Laws won't help to check population growth: Nitish

PATNA
Bihar Chief Minister Nitish Kumar asserted on Monday that it was not possible to ensure population control through laws. He was reacting to Union Rural Development Minister and senior BJP leader Giriraj Singh's call for a policy on population control in Bihar, similar to the one launched by Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath.

Inflation remains above 6% in June

Fuel and light inflation touches 12.7%, oils, fats and eggs lead food price spike

On a high

Retail inflation eased slightly to 6.26% in June 2021, against the 6.3% recorded in May, but remained above the RBI's upper limit of 6% for the second consecutive month

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

After touching a six-month high in May, retail inflation remained virtually unchanged in June at about 6.3%, staying out of the central bank's comfort zone for the second month in a row.

Economists expect the Reserve Bank of India to revisit its inflation estimate of 5.1% for 2021-22 and stressed that the lack of fiscal policy action to cool prices could precipitate a faster unwinding of RBI's growth-supporting approach to interest rates.

With petroleum product prices continuing to soar, fuel and light inflation hit 12.7% in June from 11.9% in May. Food inflation, which had flared up from just 2% in April to 5% in May, rose further, led by a 34.8% inflation rate for oils and fats and 19.4% for eggs. Inflation measured by the Consumer Price Index declined by just four basis points from May's 6.30%, as per the National Statistical Office. One basis point equals 0.01%.

Mr. Deuba, 74, has served as the Prime Minister on four occasions; first from 1995 to 1997, then from 2001 to 2002, again from 2004 to 2005, and from 2017 to 2018. Currently, he is the Leader of the Opposition in the House.

The court also ordered summoning a new session of the House of Representatives at 5 p.m. on July 18. Chief Justice Rana said the Bench has concluded that party whip does not apply when lawmakers take part in the voting to elect a new Prime Minister as per Article 76 (5) of the Constitution.

The Bench, which included the senior-most Justices Dipak Kumar Karki, Mira Khadka, Ishwar Prasad Khatiwada and Ananda Mohan Bhattacharya, had concluded hearings last week.

President Bhandari had dissolved the 275-member Lower House on May 22 and announced snap elections on November 12 and 19.

Last week, the Election

Commission had announced the schedule for mid-term elections despite the uncertainty over polls.

Verdict welcomed
Welcoming the court verdict, senior leader of the Nepal Communist Party-UML Madhav Kumar Nepal said,

"The Supreme Court has done a commendable job. This has saved the political system that is in place. Since the court has directly asked to appoint Deuba as new Prime Minister, we have no role to play now."

Under Mr. Madhav Nepal's leadership, 23 lawmakers of the UML had put their signature in favour of Mr. Deuba's claim to the prime ministership.

"Parliament has been reinstated. We will now go to Parliament," he said. "The court's verdict has also raised moral questions on Oli's actions."

Panel studying trial data of new COVID-19 vaccine, say officials

BINDU SHAJAN PERAPPADAN
NEW DELHI

The green signal for the emergency use approval of Zygov-D, the COVID-19 vaccine by Zydus Cadila for those aged 12 and above, will take a few more days, Union Health Ministry officials said on Monday.

The vaccine had shown good results in the Phase-1 and Phase-2 trials, and the data for the Phase-3 trials, conducted in more than 28,000 volunteers, were being examined by the Subject Expert Committee, they said.

NITI Aayog member (Health) V.K. Paul had recently said, "If all goes well, this vaccine's supply will begin in August-September."

Zygov-D is a three-dose in-tradermal vaccine, which is to be administered using the Pharmajet needle-free system. The second and third doses are to be administered on the 28th and the 56th days respectively. The Ministry refuted claims by the Delhi government and several States of shortage of vaccines.

It said more than 38.86 crore (38,86,09,790) doses had been provided to the States and the Union Territories so far through all sources and a further 63,84,230 doses were in the pipeline. "Of this, the total consumption, including wastages, is 37,31,88,834 doses [as per data available at 8 a.m. on Monday]," it noted.

Thousands of Cubans rally against govt.

They call for President to step down

Havana

Chanting "freedom" and calling for President Miguel Diaz-Canel to step down, thousands of Cubans joined street protests from Havana to Santiago on Sunday in the biggest anti-government demonstrations on the Communist-run island in decades.

The protests erupted amid Cuba's worst economic crisis since the fall of the Soviet Union, its former ally, and a surge in coronavirus infections, with people voicing anger over shortages of basic goods, curbs on civil liberties and the authorities' handling of the pandemic.

Thousands gathered in downtown Havana and along parts of the seaside drive, their shouts of "Diaz-Canel step down" drowning out groups of government supporters brandishing the Cuban flag and chanting "Fidel". Special forces vehicles, with machine guns mounted on the back were seen throughout the capital, Havana, and the police prese was heavy long after protesters had gone home.

Mr. Diaz-Canel, who also heads the Communist Party, in a televised speech on Sunday afternoon, blamed the unrest on old Cold War foes, the U.S., which in recent years tightened its decades-old trade embargo on the island. He said many protesters were sincere but manipulated by U.S.-orchestrated social media campaigns and "mercenaries" on the ground, and warned that further "provocations" would not be tolerated, calling on supporters to confront such "provocations".

President Joe Biden said the U.S. stands with the people of Cuba. "We stand with the Cuban people and their clarion call for freedom and relief from the tragic grip of the pandemic and from the decades of repression and economic suffering to which they have been subjected by Cuba's authoritarian regime," he said in a statement.

Sky gazers in for a celestial treat today

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

Sky gazers are in for a celestial treat as mars, venus and the moon are set to line up for a "triple conjunction" that can be viewed with the naked eye today.

Nehru Planetarium will be organising a talk on its YouTube channel starting at 6.30 p.m. on Tuesday for students and space enthusiasts to join a discussion and understand the science behind this phenomenon.

"This rare celestial treat will give a chance to all sky gazers to watch these planets with naked eyes after the sunset in the western sky. Mars and venus will appear to be just 0.5° from each other from earth," the planetarium said.

DJB asks SC to initiate contempt proceedings against Haryana

It is acting in violation of the 1996 court order on Wazirabad reservoir water level'

LEGAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

The Delhi Jal Board (DJB) has asked the Supreme Court to initiate contempt proceedings against Haryana Chief Secretary Vijai Vardhan and the Additional Chief Secretary, Irrigation and Water Resources Department, Devennder Singh, for 'wilfully' disobeying a February 1996 order of the court to maintain the water level at the Wazirabad reservoir at full capacity to serve the drinking water needs of the Capital.

"Due to non-supply of adequate water by Haryana, the water level in the Wazirabad reservoir is only 31% full. This has a possibility of triggering a severe water crisis in Delhi. The petitioner already had to curtail water for several areas in Delhi, including the President's Estate, the Parliament House and other institutional and diplomatic buildings as well as many residential areas," the DJB submitted.

Seeking an urgent hearing, it said Haryana was acting in clear violation of the court order in the Delhi Water Supply and Sewage Disposal Undertaking versus State of Haryana case.

"This court had directed that the water level at Wazirabad reservoir has to be kept full to its capacity by Haryana in order to meet the drinking water needs of Delhi," it stated.

Discharge of pollutants
The DJB had approached the court to "immediately stop" Haryana from discharging pollutants into the Yamuna.

The increased ammonia levels had impaired functioning of water treatment plants, and drinking water and health crises loomed large in Delhi, it noted.

The DJB had also, in that case, accused Haryana of not releasing the full quantity of water entitled to Delhi at Wazirabad. In a petition in that case, it alleged that the actions/inactions constituted a violation of the principle of cooperative federalism. It amounted to an upper riparian State taking undue advantage of a shared river for irrigation and industrial purposes while effectively not allowing a lower riparian State to access water for drinking".

Haryana had denied the charges. An offshoot of the case had been the decision of the court to examine the issue of river pollution, starting with the Yamuna.

tyens areas may see a water crisis soon," Mr. Chadha said.

He claimed that Haryana has withheld at least 120 MGD (million gallons per day) of water that belongs to Delhi and this has caused a "huge water crisis" in Delhi.

"Today, the Haryana government has impeded the rights of the people of Delhi, it has hindered the rightful water supply of the citizens of Delhi. They are not giving us our rightful share of water. They have stopped the water in such a manner that since 1965, this is the first time that water levels have been so low at the Wazirabad barrage," Mr. Chadha said.

After inspecting the Wazirabad pond, the DJB V-C said, "At the Wazirabad water treatment plant, intake of water is managed by taking water directly from the Yamuna, this water is released by Haryana towards the Wazirabad barrage. The water is then treated and supplied to the homes of the people of Delhi. Normally, this river is completely full. Today we can see the river has dried up, it looks like a field."

Kejriwal's water connection will be cut if crisis not resolved: BJP

Party workers protest outside DJB Chairman's residence

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

Several BJP cadres on Monday staged a protest outside the residence of Delhi Jal Board (DJB) Chairman Satyendar Jain where they announced that Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal's water connection would be cut if the water crisis in the Capital did not end in 48 hours.

Protesting BJP workers accused the Aam Aadmi Party government of earning money by selling water and demanded the resignations of Mr. Kejriwal and Mr. Jain.

The police lathi-charged the protesters and tried to disperse them with water cannons in which several BJP workers, including State BJP Yuva Morcha president Vasu Rukhada sustained injuries, the party stated.

"The BJP will cut the water connection of Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal's house if the water system in Delhi is not corrected in the next 48 hours," Delhi BJP president Adesh Gupta said.

Playing blame game

"According to the agreement reached with Haryana, it is to provide 500 MGD of water every month, but even though the Haryana government is providing 640 MGD of water per month, Raghav Chadha and [Mr.] Kejriwal are blaming the Haryana government in order to hide their shortcomings," he alleged.

Leader of the Opposition in the Delhi Assembly Ramvir Singh Bidhuri alleged that due to the "wrong and corrupt" policies of the Kejriwal government, the DJB, which was once running in profit of ₹800 crore, had been brought to the brink of pauperisation.

"The Delhi government has given ₹57,000 crore to the board in the last years, but out of this, no account of ₹26,000 crore is available. Not only this, the board is running at a loss of ₹2,000 crore every year," Mr. Bidhuri alleged.

NIKHIL M BABU
NEW DELHI

Delhi is a landlocked city and receives raw water from neighbouring States. The water is treated at various water treatment plants (WTPs) before being supplied to the residents of the Capital.

Delhi receives water from Uttar Pradesh, Punjab, and Haryana. The largest share of water comes from Haryana via the Yamuna through three different channels.

When there is a fall in the amount of raw water Delhi gets from these three States, it affects the water supply in the national capital.

What is the problem?

Since Delhi gets the largest share of water from the Yamuna, it has been a contentious issue for a long time between Delhi and Haryana.

(MoU) was signed by the five basin States of the Yamuna, including Delhi and Haryana, for sharing of water of upper Yamuna. In 1995, the Centre formed the Upper Yamuna River Board (UYRB) to regulate allocation of Yamuna water which flows through these States.

However, Delhi and Haryana have been at loggerheads over the allocation of Yamuna water – especially during summers – with Delhi complaining that it is getting less water from Haryana and the latter denying it most times.

Current issue

During the past one week, the Delhi Jal Board (DJB), which manages water supply in Delhi, has been complaining that it has been getting about 120 Million Gallons per Day (MGD) less raw water from Haryana for the past many days.

DJB Vice Chairperson Raghav Chadha claimed the water released by Haryana is so less that water levels at Wazirabad Barrage, a point along the flow of the Yamuna in Delhi, is the lowest since 1965.

As per the DJB, due to shortage of water, the capacity of Chandrawal WTP has come down to 55 MGD from 90 MGD; Wazirabad WTP to 80 MGD from 135 MGD; and Okhla WTP to 12 MGD from 20 MGD.

What now?

The issue is expected to be settled shortly as Haryana has released about 1800 cusecs of water for 24 hours on Sunday, as per DJB officials.

It takes about two to three days for this water to reach Delhi and it is expected to solve the current water issue.

On Sunday, Haryana released more water and the shortfall in Delhi's share has dropped to 65 MGD from 120 MGD, as per DJB officials.

The Yamuna originates in Yamunotri glacier in the Himalayas and travels through Himachal Pradesh, Uttar Pradesh, Uttarakhand, Haryana, Rajasthan and Delhi before its confluence with the Ganga. The stretch of the river from its origin to Okhla in Delhi is called the "Upper Yamuna". In 1994, a Memorandum of Understanding

(MoU) was signed by the five basin States of the Yamuna, including Delhi and Haryana, for sharing of water of upper Yamuna.

In 1995, the Centre formed the Upper Yamuna River Board (UYRB) to regulate allocation of Yamuna water which flows through these States.

Teen critical after being hit with axeSTAFF REPORTER
NEW DELHI

A day prior to her birthday, a 16-year-old girl was attacked with an axe on Monday near south Moti Bagh jhuggi in the city, the police said.

They received a PCR call at South Campus police station regarding the incident at 1.20 p.m. The police found that the teenager was hit by a man named Praveen alias Pradeep with an axe. Pradeep, who is in his early 20s, is a resident of the same area.

The girl, who had injuries on her eyebrows, was rushed to Safdarjung hospital where she is undergoing treatment. "Her condition is serious," said an officer. A case under the relevant section has been registered and a manhunt is on for the accused.

The victim is a student of Class XI. Her father works as a security guard, the officer said, adding that it appears to be one-sided love affair.

CBI unearths racket in allotment of DDA plotsOver 80 unauthorised deals detected*SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

The CBI has unearthed a major racket in unauthorised allotment of Delhi Development Authority (DDA) plots in Madanpur Khadar by its officials in connivance with touts and brokers.

The agency has so far detected 85 unauthorised entries of plots in the land-management records.

Among those named as accused are then DDA Land Management Branch's Assistant Director, Sudhanshu Ranjan, then Senior Secretariat Assistant, Ajeept Kumar Bhardwaj, and former security guard Darwan Singh, besides Iqbal Hussain, Sunil Kumar Meena, Sapan Kumar, Jamaluddin, Rajwant Singh and Shakuntla Devi.

In August last year, the agency had arrested Mr. Ranjan and the other two DDA officials for allegedly receiving ₹1 lakh in bribe from a person buying a plot. The latest case is an outcome of the probe into the earlier one. It is alleged that Mr. Ranjan and the other DDA employees under scrutiny took bribes from brokers and touts to show allotment of plots in Madanpur Khadar in the office records.

