them that India should have full self-government as soon as possible." The National Missionary Council certainly treads on controversial ground when it makes the above observations. The entire trouble is due to the conviction, which has gained in strength, that in spite of pious declarations of British statesmen to the contrary, the Imperial junkers at "home" and the bureaucrats in India are only too anxious to prolong India's period of subjection.

The root of the problem

'One nation, one farm market' concept is bogus in the absence of regular buyers

NOUS INDICA
RAJESH RAMACHANDRAN

AGOLD trader of Ludhiana was recently booked for stocking paddy. It seemed ache din finally dawned on farmers for businessmen to drop their gold and pick up paddy. Sadly that wasn't the case. The business idea, after the Centre passed the farm laws, was fairly simple: buy cheap paddy from distressed farmers of UP or Bihar, bring it brazenly by road to Punjab and sell it to the government at MSP. After all, the Union government had removed all Agriculture Produce Marketing Committee (APMC) restrictions and thrown open the state borders for transportation, sale and profiteering. But there was a catch: the new Central laws were being used to cheat the farmers of UP, Bihar and elsewhere. It was the MSP meant for the farmer that the gold trader of Ludhiana was pocketing without having taken loans, ploughed, sown, tended and reaped or having anxiously looked at the skies with bated breath, praying desperately to the weather gods.

The gold trader is not alone. About 95 FIRs were lodged and over 150 trucks bringing in paddy from elsewhere confiscated by the Punjab Government. After booking the smugglers, who donned the mantle of traders, officials realised that the culprits cannot be punished under the existing APMC laws, and so, they have been charged under the provisions of the IPC. Yet, the Punjab Government has not fully unravelled the racket. There was bumper paddy procurement this year in Punjab, the highest-ever recorded: 203 lakh tonnes—25 per cent or 40 lakh more than last year's 163 lakh tonnes. Punjab Agricultural University claimed that at least 10 per cent of this is because of higher yield caused by conducive weather conditions. To the monsoon factor, officials add the decrease in basmati acreage and the lower procurement of Punjab's paddy in the bordering districts of Haryana.

RACKET: The business idea now is simple—buy cheap paddy from distressed farmers of UP or Bihar, bring it by road to Punjab and sell it to the government at MSP.

If the APMC structure is not needed, and the alternative market can offer remunerative prices, why would farmers of UP or Bihar sell their paddy for ₹800-1,000 per quintal?

Still, the numbers do not square up, and so the officials, at least informally, admit that about 10 lakh tonnes of paddy could have got smuggled into Punjab. Then, Haryana officials insist they have not shooed away a single Punjab farmer who had a running account with their mandis and arthiyas. Yet, Haryana's procurement is 14 per cent less than the previous year's figure because they claim they barred 'ghost sellers'. Weather conditions and thereby the yield cannot be so vastly different in Punjab and Haryana. Thus, the speculation is of traders buying paddy from Bihar and UP at about Rs 1,200, inclusive of transportation costs, and selling it to the government at the MSP of Rs 1,388 per quintal, pocketing a neat Rs 700 crore if the scam is limited to the conservative estimate of 10 lakh tonnes.

This is the immediate impact of the Central laws that emboldened unscrupulous traders. They may have been doing it earlier, too, at a smaller scale. But now, it is officially permissible to carry agricultural produce anywhere in the country and sell it anywhere. But the problem is that there are no buyers except the government. So, the first season after the passage of the farm laws has proved that the concept of 'one nation, one market' is bogus in the absence of regular buyers. The APMC structure was dismantled in Bihar in 2006 and the failure is writ large over the state's farm sector that exports farm labourers to places where there is systematic government procurement.

If the APMC structure is not required, and the alternative market can offer remunerative prices for the farmers, why would farmers of UP or Bihar sell their paddy for Rs 800-1,000 per quintal? If the trader can discover a market outside the APMC, why should he lug the paddy all the way from Bihar or UP to Punjab to sell it at the APMC mandi? The answer is simple. The government is the only reliable buyer. The Green Revolution and the proud Punjabi landowning farmer are both corollaries of government procurement at a pre-determined research work, etc., making me live all alone even in so populous a world.

As this realisation of my smallness made my mind ego-free, my humility increased, transforming me from an egoistic and lonely person into a humble, social being who loves to help the multitude of the needy wanting affection, food and money.

