Amid heavy police deployment, Haryana farmers led by the Bharatiya Kisan Union (Charuni) began their march to Delhi on Wednesday. Initially deciding to camp in Kurukshetra's Pipli for the night, they resumed their march to Karnal later in the evening on tractor-trailers and bikes, and some on foot.

Earlier in the day, the farmers broke barricades in Ambala and near Shahbad in Kurukshetra. The police used water cannons to disperse them. Changing their strategy, they began their march from Ambala's Mohra mandi instead of the Shambhu border in view of the heavy police deployment on the Punjab-Haryana border.

brief statement provided by a representative. Maradona's pinnacle of glory came when he captained Argentina to win the World Cup in 1986, before plunging to misery when he was kicked out the 1994 World Cup for doping.

Years of drug use, overeating and alcoholism truncated a stellar career and altered his appearance from a lithe athlete who could slalom effortlessly through teams to a bloated addict who nearly died of cocaine-induced heart failure in 2000.

Famed for the "Hand of God" goal in which he punched the ball into England's net during the 1986 World Cup quarterfinals, Maradona captivated fans over a two-decade career with a bewitching style of play that was all his own.

The No. 10 he wore on his jersey became synonymous with him, as it also had with Pele, the Brazilian great with whom Maradona was regularly paired as the best of all time. — Agencies

SC: Won't shift sacrilege cases outside Punjab

NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 25

The Supreme Court today refused to shift the 2015 Guru Granth Sahib sacrilege case trial to another state, saying "no credible case for its transfer to alternative venues outside Punjab was made out."

A Bench of Justice Hrishikesh Roy, however, said the state of Punjab "must ensure safe conduct of the proceedings and provide adequate security to the petitioner."

Accused Jatinderveer Aroora and others — members of Dera Sacha Sauda — had sought the transfer of the cases, pending in Bathinda, Moga and Faridkot courts, contending they were facing bias and were unlikely to get a fair trial. — TNS

Expressing concern over the shortage of oxygen cylinders, the Himachal Pradesh High Court has directed the state government to file an affidavit about the steps taken to ensure cylinder availability in Covid-dedicated hospitals.

It also sought information on the mechanism developed for reducing the duration of Covid tests and steps taken to create additional beds and other facilities.

A Division Bench comprising Chief Justice L Narayana Swamy and Justice Anoop Chitkara passed these orders

Containment, caution: Govt issues new SOPs amid spurt

NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 25

Amid a spurt in Covid-19 cases in some areas, the Centre on Wednesday said states and union territories could impose local restrictions like night curfew to check the spread of the virus but made it clear that they would have to consult it before imposing any lockdown outside the containment zones.

Noting that the main focus was to consolidate the substantial gains that have been achieved against the spread of Covid in the country, the Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA) has issued guidelines for "surveillance, containment and caution", which will be effective from December 1 to 31.

The MHA said there was a need to "strictly follow the prescribed containment strategy". The local authorities will be responsible for ensuring that the prescribed containment measures are strictly followed. "States and UTs, based on their assessment of the situation, may impose local restrictions to contain the spread of Covid-19," it said.

There shall be no restrictions on inter-state and intra-state movement of people and goods, and for cross land-border trade under treaties with neighbouring countries. No separate permission will be required for such movements, it added. — TNS

India gets two lethal drones, could be deployed in Ladakh

NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 25

The government has taken on lease a pair of one of the deadliest drones in the world from US company General Atomics.

The agreement for one-year lease for the "predator" series drones has been signed directly with the company, official sources said. The Navy has got "Sea Guardians", a variant used by the US Navy, under "emergency procurement".

The drones have arrived at the Indian Naval Station INS Rajali, near Chennai. The process for getting 30 such drones in two variants — one for use over land and the other over sea — is underway, the sources said. India could deploy the same in Ladakh and over the Indian Ocean. The move came after the Defence Acquisition Procedure-2020 incorporated a new category to enable operation of assets without owning them.

An American crew from the General Atomics is accompanying the equipment and will help the Navy operate these. The planning of flights and controls on ground will be with the Indian Navy. The data gathered by the drones BATHINDA, NOVEMBER 25 Hundreds of farmers under the banner of the Bhartiya Kisan Union (Ekta Ugrahan) today embarked on the march to the national capital in response to the "Delhi Chalo" call. However, the farmers couldn't proceed beyond the Doomwali barrier at Dabwali as the Haryana Police barricaded the Bathinda-Delhi National Highway.

One company of the Haryana Police, a water canon and anti-riot vehicles have been stationed at the barrier and big stones have been kept on the road to stall the farmers' march. A Haryana Police official said they had strict instructions not to let farmers enter the state.

However, firm in their resolve and undeterred by the bad weather, farmers raised slogans against the Central Government and said their protest would continue till the farm Acts were revoked. They are camping at the barrier and expected to be joined by scores tomorrow. "We are expecting around two lakh farmers from six districts in sioner CB Srinivasan along with other officials visited the barrier and took stock of the situation. Commuters travelling on this route had a tough time as traffic was diverted through the link roads, which were also sealed. However, some were allowed to go after checking details.

Appearing before the Bench, Punjab Advocate-General Atul Nanda said, "Let's not bleed our own state or country." Nanda said the Punjab Government had designated three Cabinet ministers for past two months to engage with protesting farmers. The state government convinced the protesters to allow movement of goods and passenger trains and the protesters were peaceful.

The Bench observed tremendous loss had been suffered by Punjab. Agitation was not a problem, but blockage of road and railway traffic could not be condoned, it said while verbally observing that it would under the circumstances be forced to pass harsh orders for evicting the protesters. The Bench warned the Union/state governments could also be forced to reconsider or stop benefits, facilities and subsidies availed by protesters.

State president of committee Satnam Singh Pannu said the sealing of Haryana border was a clumsy move of the Centre to stop the peasants' movement towards New Delhi.

Meanwhile, state general secretary of committee Sar-

A Venu Prasad, Chairman cum-Managing Director (CMD), Punjab State Power Corporation Limited (PSPCL), said the dreadful situation and apprehensions of public about the possibility of a black out in the state was averted due to the timely decisions taken by PSPCL.

Prasad said that due to the late sowing of paddy crop and an extended dry spell during September and October, the paddy season's demand had extended till about the second week of October. "Also, due to lower reservoir levels in hydro power stations, their generation was considerably less this year. Catering to power demand during November, when the festive season was in full swing, was also of utmost importance", he added.

DPS Grewal, Further Director (Distribution), said PSPCL had arranged power from outside the state by way of procurement through power exchanges and also full power was availed from its quota of share in the Centre sector power stations. "PSPCL arranged maximum power of 2,600 MW aggregating 1,606 Million Units at Rs 3.09 per unit from power exchanges and quantum of 1,435 MW power aggregating 392 MU at Rs 3.05 per unit from port," he stated.

Amid the grim Covid situation in Delhi-NCR and apprehensions of a second wave in Punjab, Chief Minister Capt Amarinder Singh today ordered a series of fresh restrictions in the state, including re-imposition of night curfew in all towns and cities as well as doubling of fine for not wearing masks or following social distancing norms, with effect from December 1.

The curbs, which will shall be reviewed on December 15, also restrict opening timings of all hotels, restaurants and marriage palaces till 9.30 pm. Night curfew will remain in force from 10 pm to 5 am, announced the Chief Minister, warning people against letting their guard down under any circumstances.

ON TESTING FRONT

- CM Capt Amarinder Singh stressed the need to fully utilise the 25,500 daily RT-PCR testing capacity and directed targeted and regular testing of potential super spreaders
- District hospitals must have 24x7 testing available, he said

Giving details of the new restrictions after a high-level state Covid review meeting, an official spokesperson said fine for not following Covid-appropriate behaviour shall be hiked from the present Rs 500 to Rs 1,000.

Given the inflow of patients from Delhi for treatment in Punjab, it has also been decided to review and optimise the bed availability in the state's private hospitals. The Chief Minister has asked Chief Secretary Vini Mahajan to work with the departments concerned to encourage more private hospitals to come on board and earmark beds for Covid care.