A private person named Sapan Kumar was roped in to make the entries in the land-management registers.

He would also put his thumb impression, projecting himself as an allottee.

The agency has extracted a recorded conversation from Mr. Ranjan's mobile phone in which he, while talking to a DDA data entry operator on May 6, 2020, allegedly confessed to having committed the offence.

The bribe amount would be decided by him and at his instance, the other two accused DDA employees would receive it. In order to evade detection and any liability in the future, the accused officials would create backdated records.

Third accused held from M.P. in Kitty murder caseAccused blaming each other during separate questioning: DCP*STAFF REPORTER
NEW DELHI

The police on Sunday arrested the third accused in Kitty Kumaramangalam murder case and recovered jewellery worth ₹50 lakh from the accused, said officials on Monday.

DCP (South-West) Ingit Pratap Singh said the accused – Suraj Budhe (36), a resident of Mahipalpur – has been arrested from Madhya Pradesh's (M.P.) Tikamgarh.

Technical surveillance was mounted on the mobile phone that Suraj was using and its last location was found to be in Jaipur after which the device was switched off, said an officer. Under the supervision of Assistant Commissioner of Police Rakesh Dixit, a team reached Jaipur.

"The area was full of hotels and all of them were examined. One hotel informed that Suraj and his family had checked in but had left. CCTV footage was examined and a taxi driver was found along with Suraj," said the officer.

A team then rushed to Tikamgarh and with the help of

M.P. Police, they raided the suspected hideout and found Suraj with his wife and children at his brother-in-law Chhotu Adiwasi's house. There were arguments with locals when police tried to make the arrest, but the M.P. Police soon helped pacify the situation.

Mr. Singh said 520g gold with diamonds, 400g silver, ₹9,020 cash and a phone have been recovered from his possession.

"The accused said they had thought that house help Mithila had been killed before they fled. When questioned separately, they are all blaming each other," Mr. Singh said.

Kitty was found dead at her residence on the night of July 6 when she and Mithila were at home. On Mithila's statement, the police registered a case and arrested Kitty's washerman Raju and his accomplice Rakesh Raj.

NEW DELHI

A dog died after it was allegedly shot at with an airgun in south-east Delhi's Nizamuddin, the police said on Monday.

DCP (South-East) R.P. Meena said a case has been registered under Section 428 (whoever commits mischief by killing, poisoning, maiming, or rendering useless any animal) of the Indian Penal Code and under relevant sections of Cruelty to Animal Act.

"Post-mortem of the dog has been conducted and further investigation is under way," Mr. Meena said.

A senior officer said they received a complaint about the incident from one Shobha Malhotra – animal welfare volunteer.

The incident happened 10 days ago.

"Three lead pellets were found in the dog, Browne's spine, stomach and chest area," the complainant told police.

Man found dead on rail tracks, family claims custodial death

He had been picked up for questioning earlier in the day

STAFF REPORTER
NEW DELHI

A 50-year-old man was found dead at railway tracks after he was picked up for questioning in south-east Delhi's Ambedkar Nagar, the police said on Monday. His family has alleged custodial death.

DCP (South) Atul Thakur said Yogesh Gupta from Mandangir was "asked to join investigation" in a complaint lodged against him.

A man named Neeraj Pahadia complained that Gupta was running a committee in which he invested ₹12.23 lakh. But now Gupta closed the committee without returning the money to members, Pahadia complained.

sured to settle the matter amicably. "On July 11, the complainant and the accused joined the enquiry again at the police station. After enquiry, Gupta left the police station at 8 p.m.," Mr. Thakur said. The police said Gupta's family approached the police station at 10.30 p.m., saying that he had not reached home after which a missing report was registered on Monday.

The police then started a search launch following which they were informed by GRP Faridabad that Gupta had allegedly taken his life by

Two accused of damaging Red Fort granted bailPRESS TRUST OF INDIA
NEW DELHI

A Delhi court on Monday granted bail to two men arrested in a case filed by the Archaeological Survey of India (ASI) alleging their complicity in damaging Red Fort during the Republic Day violence this year.

Accused Boota Singh and Gurjot Singh were arrested on July 8. The arrest was made on the day Boota was granted bail in another matter related to the violence. Gurjot was admitted on bail in the same matter a day after his arrest in the ASI case.

While granting relief, Chief Metropolitan Magistrate (CMM) Gajender Singh Nagar said the duo has been made accused in both cases on the basis of the same act and no specific role is attributed to them.

Deep Sidhu

Actor-activist Deep Sidhu, who is accused of being the key conspirator of the violence, was also arrested in this case moments after being released from jail in another case related to the incident.

He and several other accused appeared before CMM Nagar via video conference on Monday.

The CMM directed the police to supply chargesheet to all the accused and listed the matter for further hearing on July 22.

Is it wrong to have political affiliation, asks Ishrat JahanEx-councillor seeks bail in riots case*PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
NEW DELHI

Former Congress councillor Ishrat Jahan – arrested under the stringent Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act (UAPA) – on Monday sought bail in the north-east Delhi riots conspiracy case, asking before a court here whether it was wrong to have a political affiliation.

"There is no evidence. Is it wrong to have a political affiliation? What wrong have I committed? Stifling voices were the reason behind imposing UAPA. UAPA must be scrutinised," said advocate Pradeep Teotia, appearing for Ishrat Jahan before Additional Sessions Judge Amitabh Rawat.

Ms. Jahan has served as Congress councillor from 2012-17 and has been a member of the AICC, according to her sister Sarwer Jahan.

Mr. Teotia argued bail plea for her on the grounds that there is no evidence to show her connection with the co-accused and that the witnesses are planted.

During the course of proceedings, the advocate objected to the prosecution's allegations that Ishrat Jahan helped in financing the protest and violence, saying that they have just weaved a story and that there was no change in the pattern of her expenditure before and during the violence.

Meanwhile, Special Public Prosecutor Amit Prasad asked for the supply of the video relied upon by the counsels of the accused. Next hearing on July 23.

6 men held for duping people by promising 'negative COVID report'Accused used to target labourers coming from Gulf countries*STAFF REPORTER
NEW DELHI

Six men have been arrested in Central Delhi for allegedly robbing labourers coming from Gulf countries on the pretext of providing them with COVID-19 negative reports, the police said on Monday.

The accused – Vijay Bhan Pandey, Deepak, Sanjeev Kumar, Harish Singh, Raju Shah and Sunder – told the victims that to travel by train, they need a COVID negative report and the one provided by the Delhi airport was invalid.

Complainant Mohammad Wahi Vasi, a labourer in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, on Friday had returned to India to visit his hometown in West Bengal (W.B.) along with four others. After landing at Delhi airport, they headed towards New Delhi Railway Station.

At the station, they were approached by a man who told them that to travel by train, they require a negative COVID report. To this, Mr. Vasi told them that they already had the one provided at the Delhi airport. The accused then told him that the airport report was not valid for train travel.

The victims were then taken to an office in Paharganj where they were informed that their reports will be ready by next day. They were also told that their train to Kolkata will depart at 12.30 p.m. and they can collect their reports by 11.30 a.m. from the office. The accused had also arranged night accommodation for them.

It was revealed that the accused had robbed hundreds of people coming from the Gulf with similar modus operandi in the past year.

Advocate Tanya Agarwal, representing the woman, said that she had converted

On Saturday at 11.30 a.m., the victims reached the office where six persons were present. They were shown their reports and asked to pay ₹897 Saudi Riyal. When they refused to pay, one of the accused took out a country-made pistol while another took out a knife. The complainants were made hostages and beaten up.

The accused robbed them of their 3,500 Saudi Riyal and ₹17,970 along with other valuables. The accused later threatened the complainants with dire consequences and snatching of their passports if they approach the police.

The court also took on record the assurance provided by Delhi Police that protection would be extended to the woman, currently residing in Delhi, following her apprehension of being taken away to U.P. by its agencies.

BJP leaders 'released' after HC order

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
CHANDIGARH

Around a dozen BJP leaders 'detained' for nearly 12 hours by protesting farmers at a house in Patiala's Rajpura were released early Monday following a Punjab and Haryana High Court order, officials said.

Scores of protesting farmers had on Sunday laid siege to a BJP worker's house where several party leaders, including Punjab unit general secretary Subhash Sharma and Patiala in-charge Bhupesh Aggarwal, were also present.

The BJP leaders petitioned the Punjab and Haryana High Court, saying they were illegally 'detained' by a mob at a house in Rajpura. The court directed the police to ensure the petitioners are provided a safe exit.

The Samyukt Kisan Morcha (SKM), a joint coalition of farmer unions, strongly condemned the "misuse" of university campuses in Haryana for political activities by the ruling Bharatiya Janata Party, said Inderjit Singh, vice-president, All-India Kisan Sabha, Haryana, on Monday.

Speaking at the Tikri border, Mr. Singh said the BJP had found a safe resort in various university campuses for party meetings after having boycotted by the people. He called upon the entire university community to raise its voice against the attempts of the BJP to "take over and saffronise centres of higher education".

ogy in Hisar, while they held a party district executive meeting at Chaudhary Devi Lal University campus at Sirsa on Sunday, where they had to face stiff resistance from protesting farmers," said Mr. Singh.

He also condemned in strongest terms the criminal conduct of a man allegedly making obscene gestures towards protesting women farmers at the GJU Hisar Gate number 3 from a car allegedly occupied by Hansi MLA Vinod Bhayana and former Minister Manish

Grover. "However, no case under relevant sections of indecent and obscene gestures has been so far registered by Hisar police despite a written complaint filed by farmers," said Mr. Singh.

Abuse of institutions'

He said that the SKM wanted to make it clear that it would not allow university campuses to be transformed into party fiefdom of the BJP and organise peaceful protests to stop them from going on with this 'abuse' of academic institutions.

He added that the SKM had also taken serious note of Haryana being converted into a police state to suppress the farmers movement while the law and order situation is turning from bad to worse every passing day.

Bihar educational institutions open

Educational institutions in Bihar opened on Monday and Chief Minister Nitish Kumar attended 'janata durbar' (people's court) after five years, adhering to COVID-19 guidelines and protocols.

All necessary arrangements for opening colleges, universities and schools for Class XI and XII were made on Sunday across the State with 50% strength.

Earlier on July 6, the State Education Department allowed the reopening of educational institutions phase-wise from July 12 following COVID-19 guidelines and safety protocols.

However, all the missionary schools in the capital are likely to reopen from next week.

CBI probe into mysterious deposit

₹5 lakh transferred to Haryana villager's KCC account

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

The Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) has initiated a probe into an case in which a Haryana villager last year discovered that ₹5 lakh had been transferred to his Kisan Credit Card (KCC) account from an unknown source.

The account holder, who sought the probe, was later found lodged in a Hisar jail in another case instituted by the local police.

In his complaint, Ajai Singh – a resident of Musa Khera village in Haryana's Fatehabad – said that the amount was credited to his KCC account with the Tohana branch of Allahabad Bank (now merged with the Indian Bank) on August 25, 2020. Six days later, he withdrew ₹4.90 lakh.

As alleged, a person then turned up at Ajai Singh's residence on September 8, 2020, and told him that the amount was credited to his account at the instance of the branch manager, Amit Sharma, and that he should return it.

The complaint was handed over to a CBI Sub-Inspector for verification.

The CBI officer tried to contact Ajai Singh, but his mobile phone was switched off.

Therefore, the agency reached out to his relatives.

The complainant's brother informed the officer that Ajai Singh was lodged in Hisar Jail in a case registered at the Jakhal police station under the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act.

Three IS members held in Kashmir, says NIA

PEERZADA ASHIQ
SRINAGAR

Three members of the IS were arrested in the Kashmir valley, the National Investigation Agency (NIA) said on Monday.

"Preliminary examination of the seized material and examination of the accused persons revealed that they are active cadres of the IS and have been using the cyberspace to propagate inciting material by the online magazine, Voice of Hind (VOH)," a NIA spokesman said.

At least seven locations were raided in the Valley on Sunday in a case pertaining to "the conspiracy of the IS to radicalise and recruit impressionable youth to wage violent jihad against the Indian state". The arrested youth were identified as Umar Nisar from Magray Mohalla, Tanveer Ahmad Bhat from Gori Mohalla and Rameez Ahmad Lone from Chak Achabal (all in Anantnag).

Materials seized'
"Examination of the arrested accused led to searches on July 12 at two more locations in Anantnag district, in which a number of digital devices and other materials have been seized. Investigation continues," the spokesman said.

The NIA on Sunday claimed it recovered a large number of incriminating documents, digital devices and T-shirts with IS logo during the raids in the Valley.

Malaria camps in Tripura after spurt in cases

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
AGARTALA

The health department and the National Health Mission have started setting up camps in remote areas of the State to detect malaria. The authorities swung into action after deaths, especially of children, in Khowai and Dhalai districts in recent weeks.

A large part of the tribal population in the interiors have inadequate access to health care.

A health department official said on Monday that the camps are being set up where the disease poses a threat.

He said a malaria detection camp was recently organised at Nirajan Para in Mungiajami of Khowai district. Screening of 47 people were done and six of them were diagnosed with malaria.

A similar screening camp was held at Mashdar Para in Dhalai district of the State.

Drive for growing medicinal plants at home

Task forces formed for distributing saplings with message for increasing immunity

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
JAIPUR

A drive for growing medicinal plants at home amid the COVID-19 pandemic has been launched in Rajasthan, with the task forces appointed for distributing saplings to all households along with the message for increasing natural immunity to the fight the infection.

The medicinal plants of tulsi, giloy, ashwagandha and kalmegh, prepared by the State government's Forest Department, would enable the people to develop "natural strength", Principal Chief Conservator of Forests (Development) Deep Narayan Pandey said here on Monday.

Experts consulted'
Mr. Pandey said the 'Ghar Ghar Aushadhi' (medicine in each household) scheme had been started after the getting the opinion of experts based on research in traditional medicine.

He said the children would be encouraged to plant the saplings and take care of their growth, while spreading awareness about the significance of immunity.

The task forces will identify the places for distribution of saplings and remain in touch with the Panchayati Raj functionaries, elected representatives and corporate houses to generate awareness about the utility of medicinal plants.

Each household will be supplied with eight medicinal plants free of cost and they will also be available at the nurseries of Forest Department.

Each Rajasthan household will get 8 medicinal plants.

MOHAMMED IQBAL
JAIPUR

Eleven persons perched on a watch tower near the Amber Fort in Jaipur amid the rains were among the 20 killed in incidents related to lightning strikes reported from various places across Rajasthan on Sunday.

