Deadlock stays, govt pins hopes on SC

Hearing on Jan 11, talks on Jan 15 | Won't repeal laws, says Centre | Nothing less: Farmers

TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

NEW DELHI, JANUARY 8
Protesting farmers and the Centre today failed to resolve the ongoing deadlock over three farm laws with the eighth round of talks ending inconclusively and the next scheduled for January 15.

The government appears to have pinned hopes of a resolution on the Supreme Court that will hear the matter on January 11 even as farm union representatives ruled out option of impleading in the case.

"We will win or die" was the message on the placards representatives of 41 farm unions held at the meeting where they refused to break for lunch reportedly upset over ministers arriving 40 minutes late for the talks.

"We are not going to vacate the sites of agitation even if the Supreme Court directs us to," farmer leader Darshan Pal said after the meeting as unions vowed to escalate mobilisation for the

The MEA on Friday said it had noted reports about the presence of Indo-Canadian MP Ramandeep Brar at the farmers' protests at Kundli on January 2. Spokesperson Anurag Srivastava said the government was "ascertaining the fact". Brar was backed by DSGMC president Manjinder Singh Sirsa.

today as farm unions did not offer any alternatives barring repeal of farm laws. The government categorically ruled out rescinding the legislations with Tomar noting that "many other farm groups nationally are in support of the laws". The minister said the Centre was committed to the directions of Supreme Court, whatever those might be. He, however, said no proposal was made to farmers to implead in the ongoing SC case.

Farmer leaders on their part maintained that Tomar had suggested in the meeting that the union leaders could petition the apex court, if they found the farm laws unconstitutional.

"We will not be party to the case as that will delay the matter," said farmer leader BS Rajewal, who opened the dialogue on the behalf of the farmers today saying the Centre did not have the right to legislate on agriculture, since it is a state subject.

BKU's Rakesh Tika said farmers were ready to protest till 2024 and hold as many rounds of talks as the Centre had to offer. "If we can go to jail 350 times, why can't we talk to the Centre 350 times?" he said.

With talks deadlocked, the Centre has started roping in heads of religious sects in Punjab to break the impasse on the farm laws.

While Union Agriculture Minister Narendra Singh Tomar met Baba Lakha Singh of Nanaksar Gurdwara yesterday, the BJP is now contemplating involving Giani Harpreet Singh, Akal Takht Jathedar, for mediation between the Centre and protesting farmers.

Oppn's charge baseless, malicious: CM

Says state has no role, so no question of deputing cops to negotiate with farmers

Tribune News Service

CHANDIGARH, JANUARY 8

Rejecting as baseless and malicious all allegations of the Opposition, Punjab Chief Minister Captain Amarinder Singh said there was no question of deputing police officers to negotiate with farmers protesting at the Delhi border.

Pointing out that he had made it categorically clear that the ball was in the Centre's court, with the Punjab Government having no role to play in the negotiations with farmers, the Chief Minister ridiculed the charges made by Akalis and AAP leaders on the basis of unfounded reports in a small section of the media.

With farmer protests going

PROTESTERS TALKING DIRECTLY WITH CENTRE

Anyone who believes that a couple of police officers can negotiate with the farmers to accept the Centre's suggestions is really naive... where is the question of me coming into a negotiation process in which the top central government leadership is currently engaged?

Capt Amarinder Singh, CHIEF MINISTER

on in the state long before the agitation started at the Delhi border, he said he had asked police officers to give him regular intelligence reports and updates on the situation not just from the national capital but also across Punjab. Trashing the twisted interpretation to the presence of a few Punjab Police personnel at the farmers' protest site, he said it was the job of the state police to keep tabs on the evolving situation, and it was his job, as both Chief Minister and Home Minister, to remain updated about all developments.

Captain Amarinder said both SAD president Sukhbir Singh Badal and AAP convenor Arvind Kejriwal, as well as their party colleagues, were resorting to lies and deceit in their desperation to cover up their own failures in the entire crisis triggered by the farm laws.

On Sukhbir's claim that the resolutions passed in the Punjab Vidhan Sabha against the three farm Bills had not been sent to the Governor, he said the SAD president had clearly lost it. "Or perhaps he is suffering from serious amnesia since his party colleagues, including his own brother-in-law Bikram Majithia, had accompanied me to the Governor's House for submitting the resolution and the three State Amendment Bills," said the CM.

Unlike the Akalis and AAP, which had made drastic U-turns, the Punjab Congress and his government had a very clear and consistent stand on the central farm laws, said the Chief Minister, adding that his government had supported the farmers' stance on the issue from the outset and continued to do so.

"The farmers and the people of Punjab are not going to be taken in by your fabrications and drama," he said, warning Sukhbir and Kejriwal to stop indulging in false propaganda to push their political agenda.

INTIMIDATING FARMERS IN DELHI

The Chief Minister is acting as per the orders of the Centre and even posting police officers, including IGs and SSPs, in Delhi to intimidate farmer union leaders.

WHEN WILL BILLS BE SENT TO PREZ: HARSIMRAT

Former Union Minister Harsimrat Kaur Badal on Friday asked CM Capt Amarinder Singh to tell Punjabis how long he would wait before exercising legal options to ensure the three farm Bills, passed unanimously in the Vidhan Sabha 80 days ago to counter the central laws, were forwarded by the Governor to the President of India for assent.

He also took on the CM for failing to take back the APMC Act, which was amended by him in 2017 and contained all provisions of the three farm laws. He said presently the situation was such that even if the Centre repealed the three laws they would still be applicable in Punjab as the Congress government had refused to take back the changes made in its APMC Act.

Speaking about the problems of farmers of the Doaba region, he said sugarcane growers were suffering because of Rs 284 crore dues had not been paid to them. He said the Congress government had also not increased the sugarcane state assured price (SAP) for the last three years due to which farmers in the state were getting a price of Rs 310 per quintal only against Rs 350 per quintal being received by farmers of Haryana and Uttar Pradesh.

JALANDHAR, JANUARY 8

SAD president Sukhbir Singh Badal today said Chief Minister Capt Amarinder Singh had become a puppet of the BJP-led central government and was suppressing the voices which were speaking out against the three farm laws.

"It is clear that the Union Home Ministry knows about the weaknesses of the CM and that is why he is taking orders directly from the ministry and registering attempt to murder cases against Punjabis protesting against BJP leaders. Similarly, song writers and singers who have sung songs in praise of the farmers' agitation are being hauled up," he said.

Sukhbir said, "The CM should have been at the forefront of the fight to secure the rights of the farmers. He should have been ready to sacrifice all for it. Instead, he is relaxing in his farmhouse and doing lip service."

Priyanka Gandhi Vadra on Friday said there was no way out of the current deadlock with the farmers except repeal of the three agricultural laws. She said nothing less than a rollback of laws was acceptable to the party.

Priyanka said this while meeting Congress leaders from Punjab who have been protesting at Jantar Mantar for over a month.