To further strengthen the availability of oxygen and ICU beds, Capt Amarinder has ordered strengthening level 2 and 3 hospitals, with constant monitoring of districts that are not equipped with level 3 facilities.

The management practices at GMCHs and Civil Hospitals should also be examined in light of the recommendations of the report received from the expert group, he said.

The CM also directed the Health and Medical Education Departments to make emergency appointments of specialists, super-specialists, nurses and paramedics, to further augment the manpower which was recently strengthened with the recruitment of 249 specialist doctors and 407 medical officers.

The district hospitals must have 24 x 7 testing available, and it must also be made available at other convenient locations where people could easily access the same, the CM said.

To ensure that no deaths take place in home isolation, Capt Amarinder said the agency hired to look into these cases should keep a tab on such patients. While mortality audit was ongoing, it was a matter of satisfaction that the department was now collecting reasons for placing patients on ventilator by private hospitals, and there was a referral group available to monitor these patients, he said.

Later, police officials had to intervene in the matter who detained some members of the society. They said after recording statements of the hospital staff, cases would be registered.

Notably, three protests took place at the Civil Hospital today. The parents of affected children along with society members held a protest against the Health Department and state government demanding strict punishment for the culprits behind the HIV-positive blood transfusion to four children and a woman at the blood bank of the Civil Hospital.

In the second protest, lab technicians suspended their work and sat outside the blood bank unit along with pharmacists and multipursonnel intervened and said a case would be registered against those who misbehaved with officials of the Health Department.

Dr Gurmail, president of the PCMS Association, said, "We demand that a case be registered against those who not only misbehaved with officials of the department but also tried to manhandle one of the staff members. We also demand security as ever since the probes in the case have begun, doctors have been getting threats."

The State Council of Educational Research and Training (SCERT) on Wednesday issued directions to district education officers (DEOs) to conduct mid-term exams for all classes from December 7-24.

While students of Classes I to VIII will be evaluated on the basis of online tests, those studying in Classes IX to XII will have to take exams in schools. The development has come at a time when the state is bracing for the second wave of Covid-19.

Expressing disapproval, many parents say the move appears to contradict the state government's decision to impose fresh curbs to contain the virus.

of students are attending physical classes. The sources claim the department has decided to con-

Meanwhile, teachers have expressed apprehension over the conduct of online exams for junior classes, saying a majority of students in government schools do not have access to smart phones.

When contacted, Jagtar Singh Kulria, Director, SCERT, refused to comment.

CHANDIGARH, NOVEMBER 25
Opposition leaders criticised the state government on Wednesday over the arrests of farmers' leaders and blocking of roads to stop peasants.

"Instead of holding talks with farmers and finding a solution, their voice is being throttled. Farmers should not be suppressed and we support them," said Leader of Opposition Bhupinder Singh Hooda.

"The dictatorial attitude of the BJP-JJP government reminds us of British rule. Seeing farmers' anger, this government is scared. That is why it wants to throttle their voice," said state Congress president Kumari Selja.

"Instead of talking to farmers, the state government is arresting them. It is infringement of their rights in a democracy. The Centre should listen to farmers' bodies and make MSP mandatory. We condemn the arrest of farmers and sealing of borders," said INLD secretary general Abhay Chautala.—TNS

AMBALA, NOVEMBER 25

After breaking barricades and facing water cannons, hundreds of farmers led by Bhartiya Kisan Union (Charuni) chief Gurnam Singh Charuni crossed Ambala and Pipli in Kurukshetra on Wednesday to continue their march to Delhi to protest against the three farm laws.

On the 'Delhi Chalo' call given by various farm unions, a large number of farmers under the banner of the Sanyukta Kisan Morcha from various districts, including Ambala, Kurukshetra and Yamunanagar, assembled near the Mohra grain market in Ambala on the NH-44. Raising anti-government slogans, they started their march towards Delhi.

Adamant on their march, farmers proceeded on their tractor-trailers and other vehicles, forcing police personnel to make way. Charuni and other farmer leaders standing on a vehicle fell when the driver sped up.

"Our fight is not against the state government. We want to reach Delhi to raise our voice when the driver sped up.

"The BKU chief was not

Union Government. We had been protesting and raising our voice for the past four months, but no attention was paid. The state government should not try to disturb our march and let us go peacefully, otherwise it will be responsible for the consequences. We will reach Delhi at any cost," said Charuni.

"Our purpose was to ensure that the law and order situation remained under control. Traffic was diverted and a large number of farmers went back," said Ambala DC Ashok Sharma.

"We tried our best to stop them, but they were adamant to continue their march. No violence was allowed or reported," said Kurukshetra DC Sharandeep Kaur.

Since no force was used, it was hard to stop them. Appropriate action will be taken as per the law and cases registered," said SP Rajesh Kalia.

The Kurukshetra administration had put up barricades near Tyora village in Kurukshetra. After being stopped for nearly two hours, angry farmers managed to break barricades and continued their march. The police used water cannons, but failed to stop farmers.

HC notice to state over detentions

CHANDIGARH, NOVEMBER 25

The Punjab and Haryana High Court put Haryana on notice on Wednesday on a habeas corpus petition filed by a farmers' union, alleging illegal midnight raids and illegal detention of farmers to sabotage "peaceful protest planned against the three contentious farm laws viewed as anti-farmer".

Appearing before the Bench of Justice Sant Parkash through video-conferencing on behalf of the Haryana Progressive Farmers Union, counsel Pardeep Kumar Rapria submitted that the petitioner was an advocacy group formed by farmers from various parts of Haryana for the welfare of cultivators.

They were seeking issuance of a writ in the nature of habeas corpus for direction to the state and other respondents to release the detainees enumerated in a list. —TNS

Chautala's vehicle stopped

HISAR: INLD supremo Om Prakash Chautala was stopped by farmers near Khuan Malkana toll plaza on the Dabwali-Sirs road when he was going to Sirsa from Chautala village on Wednesday. The farmers had blocked the road at the toll plaza. The staff accompanying Chautala urged the protesters to let their vehicles go but the protesters refused. Chautala later took an alternative route via Neelanwali village to reach Sirsa.

Grooms stuck on NH

The protest has resulted in long queues on NH-44 near Taraori, Karnal. Hundreds of vehicles including the ones carrying bridegrooms are waiting for traffic clearance. Due to 'Dev Uthani Ekadashi' and 'Tulsi Vivah', the day is considered auspicious for solemnising marriages.

Cops invited to have food

Bonhomie was witnessed between farmers and police during langar when the farmers invited the on-duty policemen to have lunch with them soon after a small face-off between them on the NH in Ambala. Though the policemen refused the invitation politely as they were on duty, the farmers continued to call them and said that there was no rift between them as they both (farmers and police) were performing their respective duties.

Deputy CM in line of fire

Deputy Chief Minister Dushyant Chautala is in the line of fire once again. Farmers are agitated with the JJP and its leaders for keeping mum during protests against the farm laws. All India Kisan Sangharsh Co-ordination Committee leader Inderjit Singh sought a reply from Dushyant for the government's action against the farmers' agitation. "Dushyant claims to be a well-wisher of farmers, but is nowhere to be found when farmers are being suppressed by the police at the instance of his government. This is a violation of fundamental rights of the people and anti-national as well," he said.

Traffic jams at borders, commuters a harried lot

PANIPAT, NOVEMBER 25

'Delhi Chalo' protest. The Sonepat district administration has sealed the inter-state borders, especially the Kundli border, to stop the farmers' movement towards Delhi. Traffic has also been diverted.

Following directions, the police allowed the vehicles to cross the borders after searching them properly. As a result, long queues of vehicles were witnessed on Kundli border since Wednesday morning. The commuters had to face problems due to a long traffic jam. Besides, the Panipat-UP border at Sanoli has also been sealed.

Sonepat District Magistrate Shyam Lal Poonia and Panipat Duty Magistrate Manoj Kumar on Wednesday promulgated prohibitory orders under Section 144 of the CrPC banning the assembly of five or more persons in the district, organising demonstration and carrying of firearms.