Twenty-one persons, including six children, were also injured in the incidents which took place in Kota, Jhalawar, Baran and Dholpur districts, besides Jaipur.

A large number of people, including tourists and city residents, were present on the watch tower built on a hill at the ramparts of the historic Amber Fort, when the lightning struck during the first spell of monsoon rains in the evening. Many of them were injured as they jumped off the watch tower in panic.

Teams of the State Disaster Response Force rushed to the spot and sent the injured people lying unconscious to the Sawai Man Singh Government Hospital here. The police personnel also joined the search in the hilly terrain in the darkness to look for the injured and the dead.

Elsewhere in the State, four persons died on the spot in Kota's Garda village after lightning struck a tree under which they had taken shelter with their cattle.

Ten goats and a cow were also killed in the incident. A shepherd was killed in a similar incident in Jhalawar's Lalgaon village and one person died in Baran's Bahroli village. Three children were killed after the lightning struck them in Dholpur district's Kudinna village.

CM announces ex gratia
Chief Minister Ashok Gehlot expressed grief over the deaths and announced an ex gratia of ₹5 lakh each to the next of kin of the deceased.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi also condoled the deaths in a tweet.

Losses forced closure of dairy farms, Lakshadweep tells HC

In an affidavit, administration defends reforms proposed in the islands

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
KOCHI

The Lakshadweep administration has told the Kerala High Court that after a detailed analysis, it was felt imprudent to continue the dairy farms, suffering a huge loss of more than ₹90 lakh per year. The decision to shut them had no relation to the proposed Animal Preservation Regulation, the administration informed the court in an affidavit.

The affidavit was filed in response to a public interest litigation petition challenging the decision to shut the dairy farms on the islands.

The new regulations proposed by the Lakshadweep Administrator had evoked criticism from various quarters.

A recent protest in front of the Lakshadweep Administration office in Kochi against the reforms. • H. VIBHU

In the affidavit, the administration said it had decided to increase shipping operations from Mangaluru as the port is closer to several islands of Lakshadweep compared to Beypore in Kerala. The Mangaluru port had better facilities as well.

The affidavit denied the allegation of the petitioner that the ban on liquor had been lifted. In fact, the Lakshadweep Prohibition Regulation provides for granting of licences for consumption and sale of alcohol. Recently, licences were issued to the Tourism Promotion Society under the administration to serve liquor to non-islanders at three of its resorts on three islands. This was done to cater to the needs of tourists.

The affidavit said the decision to disengage excess casual employees from various establishments was to prevent loss to the exchequer.

As for removing non-vegetarian food from the midday meal, the administration said meat was part of the regular menu in almost all families, but consumption of fruits and dry fruits was very less among them. Hence their inclusion was perfectly in tune with the objective of the mid-day meal scheme.

The draft regulations had been forwarded to the Home Ministry with the feedback received, the affidavit added.

Karnataka HC gives go-ahead for SSLC exam

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
BENGALURU

Taking note of the declining COVID-19 cases in the State, the High Court of Karnataka on Monday refused to interfere with the State government's decision to hold an abridged version of SSLC examination on July 19 and 22 for the academic year 2020-21.

"The conduct of examination is in the interest of students, besides being beneficial for their future," the court said while noting that the State had taken adequate safety measures.

While declining to entertain a petition seeking cancellation of exams, the court however, noted that it would be the "collective decision" of parents and children to attend the exam as the government could not compel them to write the exam.

Bombay HC rejects Sanatan Sanstha plea to restore FB page

No case made out for grant of any declaratory relief, says court

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
MUMBAI

The Bombay High Court in Goa on Monday refused to grant relief to the Hindu group Sanatan Sanstha that wanted an order to restore its Facebook page that was taken down by the company.

A Division Bench of Justices M.S. Sonak and M.S. Jawalkar was hearing an appeal filed by the group accused of killing rationalists Narendra Dabholkar, Govind Pansare, M.M. Kalburgi and journalist Gauri Lankesh. The appeal said by blocking its page, Facebook was being high handed, arbitrary and violating a constitutional right.

It said its Facebook pages were used to spread the essence of their spirituality and allied matters. Facebook's action prevented it from communicating or propagating its philosophy, and its followers from accessing information that it posted.

The Bench, however, was not convinced. "The dispute regarding blocking or unblocking of the petitioner's Facebook pages appears to be governed by the contractual relationship between the petitioner and respondents [Facebook] and, normally, purely contractual disputes between private parties cannot be adjudicated in proceedings under Article 226 [power of the high court] of the Constitution of India," it said.

The court said there was no case made out for grant of any declaratory relief. "Even the advocate for Sanatan Sanstha was unable to point out any provision under the Information Technology Act, based on which the petitioner could insist on maintaining a Facebook page on the platform provided without agreeing to be bound by the contractual terms that may have been proposed."

The high court said that if there was some breach of contractual relationship involved in the blocking of the Facebook page, they could take appropriate steps before an appropriate forum to secure redress.

Progressive outfits stage protest in Pune

SHOUMOJIT BANERJEE
PUNE

A number of progressive outfits under the umbrella of the Bhima-Koregaon Shouryadin Prerna Abhiyan staged a protest near the Pune District Collectorate on Monday against the Narendra Modi-led BJP government over the 'institutional murder' of tribal rights activist Father Stan Swamy.

The protesters demanded that all activists and intellectuals arrested by the National Investigation Agency (NIA) in connection with the Bhima-Koregaon case be released immediately.

The protesters also demanded that the stringent Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act (UAPA) be repealed and the 'real' perpetrators behind the Bhima-Koregaon clashes — Hindutva leaders Milind Ekbote and Sambhaji Bhide 'Guruji' — be prosecuted.

"It is a cruel and bitter irony that Malegaon blast accused Pragya Singh Thakur, who is known for her divisive remarks, had no difficulty in getting bail from the Bombay High Court, while Father Stan Swamy, the protestor, who had given his entire life fighting constitutional battles for the upliftment and protection of tribals, was given a hard time by the courts in obtaining a straw as he had difficulty holding his glass owing to his ill health... his death is a shameful blot on the tenure of the BJP government," said Anjum Inamdar, founder, Mulnivasi Muslim Manch.

After rejecting Mr. Teltumbde's default bail on July 13, 2020, special NIA judge D.E. Kothalkar rejected his regular bail plea. Mr. Teltumbde surrendered before the NIA office in Mumbai on April 14, 2020, after the Supreme Court denied him relief. He was initially remanded in NIA custody and is now lodged at Taloja jail.

He has been charged under several sections of the Indian Penal Code and the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act.

The power of scrutiny

SC has struck a blow for inquisitorial powers of legislatures against social media companies

The Supreme Court of India's verdict last week, upholding the authority of a committee of the Delhi Assembly to summon a senior official of Facebook, is an extremely nuanced recognition of the extent of powers of State Assemblies in matters regulated by an Act of Parliament. The question mark about the powers arose in the first place because Facebook, whose India vice-president Ajit Mohan was repeatedly summoned by Delhi Assembly's Committee on Peace and Harmony on the subject of the Delhi riots of 2020, argued before the Supreme Court that this was a case of overreach; and that Delhi's law and order came under the central government. This was also the position taken by the central government, which argued that the Delhi Assembly had no jurisdiction in this matter. The social media platform also pointed out that it was governed by the IT Act of Parliament, and this is not therefore something that any State government can be concerned with. The Court, in upholding the summons, did not go merely by the legislative powers of a House. It rightly said, "The Assembly does not only perform the function of legislating; there are many other aspects of governance which can form part of the essential functions of the Legislative Assembly and consequently the committee." Its point was that the "inquisitorial" and "recommendatory" powers of a House can be used for better governance. But it also cautioned the committee from "transgressing into any fields reserved for the Union Government".

Significantly, the verdict comes amid a long phase of discordance over legislative turf between the central government and the Delhi government, something that the Bench led by Justice S.K. Kaul did note amid discussions about the spirit of federalism. Not just that. It also comes at a time when social media intermediaries are legally fighting some aspects of the new IT rules that govern them. Their responsibility toward the many legislatures will only become more heightened because of this verdict. The Court refused to buy the argument that social media intermediaries are "merely a platform for exchange of ideas without performing any significant role themselves". It then linked what happens in these platforms to the real world. Misinformation on social media, the Court said, has had "a direct impact on vast areas of subject matter which ultimately affect the governance of States". Given the constraints of the powers of the Delhi Assembly vis-à-vis law and order, the very fact that the Court found that its committee still could summon the Facebook India official without encroaching upon the turf of the Centre now opens the gates for scrutiny of social media platforms by other States, which however have significantly more powers with respect to law and order. The stage is set for more scrutiny.

Tie at the top

Djokovic is in pursuit of history, not just tournament titles

Using Roger Federer and Rafael Nadal as measuring sticks to assess one's tennis credentials is a harsh and, ultimately, a futile exercise. That Novak Djokovic comes through this most searing of examinations with flying colours is a testament to his genius. On Sunday, the Serb laid down the most definitive marker yet of his dazzling brilliance by pulling level with the celebrated duo on 20 Grand Slam singles titles. A tense four-set victory over Italy's Matteo Berrettini also gave Djokovic his third straight title at the All England club (sixth overall) and helped complete the French Open-Wimbledon double, one of sport's toughest achievements. Djokovic's record-equalising feat had seemed improbable as recently as the summer of 2018. As a 31-year-old, he entered that year's Wimbledon as the 12th seed after having spent two years on the fringes. Federer and Nadal, gaining second winds, had swept the previous six Slams and were already on 20 and 17 respectively. But Djokovic rediscovered his mojo and has since won eight of 12 Majors, the most dominant streak of his career. He has conquered Federer on grass and Nadal on clay, and snuffed out rebellions from the game's 'Next Gen' of Dominic Thiem, Daniil Medvedev, Stefanos Tsitsipas and Berrettini, beating them for his last four Slam trophies. So much so that he now feels the "most complete" he has ever been as a player.

The accomplishments have inevitably reignited the debate on who the greatest men's player of all time is. While comparisons between eras are often limited and come with caveats – think the great Pancho Gonzales being denied chances to compete in Majors in the 1950s because he had turned professional – Djokovic is without doubt the best of his generation. This week will be his record 329th as World No.1 and he is the only man to have won all four Slams, all nine ATP Masters 1000s and the year-ending ATP Finals, twice. No other statistic better represents his relentless pursuit of excellence, across surfaces, continents and seasons. At the US Open starting next month, he has a shot at sporting immortality, as he can become the first man since Rod Laver in 1969 to win all four Majors in a single year. Ashleigh Barty may be a long way from such monumental successes, but like Djokovic, she has proved adept at mastering the game's natural surfaces by adding the Wimbledon crown to the French title she won in 2019. The 25-year-old Aussie's craft and guile was fully on display as she felled opponents as chalk and cheese as Angelique Kerber (counter-puncher) and Karolina Pliskova (all-out attacker). With modesty in her bones, she oozes an enviably understated elegance, something the tennis world is sure to see more and more of.

Decoding the political battle for Uttar Pradesh

If the underpinnings of the BJP's 2017 mandate were contextual rather than absolute, the party could be dislodged

ASIM ALI

Any analysis of the upcoming Uttar Pradesh Assembly elections, in 2022, needs to begin with a note of humility. In all the last three elections in the State (2017, 2012, 2007), most reporters and analysts were incorrect in predicting a tantalisingly close fight. The results, on the other hand, revealed a clear single-party majority each time, including the biggest wave in almost four decades in the last election.

At the outset, we must account for this repeated failure to foresee emerging trends in Uttar Pradesh politics. A large part of the blame can be laid on the obsessive focus on caste arithmetic, heuristic categories frozen from the 1990s, that often blurs the larger picture. The big lesson from the last 15 years is that the State of Uttar Pradesh has moved from a rigid identity politics of caste and community to a focus on identity plus governance. A large floating voter population has gradually emerged, spanning across demography, which is fiercely calculative, and driven by aspirations for a better life.

State's transition

This has powered the transition of Uttar Pradesh, from the messy fragmentation of the coalition era of the 1990s and early 2000s, to the era of stable, single party majorities. Although caste and community identities remain important, Uttar Pradesh voters, like elsewhere, have little patience for misgovernance – they have thrown out every incumbent government since 1989.

But the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) government has reasons to be confident of bucking the trend. The sheer scale of its victory in 2017 provides it with a formidable cushion. It received a vote share of almost 40% in the last election, with an average constituency-level winning margin of an incredible 15%.

It is quite conceivable for the party to lose a significant chunk of its vote in the next elections, and still emerge with a majority. In comparison, the Bahujan Samaj Party (BSP) and the Samajwadi Party (SP) received a majority, with 30% and 29% of the vote share, respectively.

Factors behind the mandates

There are two ways of reading the massive 2017 mandate of the BJP. The first is to read it as a historical break where the BJP's ideological triumph fundamentally re-configured the caste-community voting patterns of the State. The second is to read it in the context of the last 15 years, where a large floating voter population, frustrated with the incumbent, flocked behind the clearest alternative. In this framework, just as the 2007 and 2012 majorities did not reflect a long-term realignment in favour of Bahujan (or 'sarvajan') politics or Lohiaite socialism, the enormous mandate received by the BJP in 2017 was also not exclusively a function of Hindutva.

In all three cases, the success of the social engineering or ideological messaging crafted by the eventual winner was contingent on their party becoming the vehicle for the electorate's accumulated resentments and aspirations, shaped by the specific failures of the incumbent. Under the rubric of Hindu identity, and the leadership of Narendra Modi, the BJP became the vehicle for an electorate angry with the crime, corruption and Yadav favouritism under the Samajwadi Party government. The backdrop of communal riots and the increased presence of Muslims in the local power elite, added to this glue of this Hindu consolidation.

However, as the ascension of BJP from 1991-98 in the State, and the subsequent decline for two decades demonstrated, Hindu consolidation in a State like Uttar Pradesh could be an ephemeral phenomenon.

Incumbent and prospects

If the underpinnings of the BJP mandate of 2017 were indeed contextual rather than absolute, the BJP can indeed be dislodged from power in the State, provided there are two conditions: one, the presence of strong anti-incumbency; and two, the emergence of a clear alternative that transforms the election from a multi-polar to a largely bi-polar contest.

Let us come to the first question: is there a high level of anti-incumbency against the Yogi Adityanath government that can hurt its prospects?