Mohinder Kaur of Bahadurgarh Jandian village here, who hit the headlines after Kangana Ranaut tweeted her picture claiming that she was the same "Dadi" who was part of the Shaheen Bagh protest, has filed a complaint against the actress.

The complaint has been filed in a court here and a hearing has been fixed for January 11. In the complaint, filed through advocate Raghbir Singh Behniwal, Mohinder Kaur claimed that due to Kangana's false tweet, she suffered grave mental tension, agony, botheration, harassment, humiliation, loss of reputation, defamation in eyes of her family members, relatives, co-villagers and public in large.

Kangana had made the false tweet, without any reasonable and probable cause, she alleged. She also claimed that as she belonged to a farming family, she was supporting the farmers from day one against the new agricultural laws. She had gone to take part in the protest in Delhi to support peasants.

Farmers disrupt BJP's MC poll meeting

Take exception to saffron party's remarks against union leaders

OUR CORRESPONDENT

ABO哈尔, JANUARY 8

Even though the Bhartiya Kisan Union (BKU) had long ended its sit-in outside Abohar BJP MLA Arun Narang's residence at the Gaushala Road here, the first general meeting organised by the BJP to discuss Municipal Corporation poll campaign Thursday night was disrupted by farmers.

The immediate provocation was said to be the statements given by former minister Surjit Jyani of Fazilka and kisan wing leader Harjeet Singh Grewal who Thursday targeted senior BKU leaders for continuing the stir. Both the leaders gave a call to farmer leaders to give up "stubborn" attitude. Grewal targeted senior BKU leaders for continuing the stir. Both the leaders gave a call to farmer leaders to give up "stubborn" attitude. Grewal was quoted as saying in an interview that some leaders had ambition to contest the next Vidhan Sabha elections and were not ready to end the Delhi stir.

Feeling hurt, farmers last night surrounded the BJP's meeting venue and said protests would be held at party's all venues during its election campaign.

Cops had a tough time in preventing a clash between BKJ workers and farmers at Arorvansh Dharamshala where the saffron party had organised the first major meeting to mobilise workers for the MC elections.

The situation became tense as farmers gathered around the building and raised "Modi Murdabad" slogans to which BJP workers responded by shouting "Modi Zindabad".

MLA Arun Narang and District BJP president Rakesh Dhuria were present at the meeting. They were discussing about the candidates to be fielded, besides preparations for meetings to mobilise support. Narang tried to convince the protesters that the Centre was engaged in talks with the farmers to resolve their issues and Punjab leaders too met the PM.

Cops led by City-1 police station in charge Tejinderpal Singh reached the venue and rescued MLA and others.

AAP: Power consumers being cheated

CHANDIGARH, JANUARY 8
The Aam Aadmi Party has accused CM Capt Amarinder Singh of cheating consumers by imposing penalty on the pretext of installing smart electricity meters.

Suman MLA Aman Arora said the CM was robbing consumers of Rs 7,000 each by labelling them as "electricity thieves" to meet his poll expenses. He said in the name of curbing power theft, the government and power department were working together to collect money from public under a planned strategy, while the Akali government and then SAD and Congress leaders owed lakhs of rupees to the discom.

"When meters are already installed, what is the need to put an additional burden of Rs 7,000 on the public during pandemic? Due to anti-people policies, Punjab has the most expensive power," he added. —TNS

The Transport Minister blamed the Arvind Kejriwal-led AAP government in Delhi for not permitting Punjab Roadways buses up to Delhi International Airport. She said despite several letters to the Delhi Government, no action had been taken.

ready with the new time table. We will implement it once the cases are over. Litigation is holding up implementation of provisions of the transport policy and the office of the Advocate General is pursuing the matter." Covid vaccine dry run held across state

AMRITSAR/BATHINDA/
SANGRUR/JALANDHAR, JAN 8
The Health Department today conducted the dry run for the Covid vaccine across various districts in the state.

In Amritsar, the dry run was carried out at three locations—District Hospital, Health Centre at Verka area and Sri Guru Ram Das Hospital at Villah area. A group of 17 persons, all drawn from the Health Department, were administered the vaccine. Though the state health department had forwarded a list of 25 officials, many of them had already been transferred.

Before being administered the vaccine, their identity proofs were recorded and general health check-up was done.

Civil Surgeon Dr RS Sethi said: "People receive a text message for vaccination. After reaching the hospital, the staff verifies the message and records their identity proof. After confirming good health, they are administered the vaccine and put under observation for 30 minutes."

He said vaccines could arrive any time, so they had made arrangements at 27 centres, which would be headed by a Senior Medical Officer. "Each centre will have two teams comprising five medical officials. Vaccination will be prioritised. Healthcare professionals, both government and private, will be the first to be vaccinated, then defence personnel, then people stricken with diseases, 50 years and above," he added.

In Bathinda, ADC Rajdeep Brar oversaw the developments before the vaccine rollout. "The dry run is aimed at preparing ourselves in advance for any possible hurdles during the actual drive," he said.

Bathinda Civil Surgeon Dr Tejpal Singh Dhillon said: "The dry run was successfully conducted at the district hospital, Delhi heart, superspecialty hospital and CHC Gondiana."

Sangrur Civil Surgeon Dr Anjana Gupta said: "We have made all required arrangements. Residents should also help us as the drive needs everyone's support." Barnala Civil Surgeon Dr Harinder Singh said: "We carried out the drive at the Civil Hospital, Bar-

'Spies' planned to form gangster-radical nexus

TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

LUDHIANA, JANUARY 8

In the Halwara Air Force Station case, in which three persons were arrested for leaking classified information to ISI agents in Pakistan, the questioning of the three accused has revealed that they were creating a gangster-radical nexus to disturb peace in Punjab.

On December 29, the police had arrested three persons — Ramdas Singh, a contractual employee from Toosa village of Ludhiana; Sukhkiran Singh Sukha, also from Toosa village; and Shabir Ali, hailing from Sirmour in Himachal Pradesh.

After taking pictures of the Air Force station, in connivance with his two accomplices, Ramdas shared these with ISI agents in Pakistan and other countries.

Police sources said on the directions of an ISI agent and some Khalistani militants, the three were luring youth on

They discussed Khalistani activities in Punjab. Youth were even being assured that weapons would be supplied to them," said a police source.

Ludhiana (Rural) SSP Charanjit Singh Sohal confirmed that Sukha and others had radicalised some youth in Punjab. "We traced several such youth across Punjab who were being radicalised by the accused. Now, we are deradicalising such youngsters by counselling them and involving their parents," he said.

The police officer said there was a possibility that the accused, especially Sukha, got funding from Pakistan and other countries through hawala channels. The bank accounts of the accused have been frozen. The NIA and military intelligence are also conducting separate probes in the case. All three accused were sent in judicial custody on Thursday.

The SSP said the accused not only radicalised youth, but they also created a gangster-radical nexus to give wings to their anti-national agenda. The police listed several such gangsters who are either in jail or at large. Soon, the police will bring jailed gangsters on production warrant for questioning.