Poonia appointed 19 duty magistrates in the district along with police officers to avert any untoward situation in wake of the proposed

'Delhi Chalo' protest. The Panipat DM, too, deputed 20 duty magistrates in the district and also appointed special officers at Panipat toll plaza and in Samalkha near Nirankari Centre on NH-44 to stop farmers. The ban order will remain in force till November 27 in Sonepat district and for a week in Panipat. Karnal: Commuters on the national highway had to travel extra miles which, as per the commuters, has led to wastage of time and fuel. "I have to reach Chandigarh at 5 pm, but due to traffic diversion earlier in Sonepat and now in Karnal, I am already running an hour late," said Nikhil, a resident of Chandigarh who came from Delhi. Ambala: As thousands of farmers from Punjab started marching towards Delhi via Ambala this afternoon, the heavy police force deployed at Shambhu and Sadodpur barriers on Haryana-Punjab border and on Ambala-Delhi highway at Mohra put up barricades and heavy concrete boulders to block their way. —TNS

Case tally goes past 8,000 in Ladakh

LEH, NOVEMBER 25

Four more Covid-related fatalities pushed the death toll to 105 in Ladakh, while the virus caseload crossed the 8,000-mark in the union territory after 83 new cases were detected in the last 24 hours, officials said on Wednesday.

Meanwhile, a civil society-sponsored weeklong lockdown in Leh entered the third day with all shops and business establishments except pharmacies remaining closed and transport off the roads.

All four new Covid-related deaths were reported from Leh, taking the death toll due to the disease in the district to 64, the officials said. Kargil district accounts for the remaining 41 Covid-related deaths in the union territory.

According to the officials, 82 persons tested positive for the virus in Leh and one more in Kargil, pushing the case tally in the union territory to 8,028.

Of these, 7,069 patients have recovered from the disease, including 84 discharged from hospitals in both Leh and Kargil in the past 24 hours.

The number of active Covid cases in Ladakh has now dropped to 854 - 758 in Leh and 96 in Kargil, the officials said.

Normal life in Leh town and adjoining areas remained disrupted for the third day following the civil society-sponsored weeklong lockdown to contain the spread of the virus. Leh district has been witnessing a spike in the number of cases for the past four weeks. — PTI

PDP youth wing leader Parra arrested by NIA in terror case

NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 25

PDP youth wing president Waheed ur Rehman Parra was arrested by the National Investigation Agency (NIA) on Wednesday for allegedly conspiring with Hizbul Mujahideen terrorists in securing their support during the 2019 parliamentary elections, officials said here.

CLOSELY LINKED TO DSP DAVINDER SINGH CASE

The officials alleged that Parra, who recently filed his nomination for the District Development Council (DDC) elections from Pulwama in South Kashmir, was arrested for his alleged "close links" with Irfan Shafi Mir, arrested along with Hizbul Mujahideen terrorist Naveed Babu and suspended Deputy Superintendent of Police Davinder Singh.

investigation into Singh's association with Hizbul Mujahideen terrorists, the NIA came across the phone records of Mir which showed that he was in close touch with Parra.

The spokesperson of the NIA only gave a brief statement saying "today NIA arrested Waheed Ur Rehman Parra, the youth wing leader of People's Democratic Party, in connection with the Naveed Babu-Davinder Singh case for supporting Hizbul Mujahideen in conspiracy with the other accused persons." During questioning, Mir had claimed that Parra had actively sought his support during the 2019 Lok Sabha elections for party candidate Mehbooba Mufti, who is also the president of the PDP, the officials said.

Mufti reacted on Twitter saying, "BJP milks illegal scrapping of Article 370 in every nook and corner of the country. But when it comes to Kashmiris questioning its abrogation they are locked up and punished.

Everyone knows at whose behest Devinder Singh worked for Ironic that they have the gall (sic) to blame others." She also said Waheed had no connection whatsoever with Singh and "is being falsely charged. All just to blackmail and intimidate the PDP and other mainstream political parties in JK". — PTI

Mattu returns as Srinagar Mayor

Was ousted from post nearly 6 mths ago

SRINAGAR, NOVEMBER 25

Junaid Azim Mattu returned as the Mayor of the Srinagar Municipal Corporation (SMC) on Wednesday, less than six months after he was ousted from the office through a no-confidence motion. Imran, who was also in the People's Conference at that time, was seen as the prime mover behind Mattu's removal.

Mattu, who does not have any known party affiliation currently, defeated Sheikh Imran, a former Deputy Mayor who was removed from office last year through a no-confidence motion. Imran also did not represent any party in the mayoral polls.

"Mattu got 44 votes while Imran got seven. Nineteen councillors abstained from voting," SMC Commissioner Gazanfar Ali said after the election. Mattu, who was last associated with the People's Conference led by Sajad Lone, was removed from the Mayor's post in June in a no-confidence motion.

Mattu's ascent to the mayoral post in 2018 was surrounded by controversy as the then Governor of the erstwhile state of Jammu and Kashmir, SP Malik, had predicted that he would be the next Mayor of the city, weeks before the first vote was cast. — TNS

BJYM protesters detained outside Abdullah's residence

ROSHNI ACT

JAMMU, NOVEMBER 25

Jammu and Kashmir's BJP youth wing chief and some members were detained by the police on Wednesday as they tried to stage a protest outside the residence of National Conference leader Farooq Abdullah over allegation that the house had been built on encroached government land, officials said.

Ex-Chief Minister Farooq Abdullah and his son Omar Abdullah, also a former CM, have been named by the J&K Administration in a list of people who had allegedly encroached on forest land. The administration claimed that the house in Jammu, belonging to Farooq Abdullah and his son, was built on encroached land, a charge denied by the NC. Farmers' march

Protesters, Centre must find common ground on farm laws

THE farmers' agitation against the farm laws, enacted by the Centre in late September despite stiff opposition, has entered a potentially make-or-break phase. Even as the Union Government has invited farmers' organisations to the Capital for talks on December 3, the protesters — predominantly from Punjab — are bent on taking out a two-day 'Delhi Chalo' march. Fearing a massive influx of farmers, the BJP-led government in Haryana has sealed the state's border with Punjab and imposed Section 144 of the CrPC, besides swooping down on kisan leaders. The developments have raised the spectre of a nasty showdown, pitting the BJP against the farming community as well as the Opposition.

The utter disconnect between the two sides has been a major obstacle. The protesters have tried to dictate their terms to the Centre, taking a call on which trains would ply and which won't. The railway authorities, in turn, insisted on unrestricted and unconditional passage for all trains. Both the state government and the Railways incurred heavy losses due to the disruption of rail services. Earlier this week, the farmer bodies did make a concession, albeit for a 15-day period, ending the two-month-long suspension of train movement that had hit the supply of coal, fertilisers and other essential goods to Punjab.

Ruling out the revocation of the 'pro-farmer' laws, the Centre has been slow to gauge the gravity of the situation. In the past two months, the government has held only two rounds of talks with the farm unions; on both occasions, the deliberations remained inconclusive. On October 14, the farmers walked out of a meeting with the agriculture secretary, complaining that no minister was present to hear them out. Finally, on November 13, Railway Minister Piyush Goyal and Agriculture Minister Narendra Singh Tomar met the union leaders, but to no avail. The Centre needs to proactively engage with the stakeholders and address their concerns. And the protesting farmers should realise that they might run out of popular support soon if they are perceived to be a public nuisance and a disruptive force. Confining themselves to the negotiating table, instead of blocking rail tracks and roads, is their best bet.

World is our stage

International Emmy for Delhi Crime just proved it

UNDENIABLY, it was a crime that outraged the nation. The barbaric gangrape and murder of Nirbhaya not only shook the collective consciousness of the country, but also ushered in sweeping reforms in the law. As the horrific incident of 2012 and its aftermath were retold by Indo-Canadian director Richie Mehta last year with his debut web series Delhi Crime, the net result was both unsettling and compelling. The drama, more of a police procedural, which impressed critics and audiences alike, has now brought home India's first International Emmy, picking up the Best Drama series honour. It is indeed a moment of glory and something to be proud of.