In choosing Mr. Adityanath, a relative lightweight outside of his bastion in Gorakhpur, to lead the State government, the Narendra Modi-Amit Shah team made two bets, informed by the party's previous experience in the State.

First, only hardline Hindutva could contain caste contradictions and lead to a durable Hindu coalition. In the wake of the Ram Janmabhoomi movement, the BJP had assembled a powerful coalition of upper castes, upwardly mobile castes such as Jats and Gujjars, and Other Backward Classes (OBC) such as Kurmis and Lodhs. This Hindutva coalition, however, soon came apart from internal strife between the upper caste and the OBC factions, culminating in the expulsion of the OBC Kalyan Singh from the party in 1999.

Second, only an authoritative style of leadership could maintain Hindu unity and also create a governance constituency. The largely collective leadership of the 1990s and early 2000s – in which the BJP installed three different Chief Ministers – had provided a confused and disunited front, and consequently failed to compete with Mayawati and Mulayam Singh Yadav.

Both of these bets, have, arguably, not paid off for the BJP. One, as a political outsider to Lucknow, the first thing Mr. Adityanath did was build his own political support base on his Thakur identity. Much like previous leaders, Mr. Adityanath filled State institutions, be it zilla parishads, civil servants or station house officers, with his own caste men to wield direct power over the administration. The frequent allegations of 'Thakurvaad' or Thakur domination against his administration suggests that Mr. Adityanath has not so far proved to be a leader with a pan-Hindu appeal in the mould of Mr. Modi.

Two, the authoritative style of governance has provided indifferent results. While Mr. Adityanath does possess some governance appeal – having a relatively clean and 'tough on crime' image – he has largely been unable to associate himself with either a social welfare constituency or marquee developmental projects. On top of it, the novel coronavirus pandemic has severely diminished his governance credentials: any improvement in the ease of business index pales in comparison to images of bodies floating in the Ganga. The dramatic State failure during the second wave of the pandemic also threatens to become a coalescing point for all the material anxieties persisting under the surface, such as unemployment, sluggish growth and farmer distress.

The aspirations of the floating voters who deserted Ms. Mayawati in 2012, and Akhilesh Yadav in 2017, has, arguably, remained unfulfilled under Mr. Adityanath's regime.

Where the Opposition stands

This brings us to the second question: is there a clear alternative that transforms the election from a multi-polar to a largely bi-polar contest?

A quick scan of the Opposition ranks indicates that only the SP presently possesses the strength to challenge the BJP.

The BSP under Ms. Mayawati has been in constant decline in the State from 2012. The party has lost touch with its roots in political activism for a long time now, and its organisation has withered away under an insular leadership. The steady desertion of leaders gives further evidence of a party in a death spiral. Similarly, there are little signs of a Congress revival, the latest indications being its disastrous returns in the panchayat elections.

All of this plays well into the SP's strategy of making this electoral contest into a largely bipolar race. A perception of a straight fight between the SP and the BJP might well consolidate local elites, and a disgruntled electorate, behind the party symbol. But there are reasonable grounds to doubt whether the SP can defeat the BJP in a bipolar race. For one, the party has never crossed the 30% vote share mark in State elections.

In order to defeat the BJP, the SP party would need to go well beyond plebeian caste consolidation and minority insecurity, and court floating voters with a broad-based, positive message of development. In this regard, Akhilesh Yadav can borrow from his own template of 2012, where he ran a successful campaign focused on employment, electricity and education.

The choice of Mr. Adityanath was essentially informed more through the lenses of ideologically cementing the Hindu vote rather than the fulfilment of the governance aspirations of the floating voter. If the BJP manages to fritter away its enormous mandate, it would derive from the same source of hubris that felled previous incumbents: overly reading into the mandate its own ingenious social engineering or sweeping ideological triumph rather than the contextual aspirations and resentments that underlie it.

Prioritising school reopening on the road to recovery +

Children have long borne the costs of school closure and evidence-based decisions toward reopening are a necessity

BHASKARAN RAMAN &
OM DAMANI

Most schools in India have been closed since the national lockdown started in March 2020. What are the costs of keeping schools closed? How do these costs compare against the risks of school reopening? We delve into these questions, as concerned parents with school-age children, as experienced teachers, and also as practising scientists who have followed data and publications on this topic over the last 15 months.

Interestingly, various regions around the world which have been worse hit by the novel coronavirus pandemic than India, have kept their schools, especially primary schools, mostly open. This includes various European countries such as Portugal, France, the Netherlands, etc. The State of Florida (United States) opened schools for in-person classes in late September 2020, and they stayed open through their second wave. On the other hand in India, schools have mostly been shut even as other businesses have opened.

Impact of school closure

The costs of school closure are immense. People make considerable investments in their children's education, as a way toward a better future and a better living standard. Even prior to the pandemic, there was a huge attainment gap across students, especially in higher grades. The bottom half of children passing Class 10 are about two years behind in terms of skills. Prolonged school closure has already widened this gap. What will this do to their future? Does it not push the next generation deeper into poverty? Ironically, the poorest families living in dense urban slums, who bore the brunt of the first wave, and are now largely immune from the virus itself (as shown by serosurveys), are the ones suffering the most from school closures.

A survey (<https://bit.ly/3xzZ7mx>) across 10 States in India in November 2020 estimated that nearly two-thirds of children in rural India may drop out of school, a staggering statistic which is likely to have worsened with continuing closure. Haryana has reported (<https://bit.ly/3r64dV5>) a 42% drop in student enrolment in private schools. Prolonged school shutdown has severely set back India's fight against ill such as child labour (<https://bit.ly/3e9H7HE>) and child marriage (<https://bit.ly/36AevTK>). Due to the shutdown of schools, mid-day meal schemes have been disrupted; even as early as June 2020, it was estimated (<https://bit.ly/3r2AfkG>) that about 800,000 additional children would face underweight and wasting.

Health, well-being concerns
Even in well-off urban India and in developed nations, extended school closure is having a severe impact on children's mental health. In Las Vegas, U.S., a surge of student suicides (<https://tinyurl.com/2UJYp>) forced schools to reopen in January 2021. The United Kingdom reported (<https://bit.ly/2Vq94oa>) among the nearly two million children in Sweden (where schools have been open throughout), found that there was not a single child death due to COVID-19. As per Mumbai's dashboard data, the COVID-19 IFR (Infection Fatality Rate) for under-19 is minuscule: about 0.003%. In comparison, the <https://bit.ly/3r2Ftx3> a 40% rise in the number of children taking antidepressants.

Surely, life is more important than education. But as examples above show, schools are not merely about education. Given the costs of prolonged school shutdown, we must probe deeper into the risks of opening schools in the context of COVID-19.

Assessing the risk factor

First, we must realise, and be grateful that the risk of COVID-19 for children is much lower than for adults, and is also much lower than other (already small) risks children face in daily life anyway. Based on a study of 137 million school-age children in the U.S. and Europe, Prof. Raj S. Bhopal (University of Edinburgh, U.K.) has observed (<https://bit.ly/3wz3h6>) that COVID-19 in this age group is less than half as risky as seasonal influenza, and over 20 times less risky than death by "unintentional injury".

A study (<https://bit.ly/2Vq94oa>) among the nearly two million children in Sweden (where schools have been open throughout), found that there was not a single child death due to COVID-19. As per Mumbai's dashboard data, the COVID-19 IFR (Infection Fatality Rate) for under-19 is minuscule: about 0.003%. In comparison, the infant mortality rate in India is about 3% (1,000 times greater) and the infant mortality rate in Japan (one of the lowest) is 0.18% (60 times greater). In other words, school-age children are at a negligibly lower risk from COVID-19 when compared to other threats which we consider normal.

There has been a concern that a possible third wave involving newer variants could affect children. But a careful look at the data (<https://bit.ly/3xEm7Q>) tells that the age-profiles of those affected in the second and first waves are similar. There is no scientific basis for this fear. Further, Public Health England's June 2021 report (<https://bit.ly/3B3ALnp>) shows that the newer variant Delta is much less dangerous (case fatality rate 0.1%) than the original (case fatality rate 1.9%), which is the expected evolutionary path of a virus.

Teachers as 'essential' staff

The next question is: are teachers and parents at higher risk of catching COVID-19 if schools reopen? Over the last year there have been several careful scientific studies (<https://bit.ly/3kdibTA>) across various regions in Europe/U.S., measuring the role of in-person classes in COVID-19 spread. The overwhelming conclusion is that the risk of COVID-19 spread in schools is minimal compared to other locations. To further reduce the concern among teachers, the Government must treat them on a par with essential workers, and offer them prioritised vaccination.

Despite this, it is likely that a "one-size-fits-all" approach may not be suitable, as each individual's risk-benefit analysis could be different. For children who lack the resources, whose parents have to go out to work every day, in-person schooling is paramount. Parents who can afford to work from home have sufficient resources for their children and may choose to continue with partially or fully online classes for a few more months. It is high time to implement such differentiated options.

Vaccines for children

There has recently been talk about tying school reopening to vaccines for children. Any medical intervention, especially for children, must be based on a careful risk-benefit analysis. It is pertinent to note that there are growing concerns (<https://cnn.it/3r8MnAH>) in the U.S. of a potential link between heart inflammation and the mRNA vaccine, among adolescents. Further, scientists writing in The British Medical Journal (May 2021) note (<https://bit.ly/36xCpP>): "the rarity of severe Covid-19 outcomes for children means that trials cannot demonstrate that the balance of the benefits of vaccination against the potential adverse effects are favourable...". It will likely take several years to establish such a balance. We cannot let our children suffer for that long, by further prolonging school closures.

More than the virus, fear stands between our children and their education and normal life. Policy-makers must make evidence-based decisions toward school reopening. This is the least the working class and the children of India deserve.

Tracing the decline of U.S. power

The U.S. made a major mistake in abandoning realist pragmatism and switching to liberal idealism

KISHORE MAHBUBANI

In A New Cold War: Henry Kissinger and the Rise of China, edited by Sanjaya Baru and Rahul Sharma, academic and diplomat Kishore Mahbubani explains America's place in the world in his essay 'Evil Liberalism versus Moral Pragmatism'. He asserts that by abandoning Kissinger's realist pragmatism, the U.S. has become "severely weakened both domestically and externally". An excerpt:

The year 2021 marks the 50th anniversary of Henry Kissinger's famous visit to China in July 1971. It also marks, more or less, the 30th anniversary of the end of the Cold War. With some risk of being accused of over-simplification, one can say in the 20 years after Kissinger's visit to China, U.S. foreign policy was guided by the philosophy of realist pragmatism. By contrast, in the 30 years after the end of the Cold War, it was guided by the philosophy of liberal idealism. The results are clear. Realist pragmatism delivered the greatest victory of American foreign policy: a victory over the mighty Soviet Union without the U.S. firing a shot at Soviet armed forces. By contrast, the past 30 years have generated a lot of evil.

Collateral damage

Between 2004 and 2019, the U.S. Air Force dropped 175,842 bombs on several countries, according to the U.S. Air Forces Central Command. Bombs dropped from the air are often not accurate. Hence, many innocent people were killed. The Brown University Watsons Institute's Cost of War Project estimates the total casualties from all post-9/11 wars at 770,000 to 801,000 casualties. The results are clear: when ethical do-gooders take over the U.S. foreign policy, evil is generated: $5.1 trillion wasted; almost 800,000 lives lost.

Yet, the biggest damage done by the abandonment of Kissingerian realist pragmatism is that the U.S. has become severely weakened both domestically and externally. Internally, the 30-year period of liberal-idealistic domination of the U.S. foreign policy has coincided with a 30-year period of stagnation of working class incomes. Externally, the U.S. literally fell asleep at the wheel while China rose dramatically. In 1980, in purchasing power parity (PPP) terms, China's gross national product (GNP) was 10% of that of the U.S. By 2014, it had become bigger. Now there is no doubt that the biggest foreign policy challenge the U.S. faces in the next three decades is China.

So, how should the U.S. manage China? The main argument of this essay is that the U.S. needs to engage in deep reflection on what went drastically wrong. The U.S. made a major mistake in abandoning realist pragmatism and switching to liberal idealism. A return to Kissingerian realist pragmatism would be the best way to manage a rising China.

Kissinger's celebrated 'secret' visit to Beijing in July 1971 is widely and justifiably regarded as a major move that swung the 'correlation of forces' in America's favour and led to the ultimate victory over the Soviet Union. What was remarkable about the widespread applause that this visit received, including from The New York Times and The Washington Post, is that so few Americans mentioned that the U.S. was embracing a regime in China led by Mao Zedong, which had only recently created havoc in the country, leading to enormous human pain and suffering through the disastrous policies of the Great Leap Forward (1958-61) and the Cultural Revolution (1966-76).

In short, human rights were a secondary consideration when realist pragmatism reigned. Indeed, at the International Conference on Kampuchea of July 13-17, 1981, the U.S. delegation, led by Alexander Haig, actually supported China against the ASEAN countries, when China said that the Khmer Rouge should be allowed to return to power in Phnom Penh after the Vietnamese withdrawal. I was personally present and shocked when this happened. Yet the same Reagan administration, in a more 'liberal' move, supported the removal of the dictator [Ferdinand] Marcos from the Philippines. In short, even in the realist-pragmatic era, there were liberal elements.

Kissinger wasn't the only major figure advocating realist pragmatism. Other major thinkers of that era did so, including George Kennan and Zbigniew Brzezinski. While Kennan is often associated with the harsh policy of 'containment' of the Soviet Union, John Mearsheimer reminds us that Kennan was a shrewd and sophisticated thinker. Firstly, he emphasised that the outcome of the Cold War would not be determined by the size of their respective armed forces. Instead, it would depend on the 'spiritual vitality' of their domestic societies. This is what he had said: 'It is rather a question of the degree to which the U.S. can create among the peoples of the world generally the impression of a country which knows what it wants, which is coping successfully with the problems of its internal life and with the responsibilities of a World Power, and which has a spiritual vitality capable of holding its own among the major ideological currents of the time.' He also called for 'greater humility in our national outlook.' According to Mearsheimer, his call for humility was in response to a strong claim made by then Secretary of State Madeleine Albright in February 1998, when she had said, 'If we have to use force, it is because we are America; we are the indispensable nation. We stand tall and we see further than other countries into the future, and we see the danger here to all of us.'