A bizarre aspect of my transformation was that it came through the Railways' erroneous reservation chart and noisy (whistling, running and screeching) train; and not through the effortful practice of any of the four spiritual ways of transformation—raja yoga, karma yoga, jnana yoga and bhakti yoga.

May God bless the Indian Railways! Bon voyage!

Self-transformation through Railways

OP SINGH

THE most common ordeals, such as examinations, interviews, speech-making and surgery never unnerved me. The only ordeal which appears too eerie to me is catching a train, because the unavoidable eventualities of travelling without reservation, reaching the railway station late and sighting of a family running helter-skelter after a speeding train with shouts like 'Arey Munna nahi dih raha, coolie kahan gaya, train tej ho gayee, daudo!' send a chill up my spine.

Once I was forced to travel exigenitly from Chandigarh to Jhansi without confirmed reservation. To make the bad situation worse, I reached the station after my train had already screeched in. Its scheduled halt was seven minutes. Hence, I hurriedly headed for the displayed reservation chart and nervously started scanning it. I did not find any name starting with 'O'. In the meantime, the train whistled to depart and my heart whistled to come apart. I scanned the chart for the fourth time, but this time to look for my ticket number instead of my name. I did find it, but the name typed against it was 'Drop Singh'. I suddenly realised that while filling my reservation form, I had written my name as Dr OP Singh and the typist had inadvertently combined 'Dr' and 'OP' into 'Drop', thus changing my name! As soon as I got my new name, I ran fast after the speeding train, which I somehow caught, making it my life's first railway-related feat.

Heaving deep sighs of relief, I nestled on my berth snugly. Enjoying the rhythm of the train, I sank unknowingly into deep contemplation on my new given name, when a self-realisation dawned that I was in reality only an insignificantly small drop in the infinite ocean of the world inundating with its numerous great men and their achievements, and, therefore, I had always very wrongly thought I was somebody due to my BSc, BTech, MScTech and PhD (Manchester, UK) degrees. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Trudeau's remarks

Apropos of 'Unwarranted remarks: Canadian PM tests limits of diplomatic protocol', Trudeau said nothing about India's farm laws. His stance at the WTO on India's agricultural trade practices is irrelevant in this case. What he did raise a concern about, as expected from any believer of democracy, is the Indian Government's refusal to let the farmers enter Delhi for protesting peacefully. One can fully support farmers' right to peaceful protest without agreeing with their agenda. Conversely, not allowing peaceful protests is fascism, a path the current government seems to have gladly chosen.

BALSHER SINGH SIDHU, PATIALA

Stalemate continues

The latest round of negotiations between the representatives of farmers' unions and the government could not break the impasse. Farmers have hardened their stance. It remains to be seen what strategy is worked out by the government to resolve this intractable tangle. The protraction of the agitation will damage the growth of the economy substantially, apart from inflicting inconveniences upon the masses. It is incumbent upon the government to devise some acceptable solution to this disturbing and chaotic situation.

ROSHAN LAL GOEL, LADWA

Hidden agenda

The ongoing strike of farmers is growing stronger and stronger with each passing day, with more and more farmers joining the stir. The Centre was apparently not prepared for this. The farm laws were passed without taking the farmer unions into confidence. The farmers had not made any demand for such laws. What prompted the government to go for such laws so hurriedly, and that too when the country was in the severe grip of Covid-19? It smacks of some hidden vested forces behind the move to legislate these laws. Tensions are high on our borders. The stir of the farmers should not linger on. It is for the government to show flexibility and shed arrogance.

SANTOSH JAMWAL, HAMIRPUR

Modi's pride

Suppose the government enacted farm laws with good intention and for the benefit of farmers, but they don't see anything good in these laws and are protesting. So, why the demands of farmers even in a democracy are not being considered? Either the theory of farmers is precise or it is Modi's pride that is hindering the revocation of the farm laws. It has been Modi's pride, when the CAA was enacted, special status of J&K was revoked, GST was implemented and demonetisation was announced. The force behind the execution of these decisions was simply the PM's pride.

RASHPINDER SINGH, MANSA

Message of brotherhood

The protests by farmers have turned to be a blessing in disguise as these protests have brought people from all walks of life together for a common cause. The ones who are protesting in New Delhi are doing a daring job, but those supporting them being in their own houses also deserve accolades. People from different villages of Punjab are sending eatables to their brethren in Delhi. The dishes include sarson da saag and makki di roti and pinnis. Even some cooks from Malerkotla, a Muslim-dominated town, are sending different dishes to these farmers. This is enough evidence to prove that the people of Punjab are one during the time of crisis. The message of universal brotherhood is rightly being delivered to the rest of the world.