Decoding why a creative work has won a particular laurel is not easy or simple. But a couple of things could have swung things in Delhi Crime's favour. The series stood out for nuanced performances, realistic treatment and sensible and sensitive handling of a rather difficult subject. Though it brought forth a discomfiting truth and was criticised by a few for being too partial to Delhi Police, the dramatisation can't be accused of pandering to a western eye or any other gaze. Mehta describes it best, 'It was born out of sadness, anger, frustration, and ultimately, compassion.'

The rise of OTT platforms and arrival of big players like Netflix and Amazon have consistently raised the bar and redefined entertainment, which in Bollywood parlance has been essentially star-driven. If Sacred Games and Lust Stories won Emmy nominations last year, this year too more than one Indian web series were in contention in different categories. Indian web series are fast acquiring a cutting edge, rivalling the best in the field. As the government decides to play moral nanny and brings OTT platforms under the ambit of the Information and Broadcasting Ministry, it must bear in mind while framing rules that the makers are allowed to breathe free and creative liberty is not forsaken for grandstanding.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

A good resolution is like an old horse, which is often saddled but rarely ridden. — Proverb

ON THIS DAY...100 YEARS AGO

The Tribune.

LAHORE, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1920

THE IRISH SITUATION.

NOTHING could be easier than to condemn in the very strongest terms the simultaneous and cold-blooded murder of as many as fourteen British officers in Dublin. These murders stand out as one of the darkest chapters in Irish history, and it is with no sense of surprise we learn that for the moment not English opinion but the better mind of Ireland herself is horrified. The one great organ of English opinion which has invariably stood by Ireland in her recent troubles is the Daily News and this journal says with reference to the crime that "the truest friends of Ireland bitterly regret the murderous assaults by maddened Sinn Fein extremists." The rest of English Press is crying literally for measures of revenge. The Times, for instance, which has not been a supporter of the Cabinet's Irish policy, says that "the only answer to the crime is the sternest and most unremitting vindication of law" which, of course, is only a euphemism for pitiless vindictiveness. The Daily Telegraph says more frankly that British justice must pursue crime to the relentless end. The Morning Post, as usual the fiercest of the lot, urges the Government to crush the campaign with all forces at its disposal in the interests of civilisation and says that conspirators throughout the Empire are watching Ireland and waiting for the time when they can ring up their own curtain with confidence, the last observation being probably no more than an illustration of the familiar truth that "conscience makes cowards of us all." Even the Irish Press is staggered. The Irish Times says that "the country whose capital is the scene of fourteen callous and cowardly murders has reached the nadir of moral degradation." We feel indignation gives place to despair as soon as one begins to reflect that Ireland is in the grip of a civil war, and in the presence of the awful facts of such a war, reason, moral sense, humanity all stand paralysed.

Uncertainties in Afghanistan

With the US in a flux, the withdrawal will be more challenging

G PARTHASARATHY

CHANCELLOR, JAMMU CENTRAL UNIVERSITY & FORMER HIGH COMMISSIONER TO PAKISTAN

MEDIATOR: Afghan leaders like Abdullah Abdullah can act as the 'bridge' to challenge the Taliban-Pakistan nexus.

As the US prepares to reduce its forces and withdraw from Afghanistan, one has to look back at the circumstances that led to its military intervention. The Al-Qaeda, largely based in Afghanistan, was responsible for the attacks on New York and Washington on September 11, 2001. The US responded with a massive aerial bombardment and invasion of Taliban-ruled Afghanistan within a month. Taliban leader Mullah Omar, who played host to Osama bin Laden and his followers, fled to Pakistan. That conflict has now lasted for over 19 years. An estimated 1.11 lakh Afghans and 4,092 Americans have died in the conflict. Estimates about the costs incurred by the US vary from $778 billion to $1 trillion. Pakistan was strangely described as a 'major US ally' and rewarded liberally with economic and military assistance. This assistance was used by the Pakistan's army and air force against its own Pashtun people in tribal areas, including North Waziristan, near the Pakistan-Afghanistan border.

In his memoirs, A Promised Land, former President Barack Obama describes the situation prevailing during his visit to Afghanistan in 2012. He was informed by a highly reputed former CIA official that the Pakistan military/ISI not only tolerated the presence of the Taliban leadership in Quetta, near the Pakistan-Afghanistan border, but it was quietly assisting the Taliban, as a means of keeping the Afghan Government weak, and hedging against Pakistan's arch rival, India. Obama adds: 'The US Government had long tolerated such behaviour from a purported ally, of supporting it with billions of dollars in military and economic aid, despite its complicity with violent extremists, and its record, as a significant and irresponsible proliferator of nuclear weapons. This says something about the pretzel-like logic of US foreign policy!' Despite his knowledge of such Pakistani duplicity, Obama sounded defensive, while speaking to Pakistan's President Asif Zardari, to formally inform him about the US action to eliminate Osama bin Laden. There, however, appears to have been no expression of outrage by Obama to Zardari, for Pakistan providing safe haven to a terror mastermind in a cantonment which houses the Pakistan Defence Academy, and is located near its capital, Islamabad!

Pakistan is now in a strange position. Its Punjabi majority faces continuing resentment in Balochistan, where attempts to quell resistance and uprisings have been unsuccessful. But, over the past decades, there has been growing disquiet in the Pashtun-dominated Khyber Pakhtunkhwa province, despite Pashtuns being well represented in the Pakistan army. In 2014, the Tehrik-e-Taliban Pakistan conducted a terrorist attack on Army Public School, Peshawar, killing 149 people. The then army chief, Gen Raheel Sharif, responded with a massive attack backed by aerial bombings across North Waziristan.

The ISI is encouraging the Taliban to resort to 'salami slicing' by taking control of more and more territory.

Reporting from the scenes of the attack, Al Jazeera noted that about one million people were forced out of their homes by the offensive, described by Pakistan as a 'final push' to eradicate the presence of the Al-Qaeda, the Taliban and the Islamic Movement of Uzbekistan that had plagued North Waziristan for 14 years. Locals have little hope of returning home anytime soon. Thousands of homes and businesses had been levelled by air strikes and bulldozers, aid from the federal government was being cut, and security forces were asking residents to sign an agreement, taking collective responsibility for any militant presence in their areas, before they return home.

In neighbouring South Waziristan, Pakistani troops had carried out a large-scale ground offensive in 2009, displacing thousands, many of whom have not returned home. These developments have left refugees from the ruthless operation in North Waziristan sceptical of official promises of a swift end to their suffering. The ISI also facilitates cross-border attacks by its proteges in the Haqqani Taliban Network on Afghan forces. The Pashtuns are now making common cause to redress their grievances through the Pashtun Tahafuz Movement, dedicated to waging a peaceful struggle for their democratic rights, reminiscent of the struggle of their legendary freedom fighter, Khan Abdul Ghaffar Khan.

The Taliban now control vast tracts of territory in Afghanistan, where they repeatedly attack even the capital, Kabul. With outgoing President Trump determined to drastically reduce the presence of the Afghan army from 4,500 to 2,500 troops, the Taliban are not interested in a ceasefire that the Americans are desperately seeking. The Afghan government is a house divided, with Ghani's erstwhile deputy, Abdullah Abdullah, nominated to negotiate with the Taliban in Doha, after visiting Pakistan and India. Pakistan's policy continues to be based on duplicity. While making out that the ISI can influence the Taliban to exercise restraint in Afghanistan, the ISI is actually encouraging the Taliban to resort to 'salami slicing' by taking control of more and more territory across Afghanistan, much like China attempts on its borders with India. The US will have to be persuaded to resort to more extensive use of air power to deal with the Taliban.

It needs to be remembered that the Taliban are intensely disliked by a large number of Pashtuns in Afghanistan, who loathe their medieval extremism and their ISI masters. The non-Pashtun majority of Afghanistan comprising Tajiks, Hazaras, Uzbeks, Turkmen, Baloch and others, who constitute 58% of Afghanistan's population, had fought the Taliban under the banner of the Northern Alliance, before the Americans stepped in. The US would have to be persuaded to deal with the challenges posed by the Taliban-Pakistan army nexus by uniting all ethnic groups in Afghanistan. Apart from the Afghan Government, there are leaders like former President Hamid Karzai and Abdullah Abdullah, who can act as the 'bridge' to challenge the Taliban-Pakistan nexus.