Kennan lived to the ripe old age of 101 and died in 2005. Hence, he lived through the first 15 years of the post-Cold War era. Significantly, he also disapproved of the many key moves when the U.S. switched from realist pragmatism to liberal idealism. He disapproved of the expansion of NATO into the former Soviet bloc. Kennan also disapproved of the invasion of Iraq.

Delusions of superiority

Dick Cheney confidently asserted that U.S. troops would be welcomed in Iraq. He said, 'I really do believe that we will be greeted as liberators.' Mearsheimer observes that in contrast to such beliefs that the U.S. was morally superior, Kennan did not believe that the U.S. was more virtuous in any meaningful way. Indeed, Kennan observed that Americans were suffering from 'delusions of superiority'. Kennan strongly argued against the U.S. taking a 'paternalistic' responsibility to anyone, be it even in the form of military occupation'.

Many of the points raised here will be disputed. Yet, there is no doubt that the policies of restraint and pragmatism, advocated by people like Kissinger and Kennan in the Cold War era, contrast significantly with the liberal idealism of the post-Cold War era, as demonstrated by the statement of Democrats like Albright and Republicans like George W. Bush. These contrasting approaches also explain American success of the Cold War era and the failures of the post-Cold War era.

Ethiopia's political tug of war

The conflict between PM Abiy Ahmed's party and the Tigray People's Liberation Front is escalating

GARIMELLA SUBRAMANIAM

Prime Minister Abiy Ahmed believes he is a man of destiny. As a child, his mother had prophesied that her son would become a great ruler one day. The Prosperity Party the former intelligence officer launched, disbanding the multi-party coalition that brought him to power, is said to derive its name from an evangelical faith. Whatever his predilections, the Ethiopian leader has, since being catapulted to premiership in April 2018, stumbled from one crisis to another, imperilling the country's recent economic record.

Use of force
When Mr. Abiy commanded a military offensive in November in retaliation against a Tigray rebel attack on federal army barracks, his reputation as a reformer and peacemaker already lay in ruins. He dismissed opposition to the use of force, insisting that the law-and-order operation would be wound up within weeks. For months, he denied the involvement of neighbouring Eritrean forces in the conflict. In March, Mr. Abiy likened Tigrayan fighters to "flour dispersed by the wind."

But events on the ground tell another story. Thousands of civilians have been killed by Ethiopian and Eritrean forces and Tigrayan militias. Addis Ababa stands accused by the United Nations and Amnesty International of war crimes, ethnic cleansing and the resort to rape and hunger as weapons of war.

The unilateral ceasefire Mr. Abiy declared on June 28, purportedly on humanitarian grounds, carries little credibility, as Tigray continues to remain crippled by a blockade of essential supplies and communication and electricity blackouts. The U.S., Ethiopia's long-standing military ally, has imposed sanctions on several top officials and the European Union has demanded millions of dollars in aid.

Meanwhile, after recapturing the regional capital Mekelle in late June, the rebel Tigray Defense Forces have taken thousands of Ethiopian troops as prisoners of war. They have demanded the withdrawal of all federal forces loyal to Mr. Abiy, besides an independent investigation into Ethiopia pian and Eritrean atrocities. The Tigray People's Liberation Front (TPLF), the dominant party in the Ethiopian People's Revolutionary Democratic Front (EPRDF)'s autocratic rule until 2018, is resurgent. The organisation, which Mr. Abiy has dubbed a "criminal clique," has stayed outside his Prosperity Party.

Debrezion Gebremichael, the President of TPLF, has raised the spectre of the territory asserting its right to self-determination under the 1995 constitution in view of its deepening distrust with Addis Ababa. Mr. Debrezion has also not ruled out TPLF retaliation against Eritrean atrocities in the ongoing conflict. Eritrea's strongman President Isaias Afwerki, who signed the landmark 2018 peace deal with Mr. Abiy, has now allied with him, possibly to avenge his country's bloody defeat against a TPLF-led Ethiopian government in the 1998-2000 border war.

Growing resentment
The volatile atmosphere is a far cry from the euphoria in 2018 when Mr. Abiy released political prisoners, lifted the ban on opposition parties and welcomed exiles home. An Oromo, the ethnic community that constitutes more than a third of Ethiopia's population, Mr. Abiy's elevation symbolised the redressal of the country's political imbalance. Tigrayans, who form less than 10% of the populace, had wielded power disproportionate to their strength for 28 years under the EPRDF coalition. In the event, the Oromos' enthusiasm to assert their new-found freedom proved unsustainable and the Tigrayans began to resent the erosion of political influence.

Matters reached a head when Tigray held provincial polls in September 2020, defying Addis Ababa's decision to defer general elections nationally in view of the pandemic. The ballot was eventually held on June 21, but not in at least 100 constituencies. Although Mr. Abiy has predictably won the election, the second most populated nation in Africa is at a crossroads.

Dialogue over discord

RSS chief Mohan Bhagwat's speech has ushered in a ray of hope for harmony

TARIQ MANSOOR

There have been a lot of deliberations on Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS) chief Mohan Bhagwat's speech on July 5 during a book launch function in Ghaziabad. The speech carries many firsts and sends a message to both Hindus and Muslims. Discussions in the media and in social and political groups may be taking place on the content of the speech, but there is no denying that it has ushered in a ray of hope for harmony.

A bold speech

Mr. Bhagwat stressed on two major issues, peaceful coexistence and initiating a dialogue for a composite culture, to be attained by safeguarding and following our own religious practices, cultures, and attire. Nothing is left for a tussle when the two communities share a motherland, culture, and ancestors.

Mr. Bhagwat's speech has to be viewed in its entirety. The time has come for a new beginning. His bold outreach needs to be reciprocated. There may be issues, concerns, and even irritants during this journey but we have to overcome all this. Treading a peaceful path is the need of the hour.

There are many points in Mr. Bhagwat's speech which we have to agree with without discussion. India is the motherland for both the communities. He has shunned the apprehension regarding his remarks – there is no need for confrontation. The fact that such a statement comes from the RSS chief itself denotes that Muslims should not live with any fear psychosis. When Mr. Bhagwat said that the DNA of Hindus and Muslims is the same and they have the same ancestors, it shows that proving one's Muslim identity does not hold much ground.

It is true that incidents of mob lynching of Muslims are a matter of concern as they have endangered the life and security of the community. Mr. Bhagwat categorically condemned all such lynching incidents. He said that those who indulge in lynching are against Hindutva. The law should take its own course against such people without any partiality.

Mr. Bhagwat said Muslims should not live in a cycle of fear. This could instill confidence in the community. It is a fact that there is fear and apprehension in the community. There is no space for firebrand sloganizing that Islam is in danger, Muslims will be evicted, etc. Mr. Bhagwat himself candidly admitted that he can become popular with such rhetoric speeches but Hindus will themselves not support him.

The message from Mr. Bhagwat's speech is also for the majority community. The fringe elements need to learn lessons from it. The sensationalisation of statements, such as 'no Muslims will live here', may get space in the media, but the majority community does not approve of such an attitude. The RSS chief has highlighted the fact that there may have been some mistakes and excesses in the past, but we have to move forward. He has also drawn a line for the political situation in the country. Unity emanates from camaraderie, not from politics. It will come from the continuous efforts of enlightened people, not through politics.

Emphasising unity

Not long before Mr. Bhagwat's speech, Prime Minister Narendra Modi delivered an important speech to the Muslim community at the centenary celebrations of the Aligarh Muslim University (AMU) in 2020. His speech was appreciated in India and abroad for emphasising unity while achieving common national goals such as Aatmanirbharta, women's education, preservation of cultural heritage and equality of opportunity, while de-emphasising political and ideological differences.

It is within this framework that the speeches of both Mr. Modi and Mr. Bhagwat have to be appreciated. These are genuine attempts to engage with the community. More importantly, it is crucial that this be reciprocated by the Muslim community through dialogue. AMU can play an important role in facilitating this dialogue. Section 5(2)(b) of the AMU Act confers the university with the mission to promote the study of the religions, culture and civilisation of India. Towards this, the AMU, in its centenary year, established the Dara Shikoh Centre for Interfaith Dialogue. Dara Shikoh, a Mughal prince, was the founder of the academic movement for Hindu-Muslim dialogue.

For centuries, the two communities have lived in unity sharing a motherland, culture, and ancestors. Throughout the course of history, our rulers were different, but the country has remained one. This is what makes our Bharat unique. This is the message from this ancient land to the entire world. Any dialogue must take lessons from the past, live in the present and chart a peaceful path for the future. Let us move ahead with open hearts and minds.

DATA POINT

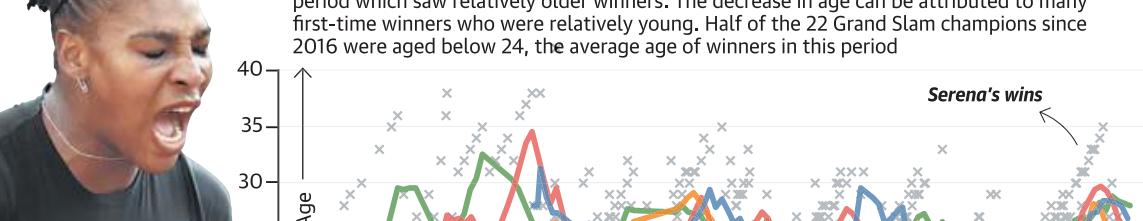

Nowhere near breaking point

On Sunday, Novak Djokovic became the third male singles player to win 20 Grand Slam titles after Roger Federer and Rafael Nadal. The trio have won 60 of the 72 Majors played since Wimbledon 2003, Federer's first Slam title. Their sheer dominance has pushed the average age of men Slam winners above 30, with breakthrough wins – when a player wins their first Major – becoming a rarity. However, it's a different story in the women's singles event. After Serena Williams' dominance waned, new and younger champions have burst onto the scene. Twelve of the last 22 wins were breakthroughs and most of the players were relatively young, pushing down the average age of women champions since 2016. By Suman Sen and Vignesh Radhakrishnan

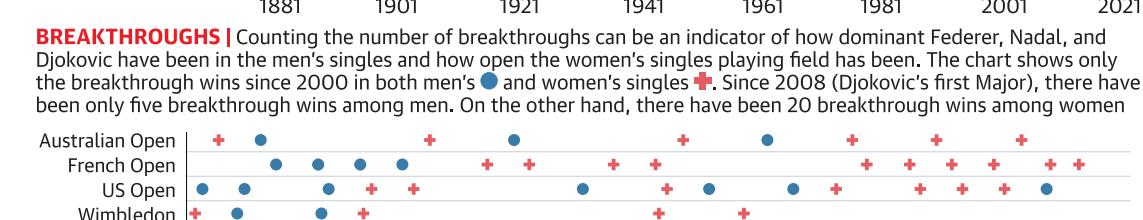

AGEING LIKE FINE WINE | The chart depicts the age of men's singles Grand Slam winners (x) and the average age of champions at the Australian Open (blue), French Open (orange), Wimbledon (green) and the U.S. Open (red). Since 2010, the average age of champions has consistently moved upwards across all four Majors. In the past, there were instances when the average age of winners was relatively high. But such a high average age was neither seen in four consecutive Grand Slam tournaments nor did it sustain for a significant period of time

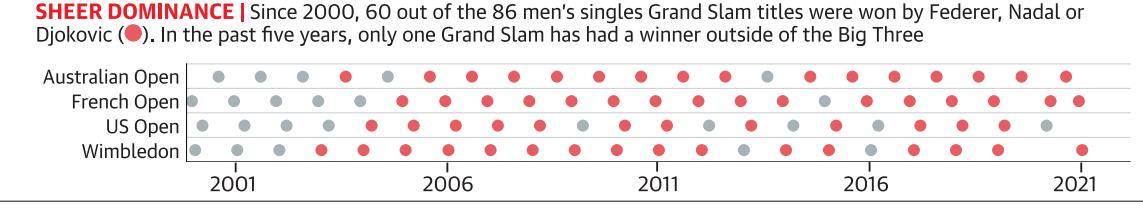

AN OPEN FIELD | The chart depicts the age of women's singles Grand Slam winners (x) and the average age of champions at various Slams. Contrary to the men's singles, the average age of women's singles champions has trended downwards in the past few years after a period which saw relatively older winners. The decrease in age can be attributed to many first-time winners who were relatively young. Half of the 22 Grand Slam champions since 2016 were aged below 24, the average age of winners in this period

BREAKTHROUGHS | Counting the number of breakthroughs can be an indicator of how dominant Federer, Nadal, and Djokovic have been in the men's singles and how open the women's singles playing field has been. The chart shows only the breakthrough wins since 2000 in both men's (blue) and women's singles (red). Since 2008 (Djokovic's first Major), there have been only five breakthrough wins among men. On the other hand, there have been 20 breakthrough wins among women

SHEER DOMINANCE | Since 2000, 60 out of the 86 men's singles Grand Slam titles were won by Federer, Nadal or Djokovic (red). In the past five years, only one Grand Slam has had a winner outside of the Big Three Concern over U.S. arms for Pak.

The Defence and External Affairs Ministers to-day [New Delhi, July 12] spoke reassuringly in Parliament about India's preparedness on both the western and eastern fronts to meet any Pakistani threat, while deplored strongly the continued supply of U.S. arms to the military rulers of Pakistan. The Defence Minister, Mr. Jagjivan Ram, assured the Lok Sabha, in the course of his reply to the seven-hour debate on the budget demands for the defence forces, that despite Pakistan's frantic efforts to augment its military strength, India still retained a decisive edge in almost every sphere. In his reply to the calling attention motion of the supply of American arms to Pakistan, the External Affairs Minister, Mr. Swaran Singh, disclosed that in addition to numerous verbal representations made at the highest level, India had also protested in writing on June 27 to the U.S. Government against the dangerous implications of this action. He told the Lok Sabha that the Government of India felt that the "the supply of arms to Pakistan by any country in the present context amounts to condonation of the genocide in Bangladesh and encouragement to the continuation of the atrocities by the Military rulers of Pakistan."

Lahore, July 12: Shortly after 9 last night while the Empire Cinema, situated on Maclod Road, was about to finish the first performance, the sudden fusing of electric wires, it is said, set fire inside the operator's room. Alarm was immediately given and the whole audience was safely brought out. Unfortunately one of the films caught fire and though attempts were made by means of fire extinguishers to control flames, the scarcity of water prevented anything substantial being done. Nepal SC directs Deuba to be appointed PM

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Oli's supporters, including youths and students affiliated to the ruling CPN-UML, took to streets here to protest against the top court's verdict against the 69-year-old Communist leader.