HC okays physical hearing in all cases

Dist courts to follow Covid norms

CHANDIGARH, JANUARY 8

Nearly 10 months after the courts went into restrictive function mode following apprehensions of Covid-19 outbreak, the Punjab and Haryana High Court has written to all District and Sessions Judges in Punjab, Haryana and Chandigarh to permit physical hearing in all categories of cases. All Benches in the High Court will also start functioning virtually from Monday.

The communication from High Court Registrar-General Sanjiv Berry made it clear Chief Justice Ravi Shanker Jha had ordered that all District and Sessions Judges would permit physical hearing "subject to their own assessment of prevailing local conditions, including the intensity of spread of Covid-19 pandemic".

The communication added the guidelines and health advisories issued by the Government of India and the state governments from time to time would be strictly followed. The judges were also asked to send weekly report regarding duration/time of sitting of each presiding officer in the court, the number of cases listed before each court, the gist of work done and the daily disposal.

The judges were asked amicably sort out problems related to physical hearing of the cases while adhering to earlier instructions by the High Court and other mandatory guidelines relating to the pandemic. The court had in earlier instructions, among other things, made it clear physical hearing would also be subject to consent by counsel appearing for all parties to the litigation. — TNS

GMADA orders owners to demolish illegal complex

TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

ROPAR, JANUARY 8

In fresh trouble for the owners of an upcoming shopping complex at Patti village on the Anandpur Sahib-Nangal NH 503 (extension), the Greater Mohali Area Development Authority (GMADA) has issued a notice asking them to demolish illegal construction within 30 days.

GMADA officials paste a notice on the wall of a shopping complex on the Anandpur Sahib-Nangal highway on Friday.

The authorities might

The action comes after The Tribune in these columns highlighted the

The Punjab Urban Development Authority rules prohibit any permanent construction within 100 feet from such roads.

Submit passport by Jan 20 to visit Pak, says SGPC

TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

AMRITSAR, JANUARY 8

The SGPC has extended the date for submission of passports for the pilgrims aspiring to visit Pakistan on 'Khalasa Sajna Diwas' (Baisakhi).

Pilgrims will now be able to submit their passports by January 20. Earlier, the deadline was December 31, 2020. Every year in April, a jatha (batch) of devotees is sent by the SGPC to celebrate Khalasa Sajna Diwas at Gurdwara Panja Sahib in Pakistan.

SGPC chief secretary Harjinder Singh said, "The pilgrims can get their passports certified by their area member and submit it at the headquarters of the SGPC at Amritsar. Along with the passport, pilgrims should send photocopies of Aadhaar card, voter identity card or ration card and three recent passport-size photographs, as proof of their identity."

He appealed to the 'san-gat' to send copies of their passports and the required documents within the stipulated time, so that the visas could be obtained.

Bathinda farmers oppose land acquisition for project

BATHINDA, JANUARY 8

Residents of six villages are up in arms against land acquisition for the six-lane Ajmer Green Field expressway passing through Jeeda and other villages in the district.

This project of the union government has triggered unrest among villagers after the survey was conducted by the NHAI.

Punjab farmers have started opposing the land acquisition for the expressway from Amritsar to Jamnagar. The farmers from villages in Bathinda district, where the land is to be acquired, gathered and staged a protest today outside the DC office.

They alleged that they did not need the road, and could not give their land. They claimed that the highway would be taken out from the middle of the fields, due to which, their business would be affected, as they depended primarily on farming for their livelihood.

They alleged that their fields would be divided into two parts and they would not be able to use the road.

Jagjit Singh, head, Zameen Bachao Sangrash Committee, said, "If the government tries to take the land forcibly, we will intensify the struggle."

This highway is expected to cost Rs 30,000 crore. As much as 75 per cent of the highway would be in Rajasthan, farmers said. — TNS

HC upholds Addl Sessions Judge's order on Grewal

SAURABH MALIK

TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

CHANDIGARH, JANUARY 8

Putting an end to a 22-year-old controversy over the summoning of former minister Maheshinder Singh Grewal and others as accused in a complaint alleging cheating and other offences, Justice Sanjay Kumar of the Punjab and Haryana High Court has ruled that it did not satisfy the requirements of law. The Bench also upheld the orders of an Additional Sessions Judge, who had set aside the summoning orders.

The matter has its genesis in a complaint filed by Gurbir Singh in May 1998 alleging commission of offences in relation to funds and property of Guru Nanak Education Trust and educational institutions run by it, including Guru Nanak Girls College, Ludhiana.

A magistrate in Ludhiana called upon the police to investigate and submit a report, following which the SHO of Civil Lines police station submitted a report adverse to the complainant. As a result, the magistrate dismissed the complaint saying summoning of ex-minister didn't meet requirements of law

vide an order on January 16, 1999. But the HC found favour with the complainant's contention in his plea before it that the magistrate had taken account of only the police investigation and not the preliminary evidence led by him. Setting aside the order, the HC directed the magistrate to decide the matter afresh.

In an order issued on March 2,

2010, the magistrate held sufficient grounds were made out to proceed against all accused for offences punishable under Sections 420, 465, 468, 471 and 120-B, IPC. They were accordingly summoned to face a trial. The summoning order was, however, set aside by an Additional Sessions Judge after remitting the matter for reconsideration.

Taking up a criminal revision, Justice Kumar asserted initially the magistrate's order was attacked on the ground that only police investigation was taken into consideration. The magistrate committed the same error in the second round but in converse by taking into consideration only the preliminary evidence and ignoring the police investigation.

Justice Kumar asserted: "Though the magistrate did not have to record a detailed reasoned order on the merits of the matter, he necessarily had to express an opinion as to why he disagreed with the findings in the police report to the effect that the complaint deserved to be dismissed. Without indicating such an opinion, the magistrate could not have issued the summoning order straight away." Justice Kumar concluded the Additional Sessions Judge, Ludhiana, was well justified in setting aside the summoning order and remitting the matter to the magistrate.

In his order, DIG (Jails) Surinder Singh Saini stated the three officials misused their official position and violated norms by allegedly allowing use of mobile phones inside the jail, besides extending illegal medical facility to ineligible inmates by accepting gratification.

They were also facing allegations of violating the Jail Department norms by staying in touch with family members of inmates and sending incorrect information to the department headquarters. The DIG has recommended further investigations with technical expertise of the police department to ascertain whether the officers received money through online modes as well.

OUR CORRESPONDENT

ABO哈尔, JANUARY 8

Punjab Chief Minister Capt Amarinder Singh plans to visit Abohar on January 11. The visit has special significance as the state government had upgraded the local civic body to a corporation last year and elections for the same are expected next month. The BJP-SAD alliance had a majority in the outgoing council for about nine years.