Memories of KU

'Prof Datta's bond with Kurukshetra' made me nostalgic about my days in Kurukshetra (1964-66), where I did my postgraduate studies in physics. I entered the KU drenched by torrential rains to seek admission to MSc. I was not only late for the interview, but also had no money to pay the fee. But everything was sorted out by the magnanimous committee when it noticed my performance in BSc. With just four annas in my pocket on that day, I came back home in 1966 with a gold medal and some money saved from the scholarships. It was the university authorities (Lala Suraj Bhan, Dr HS Hans, Dr Vikas Mishra) and my legendary teachers who saw me through those difficult times. Pray we still have such people around. Forever indebted to my alma mater!

Life of values

'Commitment to freedom and justice' stands for values that are rare today. The writer's father was the epitome of a model teacher, worth emulating by the present generation of teachers. He stood for open thoughts with freedom to the students to dissent from what is heard or read. His pedagogy is the need of the hour when values like freedom and justice have become rare in public life. Indeed, it is the teacher who can instil these values. This calls for a need to impart training in leadership skills to teachers in schools and HEIs. S KUMAR, PANCHKULA

National dimension to farmers' agitation

YOGENDRA YADAV

NATIONAL PRESIDENT, SWARAJ INDIA

HERE is a well-known rustic north Indian story of '99 pyaj aur 100 joot'. Ninety-nine onions or a hundred shoes! A man was asked to choose between two forms of punishment for his misdeed: Sau pyaj kha ya sau joot khao (Either eat a hundred onions or get a hundred shoe lashes). He chose to eat onions but could not go beyond 99, and thus ended up with a hundred shoe strikes as well.

This is exactly what happened to the UPA-2 government while handling the Anna Hazare movement. It first chose the path of indifference and repression but could not carry it beyond a point. That was followed by its humiliating capitulation. The government ended up with the worst of both worlds: it looked weak and immoral.

Something similar is happening to the Narendra Modi government. For once, PM Modi's sharp political acumen has gone missing over the last ten days. The government began with imperious arrogance. It did not feel the need to consult farmers' organisations, not even those within its own fold, before announcing sweeping changes in the legal architecture of Indian agriculture. It brushed aside desperate pleas for stakeholder consultation before the ordinances were converted into laws, short-circuiting all parliamentary procedures. It turned a blind eye to all the warning signs: big and small protests all over the country on August 9, September 24 and November 5. And it just stood and watched the unprecedented farmers' mobilisation in Punjab. Finally, short of shooting at the farmers, it tried everything to foil the farmers' march to Delhi: barricades, boulders, digging up roads, water canons, and tear gas. It did not work.

Even after the farmers camped on Delhi's borders, the government's response was to place conditions for talks. That did not work. It tried the usual tricks in the unconditional talks that followed: divide, distract and divert. Farmer leaders did not fall for these. No wonder, the second round of talks also remained 'inconclusive'. The government's intransigent behaviour has meant that so far, these talks have seen little meaningful talk. The government insists that it will discuss anything except the repealing of the three farm laws. The farmers are determined that they cannot discuss anything else, they shall not settle for anything less.

A larger, deeper anguish

Just as the Manmohan Singh government failed to read the nature of the Anna movement and the depth of its popular support, the Modi government is also a victim of false images around the farmers' movement, often created by its own spin doctors. The UPA regime had at least the media to show it the mirror; the current government has denied itself this crucial feedback. The government will continue to blunder as long as it does not face up to some basics about this historic protest by the farmers.

First, it is not just Punjab. No doubt,

Punjab farmers have been at the vanguard of this struggle and the other regions were slow to catch up. But the dramatic events of November 26 have catapulted this agitation in the national imagination. There is significant mobilisation from Haryana and Uttar Pradesh. And now that Rajasthan is free of its panchayat elections, one should expect mobilisation from that end as well. Covid restrictions prevent farmers from other parts of India to come in big hordes, but I have noticed farmer leaders from all over the country flocking to the protest sites. The protest enjoys the support of practically every noticeable farmers' organisation. So much so that the RSS-backed Bharatiya Kisan Sangh has been forced to extend moral support to the movement. This is now a national movement.