A majority of Pashtuns strongly feel that the Durand Line was unjustly imposed on them as their border during British colonial rule in India. A Pashtun friend had told me that Afghanistan's traditional borders were not along the Durand Line, but along the banks of the Indus at Attock.

A dose of dad's own medicine

GEORGE N NETTO

THE pleasant-tasting and mild-acting laxatives available today sometimes make me wonder how we boys stomached the unpalatable potion that was literally forced down our throats in the 1950s. My father had an abiding faith in the efficacy of castor oil as a purgative, having experienced its effectiveness as a boy when it had been forcibly administered to him too. As such, he scorned all popular brands of laxatives, opting for this vile-tasting remedy to thoroughly cleanse our digestive systems, banish constipation and rekindle our waning appetites.

Unsurprisingly, given its foul taste, my brothers and I loathed castor oil.

Sometimes the very prospect of having to gulp down half a cup of it, undiluted, made us throw up. Yet it was an ordeal to which we were subjected willy-nilly twice a year, dad's faith in the laxative being unshakeable.

On a Saturday morning, we would reluctantly queue up before dad, our faces eloquently mirroring our disgust. Often we would jockey to be the last in line, hoping his stock of castor oil would run out. Then, as he poured out a generous measure of the yellow concoction, our domestic help Hassan would pinion our hands behind us, one by one, so that we couldn't knock the cup out of dad's hand. And down the hatch the 'slime' would be forced as one writhed helplessly, making the wryest of faces that would have been a cartoonist's delight! Any-one spitting out or throwing up the horrible potion would be promptly given another dose. And, what was worse, no sweets were permitted to neutralise the nauseating taste.

Predictably, about two hours later, our stomachs would begin to churn and rumble, audibly and ominously, signalling that the purgative was at work. And it did! Of course, we did try to somehow wriggle out of the ordeal—feigning a splitting headache, acute stomach pain or even giddiness. But dad shrewdly saw through all our ruses—apparently, he himself had resorted to these as a boy! Once, we even conspired to pool our paltry pocket-money and bribe the shopkeeper down the road into not stocking castor oil. However, the plan was never implemented for fear of dad's punitive cane.

Once, as D-Day approached, in sheer desperation, we concealed the bottle of castor oil within the folds of dad's umbrella, confident that he would never look for it there. However, my youngest brother spilled the beans after wresting an assurance from dad that he would be given only half the normal dose of oil.

Quite understandably, few sing the praises of castor oil now—I'm sure youngsters today wouldn't touch it even with a bargepole. Yet, repulsive though it was, the fact remains that it was indeed an effective purgative that did revive our flagging appetites. No wonder dad swore by its efficacy and administered it dictatorially!

RBI proposal

The RBI is considering a proposal to allow large corporate and industrial houses to operate banks. This effort is being made to increase the pace of the national economy and improve financial management. But many experts, including former top central bank officials, have objected to it. Four out of five members of the bank's internal working group had earlier suggested that big houses should not be allowed to run banks, but the panel also said corporate ownership companies should be converted into banks. The panel believes that the work culture of industrial companies is not in line with international standards. There is also concern about the centralisation of economic power. The banking system is the backbone of the economy. The ratio of loans stuck in our country's banks is the highest in the current economy. The pandemic has also affected the banks. NPAs are projected to grow by double digits. But any final decision in this regard should be taken only after due consideration of all aspects and care should be taken to ensure that the interests of the country and the customers are protected.

NBFC conversion

Apropos of 'New banking landscape', as government finances appear to be on the mend, with the GST regime stabilising and the worst of the lockdown-induced revenue shortfalls over, the RBI panel proposal to allow large NBFCs to convert to banks is welcome. But there is the unresolved crisis of a broken banking system that can hold back economic growth. The Centre cannot keep recapitalising public sector banks. India today needs more banks. It is in this context that the recommendation by the RBI is in the right direction. Such NBFCs could include those controlled by large corporate houses, subject to conditions. Converting established NBFCs into banks is different from permitting large corporate/industrial houses to set up banks. The RBI panel has rightly adopted a cautious approach.

E-waste collection centres

The Pollution Control Board should kick-start e-waste collection centres in every district of every state, since almost all electronic scrap components, such as CPUs, PCBs, etc., contain potentially harmful material. These materials affect the health of all living beings adversely. According to an EPTRI report, 80% per cent of e-waste generated in the cities is from households and also bulk consumers of electronic goods such as public and private institutions, manufacturers or

IT companies. It will be more useful if the board starts an e-waste collection centre by incorporating private organisations via a mobile application. The waste should be picked up from the user's doorstep, thereby making small households stakeholders in waste management. Users should get monetary payments for the e-waste they give up. Every year, over 20 lakh tonnes of e-waste is generated and only a small percentage is recycled in a scientific manner.

Why invoke Gandhi?

Refer to 'The limited impact of the roko agitation'; it is unfortunate that the writer has been totally partial towards the Central government and against the farmers of Punjab. Why evoke Gandhi in this farmers' agitation? Though people suffered because of the 'rail roko' protest, the fault lies entirely with the Centre. The writer doesn't entail the farm laws scripted as ordinances during the lockdown and then passed in the Rajya Sabha surreptitiously, even without proper voting. The stakeholders were never consulted. This government is beholden to corporate houses and does not seem to care for the farmers, and the people at large.

Mask as good as vaccine

The public at large has become complacent, as if the Covid-19 pandemic has come to an end ('Mask as metaphor'). Almost every state is witnessing a surge in Covid cases. Vaccines are expected soon, but won't be available for everyone in the next few months and may not have 100% results. Thus the mainstay of prevention of this disease will remain universal masking. Metaphorically speaking, a mask is no less than a vaccine, but the regret is that people are underestimating its importance. It is not the right time to throw winds to the various precautionary measures.

Promote e-sports

'Better to do something late than not'. E-sports is not recognised by our government, and therefore the people of the country. Many other countries are reaching heights in e-sports, but in India it is not considered a field which one can consider to build a career in. Many countries are supporting e-sports and its players. There is a lot of young talent in India which needs to be recognised. As all other sports are considered legit, why not e-sports? Where is India's official e-sports federation? MAROOF RAZA

STRATEGIC AFFAIRS ANALYST

TWELVE years have passed since the terrorist attacks in Mumbai on November 26, 2008 (that have come to be known as 26/11 attacks). These attacks were planned and orchestrated by the Pakistani military establishment, though they insist otherwise. But apart from the capture of Kasab and the trail of overwhelming evidence that confirmed Pakistan's role in the attack, the clincher was the admission in Washington by Lt Gen Shuja Pasha, who was Pakistan's DG, ISI, at the time of the attacks. This was made to General Michael Hayden, an ex-CIA chief, who recalls his meeting with Pasha in his book Playing to the Edge, and so does Hussain Haqqani, who was Pakistan's ambassador to the US.

Haqqani recounted his meeting with Pasha on December 24-25, 2008, when he was serving as the ambassador. He quoted General Pasha as saying: 'Log hamaray thay, operation hamara nahin tha', in his book India vs Pakistan: Why Can't We Just Be Friends? Pakistan has since then worked hard to remove every evidence that continues to expose the role of the Pakistani 'deep state'. But the ghost of the 26/11 attacks will continue to haunt GHQ Rawalpindi, as long as Hafiz Saeed and Zakiur Rahman Lakhvi — the masterminds of the attacks — are alive, never mind the shame of their arrests, from time to time.

The targets in Mumbai were chosen this time, with careful precision and thought, as has come out in the admissions of David Headley in the book The Mind of a Terrorist by Kaare Sorensen. Headley had done a detailed reconnaissance of the target spots in Mumbai. Pakistan's aim was to hit at the symbols of India's economic boom and to stall India's growth. Mumbai fitted the bill, and though it had lived through terror attacks in the past, the thoroughly planned attack on India's financial hub on the 26th of November brought home to the Indians, especially in the metros, that they too were vulnerable to the horrors of Pakistan-sponsored cross-border terrorism, a problem faced largely by the residents of India's states bordering Pakistan. As the 60-hour-long gun battles and the operations that followed — as a counter to the terror attacks — with television cameras covering the event from every angle, the 'menace of terrorism' was finally brought home to India's civil society and the corporate world, that they would now also be at its receiving end.