On his first visit as the Chief Minister during the current term, he will lay the foundation stones of projects, including Government College, which PPCC chief Sunil Jakhar had promised in his last Vidhan Sabha election campaign in 2017, to benefit

Rajinderpal Sharma alleged that land mafia was quite active in the area and it had purchased a land near the water channel at a low price and later installed an illegal temporary bridge on the water channel. Faceoff in Karnal village ahead of Khattar event

PARVEEN ARORA
TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

KARNAL, JANUARY 8
There was high drama on Friday at Kaimla village in this district, where Chief Minister Manohar Lal Khattar was scheduled to address a 'kisan mahapanchayat' on Sunday.

Hundreds of farmers from across the district marched to the village to disrupt preparations for the event, but village residents organising the 'kisan mahapanchayat' resisted them, leading to a faceoff between the two groups.

The villagers formed a human chain, forcing the protesting farmers to leave. The agitating farmers threatened that they would not allow the event.

A large number of police personnel led by Superintendent of Police Ganga Ram Punia camped in the village to maintain law and order. Barricades were put up at all entry points to the village to stop protesting farmers.

The Bhartiya Kisan Union (Charuni) had on January 6 announced that it would oppose the 'kisan mahapanchayat'. On Thursday, it had threatened to gherao the residence of local MLA Harvinder Kalyan in Kital village the following day.

As per the plan, farmers assembled at the Bastara toll plaza and started their march on combine harvesters, tractors, SUVs, cars and motorcycles towards the MLA's residence, where a large number of police personnel had been deployed.

The farmers changed their route at the last moment and moved towards Kaimla village. The police stopped the vehicles of farmers by barricading the road, but farmers marched into the village on foot.

They staged a dharna in the village. In the meantime, Kalyan and some villagers moved towards the protesting farmers in a bid to pacify them.

In view of the gravity of the situation, SP Punia alerted the personnel. Villagers formed a human chain to stop the protesting farmers from proceeding further.

“The BJP is rubbing salt on the wounds of farmers by holding a 'kisan mahapanchayat'. We will not allow the BJP to hold the event,” said Rajinder Arya, a farmer leader.

Bhupinder Singh Ladi, another farmer leader, said they had gone to Kaimla village to request the villagers to oppose the programme, but it was unfortunate that some villagers were adamant.

“We will force the BJP to cancel the event. We will continue to oppose this programme,” he added.

“We will not allow anyone to disrupt proceedings in the village,” said Ramesh Verma, a local resident.

Kalyan said they would pacify the protesting farmers and the Chief Minister's programme would be held as scheduled. He said Khattar would dedicate projects worth Rs 30 crore to the people during the event.

“The 'kisan mahapanchayat' is being organised to make people aware of the three laws. We are ready to clear all doubts of the protesting farmers,” said the MLA.

Punia said they had made security arrangements in the village for the Chief Minister's visit. “Nobody will be allowed to take the law into his hands,” he said. Later, Karnal MP Sanjay Bhatia, DC Nishant Kumar Yadav, IGP Bharti Arora and Punia visited the venue.

CM hopeful of resolution

NEW DELHI, DECEMBER 8
Chief Minister Manohar Lal Khattar on Friday met Union Home Minister Amit Shah here at North Block and discussed issues related to the farmers' protest and also the law and order situation.

Though the CM and officials in the Ministry of Home Affairs remained tight-lipped as to what transpired during the meeting, sources said the two leaders took stock of the situation in the state as most of the farmers' dharnas are taking place at the state's border areas adjoining the National Capital.

To a question on farmers' demand for repealing the three farm laws, the Chief Minister said that if that was the case, then the negotiation with farmers would have stopped long back.

On the proposed "kisan panchayat", Khattar said that such events are being organised in the state from time to time and they are held for discussing issues relating to public welfare. —TNS

G'gram school murder: CBI files chargesheet against four cops

Tribune News Service

CHANDIGARH, JANUARY 8

The CBI on Friday filed a supplementary chargesheet in a special court in Panchkula against four Haryana Police personnel, including an ACP and an Inspector, for their alleged role in framing a bus conductor in the killing of a seven-year-old boy of a Gurugram private school in September 2017.

It was found later that the boy was murdered allegedly by a senior student of the same school.

In a statement, the CBI said the chargesheet was submitted for criminal conspiracy read with criminal intimidation (Section 506 of the IPC), public servant disobeying direction under law (Section 167-A), public servant framing an incorrect document to cause injury (Section 167) and voluntary causing hurt to extract confession (Section 330).

A Class II student, whom the court named 'Prince' to protect his identity, was found near the toilet of the school with his throat slit on the morning of September 8, 2017, within an hour of his father leaving him at the school.

The local police had arrested bus conductor Ashok Kumar and showed the recovery of a knife, claiming it to be the murder weapon. The police had claimed to have solved the case quickly by implicating the bus conductor.

The CBI, after taking up the case, debunked the police claim and found the conductor to be innocent. During the investigation, the agency questioned teachers and students, and scanned local markets, which led them to a Class XI student of the school, whom the court named 'Master Bolu'.

CBI spokesperson RC Joshi said the Class XI student was apprehended on November 7, 2017. “It was revealed during the CBI investigation that the conductor earlier arrested by the Gurugram Police was not involved in the murder case. During further probe, the alleged role of four police officials came to light,” he said.

According to the CBI, the Class XI student, believed to be weak in studies, allegedly slit the throat of the Class II student so that the school declared a holiday, and deferred a scheduled parent-teacher meeting and an examination. The accused is facing a murder trial.

Time for breakthrough

Leave it to states to accept, modify or even reject farm laws

NOTHING is gained any longer from weighing the rights and wrongs of the farm laws; it is time for a breakthrough. The losses to Punjab, Haryana, western Uttar Pradesh and private and government enterprises like the railways are mounting day by painful day. Punjab Government officials claim that the state could have incurred a loss of Rs 4,500 crore during the ongoing agitation. The loss of lives (60, according to certain accounts) among the agitators in the coldest months of this particularly harsh winter; the three who have committed suicide; and those elderly who brave the elements are all pointers to the human suffering involved in the agitation. Equally miserable are those whose lives and livelihoods have been disrupted due to the blockade. Thursday's tractor march on the Kundli-Manesar-Palwal Expressway forewarns of Delhi being cut off from Punjab, Haryana, Chandigarh, parts of Himachal Pradesh and western Uttar Pradesh. This is a crisis and the government is badly mistaken if it plans to wear the farmers out. That is no plan.

The meeting of Baba Lakha Singh of Nanaksar Gurdwara with Agriculture Minister Narendra Tomar is a welcome move. The Baba says he has been serving the protesters langar at the Delhi border and knew the fellow priest from Karnal of the Nanaksar sect, who took his life to express solidarity with the farmers. The BJP's Kisan Morcha seeking out the Akal Takht Jathedars, its religious symbolism notwithstanding, is a promising signal because the Centre ought to pause and let the state governments decide whether they want to notify the farm laws and implement them. Agriculture is a state subject and it should remain so. The Centre has a responsibility to give direction and to push the nation towards prosperity by framing model laws on state subjects; but then it should leave it to the people, particularly the state governments, to accept, modify or even reject the proposals.