Second, this is not a movement of 'middlemen' carried out by Opposition parties and covertly supported by the 'Khalistanis'. This is a farmers' movement. Farmers all over the country may or may not join this movement. They may not be fully aware of what it is about. Yet they now share a sense that the Modi government is doing something big and something bad to the farmers. Reports from neighbouring states hint at popular upsurge not very different from the Anna movement: panchayats in Haryana are passing a resolution, asking one member from each household to join the movement, villagers are offering food to the agitators, roadside dhabas are offering free meals, and some petrol pumps even offered free diesel.

Third, this is not just about the MSP (minimum support price). Sure, a price assurance matters to the farmers and could have gone a long way in allaying their anxieties. But things have moved beyond that. The government's reported offer of giving assurance to maintain the current level of procurement at MSP is unlikely to cut ice now. Every farmer organisation in this movement is wedded to the idea of repealing the three farm Acts. They will simply not settle for anything else. Actually, it is not even about these three laws. As in the case of the Lokpal movement that became a site for all that was wrong with the country, the farmers' movement has become

Just as the Manmohan Singh govt failed to read the nature of the Anna movement and the depth of its popular support, the Modi govt is also a victim of false images around the farmers' movement, often created by its spin doctors. The UPA regime had at least the media to show it the mirror; the current govt has denied itself this feedback.

RISING CONCERN: Price assurance matters for the farmers but things have moved beyond that. PTI an occasion to express the anguish of farmers at the way they have been treated for several decades.

A message

We stand at a critical juncture. PM Modi needs to take a deep breath, ask his flunkies and megaphones to shut up, and say this to the farmers: I know you have some genuine apprehensions about these three laws. It is my responsibility to address your concerns. Therefore, I am taking these back.

Will he have the courage to do so? Or will he give in to the temptation that most authoritarian leaders fall for, namely, go for full-throated repression? Or, something more sinister and diabolic?

Views are personal

Non-Covid patients a casualty of the pandemic

IT has been over 10 months since the pandemic began and there are no signs of it abating soon. There have been encouraging news about more than one vaccine, but it's still some time before we get it.

Even as we are burdened by the logistics of caring for active cases, doctors are concerned about what the New England Journal of Medicine has called 'the untold toll' of the pandemic: the neglect of non-Covid patients.

No one had visualised that the pandemic would disrupt healthcare systems for so long. The lockdown prevented patients from seeking non-emergency care for months. The problem was compounded by most hospitals being converted into Covid-related facilities and a sizeable chunk of doctors and nurses diverted to the latter (in Delhi, more than three-fourths of the ICU beds are reserved for Covid patients).

To decrease the risk of the transmission of the virus, hospitals have deferred scheduled follow-up visits, elective surgeries and annual screening tests. Most in-person visits have been converted into tele-consultations. A majority of the patients, too, have avoided hospital visits, fearing exposure. Around 9,000-10,000 patients used to visit the PGI OPDs. Their number came down to 25-30 per cent of that.

This has affected patients suffering from other acute illnesses and chronic diseases like diabetes, hypertension, renal failure and cancer. A report by National Cancer Registry of the ICMR has estimated that there would have been close to 14 lakh cancer patients in India in 2020.

With 70 per cent of our population being in villages and 90 per cent of cancer facilities being in tier-1 and tier-2 cities, the mismatch is glaring. There are disruptions in chemotherapy and radiotherapy and delays in surgery.

The PGI did continue with its radiation and oncology services through the last nine months, but there is no denying that many patients have failed to get optimum treatment. Even the Tata Memorial Centre, Mumbai, was forced to scale down its operations.

There have been major disruptions in the vaccination programmes across the world. Around eight crore children under the age of one are thought to be at greater risk of preventable diseases like measles, polio, mumps and hepatitis-B.

A recent Lancet report compared the health benefits of routine childhood vaccination in Africa with the risk of acquiring severe Covid-19 infection from visiting vaccination centres. It was noted that for every one additional Covid-19 death, 84 deaths in children could be prevented by continuing the vaccination schedule.

Another infectious disease whose patients may have suffered during the Covid crisis is tuberculosis. India accounts for one-fourth of the TB cases in the world. As per a WHO Global TB report, weekly TB notifications in India, which had reached over 50,000 in February, this year, had dipped to about 15,000 one week after the lockdown, before reaching to about 35,000 cases by mid-May. Distribution and availability of the drugs, given free of cost to the patients, has also suffered a setback.