The public outrage that followed this attack was enormous. Pakistan readied itself for an Indian military strike. Had India responded with retaliatory air strikes — as it did on Balakot after the Pulwama attack — since the IAF had reportedly indicated that it had a 48-hour window to do so, relations between India and Pakistan would have unfolded differently. There could have been a Pakistani military response — as part of their denial strategy — but pressure from the world capitals, especially the US (that too lost its citizens in Mumbai), would have stopped the Pakistani army in its tracks. But the Indian government preferred a measured response, even though the then PM Manmohan Singh was to say: "There is enough evidence to show that, given the sophistication and military precision of the attack, it must have had the support of some official agencies in Pakistan." And so, after a series of flip-flops, Pakistan's dithering civilian regime — under considerable US pressure — finally admitted that India's claims, at least partially, were right. But the event was soon overshadowed by India's election process and the cricket fever of the Indian Premier League season, and our priorities changed!

But it isn't just India that said the 26/11 attacks on Mumbai were planned and executed by the notorious Lashkar-e-Taiba (LeT) with a lot of help from Pakistan's military and intelligence agencies. It was confirmed by a RAND Corporation's Occasional Paper (OP-249-RC) of 2009. The overwhelming evidence pointed to the Pakistani army's doors — the military professionalism and precision of the terrorists, data on their GPS phones, and maps used by the attackers. But most importantly, the confessions of the one captured terrorist, Ajmal Amir Kasab, gave away Pakistan's lies. Kasab has since been hanged, even though this writer believes — while sharing the grief of the victims — that keeping him alive would have done a lot to remind Pakistan through his admissions how he was trained, armed and unleashed against India, by minders in the ISI and the LeT, as has been detailed by Stephen Tankel in his book on the Lashkar-e-Taiba, Storming the World Stage, and in Saroj Rath's book Fragile Frontiers.

Moreover, the manner in which LeT leader Hafiz Saeed was brought before the court last week in fancy SUVs with bodyguards leaves no room for doubt that he is privy to 'state secrets' and his tribe of terrorists are still valuable assets of the Pakistan army. For India, the 26/11 attacks created awareness that any of the major cities of India could be targets.

For India, the 26/11 attacks created awareness that any of its major cities could be targets. Cities that have foreigners, corporate houses, celebrities and the common man were at risk anywhere now. In that sense, the 26/11 attacks were India's 9/11 moment. The trail in terror attacks has almost always led to Pakistan. The question is: are we any better equipped for the next attack?

PLANNED ATTACK: Pakistan maintains non-state actors are involved in acts of terror emanating from its soil against India, but it needs to check such activities.

Cities that have foreigners, corporate houses, celebrities and the common man were at potential risk anywhere now. In that sense, the 26/11 attacks were India's 9/11 moment. And though the attacks on Mumbai captured international media attention with about 180 people killed — including many Westerners — terrorism had been a major political and security concern in India since the 1980s. First in Punjab, followed by the turmoil in the Kashmir valley, and with terror attacks in Indian cities such as Delhi, Bengaluru, Hyderabad, Jaipur, Lucknow, Ajmer and Jammu, among others. The trail almost always has led to Pakistan. The question is — are we any better prepared for the next attack?

How Ambedkar's legal stance helped unify India

RAJA SEKHAR VUNDRU

IAS OFFICER AND AUTHOR OF AMBEDKAR, GANDHI & PATEL: THE MAKING OF INDIA'S ELECTORAL SYSTEM

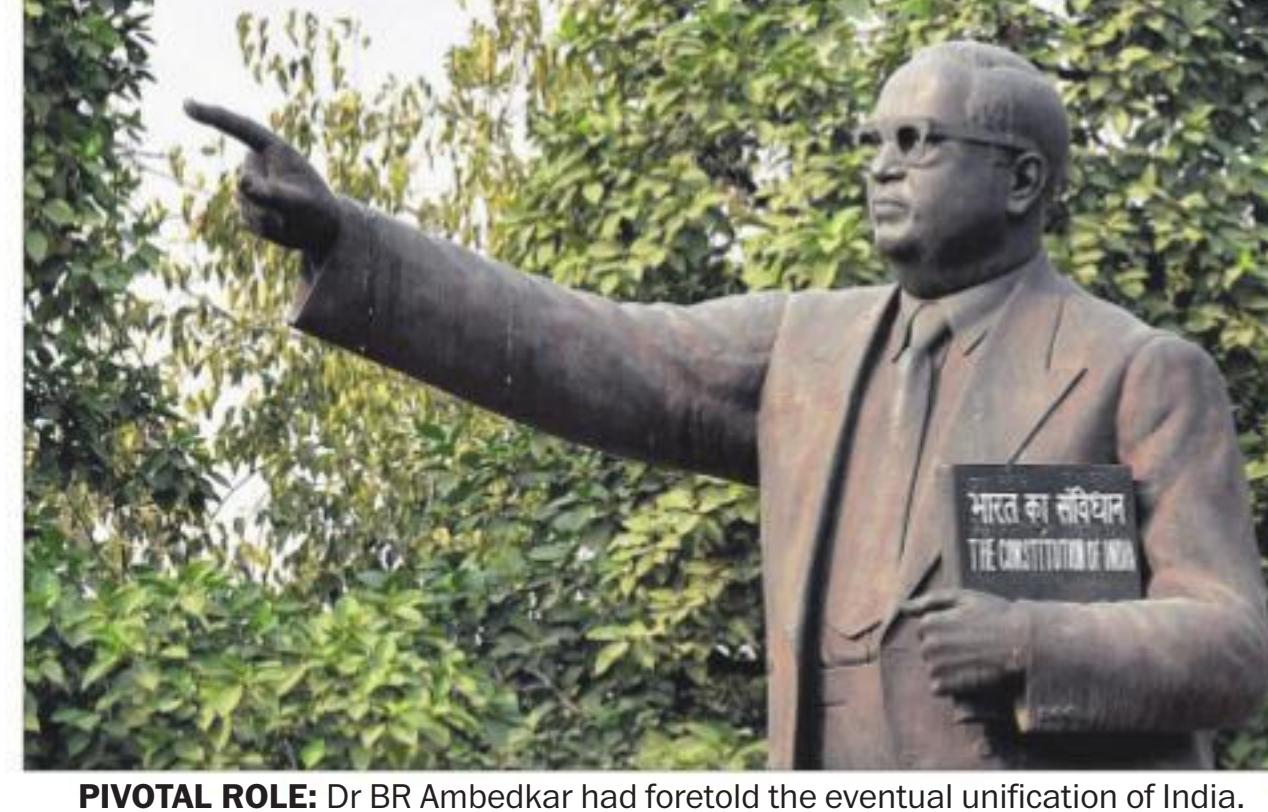

The British controlled the native states by the doctrine of paramountcy. Ambedkar argued that the Indian government as on June 3, 1947, still had dominion status. He cited constitutional law that the status of a dominion becomes vested with the right to advise the Crown and the Crown cannot reject the advice. He called out the British parliament for lapsing paramountcy and granting independence to the princely states.

CONSTITUTION DAY

BR Ambedkar, Chairman of the drafting committee of the Constitution, also played a role in India's unification. Long before Sardar Patel wore the mantle of Home Minister and the unifier of independent India, Ambedkar foretold as early as 1931 the inevitable unification and that its splintered princely states would join India. Later, in June 1947, Ambedkar legally invalidated the idea of the princely states of Travancore and the Nizam of Hyderabad not to join the Indian union, and their stance to appeal to the newly formed United Nations (UN).