A well-intentioned proposal will surely get the people's acceptance in due course of time. Meanwhile, good governance is all about finding solutions, however intractable the situation is. Let there be governance.

Fighting stress in Army

Recommendations need serious consideration

THE high motivation levels of the Army personnel despite harsh and challenging service conditions came shining through at a recent seminar by a leading think tank. However, the deliberations and recommendations regarding the prevailing stress levels need serious consideration. The observation that 'more than half of the Army seems to be under severe stress... due to operational and non-operational reasons' calls for a carefully-thought-out policy intervention and remedial measures. A shift in strategy is all the more necessary because the various stress management steps implemented during the past 15 years have apparently not been able to achieve the desired results.

The cause-and-effect list includes the prolonged exposure to counter-terrorism environment, non-combat-related reasons, inadequacies in the quality of leadership, overburdened commitments, inadequate resources and frequent dislocation. A more supportive and responsive organisational and administrative climate has been advocated. Stress prevention and management, it has been pointed out, have to be treated as a leadership role. An insightful suggestion is making government agencies and the society at large more sensitive to the peculiar service conditions and the ethos of the soldiers.

The issues that need to be addressed on priority, according to experts, are those related to the quality of command and man-management that affect the morale, motivation, honour and dignity of Army personnel. Aspirational concerns, better support facilities for self and family, delay or denial of leave, unreasonable restrictions, lack of recreational facilities, conflict with seniors as well as subordinates, health problems, delay in crediting of financial claims and poor quality of rations — the catalogue may be long, but solutions have to be found and changes implemented. As aptly articulated, prolonged exposure to excessive stress has serious adverse effects on the health and efficiency of soldiers and combat units. Be it the Army or other armed forces, of paramount importance is improving and maximising institutional arrangements to deal with personnel under stress; from counselling to motivating to showing empathy.

FORMATION OF PARTIES.

ONE important question arises: What about parties? That parties must eventually arise in India has long been foreseen, and with the birth of the new legislatures with ministers responsible to them, the time for their formation may be said to have arrived already. As we have said, we do not believe in exclusive parties and with rigid boundary lines until India has become the complete master of her destinies. While the struggle for self-government continues, there is room for only two great parties in India, the party of the Motherland and the party of the bureaucracy, meaning by the latter term all those who want the bureaucratic form of government to indefinitely continue. At the same time, it is prudent to recognise that both for the working of the Reforms and in these very circumstances, parties are sure to arise even at this early stage. The question is on what lines should they evolve? After all, except for Madras and Maharashtra, where the question is complicated by the caste difficulty, there are only three lines on which this evolution can proceed. It can proceed on communal lines, on the lines of rural vs. urban representation, and lastly on lines identical with those existing in the West. Of these, the second is disposed of, because the moment our legislature begins work in earnest, it will be seen that nothing else will break harmony than a division based on the distinction of rural and urban areas. In majority of cases, the two classes have the same interests to promote and have to fight the same battle. The first would have been a plausible division some time ago, though for our part we should still have regarded it as the greatest enemy of democratic self-government. But it has lost plausibility by reason of the Lucknow compact. We do not forget the case of the Sikhs in our own Province, but a little reflection will convince Sikh members that they have little to gain by pressing a division on communal lines.

Mayhem on Capitol Hill

Trump has proved that it is possible to become a 'constitutional dictator'

VAPPALA BALACHANDRAN

FORMER SPECIAL SECRETARY,
CABINET SECRETARIAT

UNREAL: Trump's incitement was a scene out of Hollywood's surrealistic movies of Presidents betraying their countries through sedition and insurrection. REUTERS

DONALD John Trump, America's 45th President, has many ignominious 'firsts' to his name. He is the first President to wage wars on his own government departments and the US media, denigrating them as the 'Deep State'. He exonerated the Russian President at the Helsinki summit in 2018 from serious charges of aggressive electronic interference, thereby embarrassing his own agencies.

He insulted senior Senator Jeff Sessions a number of times, once calling him an 'idiot', while he was holding the post of Attorney General, which was created soon after the Constitution was framed in 1787. He is also the first President to be so openly exposed to allegations of predatory sexual deviations and corruption.

Now he has crowned his baseness by exhorting his armed goons to march towards the Capitol, causing deaths and mayhem, thereby inviting international ridicule to the most powerful country in the world. His incitement was a scene torn out of Hollywood's surrealistic movies of fictitious Presidents betraying their countries through sedition and insurrection.

Trump has also proved, either due to Congressional reticence or the passivity of his own senior executive aides, that it is possible to become a 'constitutional dictator', a fear that was voiced by the 'anti-Federalists' during the constitutional debates in 1787. They had then framed laws on 'separation of powers' and 'checks and balances' in the Constitution to 'prevent a tyrannous concentration of power in any one branch, to check and restrain Government and, ultimately, to protect the rights and liberties of citizens'.

The First Article gave the Congress

'all legislative powers'. The Second granted 'executive powers' to the President. The Third Article conferred all 'judicial powers' to the Supreme Court. James Madison had then proposed 'auxiliary precautions' as 'checks and balances' allowing each branch to check and balance the others. The presidential veto and nomination powers to higher judiciary to be approved by the Senate, impeachment powers by the Congress and the Supreme Court's power to strike down laws passed by the Congress were in this direction.

Trump was perhaps the first to declare that his nominations of 'Conservatives' to the higher judiciary was for his partisan political ends. It speaks highly of the courts that it did not happen that way. However, the Congress failed to check Trump's transgressions as the Republican-majority Senate gave more importance to partisan political alignments.

The result was seen on January 6.

The seemingly labyrinthine state polls and the 'electoral votes' were also devised as insurance from meddling by predatory candidates like Trump who had disregarded prudence by calling the Secretary of State in Georgia to swing votes in his favour.

In the beginning, there was no stipulation that these Electors should be political persons or be elected. Over the years, all states decided to directly elect the presidential Electors. So, the presidential polls are 51 simultaneous state elections rather than one nationally consolidated election (50 states and the district of Columbia). Thus, Trump had no authority to make that call to the Georgia Secretary of State.

The system of Electoral College was copied from the Roman "Centuriate Assembly" system in which adult males were divided according to wealth into groups of 100, with each 100 having one vote. In America, the states form these "Centuriate Groups", their votes depending on the size of their delegation to the Congress.

Thus every four years on the first Tuesday in November the voters in states choose the slate of Electors. The next process is the allotment of electoral votes in each state. Under the "Winner Takes All" system, all the electoral votes are allotted to the slate getting the majority of popular votes in a state under Article II which considers each state as one entity. The same system is followed in the case of a deadlock when the House of Representatives elects the President. One state has only one vote in that situation, irrespective of the number of different party representatives.