It is estimated that disruptions due to Covid-19 will result in two-four lakh additional deaths worldwide.

All patients with chronic diseases have suffered during the pandemic. Patients with cardiovascular diseases, liver cirrhosis, chronic renal failure, inflammatory bowel disease or epilepsy, to name a few, have failed to get optimum treatment. Most chronic diseases require periodic monitoring and drug dose modifications. While tele-consultations have been made available, they cannot replace actual visits to the physician.

More importantly, the complications or worsening of the basic disease cannot be always identified or predicted in a tele-consultation. Some conditions like liver failure or cardiac failure may become irreversible if not treated at the right time. The same holds true for any elective, planned intervention, be it surgery, coronary stenting or joint replacement. Many of the eye conditions like diabetic retinopathy or glaucoma can take a course for the worse. Diseases like diabetes require close monitoring to prevent complications, and for adjusting dosage of drugs.

While most hospitals were handling emergencies like heart attack or stroke, in many cases, there was a delay in seeking treatment. Public health doctors say that people are more than twice as likely to die from a heart attack during the pandemic because of the delay in seeking help or being provided the right intervention.

The burden of infections like dengue, malaria, typhoid, diarrhoeal diseases and pneumonia is huge in India. Any delay in providing the appropriate treatment can be fatal. We know how much the 'golden hour' counts in heart attack or head injury.

Organ transplantation has been another major casualty of the pandemic. The lack of availability of surgeons, problems in arranging donors, difficulties in accessing healthcare facilities and diversion of ICU care for Covid patients, have all contributed to a decline in organ transplantation.

There are two other aspects of healthcare during the pandemic. One is the increasing recognition of 'long Covid', that is the persistence or recurrence of symptoms after recovery from Covid.

Persistent fatigue, aches and depression are common, but many patients have lung fibrosis or worsening of the cardiac function.

The other is the conundrum of mental health issues related to Covid. They range from anxiety, stress, depression, anger, fear and insomnia. Prolonged hospitalisation or staying at home in isolation and fear of death are responsible for a variety of symptoms. There has been an increase in suicides, too. A compounding factor has been the disruption in critical mental health services, including counselling, psychotherapy and treatment of substance abuse.