Ambedkar was one of the few leaders who attended all the three Round Table Conferences (RTC), held with the aim of framing the 1935 Government of India Act. Gandhi attended the second RTC and unfortunately for Sardar Patel and Jawaharlal Nehru, they were not a part of the Congress delegation in London in the 1930s. Nor could they witness the legal acumen and prowess of Ambedkar in the London deliberations. It was in the Federal Structure Committee in the RTC that Ambedkar clashed with the Maharaja of Bikaner (representing the Chamber of Princes) on September 16, 1931, and pooh-poohed the idea of each of the princely states seeking representation in British Indian Parliament after 1935.

Ambedkar said while British India's 273 districts averaged 4,000 square miles and a population of eight lakh, out of the 562 princely states, "454 (princely) states have an area of less than 1,000 square miles; that 452 states have a population of less than 1,00,000; and that 374 states have a revenue of less than Rs 1 lakh. Some of the states are so absurdly small that no one can help pitying them for the unfortunate dignity imposed upon them. As many as 15 states have territories which in no case reach a square mile, while 27 others possess just one square mile. Fourteen states exist in Surat district... realised a revenue of more than Rs 3,000 in the previous financial year. Three of these states could not boast of a population of 100 souls, and five of a revenue of Rs 100."

Ambedkar further derided the existence of such paltry princes saying "it is no use trying to please the fancy of an Indian prince simply because he delights to call himself a prince by letting his state be a separate entity."

While such was the condition of princely states, it was inevitable that such princes who could not self-sustain and lived on false pride, joined the Indian Union, except for two princely states which announced themselves to be independent on August 15, 1947. The confusion was created by the 1946 British Cabinet Mission plan which said that paramountcy would lapse on the British leaving India, and the princely states can join any successor government or become independent. This was reiterated by Mountbatten on June 3, 1947, and Nehru made a statement that as successor state, they would have the right.

Ambedkar took serious objection to the British position and made a major statement on June 17, 1947, which was flashed in the press with his statement reproduced in toto, where he lambasted the British on allowing freedom to the states. The British controlled the native states by the doctrine of paramountcy and the paramount power had a claim on the princely states. Ambedkar argued that first, the Indian government as on June 3, 1947, still had dominion status under the British — and remained a dominion till January 26, 1950 — like Australia, Canada, South Africa and Ireland. He cited constitutional law that the status of a dominion becomes vested with the exclusive right to advise the Crown in the exercise of its prerogative and the Indian government, being an independent dominion (interim government under Nehru), the Crown cannot reject the advice. Under such circumstances, he called out the British parliament for lapsing the paramountcy and granting independence to the princely states and that it was the prerogative of the Indian government. He said:

"The King cannot surrender or abandon his prerogative rights. If the Crown cannot transfer paramountcy, the Crown cannot also abandon it," thereby nullifying the Cabinet Mission and Mountbatten's statements.

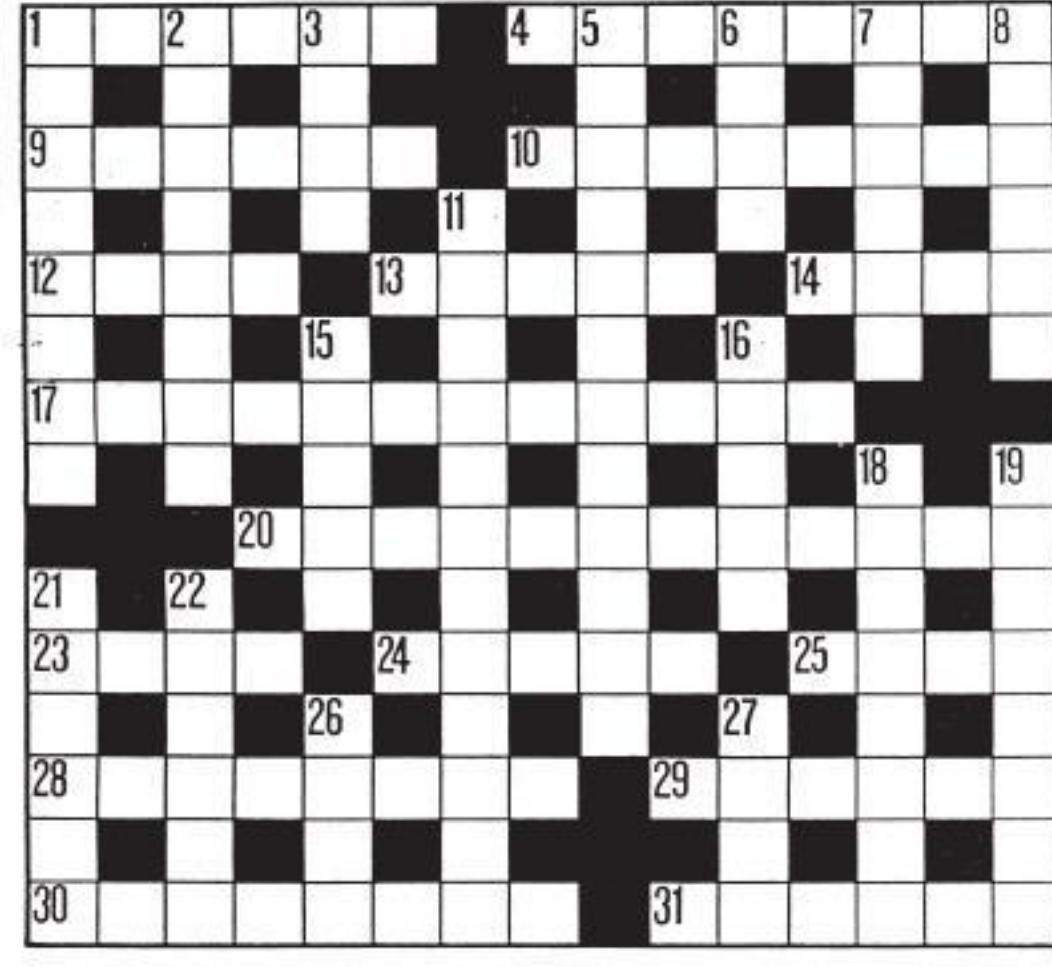

Ambedkar clarified to the princely states that the "only way by which the Indian (princely) states can free themselves from paramountcy would be to bring about a merger of sovereign states seeking its intervention. That can happen only when the states join the Indian Union as constituent units thereof." He warned the native princes that India will not recognise their independence nor can a foreign state accord them the status of an independent state.

Ambedkar doubted whether the UN would recognise the princely states, ignoring the claim by India of suzerainty over them. He said the UN would never grant any assistance to an Indian state from external aggression or internal commotion without insisting that the state should first introduce responsible government within its area, thus dashing hopes of errant Indian princely states seeking its intervention.

While the Congress was silent on the 1946 Cabinet Mission concession to the princely states, Ambedkar's legal clarification set the ball rolling for a complete unification and closed all the doors for the princely states. The vacillating states of Travancore, Jodhpur, Bikaner, Jaisalmer, Rampur and Bhopal fell in line except for Junagadh which went for a plebiscite. A few weeks after his June 17, 1947, statement, Ambedkar joined as India's Law Minister and guided the formative nation into complete unification. He was credited with having advised Nehru to name the operation for the unification of Hyderabad as "police action" and not an Indian Army intervention, since integrating Hyderabad into India was to be an internal matter of suzerainty, based on his constitutional position.

SC lifts gag order on media in Amaravati land scam case

SATYA PRAKASH

TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 25

The Supreme Court (SC) on Wednesday lifted the gag order passed by the Andhra Pradesh High Court (HC) restraining the media from reporting about an FIR registered by the state police on the Amaravati land scam, allegedly involving a former Advocate General and two daughters of a sitting Supreme Court judge.

The order came from a three-judge Bench headed by Justice Ashok Bhushan on an appeal filed by the YS Jagannam Reddy Government challenging an Andhra Pradesh High Court order that restrained the media from reporting on the issue. The HC had also stayed the probe into the case.

Issuing notices to the respondents, the Bench posted the matter for final hearing in the last week of January 2021. The top court asked the Andhra Pradesh High Court

FORMER ANDHRA ADVOCATE GENERAL WAS BOOKED

TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

The Anti-Corruption Bureau of the Andhra Pradesh Police had registered an FIR against former Advocate General, two daughters of a sitting Supreme Court judge and 11 others, accusing them of purchasing land in Amaravati.