As regards India, one cannot but regret how misdirected our diplomacy was in the US by openly backing Trump for re-election through special events like Texas' 'Howdy, Mody' in 2019 and Motera's 'Namaste Trump' in February 2020. The needless controversy in December 2019, when our External Affairs Minister refused an invitation by the Democrat-majority House Foreign Relations Committee was another, ignoring the straws in the wind on the US poll trends.

Equally strange was the description of Biden's followers as "Biden's gang" who would not be favourable to India by a leading Indian-American Hindu ideologue while he was holding a pre-election discussion in May 2020 on TV. The provocation was the February 4, 2020, Seattle City Council resolution criticising arrests of anti-CAA protesters in India.

It pays to be a doctor, and how!

RAJIV SHARMA

OPEN the boot of your car, ordered a police officer when I was stopped at a naka for a routine inspection. After inspecting the boot with a torch, he came to the driver's window and said amiably, 'Sir, are you a doctor?' I nodded. He signalled his subordinates to remove the barricade and waved me good night.

I was taken aback by the courteous behaviour of the policeman. How was he able to guess my profession? Perhaps my immaculate dress sense gave him a hint. I kept thinking on the way. But somehow, I liked the way I was treated, and slept peacefully.

A few days after this incident, I happened to go to a luxury hotel along with my son to meet an old friend. Cars were being checked thoroughly by security guards by opening trunks as well as bonnets. As soon as one of them opened the trunk of my car, he shouted to his colleague, 'He is a doctor! Let him go!' The man gave me a foot-thumping salute and let me pass without lifting the bonnet.

That set me thinking. Neither my car bears any insignia of a doctor nor do I carry my stethoscope. How come the men who matter are so courteous! Not used to such ego-boosting gestures, I felt as if my long career as a clinician was finally paying off.

Once again, one Saturday morning, when I was hurrying to my clinic, I was stopped at a police checkpoint because of a red alert issued by the authorities. Every car was being checked and documents were being scrutinised, besides video recording. An officer asked me to open the car's boot and instructed me to bring out the relevant documents while he examined the trunk. I was a bit nervous because the pollution certificate had expired a few days ago. I was thinking of an excuse to escape the penalty when he shouted, 'Let him go.' The cop came towards the driver's seat and said, 'Have a nice day, doctor. You may go.'

I heaved a sigh of relief.

Pondering over the recent spate of prestige-enhancing incidents, I realised there must be something in the boot. Whoever opened it had an instant change of heart.

Last Sunday, I opened the trunk of the car to discover the reason behind the preferential treatment I had been receiving for the past few weeks. A normal saline bottle was lying there. A month ago, I administered intravenous fluids to my mother as she was suffering from gastroenteritis. One of the bottles was left behind inadvertently.

I picked up the saline bottle and gave it a thumbs-up before removing it from the boot. At the same time, I felt obliged to live up to the deep sense of faith and respect people in general have for the noblest of all professions.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Subversion of democracy

Apropos of 'Blot on US democracy', megalomaniac Trump has gone off his head. He has been defeated fairly and squarely in the presidential election, yet he is not ready to concede defeat. Rather he has got Capitol Hill stormed by his equally irrational supporters to disrupt a constitutional process by the Congress to affirm the victory of President-elect Joe Biden. This is nothing short of a coup for which he should be arrested. The violence triggered by his December 20 tweet in which he had called his supporters for a wild rally on the day Biden's victory was to be certified has killed four persons. It has certainly tarnished the fair name of American democracy, to which the world looks with great expectations and inspiration. Trump has tried to subvert democracy.

TARSEEM BUMRAH, BATALA

Taking it too far

Democracy is a government of the people, by the people and for the people. Whosoever presented this concept of democracy to the world had not imagined that while electing governments, instead of voting on issues, people would vote on the basis of caste, religion, race, etc. In India, parties openly campaign and ask votes on the basis of religion, caste, etc. What was happening in India has happened in the US during the 2020 presidential election. People were divided and voted on the basis of race, ethnic and religion. What happened at the Capitol Hill is a glimpse of the events going to unfold in the future. How far it is right to give equal voting right to all, whether a person is illiterate, criminal or corrupt?

ASHOK BAHL, KANGRA

There is hope yet

No doubt, the recent riots have brought a bad name to the democratic values prevalent in the US, yet the voice raised by a few but influential Republicans against Trump, which compelled him to yield to transfer the power to Biden, is historic and strengthens the roots of democracy. The brave stand and action exhibited against the arrogance of Trump by members of his own party prove to what extent their ethical commitments go to keep the democratic institutions alive and vibrant, healthy and honest. Instead of indulging in sycophancy, they have asked Vice-President Pence to slap Trump with sedition charges and prosecute him for instigating crowds.

Punjab's losses

The report 'Impasse causes Rs 4,500-crore losses to Punjab' highlights the economic fallout of the current farmers' protests on Punjab. Considering that the financial health of Punjab was already in the red, this statement by its FM assumes added significance. The FM has alleged that Punjab has been overlooked by the Centre for awarding the Food Park Project of the UAE. Successive governments have echoed this sentiment of unjust treatment by the Centre for the past many years. If it is a fact, why no steps are taken to leverage the Centre's initiatives, instead of just harping on being left out every time?

One also looks with concern at the intense anti-corporate sentiment being encouraged among the people of the state, which is in sore need of private investment. Successive state governments have failed to develop a balanced attitude towards both public and private sectors, resulting in failure to ameliorate the conditions prevalent in the state. A pragmatic leadership knows how to keep the state on the winning side, without paying any undesirable cost.

Morale of the Army

Refer to 'Half of Army under stress'; the findings are shocking and demoralising. The authorities concerned must suggest viable and effective remedies to the highlighted grey areas. The government should take prompt and concrete action to redress the genuine and avoidable problems of our forces.

SUNIL KUMAR MAHajan, BY MAIL

Not 'BJP vaccine'

'Vaccines don't belong to any political party,' said Omar Abdullah, but Samajwadi Party chief Akhilesh Yadav thinks otherwise, calling it 'vaccine of the BJP'. How puerile and ridiculous utterances by an educated and seasoned politician who once occupied the chair of the CM of UP! Overwhelmed by blind opposition, he failed to see the millions of people dying of the disease. Scientists burnt midnight oil to come up with the vaccine that is effective to tackle the spread of the virus throughout the world. Those who died were shunned by the family to dispose of the bodies respectfully. Such was the dread of the deadly infection. Mr Akhilesh should visit the families who lost their loved ones to the virus. The vaccine does not belong to the BJP, but PM Modi worked hard and helped our scientists to bring out the vaccine. Leaders are expected to spread awareness for the good of the people and desist from rumours and misinformation which can spell disaster.

Why big businesses want these farm laws

AUNINDYO CHAKRAVARTY

SENIOR ECONOMIC ANALYST

HAVE you ever wondered why India's big businesses are suddenly so keen on farming? The answer is very simple. They have already exhausted all other options of making mega profits. After all, we know that farm income in India has not kept pace with inflation for at least the past two decades now. So, in real terms, farmers earn less now than they did in the previous millennium. Yet, big corporates find the agriculture sector attractive enough to have lobbied for these new farm laws.