Cadres of the National Youth Force affiliated to the CPN-UML gathered in Mai-tighar Mandal near the court premises chanting slogans against the verdict.

"We are not bound to accept all the orders passed by the Supreme Court, beware!" read a banner carried by the demonstrators.

Mr. Oli's confidant and former Minister Mahesh Basnet was also present at the protests, according to media reports.

As many as 30 petitions were filed against the dissolution of the House by the President. One of the petitions was filed by the Opposition parties' alliance with the signature of 146 lawmakers, demanding reinstatement of the Lower House of Parliament and appointment of Mr. Deuba as the Prime Minister.

Inflation remains above 6% for second month

Growth impulses remained fragile with the second COVID-19 wave hurting the recovery momentum, according to quick estimates of industrial output for May, with output levels 8% lower than April.

Manufacturing output tanked 9.5% month-on-month, electricity production fell nearly 7%, although mining moved up marginally by 0.6% in May.

Headline factory output increased 29.3% over an incomparable May 2020, when industrial production had collapsed over 33% in the midst of a national lockdown.

However, this was 13.9% below the pre-pandemic levels of May 2019.

"Consumer durables and capital goods stood out as the worst affected sectors in May, trailing the pre-COVID levels by 41.2% and 36.9%, respectively," noted Aditi Nayar, chief economist at rating agency ICRA.

DBS Group Research economist Radhika Rao said Monetary Policy Committee members may retain a growth focus but are likely to express discomfort on the recent bout of sticky inflation, in the absence of corrective fiscal steps like excise duty cuts on fuel.

If the CPI inflation remains entrenched above the 6% upper threshold in the next two prints (July-August 2021), a preponement of rate normalisation can't be ruled out," warned Ms. Nayar, who expects the tightrope walk between supporting a 'nascent, incomplete' growth revival and preserving the need to anchor inflationary expectations, to continue.

Beyond the monthly swings, inflation continues to stay above the mid-point (4%) of the inflation target since late 2019... Pipeline risks are in focus, from service inflation as the second wave ebbs, pass-through from higher input prices as well as risks of a sub-normal southwest monsoon," Ms. Rao pointed out.

While the pace of price rise slowed marginally in rural India from 6.5% in May to 6.2% in June, inflation experienced by urban consumers quickened further to 6.4% from 5.9% in May.

Dalit man thrashed on suspicion of goat theft

MOHAMMED IQBAL
JAIPUR

A Dalit man was tied to a tree and thrashed by a group of people in Mohan-pura village of Rajasthan's Bhilwara district on the suspicion that he had stolen a goat from a house. The incident, which took place on Friday last week, came to light when its video clip went viral on social media.

Similar thefts were earlier reported in the village, but there was no trace of the thief. Some villagers suspected that Dalit youth Ra-mash Balai was the culprit, as he was allegedly seen roaming around the spot. Some villagers forcibly took Ramesh from Mali Khe-dha roundabout near Mohan-pura and tied him to a tree. The youth was beaten mercilessly though he pleaded innocence and said he did not know anything about the goats.

A villager shot a video of the incident and posted it on the social media groups. Alerted by the video, the police swung into action and launched a probe.

A meeting of all legislature parties in Tamil Nadu, including the BJP, unanimously passed a resolution on Monday, urging the Union government not to accord permission to Karnataka for building a dam across the Cauvery at Mekedatu. The meeting was convened by Chief Minister M.K. Stalin at the Secretariat.

The resolution said no construction must be undertaken at Mekedatu without the permission of the downstream States as per the Supreme Court's ruling. "Yet, Karnataka is making efforts to construct a dam at Mekedatu. This is highly condemnable," it said.

The parties observed that the project would affect water supply for the farmers of Tamil Nadu.

68 killed in lightning strikes in 3 States; experts issue warning

Rise in such incidents is partly due to cascading effects of global warming'

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

With the monsoon making a slow revival over several parts of India, except the northwest region, there is a rise in lightning-linked deaths.

Nearly 68 were reportedly struck dead by lightning on a single day in Uttar Pradesh, Rajasthan and Madhya Pradesh, according to reports from the States on Sunday. Prime Minister Narendra Modi announced an ex gratia of ₹2 lakh each for the next of kin of those killed in the lightning strikes in all the three States and ₹50,000 for the injured.

Over the years, the Home Ministry's statistics consistently cited lightning as the biggest natural disaster-linked killer in India.

In 2019, an analysis by private weather company Skymet reported that five States accounted for half the lightning strikes that year, led by Odisha with 9,37,462 strikes or about 16% of the cloud-to-ground strikes.

There were 20 million lightning strikes in that period with over 72% of them being instances of "in-cloud" lightning.

The most recent statistics from the National Crime Records Bureau, from 2019, said that year, there were 8,145 deaths in the country attributable to forces of nature.

ture. Of these, 35.3% deaths were reported due to 'lightning', 15.6% deaths due to 'heat/sun stroke' and 11.6% deaths due to 'flood'. Most of those who died due to accidents caused by forces of nature were reported to be belonging to the age-group of 30-45 (25.3%) and 45-60 (24.9%) together.

Under 'lightning', Bihar (400), Madhya Pradesh (400), Jharkhand (334) and Uttar Pradesh (321) reported the maximum number of victims.

Experts have warned of a rise in lightning disaster partly due to the cascading effects of global warming. At a seminar last month, S.D. Pawar, scientist at the Indian Institute of Tropical Meteorology, Pune, stated that annual lightning deaths had risen nearly two and a half times from the late 1960s to 2019 and were directly linked to the climate crisis, that increased moisture over land due to warming.

Open fields

Several weather agencies now issue lightning-related warnings and there are apps that generate customised forecasts. However a large proportion of deaths are in rural areas with open fields and people, in a bid to take shelter from the rain, choose to stay under trees that are frequently struck by lightning.

Monsoon eludes Delhi despite fair conditions

It is only a matter of time, says IMD

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

While the conditions for the monsoon's onset over Delhi are in place, meteorologists are unable to set a precise date.

For well over a week now, the monsoon – that was to have reached Delhi on June 27-29 – has been on the threshold of the region with its northernmost limit over a stretch that spans Barmer, Aligarh, Meerut, Ambala and Amritsar.

"Conditions are ripe for the monsoon in Delhi and it is only a matter of time," M. Mohapatra, Director-General, IMD, told The Hindu on Monday.

The latest forecasts, as of Monday morning, indicate no significant rain over the region for the next 24 hours and only chances of a "light drizzle" for the early part of the week.

'Unprecedented failure'

With questions swirling on IMD's failure to predict the monsoon in Delhi, the agency issued a statement late Monday arguing that the failure of their model was unprecedented.

"Such type of failure by numerical models in prediction of monsoon advance over Delhi is rare and uncommon. It is needless to mention that the IMD has predicted well with high accuracy about the advance of monsoon over Delhi in the recent past years and also the advance of monsoon over different parts of the country during the monsoon-2021 accurately about four to five days ahead. The IMD is monitoring the situation continuously and will provide the regular updates on advance of monsoon into remaining parts of north-west India including Delhi."

After the monsoon made its onset over Kerala on June 3, its southwest branch made a rapid journey upwards, prompting the IMD to forecast that it could arrive by June 15.

"We made a mistake with that. However after July 1, the IMD's position has been that the monsoon would set in around July 10. We are seeing the setting in of the characteristic monsoon winds as well as low humidity and the clouds are there too. The rain is soon inevitable," said Mr. Mohapatra.

The overall monsoon rainfall from a surplus has turned to an 8% deficit.

Gopal Sharma alias Ram Bhakt Gopal, 19, accused of shooting at a Jamia student last year during the anti-Citizenship Amendment Act (CAA) protests, was arrested by the Gurugram Police on Monday in connection with his hate speech at a mahapanchayat in Pataudi earlier this month. He has been charged with outraging religious feelings and promoting enmity between different groups.

Sharma was arrested at Sialkotpur Badha village, said the police. The arrest came following the registration of an FIR against him late on Sunday night on a complaint by a resident of Jamupur village.

The case was registered at Pataudi police station under Section 153A (Promoting enmity between different groups on grounds of religion etc.) and 295A (Deliberate and malicious acts, intended to outrage religious feelings of any class by insulting its religion or religious beliefs).

The complainant, in the FIR, said the teenager gave a provocative speech at a mahapanchayat organised at Ramlila Ground in Pataudi on July 4. He further added that the speech could instigate riots and create law and order situation.

IT Rules: SC gives petitioner a week's time

He can check whether it addresses the issue of communally sensitive content on social media

LEGAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court on Monday gave a week's time for a petitioner to study the Information Technology (Intermediary Guidelines and Digital Media Ethics Code) Rules of 2021 to verify whether it addresses the issue of communally sensitive content posted on social media platforms.

A Bench led by Chief Justice of India (CJI) N.V. Rama-nan even suggested that the petitioner, advocate Khaja Ajiazuddin, could approach the petition referred to how "massive publicity was given by the media that many of the positive cases of symptoms of coronavirus were found from Tablighi Jamaat at Nizamuddin in Delhi".

The petition contended

"there was a massive trending of tweets on Twitter attaching the Muslim religion to the cause of spread of coronavirus".

He said he was "aggrieved with trending on Twitter under the name and styled #Islamiconcoronavirusjihad, etc".

It amounted to promoting hatred against a particular religion, which is a criminal offence both under the Indian Penal Code and the Information Technology Act of 2000.

The petition, filed in May, asked the court to direct the government to frame specific guidelines under the Information Technology Act of 2000. It regulates social intermediaries, content on digital media and addresses cyber-crime. It comes in place of the Information Technology (Intermediary Guidelines) Rules of 2011.

Already, the different aspects of the new Rules are under judicial scanner. The government has recently moved the apex court to transfer the cases pending against it from various High Courts to it. On July 9, a Bench of Justices A.M. Khanwilkar and Sanjiv Khanna tagged the government's transfer plea to a pending special leave petition titled 'Justice for Rights Foundation versus Union of India'.

The Justice Khanwilkar Bench had said the case would be listed before an appropriate Bench on July 16.

The government's transfer petition is likely to come up before a Bench led by Justice D.Y. Chandrachud on July 16. The 'Justice for Rights Foundation' case is pending before this Bench and primarily concerns the regulation of content shown on over-the-top (OTT) platforms. This Bench has been examining the issue in the backdrop of the new IT Rules.

rate meeting at either of the two venues that both will travel to.

The focus of both meetings is expected to be the deteriorating security situation in Afghanistan and regional solutions for the country in the wake of the U.S. and NATO troops pull-out, said organisers.

Dushanbe will host a special SCO-contact group meeting of eight member states (Russia, India, China, Pakistan and Central Asian states) with Afghanistan Foreign Minister Hanif Atmar on July 14. Significantly, the contact group, which normally meets at the level of Deputy Foreign Ministers, is being upgraded this time, and all Foreign Ministers are expected to give a joint statement on Afghanistan.

The statement will be of particular importance as the Taliban has stepped up violence in the country, and Taliban militants claim they are taking over more towns and cities from the Afghan forces, which led to India pulling all its staff off the Kandahar Consulate on Saturday. Afghanistan was high on the agenda of Mr. Jaishankar's meetings in Tehran and Moscow last week as well.

In Tashkent, Uzbekistan President Shavkat Mirzoyev will make a greater push for trade connectivity between South and Central Asia, including discussing the importance of the Chabahar project with India and signing a transit trade agreement (TTA) with PM Khan that will give Uzbekistan access to Pakistani ports, benefiting trade with Afghanistan as well.

"Afghanistan is not just a neighbour, but a part of our region. Presently it is seen by some as a source of problems and threats, but it is also a source of possibilities, and the President feels that the foremost purpose of this conference is to strengthen connectivity, including through Afghanistan," Uzbekistan Ambassador to India Dilshod Akhotov told The Hindu in an interview. He added that Afghanistan would be included in the Uzbekistan-India-Iran trilateral in the future, and plans for a Preferential Trade Agreement (PTA) with India were also under consideration.

Assam CM tables cattle protection Bill

GUWAHATI

Assam Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma on Monday tabled the Assam Cattle Preservation Bill, 2021, on the first day of the Assembly's Budget session.

The State Cabinet had a week ago approved the Bill seeking to ban the transport of cattle within as well as to and from Assam.

The Bill would replace the existing Assam Cattle Preservation Act, 1950, which allowed the slaughter of cattle above the age of 14 after approval from local veterinary officers.

"No person shall transport or offer for transport or cause to be transported any cattle without a valid permit from any place of another State through Assam to any place outside the State of Assam, any place within the State of Assam or the State of Assam where the slaughter of cattle is not regulated by law," the Bill said.

'Imbalance between communities due to different response to family planning'

NEW DELHI

The Vishwa Hindu Parishad (VHP) has objected to incentivising public servants and others to follow the "one-child norm" mentioned in certain sections of the proposed Uttar Pradesh Population (Control, Stabilisation and Welfare) Bill, 2021.

The objection pertains to just the fact that China has had to reverse its one-child policy because of its negative impact of the availability of a working population, but because of what the VHP termed an "imbalance between different communities because they are known to respond differently to the incentives and disincentives related to family planning and contraception".

moting it as a desired policy aim of his government.

China as example

VHP's acting president Alok Kumar has written to the Law Commission formalising its objection, citing the example of China and its government's recent relaxation of the one-child norm followed earlier to illustrate his point.

He asked that Section 5, 6(2) and 7 of the Bill "go well beyond" the Bill's objectives, which aimed to stabilise the population and promote the two-child norm.

lax its one-child policy," it added.

Further imbalance

"In the case of Uttar Pradesh, the one-child policy is likely to lead to further imbalance between different communities because they are known to respond differently to the incentives and disincentives related to family planning and contraception," Mr. Kumar noted, citing examples of Assam and Kerala where, he stated, the TFR of Hindus was far below the replacement rate of 2.1, but that of Muslims was 3.16 in Assam and 2.33 in Kerala. "In these States, one of the communities has thus entered the contraction phase, while the other is still expanding," he observed.

Many States have some type of incentive programme for population control, including Assam, with Uttar Pradesh, less than a year away from Assembly election, bringing in a draft law that promises to raise the political heat.

Bihar Chief Minister Nitish Kumar asserted on Monday that it was not possible to ensure population control through laws.

Nitish Kumar

He was reacting to Union Rural Development Minister and senior Bihar BJP leader Giriraj Singh's call for a policy on population control in Bihar similar to the one launched by Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath.