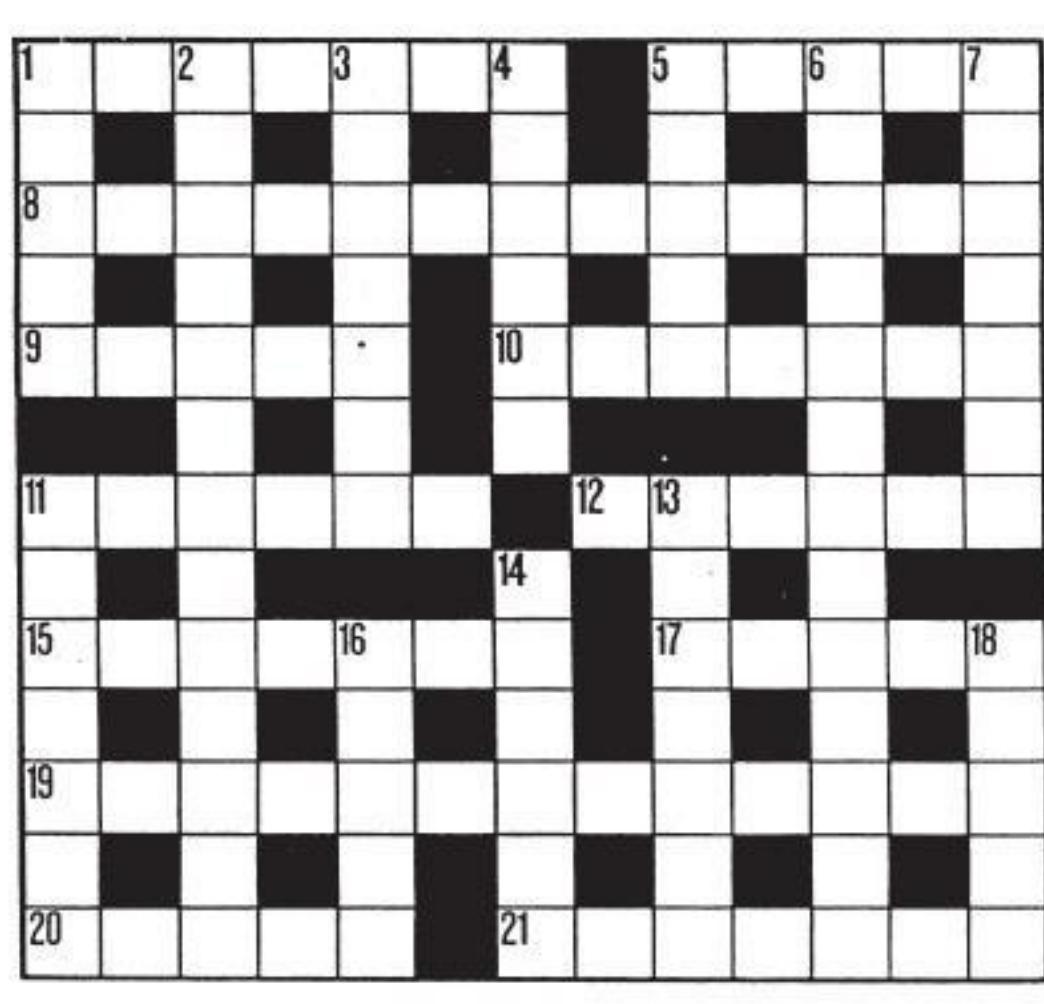

One often neglected aspect of the pandemic is the increasing dependence on private healthcare services since government facilities have been predominantly converted into Covid treatment ones. This has affected the not-so-well-offs as they depend on it.

Another worrisome thing is Covid reinfection. Though it is believed that after an episode, the individual will have immunity for six-nine months, stray cases of reinfection have occurred.

We are enduring Covid-19 at a huge cost to non-Covid patients. While it had made sense to divert resources to handle the surge, as the pandemic lingers on, healthcare systems must find better ways to manage all patients. An article in the Harvard Business Review has suggested a multi-pronged strategy, with emphasis on proactively managing non-Covid patients who have high-risk conditions.

Thus, till the time a vaccine is widely available and the pandemic controlled, we must continue in earnest with Covid-appropriate behaviour (mask, social distancing and hand hygiene) and redouble our efforts to treat Covid-19 and non-Covid patients.

Sub Chahal torpedoes Aussies

In as 'concussion substitute' for Jadeja, leggie picks up 3 wickets; India win by 11 runs

CANBERRA, DECEMBER 4

Yuzvendra Chahal turned out to be the perfect concussion substitute after an injured Ravindra Jadeja did his part with the bat in India's impressive 11-run victory over Australia in the first T20 International here today.

While Jadeja smashed an unbeaten 44 off 23 balls to propel India to 161/7, his head injury turned out to be a blessing in disguise as India brought in Chahal as a substitute, and he took 3/25 against a home team caught completely off-guard. The hosts were restricted to 150/7.

Debutant pace bowler Thangarasu Natarajan (3/30) and off-spinner Washington Sundar also deserve credit for the roles they played in the win after the hosts had galloped to 53/0 in six overs.

Jadeja was hit on the helmet in the last over of India's innings, and ICC match referee David Boon allowed India a "like for like" replacement, as mandated by the rules. Home team coach Justin Langer was visibly angry and seemed to dispute Boon's decision.

Chahal dismissed two form men — Aaron Finch (35) and Steve Smith (12) — in his first two overs to turn the game on its head. To rub salt into Australia's wounds, he also scooped the Man of the Match honours for his effort. The Australians were not prepared for Chahal, who bowled well, varying the pace of his deliveries and using the flight to good effect.

Natarajan, whose nerves had eased after a decent ODI debut, was right on the money and got one to

Rahul, Jadeja impress

Earlier, vice-captain KL Rahul continued his impressive run with yet another fifty but it took Jadeja's brilliant back-end flourish to take India to a fighting total.

Shikhar Dhawan fell early when Starc, bowling at a scorching 145 km/h, bowled one that shaped away from Dhawan before knocking the off-stump back.

Rahul hit 51 off 40 balls but leg-spinner Adam Zampa (1/20) and all-rounder Moises Henriques (3/22) were brilliant from overs 11th to 15th, when India scored 22 runs and lost three wickets — Sanju Samson (23 off 15 balls), Manish Pandey (2 off 8 balls) and Rahul. Rahul's first boundary was a mis-hit off Hazlewood over third-man, followed by a cover drive off Zampa. Another streaky boundary off Sean Abbott was topped up by a regal pull into the midwicket stands.