Darbari economists with their fairy-tale theories will tell you that corporates entering the farm is a win-win for all. Two banal concepts that they like to use here are 'economies of scale' and 'backward and forward integration'.

The fable of the free market goes something like this: Big companies will bring low-cost finance, they will be able to procure seeds, fertilisers and pesticides at discounted prices because they'll order it in bulk, they will bring new farming technologies to improve yields, they will reduce wastage at harvest, they will set up cold-chain systems to quickly transport grains, vegetables and fruits and they will even sell the produce at lower prices to the final consumer, in their own retail chains, by removing the villainous middlemen.

Such balderdash is forgivable if spouted by your retired uncle in the family WhatsApp group. When mainstream economists and celebrated commentators regurgitate it, one has to wonder about their real intentions. That's because it is impossible to believe that they are unaware of the facts of corporatisation of agriculture in other parts of the world. Everywhere, without exception, it has created a few agri-giants who have made massive profits, while farmers have become poorer and food has become more expensive.

The real reason why corporates want to enter the farm sector and why their handmaids in academia and the media are batting for the new farm laws lies in the recent history of our economy. India has always had monopolies, where a few business houses controlled all organised industries. It even entered the popular lexicon where someone who had the airs of being rich would be ridiculed as one "who thinks they are some Tata-Birla."

From the late 1960s, this came under restrictions by the state when Indira Gandhi decided that the only way she could take on the 'syndicate' of entrenched Congress leaders, was to take a left turn. From the mid-1980s, especially after Rajiv Gandhi became PM, many hurdles placed on big corporate houses were gradually removed. The Rao-Manmohan reforms of the 90s lifted what little remained.

The liberalisation years did give some opportunity for new entrepreneurs to compete with established business houses. This was especially true in export-oriented industries and in the new 'sunrise' sectors like IT and telecom. Things looked even better for new businesses in the mid-2000s. Easy finance during UPA-1, new political alignments, policy focus on big-ticket infrastructure projects, and the real estate boom opened the door for the emergence of new companies.

All of these credit-fuelled businesses collapsed when the global financial bubble burst in 2008. Many companies, which had investors chasing them in the mid-2000s, became bankrupt, their market capitalisation dropping to a fraction of what it was in 2007.

Every industry witnessed a process of consolidation, where a few big companies, usually those that were already entrenched, gradually bought over others. Some sectors, such as power, were entirely abandoned, leaving it to the government and public sector banks to deal with the mess created by private capital.

Since the Modi government has come to power, monopolies have become even more entrenched. This was partly a legacy of what UPA-2 had left behind. When a credit bubble bursts, it crushes everyone except businesses that have deep pockets, cash reserves and political heft. The Modi government's initial attempt to clean up the bad loan mess only made things worse for those with big loans, and ended up strengthening big businesses.

However, the slowdown in the rest of the economy and the government's terrible performance on jobs has caused the mother of all demand problems. So, corporates are making money by cutting costs, sacking people and reducing investments. They are selling less, but spending even lesser. The result is that big companies are spending their profits on buying back shares and rewarding shareholders with bigger dividends. This is the exact opposite of what growing economies need. It is also a vicious cycle which can only lead to increasing contraction. At some point, there will be no buyers left to sell things to and there will be no profits to be made.

In such a situation, monopoly capital has only one place to turn to. And that is agriculture, which is the only sector that is entirely run by small 'private entrepreneurs'. After all, that is exactly what farmers are. There is a lot of money to be made here through consolidation. Big businesses can indeed take over the share of income made by intermediaries — traders, transporters, wholesalers and retailers.

There are literally millions of small private entrepreneurs in agriculture who can be pushed aside and replaced by big agricultural monopolies. It is also one sector where demand is permanent, especially if your aim is to sell mostly to the urban middle classes. Urban consumers already pay for margins earned by the entire chain of intermediaries who stand between the farm and their kitchen. It is of no consequence to them whether the profits are being made by a million people or one big company.

For big business, agriculture is the last big sector that offers the opportunity for consolidation. It is also the only space where there is a possibility of growth. That is why they are so keen to see the farm laws stay. And that is what India's farmers have to fight.

BITTER FACT: Farm corporatisation has only created a few agri-giants who make huge profits, while farmers have become poorer and food costlier.

Agriculture is the only sector that is entirely run by small 'private entrepreneurs'. After all, that is exactly what farmers are. There is a lot of money to be made here through consolidation. Big businesses can indeed take over the share of income made by intermediaries — traders, transporters, wholesalers and retailers. It is also one sector where demand is permanent, especially if your aim is to sell mostly to the urban middle classes.

US rebuffs China's role in picking Dalai Lama

JAYADEVA RANADE

PRESIDENT, CENTRE FOR CHINA ANALYSIS AND STRATEGY

For China, which has long worried about its restive Tibetan population and the fact that hostile powers could instigate Tibetan diaspora in its neighbourhood to fan instability in China, the Act comes at an awkward time.

It coincides with the deterioration in China's relations with the US, growing strain in ties with India, and increased restiveness among its ethnic minority populations in Tibet, Xinjiang and Inner Mongolia.

NEW LAW: The Tibetan Policy and Support Act, recently enacted by the US, recognises the authority of the Dalai Lama and Tibetans to choose his reincarnation. PTI the practice through Order No. 5 in 2007. To further tighten its grip, China brought the State Religious Affairs Bureau, till then functioning under the government, directly under Chinese Communist Party (CCP) control in 2018 after the 19th Party Congress.

It effectively challenges China's insistence on a role, which Beijing claims is sanctified by history, in selecting and approving the Dalai Lama's reincarnation.

Chinese officials refer to the method introduced by the Qing dynasty of China in the late 18th century to select rinpoches, lamas and other high offices within Tibetan Buddhism by dropping names into a 'Golden Urn' and drawing lots. The selected name is then approved by Beijing. China's State Religious Affairs Bureau sought to institutionalise world. It is undoubtedly a morale booster for Tibetans as it implies continued long-term US support to the CTA.

For China, which has long worried about the restive Tibetan population inside China and the fact that hostile powers could instigate the Tibetan diaspora in its neighbourhood to fan instability in China, the TPSA comes at an awkward time. It coincides with the sharp deterioration in China's relations with the US, growing serious strain in relations with India, and increased restiveness among China's ethnic minority populations in Tibet, Xinjiang and Inner Mongolia. A direct consequence of this will probably be increased pressure on Nepal and Mongolia and enhanced Chinese vigilance on its borders with neighbours.

The unrest in China's border provinces of Tibet, Xinjiang and Inner Mongolia has been provoked by the implementation of Chinese President Xi Jinping's concept of 'Zhonghua minzu' — often translated as 'Chinese nation' — which is central to his 'China Dream'. At the Central Ethnic Work Conference in 2014 and later at the Seventh Tibet Work Forum in August 2020, Xi Jinping insisted that "cultural identity is the foundation and long-term basis for strengthening the great unity of the Chinese nation." Having a common language is considered essential to this and, therefore, the emphasis on replacing ethnic languages like Tibetan with Mandarin.