"Look at China or, for that matter, any other example," Mr. Kumar told a select group of presspersons on the sidelines of his weekly janata ke durbar mein mukhyamantri (Chief Minister in people's court) programme that resumed on Monday after gap of nearly five years.

"It was eureka moment for my government when data showed that girls' education up to Class 12 helped in drastically reducing fertility rate," he said. "Some people may believe that this can be done only by a law, but our thinking is clear. I'm not in favour of any law," said Mr. Kumar, who heads a National Democratic Alliance (NDA) government in alliance with the BJP leaders' comments.

The ruling alliance partner, Janata Dal (United), and the Opposition mahagathbandhan (grand alliance) leaders reacted strongly to the BJP leaders' comments. "They are advocating this to polarise votes," said JD(U) leader Ghulam Gaus.

Opposition Congress MLC and senior State party leader Prem Chandra Mishra said his party "was also in favour of containing population growth, but not through force".

Forming a union via the Telegram messaging app, almost 3,000 students under the banner of "Indian Students in China" sent a letter to Prime Minister Narendra Modi on June 27. They urged Mr. Modi to take up their cause with Chinese authorities, seeking clarity on a possible date of return.

"If our returning is not possible, then arrange some practical work for us in India so that we can continue

"We are not sure whether the National Medical Commission will recognise our degrees if we have online classes only," said Neel Bhatt, a final year student at the Guangxi University of Chinese Medicine.

Sandeep and Neel are also part of the wider China International Students Union, which includes representatives from 270 universities and multiple nationalities.

Their June 30 letter to Chinese President Xi Jinping raised questions during a Chinese Foreign Ministry briefing on July 9.

During the same press conference, he hit out at the U.S. for refusing the visa applications of Chinese students, provoking accusations of hypocrisy from aggrieved Indian students.

Congress general secretary for Uttar Pradesh Priyanka Gandhi Vadra on Monday had a brainstorming session with leaders from the State regarding the party's political strategy for next year's Assembly election.

The virtual meeting of the Congress' advisory council decided that party workers would hit the streets against the State government over price rise and unemployment. Some party leaders also suggested that Ms. Vadra shift her base to Lucknow to take on the BJP government.

sons. In the Rajya Sabha, 205 members had got both the vaccine shots, 16 took the first dose and six could not take any of the shots due to medical reasons.

Mr. Birla said while the high percentage of fully vaccinated members was a relief, there would be no laxity in following COVID-19 protocols. All members would be expected to wear masks both inside the House chamber and outside.

The only difference this time would be that the members would sit in their respective chambers. In the last two sessions, to maintain social distancing, the Rajya Sabha met in the morning and the Lok Sabha in the afternoon.

Mr. Birla said the new Parliament building, which was under construction as part of the Central Vista, would be in place in time. "The construction is about 10 days behind the schedule, but will be completed soon," he noted.

'Arrest created suspicion in public's mind'

Bahujan Samaj Party (BSP) chief Mayawati on Monday said the arrest of two persons in Lucknow by the Uttar Pradesh Police for allegedly plotting terror attacks months ahead of the Assembly election has created suspicion in the public's mind.

If the claims of the police are true, then action should be taken, she said. The police on Sunday had arrested two persons on the suspicion that they were planning to carry out attacks in U.P. ahead of Independence Day.

The absence of Dr. Mitra from Assembly proceedings has triggered speculation about him stepping down. Dr. Mitra did not contest the Assembly election. Sources in the Trinamool Congress said he had expressed his unwillingness to contest the bypolls.

Six dead in riots over Zuma's arrest

ASSOCIATED PRESS
JOHANNESBURG

Six people have been killed and 219 arrested amid escalating violence during rioting that broke out following the imprisonment of South Africa's former President Jacob Zuma, police said Monday.

Army soldiers will be deployed to help police quell the violence, the South African National Defence Force said. Police said shops and businesses have been looted and vandalised. Traffic has been disrupted by rioters barricading major roads with burning tires, and cars have been attacked.

The violence was triggered last week when Zuma began serving a 15-month sentence for contempt of court. He had defied a court order to testify before a state-backed inquiry probing allegations of corruption during his term as president from 2009 to 2018.

The Constitutional Court will hear Zuma's appeal against the sentence on Monday. The rioting started in Zuma's home region of KwaZulu-Natal province last week and over the weekend it spread to Gauteng province, which includes Johannesburg, South Africa's largest city.

Top U.S. General in Afghanistan Scott Miller relinquishes post

He says relentless violence is making political settlement increasingly difficult

ASSOCIATED PRESS
KABUL

The top U.S. commander in Afghanistan relinquished his position at a ceremony in the capital Kabul on Monday, taking the U.S. a step closer to ending its 20-year war. The move came as Taliban insurgents continue to gain territory across the country.

Another four-star general will assume authority from his U.S.-based post to conduct possible airstrikes in defence of Afghan government forces, at least until the U.S. withdrawal concludes by August 31.

Gen. Scott Miller has served as America's top commander in Afghanistan since 2018. He handed over command of what has become known as America's "forever war" in its waning days to Marine Gen. Frank McKenzie, the head of U.S. Central Command. McKenzie will operate from Central Command headquarters in Tampa, Florida.

The handover took place in the heavily fortified Resolute Support headquarters in the heart of Kabul at a time of rapid territorial gains by Taliban insurgents across Afghanistan.

In a flag-passing ceremon-ny, Gen. Miller remembered the U.S. and NATO troops killed in the nearly 20-year war as well as the thousands of Afghans who lost their lives. He warned that relentless violence across Afghanistan is making a political settlement increasingly difficult. The outgoing commander said he has told Taliban insurgents, "it's important that the military sides set the conditions for a peaceful and political settlement in Afghanistan... But we know that with that violence, it would be very difficult to achieve a political settlement."

The Afghanistan National Defense and Security Forces, mostly funded by the U.S.

and NATO, have put up resistance in some parts of the country, but overwhelmingly Afghan government troops appear to have abandoned the fight.

Strategic districts

In recent weeks, the Taliban have gained several strategic districts, particularly along the borders with Iran, Uzbekistan and Tajikistan.

Afghanistan's National Security Adviser Hamdullah Mohib, who attended the handover, said the U.S. and NATO withdrawal has left a vacuum that resulted in Afghanistan's national security forces stranded on the battlefield without resupplies, sometimes running out of food and ammunition.

In comments after the ceremony, Mr. Mohib said the greatest impact of the withdrawal is a lack of aircraft to resupply troops. Currently, the government is regrouping to retake strategic areas and defend its cities against Taliban advances.

The Taliban control more than one-third of Afghanistan's 421 districts and district centers. A Taliban claim that they control 85% of the districts is widely seen as exaggerated.

After Gen. Miller's departure, a two-star admiral based at the U.S. Embassy in Kabul will oversee the U.S. military's role in securing the American diplomatic presence in Kabul, including defending the Kabul airport.

Gen. Miller's departure does not reduce the scope of the U.S. military mission in Afghanistan, since Gen. McKenzie will assume the authorities now held by Gen. Miller to conduct airstrikes in defence of Afghan government forces under certain circumstances.

The conditions under which such strikes might be used are not clear, nor is it known for how long Gen. McKenzie will keep the strike authority.

Russia, Mexico warn against 'outside interference' in Cuba

Russia and Mexico on Monday warned against any "outside interference" in Cuba after thousands took part in rare protests against the Communist government on the island nation.

"We consider it unacceptable for there to be outside interference in the internal affairs of a sovereign state or any destructive actions that would encourage the destabilisation of the situation on the island," Foreign Ministry spokeswoman Maria Zakhrova said in a statement.

She did not explain who might be trying to interfere in Cuba, but the warning appeared directed at the U.S., which has urged Cuba not to target protesters and where thousands of Cuban-Americans have taken to the streets to support the demonstrations.

"We are closely following the development of the situation in and around Cuba," Ms. Zakhrova said.

"We are convinced that Cuban authorities are taking all necessary measures to restore public order in the interests of the country's citizens and within the framework of the Constitution."

Keeping watch: Policemen are seen near the Capitol building in Havana, a day after protests in Cuba, on Monday. • AP

Cuba was an important Cold War ally of the Soviet Union and Moscow has continued to have good diplomatic relations with Havana since the 1991 collapse of the USSR.

Mexico's President Andres Manuel Lopez Obrador warned against an "interventionist" approach to the protests, and offered to send aid to the communist island. Mexico could "help with medicines, with (coronavirus) vaccines, with what is needed and with food because health and food are fundamental rights" that do not require "interventionist political management," he said.

Nepali Congress hails Supreme Court verdict

'People given clear political alternative'

KALLO BHATTACHERJEE
NEW DELHI

The verdict of the Supreme Court of Nepal to remove Prime Minister K.P. Sharma Oli has revitalised the Nepali Congress and the constitutional democracy of Nepal, vice-president of the party Bimlendra Nidhi told The Hindu on Monday.

Following the Supreme Court's verdict, Nepali Congress president Sher Bahadur Deuba will be sworn in as the new Prime Minister by Tuesday evening, Mr. Nidhi said.

"We welcome the verdict of the Honourable Supreme Court as it has given a clear political alternative before the people of Nepal ending the rule of PM Oli. It also shows that President Bidhya Devi Bhandari had erred by denying the opportunity of a floor test to the claim of Shri Deuba to form the government earlier after the reinstatement of the lower house of Parliament," Mr.

Nidhi said, speaking over the phone from Kathmandu.

New direction

Nepali politics, said Mr. Nidhi, had been stuck with the rule of Mr. Oli but now the clear verdict of the Supreme Court has given a new direction to the country. Following the verdict, Mr. Deuba will have to swear in as the Prime Minister of Nepal within a day. "Within 30 days, Mr. Deuba will have to prove the majority of his government in Parliament," Mr. Nidhi said.

The verdict was particularly critical of PM Oli and President Bhandari and held both of them guilty of violating constitutional norms while dealing with the political crisis that began last December 20 when President Bhandari dissolved the lower house of the Nepalese Parliament after being advised by PM Oli's Cabinet.

Haitian man held in Moïse's assassination

PORT-AU-PRINCE

The head of Haiti's national police announced on Sunday that officers arrested a Haitian man accused of flying into the country on a private jet and working with the masterminds and alleged assassins behind the killing of President Jovenel Moïse.

Police Chief Léon Charles identified the suspect as Christian Emmanuel Sanon, without giving any personal information about him, though it appears he has been living in Florida. The chief also gave no information on the purported masterminds.

Mr. Charles said the alleged killers were protecting Mr. Sanon as the supposed president of Haiti, adding that officers found several items at his house, including a hat emblazoned with the logo of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration, 20 boxes of bullets and gun parts.

Two former Jordan officials handed 15-year jail terms

A Jordanian court on Monday sentenced two former officials to 15 years in jail after finding them guilty of a coup plot that sparked a rare crisis in a kingdom seen as a pillar of stability in the region.

Former royal court chief Bassem Awadallah and an ex-envoy to Saudi Arabia, Sharif Hassan bin Zaid, had been convicted of conspiring to topple King Abdullah II in favour of his half-brother Prince Hamzah.

The former Crown Prince himself was not charged in the trial, but the chargesheet said he was "determined to fulfil his personal ambition to rule, in violation of the Hashemite constitution and customs".

But on Monday, journalists were allowed to watch footage of the ruling via video link from a tent set up outside the court.

Delivering the ruling, Judge Muwaffaq al-Masaid noted the men had been friends for 20 years and were close to Prince Hamzah. He said they had tried to put into action "ideas that are hostile to the existing political system in the kingdom and his majesty King Abdullah".

The men had tried to create chaos, sedition and divisions within Jordanian society and spread hateful discourse towards the political system, threatening the safety and security" of the kingdom, he said.

Awadallah and Bin Zaid, who both have close ties to Saudi Arabia, were found guilty of "incitement against the ruling system" and "acts that could threaten society and create sedition".

China says it 'drove away' U.S. warship

Stop provocative actions, says Beijing

REUTERS
BEIJING

China's military said it "drove away" a U.S. warship that illegally entered Chinese waters near the Paracel Islands on Monday, the anniversary of an international court ruling that held Beijing had no claim over the South China Sea.

The USS Benfold entered the waters without China's approval, seriously violating its sovereignty and undermining the stability of the South China Sea, the southern theatre command of the People's Liberation Army said.

"We urge the United States to immediately stop such provocative actions," it said in a statement.

On July 12, 2016, the Permanent Court of Arbitration in the Hague ruled that China had no historic title over the South China Sea, a ruling that Beijing said it would ignore.

The Benfold asserted navigational rights and freedoms in the vicinity of the Paracel Islands consistent with international law, the U.S. Navy said in a statement on Monday.

The islands are claimed by China, Taiwan and Vietnam, which require either permission or advance notification before a military vessel passes through.

"Under international law, the ships of all states enjoy the right of innocent passage through the territorial sea," the U.S. Navy added. "By engaging in innocent passage without giving prior notification, the U.S. challenged these unlawful restrictions imposed by China, Taiwan and Vietnam."

Hundreds of other islands, reefs and atolls in the South China Sea are contested by Brunei, China, Malaysia and the Philippines, with China claiming rights to resources within its so-called nine-dash line, or most of the region.

U.K.'s PM to confirm lifting of COVID-19 curbs next week

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE
LONDON

Prime Minister Boris Johnson is set Monday to confirm "Freedom Day" next week with the lifting of most pandemic curbs in England, but will urge caution with experts worried the government is moving too fast.

Mr. Johnson was due to hold an afternoon news conference confirming that the government's tests have been met to allow a full reopening of the economy on July 19, doing away with the final measures of a months-old lockdown.

But with Britain now averaging more than 30,000 daily cases of the fast-spreading Delta coronavirus variant, scientists are fretting that the ending of measures such as mandatory mask-wearing spells trouble. And the government's decision to allow more than 60,000 football fans to attend Sunday's European Championship final has added to fears, after near-total flouting of distancing rules.

Mr. Johnson, however, insists the time is right to move from legally enforced rules to personal responsibility, and use the summer months to prepare for a potentially more damaging wave of COVID-19 in the winter. "We are tantalisingly close to the final milestone in our road map out of lockdown, but the plan to restore our freedoms must come with a warning," he said.

A shipment of 1.5 million doses of Johnson & Johnson vaccine donated by the United States arrived in Nepal on Monday, which is struggling to inoculate its population.