Inexperienced leg-spinner Mitchell Swapson repeatedly bowled short but did catch Virat Kohli off his own bowling with a ball that stopped on the Indian captain. But Rahul punished him and so did Samson, who rocked back to hit him for a six. Rahul's half-century came off 37 deliveries. However, Samson perished when he drove an Henriques off-cutter straight to Swapson at cover. Rahul, Samson and the dangerous Hardik Pandya (16 off 15 balls) were deceived by the pace of pitch, on which driving on the up wasn't easy. However, Jadeja looked good as he struck five fours and a six. He launched into Josh Hazlewood and Mitchell Starc in the final two overs, which yielded 34 runs. — TNS, agencies

Was under no pressure: Chahal

CANBERRA: Yuzvendra Chahal said having not being included in the original playing XI, he was under no pressure when he came on as a concussion substitute. "There was no pressure for me when we were batting and then suddenly I got to know I was going to play. I have played so many games so I was mentally fit," Chahal, named the Man of the Match, said.

Chahal said after a below-par outing in the ODI series, he picked up some tricks from rival leg-spinner Adam Zampa on how to bowl effectively on Australian wickets. "I learnt from my ODI mistake. In ODIs, I fought the ball a lot but here I just saw the way Zampa bowled, I tried to do the same as well," he said. "It was a little harder to score in the first innings. 150-160 is a good score on this wicket. I bowled according to my plans." AGENCIES

OBITUARY

Narinder Singh Kapany (OCTOBER 31, 1926-DECEMBER 4, 2020)

ROOPINDER SINGH

Scientist, entrepreneur, philanthropist

(1973) and K2 Optronics (2000). I remember his laughing and saying that one must be modest when I asked him why he had named his company after the second highest peak in the world.

The Kapany family home welcomed Punjabis. However, the back-to-the-roots yearning took a concrete form with the establishment of the Sikh Foundation in 1967.

In 1997, he set up the Kundan Kaur Kapany Chair of Sikh Studies at the University of California at Santa Barbara in the memory of his mother. In 1999, he endowed a Chair of Optoelectronics at the University of California, Santa Cruz.

He led the commemoration of the Tercentenary of the Khalsa with the international "Sikh arts exhibit" at the Victoria & Albert Museum in London, which was inaugurated by Prince Charles on March 22, 1999.

He lost his wife Satinder in 2016.

Dr Narinder Singh Kapany is survived by his son Raj Kapany and daughter Kiran Kaur Kapany and his grandchildren. His family, foundation and endowed chairs will now have the challenge of shaping his legacy.

farmers and resolve the issue."

The farm leaders say the government has only two options — to repeal the laws or use force against them. "It is time to take a decision. We need a guarantee on the MSP," one of them said. Activists Yudhvir Singh, Harvinder Singh Lakhwani, Hannan Mollah and Buta Singh Shadipur made it clear that "minor" amendments would not work and neither would the government's "divide and rule" policy.

"The country's top 10 trade federations have given us support, this is now a 'jan andolan'. We do not go there for chai pe charcha," remarked Yogendra Yadav. Regarding the security concerns raised by Punjab Chief Minister Amarinder Singh, the leaders replied: "We don't believe in violence."

This is not just a farmers' movement but a protest by various sections opposed to the NDA government," explained Navkiran Natt, a student with Delhi's Ambedkar University. Dolan from Jawaharlal Nehru University said he and his group were here to provide first-aid to the farmers, if attacked. "These laws will benefit the corporates, not the farmers and farm labourers," Abhiyan, a political science student of Ramjas College, Delhi, added even as Jasmeet Singh, director of the Delhi Bangra Arena, who has been providing toiletries to the protesters, observed: "Those feeding the nation deserve to be heard."

Covidfear: Kin won't collect victims' ashes

IGMC Dr Balbir Verma says, "A body can have the virus, so there's a proper protocol to handle and cremate it. But once it's burnt, there's no possibility of the virus remaining in the ashes. Any fear in that regard is totally misplaced and irrational."

Sociology professor of HPU Mohan Jharia says, "Maybe the loss of their loved one and the fear of Covid-19 are pushing people to withdraw from such rituals. However, they don't seem much concerned when it comes to attending weddings and other gatherings. It's a contradiction that's difficult to understand and explain."