The Tibet Autonomous Region (TAR) authorities have since early last year specifically renewed emphasis on the need for safeguarding national unity and sustained opposition against "separatist activities of the Dalai Lama and the Dalai Clique". Campaigns continue across TAR with Public Security Bureau teams travelling to border counties like Ngari (Ali) to arrest 'separatist' elements. There has been a noticeable uptick in propaganda by TAR authorities since August last year to dilute the Dalai Lama's influence among Tibetans and especially among Tibetan Buddhist monks and nuns. The effort is led by senior TAR cadres, including TAR Party Secretary Wu Yingjie.

The TAR leaders have focused on monasteries to persuade monks and nuns to become 'models' and instruct them on the provisions for recognising the Reincarnation of Living Buddhas'. Equally emphasised are study of Xi Jinping's 'strategic exposition' of governing and stabilising Tibet's borders and "the practice of Tibetan Buddhism should obey the rules of the Chinese Communist Party (CCP) to ensure stability in the region and unity among different ethnic groups."

To lend religious authority and reinforce the effort, the Chinese authorities last year positioned Gyaltsen Norbu, the Chinese-selected Panchen Lama, in TAR for the longest period yet. He, for the first time, travelled to Ngari, Lhoka, Nagchu and Nyingtri and visited all major monasteries.

Coinciding with the 25th anniversary of his appointment as the Panchen Lama, the China Tibet News portrayed Gyaltsen Norbu as 'a true living Buddha' and highlighted his message of 'love the country, love education, protect the country and benefit people.'

The coming period will be difficult for China as it will probably confront a situation of 'Two Dalai Lamas', something they want to avoid! Tibetans have, after all, not yet accepted Gyaltsen Norbu as their Panchen Lama. This will make it more difficult for Beijing to calm Tibet.

India will have a crucial role during this period. It should adhere to its current policy of non-interference in the religion of Tibetans and acceptance of their beliefs.

In the interim, it is important for India to regain its stature as the centre of Buddhism, which includes according prominence to the XIVth Dalai Lama and other ranking Buddhist religious personages.

Centre's reply sought on SC panel vacancies

NEW DELHI, JANUARY 8
The Supreme Court on Friday asked the Centre to respond to a PIL seeking directions for appointment of full-term chairman and vice-chairman of the National Commission for Scheduled Castes and the National Commission for Scheduled Tribes.

A Bench headed by Chief Justice of India SA Bobde issued notices to the Centre, the state of Uttar Pradesh and others on a PIL filed by People's Charioteer Organisation in October last year after the gangrape and subsequent death of a 19-year-old Dalit girl in Hathras.

The posts of the chairperson and the vice-chairperson and members in both NCSC and the NCST were vacant. In Uttar Pradesh, the chairperson's posts were vacant, the petitioner NGO alleged.

According to the National Crime Records Bureau there were nearly 45,935 crimes against SCs in 2019, an increase of 7.3 per cent over 2018 (42,793 cases). Uttar Pradesh had recorded the highest number of crimes against SCs in 2019.—TNS

SC: Concerned over attacks on forest rangers, may arm them

Tribune News Service

NEW DELHI, JANUARY 8
Expressing serious concern over attacks on forest rangers by armed poachers and smugglers, the Supreme Court on Friday indicated that it may pass orders providing firearms, bulletproof vests and helmets to them to ensure their safety.

"The forest officials are up against a bigger force and millions of dollars are being siphoned off by smuggling... ED (Enforcement Directorate) should be roped in. It should have a separate wildlife wing. These are all proceeds of crime," a Bench, headed by Chief Justice of India SA Bobde, said while hearing certain applications filed in a 25-year-old PIL on environment and forests related issues.

Referring to attacks on forest rangers in Rajasthan, Madhya Pradesh and Maharashtra, senior advocate Shyam Divan said, "Brutal attacks are made on forest rangers. Even counter cases are lodged against them... India accounts for 38 per cent of attacks on forest officials."

"It is difficult to comprehend how forest officials are to be protected in vast tracts of land where poachers take advantage to carry out the nefarious activities. It is difficult to manage how any law can be enforced by the forest officials who are unarmed in comparison to poachers who are heavily armed," the Bench said, adding such crimes needed to be checked. Agreeing with Divan, the CJI said, "When we go to Assam, (we see) they are given arms while in Maharashtra..." it said, posting the matter for hearing after four weeks.

tra they are given only "lathi".

"In Karnataka, forest officials are seen roaming in "chappals" and are being slapped by poachers. We want the Solicitor General to make a statement on the next date of hearing that arms will be given to personnel..." it said, posting the matter for hearing after four weeks.

Jadeja, Gill do star turns

SYDNEY, JANUARY 8

Rookie opener Shubman Gill struck a fluent half-century as a resolute India reached 96/2 at stumps after Steve Smith dragged Australia to 338 with a brilliant 131 on the second day of the third Test today.

The star of the day for India was Ravindra Jadeja, who took a four-wicket haul and ran Smith out with a brilliant direct hit to end Australia's innings. The Indian bowlers, especially Jadeja (four wickets for 62) and the ever-dependable Jasprit Bumrah (2/66), were brilliant with their length on a flat wicket on which Smith and Marnus Labuschagne (91) raised visions of a 450-plus total when they took the team to 206/2.

But even the 338 they got seemed distant at one stage after Jadeja picked up wickets and Australia lost their No. 8 Pat Cummins to be reduced to 278/7. But a few lusty blows from Mitchell Starc and Smith took the team to 338.

second new ball, were on target even as debutant Navdeep Saini (2/65) leaked a few runs. The track didn't have much for the slow bowlers on the first two days but Jadeja still managed to deny Labuschagne a deserved hundred.

Labuschagne fell when he got an arm ball from Jadeja which bounced a bit more, denying him room for a cut. The result was a smart catch by skipper Ajinkya Rahane, who had positioned himself a wide at first slip.

Though Jadeja got wickets, both he and Ashwin erred by bowling on the shorter side, giving Smith ample opportunity to rock back and play through the vacant spaces on the off-side.—TNS/Agencies

US modifies H-1B selection process

WASHINGTON, JANUARY 8
The outgoing Trump administration on Friday modified the selection process for H-1B visa, giving priority to salary and skills instead of the current lottery procedures.

The notification was published in the Federal Register. It will come into force in 60 days. The H-1B visa is a non-immigrant visa that allows US companies to employ foreign workers in specialty occupations that require theoretical or technical expertise. The technology companies depend on it to hire tens of thousands of employees each year from countries like India and China.

The next H-1B visa filing season is slated to start on April 1. The notification is the latest effort to bar the entry of immigrants to the US.—PTI