On behalf of the state government, senior advocate Harish Salve and Mukul Rohatgi, representing the former advocate general and others, submitted that it was a case of political vendetta and 'regime revenge'. They contended there was no illegality in purchasing land in 2015 as thousands of people did so since June 2014 after it became public that Andhra Pradesh's capital was being shifted to Amaravati.

Senior counsel Harish Salve and Mukul Rohatgi, representing the former advocate general and others, submitted, "This is an entire political writ petition against the Chief Minister. The plea is based not on facts, but reliable sources which too are

Experts: Climate change has upped Nivar threat

VIBHA SHARMA

NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 25

The actual impact of and damage caused by Nivar will be known on Thursday morning, but its transition to "very severe cyclone" is yet another indication of the various ways climate change and global warming is intensifying natural events, especially tropical storms.

There has been a global increase in the intensity of the strongest storms over recent decades. Nivar intensified from a "severe" category storm to a "very severe" category within 24 hours, which scientists attribute to large-scale and local environment conditions, including manmade contributions. There is also a correlation between cooler phase of ENSO, known as La Niña, and increased tropical cyclone activity in the Bay of Bengal. This being a La Niña year, which is also responsible for harsher and longer winter, is another underlying cause behind Nivar.

According to Dr Roxy Mathew Koll of the Indian Institute of Tropical Meteorology, La Niña makes local environmental conditions favorable for cyclogenesis in the Bay of Bengal. "In the past 40 years, six cyclones of the severe

End of an era as Argentine great passes away

ROHIT MAHAJAN

Diego Maradona, a giant measuring only five-feet-four, probably the greatest football player of the last half-century, has died. In this year of untimely death, the passing of the Argentine great at age 60 is the cruellest blow yet to the world of sport.

Maradona died of a heart attack today, two weeks after undergoing surgery for a clot in his brain. He had left a private hospital on November 11, after being hospitalised the previous week.

Greatest?

In the times before the Messi-Ronaldo era, discussion of over footballing greatness boiled down to two men from South America — Pele of Brazil and Diego Maradona of Argentina. Maradona had the upper hand because the memory of his magic was fresher. Thus it was that in

Goodbye Diego, gone too soon

Diego Maradona
1960-2020

Diego Maradona was probably the greatest footballer of the last 50 years; Maradona after teammate Jorge Burruchaga scored the winning goal 1986 World Cup final. FILE the year 2000, in an online poll organised by FIFA, football's world governing body, he emerged as the Player of the Century; Pele, who won three World Cup titles to Maradona's one, was given an award by an experts' panel constituted by FIFA. Pele lost the online popularity poll to Maradona because Pele's fan-base was diminishing by the year 2000; just as Messi or Ronaldo might beat Maradona if a poll were to be undertaken now.

The crowning glory of Maradona's amazing career was victory in the 1986 World Cup — those who watched his amazing second goal against England in the World Cup that year have vivid memories of it — receiving the ball in his own half near the near the centre, he turned around, he dodged one England defender, then feinted past another, sprinted and beat another defender with a deft flick of his left foot, went past the goalkeeper and sent the ball into the net. It was magic. His first goal in the game was the infamous 'hand of God' goal, in which he fisted the ball in after an aerial duel with goalkeeper Peter Shilton, who was much taller than him. Maradona was a playmaker in the 1990 World Cup, when his genius combined with the energy of the young team for a runners-up finish. He figured in the 1994 World Cup in the USA as well, but there he played only two matches before failing a drug test and being thrown out of the tournament.

Humble origins

Football was Maradona's escape from poverty in the shanties of Buenos Aires; spotted by a scout, he raced through the ranks and debuted for Argentina at age 16 in 1977. After the 1982 World Cup, he was snatched by Barcelona from Buenos Aires team Boca Juniors. The next move, to Napoli of Naples, was monumental, laying the foundation of his international acclaim.

Maradona, who last played for Argentina in 1994, later returned as a manager of the national team. His later years were completely unathletic, marred by allegations of drug and alcohol abuse. Known for his wild lifestyle during his playing days and in retirement, put on weight and lost it periodically. Maradona, 5ft 4in, solid muscle and velocity, barrelling and weaving through defences to score goals was one of the most memorable sights in the world of sport in the last 40 years. In an era when the referees were not very strict, he was the punching bag of the opposition, fouled from front, back and flanks.

Yet, the stocky, strong man rose each time and worked those powerful legs like windmills to shred defences. The death of such a man seems cruel and untimely. A sporting icon — a man who embodied youth, speed and life — is gone too soon.

“Sad news to lose a friend like that. May God give enough strength to his family. For sure, one day we will kick a ball together in heaven.

Pele, BRAZIL FOOTBALL GREAT

By some distance the best player of my generation and arguably the greatest of all time. After a blessed but troubled life, hopefully he'll finally find some comfort in the hands of God. #RipDiego.

Gary Lineker, FORMER ENGLAND STRIKER

Thank dear Dieguito for your friendship, for your football, sublime, without comparison. Simply, the best football player in the history of football. So many enjoyable moments together. Impossible to say which one was the best. RIP my dear friend.

AAI gets government nod

The long-running drama over the recognition of the Archery Association of India (AAI) has finally ended after eight years as the association got the Sports Ministry's nod today. AAI had been derecognised since 2012 after Vijay Kumar Malhotra was elected again as president after four decades in administration. However, the saga finally ended after the Sports Ministry stated that the election on January 18 this year was held as per the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011. AGENCIES

Prez for healthy House debates

'Some judgments gave impression of overreach'

Citing court verdicts on firecrackers and denying the executive a role in the appointment of judges, Vice-President M Venkaiah Naidu on Wednesday said some judgments gave a distinct impression of the judiciary's overreach. PTI

"It is expected of elected representatives that they remain committed to democratic values. The biggest challenge for elected representatives and democratic institutions is to fulfil the expectations of people. I believe people of this country expect that their elected representatives follow parliamentary norms. People get hurt when their elected representatives use unparliamentary words or indulge in indiscretion in Parliament or in the Assembly," said Kovind.

"In parliamentary democracy, the Opposition has an important role along with the ruling party, and so there is a need for understanding, cooperation, and meaningful exchange of thoughts between the two," he added. — PTI

OBITUARY

Ahmed Patel (AUG 21, 1949 – NOV 25, 2020)

Cong's all-time troubleshooter

ADITI TANDON

CONGRESS stalwart Ahmed Patel's untimely demise marks the end of an era in the grand old party, which is currently consumed by deep internal distrust and anxiety.

Widely acknowledged as Congress' chief crisis manager, Patel shadowed Sonia Gandhi as political secretary for 19 out of 22 years she served in the post.

"I have lost an irreplaceable comrade, a faithful colleague and a friend," Sonia lamented, as tributes flowed from across the spectrum, with PM Narendra

Modi hailing Patel's role in strengthening the Congress and for his "sharp mind". Patel's indispensability to Sonia was evident from her reliance on him through the tenure as the longest-serving Congress chief.

Patel was an eight term parliamentarian — thrice from the Lok Sabha and five times in the Rajya Sabha.

Sonia depended on Patel not only to negotiate the complex terrains of a 135-year-old institution, but also to engage the broad spectrum of non-BJP forces bringing the alliance experiment to fruition in UPA-1. Among several others, the most abiding message of Patel's life was loyalty to leadership. Barring once when he resigned as AICC Treasurer, Patel always backed the high command up until recently when he stoutly challenged the 23 leaders who voiced a rebellion against Sonia Gandhi.

Tender for more stealth submarines soon

NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 25
The Ministry of Defence is all set to issue a formal tender for making six new generation stealth submarines under a $7 billion project that will entail an Indian manufacturer's tie-up with a foreign partner for making these under-sea vessels.

The formal tender states the request for proposal (RFP) is expected any time now. Known as 'Project 75-India', it will be done under the strategic partnership model policy to make conventional diesel-electric vessels. The RFP has undergone the process of legal vetting and was expected to be released soon to the short-listed companies. Issuance of an RFP is the second stage of tendering process. —TNS