"Today's delivery of the single-dose vaccine means that this single donation is enough to protect over 1.5 million people in Nepal," U.S. Ambassador Randy Berry said.

The NWS said temperatures would dip slightly from Monday, but added, "This small relative cool down is of little relief to areas that have seen long-term oppressive and above normal temperatures."

Canadian meteorologists predicted highs approaching 90 degrees Fahrenheit (32 Celsius) – well above seasonal norms – would continue in parts of western Canada on Monday.

The western United States and Canada was suffering under scorching temperatures to start the week, with heat warnings still in place Monday and authorities struggling to reign in wildfires in both countries.

Sweltering conditions hit much of the Pacific seaboard and as far inland as the western edge of the Rocky Mountains on Saturday and Sunday, in a dramatic, prolonged heat wave experts attribute directly to climate change.

The U.S. National Weather Service (NWS) had warned the dangerous temperatures will continue in the region for the early part of the week, forecasting highs of up to 115 degrees Fahrenheit (46 Celsius) in southern California, and issued a heat advisory for the Los Angeles area until Monday evening.

The RBI on Monday announced the unveiling of a scheme under which retail investors will be allowed to open retail direct gilt accounts (RDG) directly with the central bank.

This account can be opened through a dedicated online portal, which will provide registered users access to primary issuance of government securities and to NDS-OM. "The date of commencement of the scheme will be announced at a later date," the RBI said in a circular.

The scheme is a one-stop solution to facilitate investment in government securities (G-secs) by individual investors, the regulator said. The facility was announced in the Statement of Developmental and Regulatory Policies dated February 5, RBI said.

Liquidity buffer at NBFCs cushions fall in Q1 collections'

Last year, moratorium spurred fears on asset quality, liquidity, Crisil points out

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
MUMBAI

Higher liquidity cover at NBFCs enabled them to service debt in the near term, and cushioned the impact of lower collections during the second wave of COVID-19, Crisil Ratings said in a study of entities rated by the agency.

"That is a change from last year, when asset quality and liquidity fears multiplied after a moratorium on repayments and stringent lockdowns affected collections. This time around, the build-up in liquidity has been a crucial offset," the ratings agency said, adding that collections had again been affected in the current fiscal by the second wave. In the wake of the second wave, Crisil conducted the study considering two stress-case scenarios. In the first scenario, in view of the collection challenges in the first quarter of FY22, it assumed collections over the next quarter at 70% of the levels in the past couple of quarters. In the second scenario, collections were assumed to halve. In scenario 1, 96% of NBFCs were found to have liquidity cover for three months' worth of debt repayments. In Scenario 2, the number was only marginally lower at 95%. Based on scenario 1, only 4% of NBFCs had low cover (less than one time), compared with 8% in June 2020, and 23% in April 2020.

Repeat performance: Collections have been hit in this fiscal too due to the second wave, Crisil says. ■ C. VENKATACHALAPATHY

"We find three factors have supported liquidity: fund-raising through special government schemes, improving collections in the second half of fiscal 2021, and limited disbursements," the agency said.

It pointed out that a number of NBFCs had increased provisioning levels in the past two fiscal years, and had thus enhanced buffers for asset-side risks.

FM-led panel to decide on LIC stake sale

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
NEW DELHI

The Cabinet Committee on Economic Affairs has approved an initial public offering (IPO) of India's largest insurer LIC, the modalities of which, such as issue size, pricing and timing would be decided by a panel headed by Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman.

The Department of Investment and Public Asset Management had in January appointed actuarial firm Milliman Advisors LLP India to assess the embedded value of LIC ahead of the IPO, touted to be the biggest public issue in Indian corporate history.

The government expects to come out with the IPO by the end of FY22, a senior official said on Monday. From ₹5,850 for Lump ore and ₹4,560 for Fines on April 3, the prices moved up to ₹7,650 and ₹6,560 respectively, following two more revisions, including the last on May 12. In June, the firm had maintained the prices.

NMDC slashes iron ore prices by ₹200 per tonne

First time prices have been cut in FY22

tively, following the revision, the price of Lump ore is ₹7,450 per tonne, while that for the same quantity of Fines ₹6,360, the company said in a filing on Monday.

India's largest iron ore producer, NMDC has, with this, changed the prices four times in the fiscal, including twice in April. The latest revision is the first instance of the prices being reduced this fiscal. Changes in the ore prices are a pointer of the demand for steel.

From ₹5,850 for Lump ore and ₹4,560 for Fines on April 3, the prices moved up to ₹7,650 and ₹6,560 respectively, following two more revisions, including the last on May 12. In June, the firm had maintained the prices.

Tenacious Italy wrecks England's party, paints the Euro blue

Azzurri inflict more penalty heartache on the Three Lions; Rashford, Sancho and Saka fluff their lines from the spot

EURO 2020

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE
LONDON

Italy inflicted more penalty heartache on England to win Sunday's Euro 2020 final 3-2 in a shootout, Bukayo Saka missing the decisive kick to deny the hosts after the game at Wembley had ended in a draining 1-1 draw through extra-time.

A night to remember: Italy's long wait for a second European title came to an end on Sunday. ■ AP

Saka's kick was repelled by Gianluigi Donnarumma to give Italy the Henri Delaunay Trophy for the second time, completing a remarkable turnaround for a team that failed to even qualify for the 2018 World Cup.

Italy's triumph came at the end of a shootout in which England scored its first two penalties but then saw Marcus Rashford and Jadon Sancho also fail. Jorginho could have won it for Italy only for his penalty to be saved by Jordan Pickford, giving renewed hope to England.

The nerve-shredding climax seemed unlikely given the way the match began, with Luke Shaw scoring for Gareth Southgate's England after just one minute and 56 seconds, the fastest goal ever in a European Championship final, and stunning a team which arrived here on a record 33-match unbeaten run. Italy was shell-shocked and struggled to recover in a stadium where the official attendance was 67,173 but more England fans clearly managed to enter after disgraceful scenes when supporters without tickets stormed the gates.

Italy, though, had most of the possession after falling behind and deserved its equaliser when it came midway through the second half through Leonardo Bonucci.

Questionable decision

With no further scoring, this was the first European Championship final to be decided on penalties since 1976 and the decision to let the 19-year-old Saka step up when he did was a questionable one.

While England's 55-year wait to win another major international title goes on, Italy's own particular half-century of hurt is over.

Another Gianluigi trumps for Italy in shootout

From Gigi to Gigi, Italy still has a safe pair of hands in goal.

Fifteen years after Gianluigi Buffon was under the bar for Italy in the World Cup final win via a penalty shootout, Gianluigi Donnarumma did the same on Sunday against England.

"Despite the goal right at the beginning we always commanded the game and then with penalties there's Gigi," Italy captain Giorgio Chiellini said. "We've gone from Gigi to Gigi."

The 22-year-old Donnarumma was sobbing on the shoulder of an Italy team staff member after saving the final penalty kick.

Incredible night
"It's an incredible night," Donnarumma said.

"If I am the best player of the tournament, it is also thanks to (Leonardo) Bonucci and Chiellini. We were extraordinary, we are very happy."

"We didn't give an inch. We are a fantastic squad and we deserve all this," Donnarumma said.

Donnarumma also saved a penalty from Alvaro Morata in the penalty shootout victory over Spain in the semifinals.

Losing the 2019 cricket ODI World Cup due to the boundary-countback rule still hurts New Zealand cricketers and this was again on show as Scott Styris and James Neesham took an indirect dig at the Three Lions after they lost the Euro 2020 final against Italy on penalties.

More corners
Styris and Neesham suggested that England could have been declared the winners as they had more 'corners' in the match or because of 'more passes' in the game.

"Why is it a penalty shootout and not just whoever made the most passes wins? #joking," tweeted Neesham.

Taking to Twitter, Styris wrote: "I don't understand... England had more corners... they are the champions! #Still salty."

Southgate's plan backfires

Owens responsibility for choosing the shot-takers' list

LONDON

Gareth Southgate could feel Bukayo Saka's anguish. Having a decisive penalty saved in a European Championship match can be such a lonely experience.

It still follows Southgate 25 years after his missed spot kick in the semifinals against Germany. Now he had to accept responsibility, having selected Saka to take what would be the last kick of Euro 2020.

The focus will turn to Southgate's decision-making. Should he have asked a 19-year-old to step up for such a pressure-packed moment?

Raheem Sterling wasn't even included among the five penalty takers.

Late substitutes
Marcus Rashford and Jadon Sancho were brought in the 120th minute just in time to take penalties.

Liverpool's Premier League and Champions League winner, Jordan Henderson, was deemed less suitable for a penalty than Sancho.

Antetokounmpo emulates O'Neal, James

NBA FINALS

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE
MILWAUKEE

Giannis Antetokounmpo powered Milwaukee Bucks to a 120-100 victory over Phoenix Suns on Sunday in the NBA Finals.

The 26-year-old Greek scored 41 points and grabbed 13 rebounds to spark the Bucks, who pulled to 2-1 in the best-of-seven championship series.

The two-time NBA Most Valuable Player, who had 42 points and 12 rebounds in a game two loss, joined Shaquille O'Neal in 2000 and LeBron James in 2016 as the only NBA Finals players with back-to-back 40-point, 10-rebound performances.

Jrue Holiday added 21 points and nine assists while Khris Middleton had 18 points, seven rebounds and six assists.

The Bucks, hosting their first NBA Finals game in 47 years, improved to an NBA-best 8-1 at home in the playoffs.

The Suns have a playoffs-best 6-2 on the road.

Suns guard Chris Paul, in the first NBA Finals of his 16-year career at age 36, led the Suns with 19 points while Deandre Ayton and Jae Crowder each added 18.

The result: Milwaukee Bucks 120 bt Phoenix Suns 100 (Suns lead series 2-1).

Class apart: The Suns had no answer to Giannis Antetokounmpo's brilliance on Sunday. ■ AFP

Last 14 rounds of blitz... I was ecstatic: Anand

GRAND CHESS TOUR

P.K. AJITH KUMAR

Viswanathan Anand turned the clock back in some style in Croatia. The 51-year-old outplayed several younger, stronger rivals to finish runner-up at the Croatia Grand Chess Tour, which concluded at Zagreb on Sunday. And this was his first tournament in 16 months.

After doing fairly well in the rapid section, the blitz games saw some vintage Anand. The five-time World champion was delighted with the way he finished.

"The last 14 rounds of blitz... I was ecstatic," Anand told The Hindu over phone from Zagreb on Monday. "I could have easily had another two extra points at least."

Among his wins, he said he particularly liked the one against Anton Korobov of Ukraine in the blitz. "I also enjoyed my win with white pieces against Garry Kasparov," he said. His old rival though had a disastrous outing. The 58-year-old Russian, who has been out of active chess after retiring in 2005, could score just 2.5 points from 18 rounds.

"We were all astonished by Kasparov's show," Anand said. "We understood he was rusty; so he was four years ago (at the St. Louis Grand Chess Tour) but then he posted quite a good performance.

I think this would motivate him to come back for one big tournament. I feel Garry will not want his last tournament to be like this."

Next stop

Anand's next stop on his comeback trail – COVID-19 has kept him off the chessboard since February last year – is Dortmund where he will meet another old Russian rival, Vladimir Kramnik. The 14th and 15th World champions will play a match of No-Castling Chess from Wednesday.

As the name suggests, the format will not allow the players to castle, in an attempt to take the game away from opening theory. "I think these kinds of variants are entertaining," he said.

Pressure brings out the best in Deepi

Her all-round show got India back in the series

INDIA IN ENGLAND

P.K. AJITH KUMAR

India was down and nearly out when Deepi Sharma came on to bowl the 14th over of the second T20I at Hove on Sunday.

Chasing 149, England was 105 for two with two set batters at the crease in Tammy Beaumont and captain Heather Knight, but off-spinning all-rounder Deepi turned things around in that over.

She had Beaumont lbw and off the next ball Knight was run out thanks to Deepi's fielding off her own bowling.

At a virtual press conference later, she spoke of how crucial the over was in India's victory that levelled the three-match series.

"Beaumont's wicket was crucial for us," she said.

"I was confident that the ball was hitting the stumps (England went for the DRS). And after that run-out (Knight), we pulled back."

Deepi had done her bit with the bat too, after India was put in. She made an unbeaten 24 off 27 balls.

"We had a good start and we thought we could even get to 160, but our final score wasn't that bad, as we knew our bowlers could defend it," she said. Deepi said she enjoyed playing under pressure.

"I like to play in pressure situations," she said.

"As an all-rounder I always try to contribute as much as I can in any department."

FINA said that its Ethics Panel will investigate whether further sanctions should be imposed on USF and any other implicated party.

Bopanna keeping his fingers crossed

Suspense about Olympic doubles entry for him and Divij continues

TENNIS

KAMESH SRINIVASAN
NEW DELHI

Rohan Bopanna is back home after Wimbledon to be with his family before he gets a possible call for the Olympics in Tokyo.

The suspense about the Olympic doubles entry for the Asian Games gold medalists Bopanna and Divij Shanmugaratnam continues, and there is no clarity even about where they figure in the waiting list.

Change

"Doubles entry was supposed to be purely on the basis of singles or doubles rank. But there has been some change."

"The two players from Portugal Joao Sousa and Pedro Sousa got singles wild cards. And they also got doubles entry despite their best combined rank being over 200," said Bopanna.

Bopanna, the former World No. 3 said that he visited the ATP office during Wimbledon every day to get some clarity about the Olympic entries, but nobody had any list that would make the picture clear.

He also pointed at the second Spanish team of Pablo Andujar and Roberto Carballés Baena whose best combined rank was around 170. Bopanna (38) and Divij had a combined rank of 113 on the entry cut-off date of June 14.

"Not only us, some good teams have also not got their entry yet. Matwe Middelkoop and Robin Haase, with a combined rank of 73, could not get in," Bopanna said.

"I have been playing every week from the third week of April and decided to take a week off. If we get entry for the Olympics, I will go to Tokyo from here. Otherwise, after a two-week break, I will be playing in the US circuit," said Bopanna.

He was happy with the way he had played Wimbledon, especially the mixed doubles with Sania Mirza.

"I was happy with the way I served. Maybe, all the yoga that I am doing regularly is helping me. Sania played well, but lacked the match exposure," said Bopanna.

The Indian pair had lost 9-11 in the third set against Jean-Julien Rojer and Andreja Klepac in the pre-quarterfinals, after not having dropped a set in the first two rounds.
